Flew Through Storm.

Mezieres, France, Aug. 12.—With an average speed of more than sixty miles an hour, Aviator Le Blanc yesterday flew from Nancy to Mezieres, leading the field of cross-country flyers for the third day's run in the six-day program, in which $17,000 in prizes are to be awarded.

The direct distance between Nancy and Mezieres is 100 miles, but Le Blanc raced with a storm most of the way and was driven far out of his course. In the two hours and five minutes that he was aloft Le Blanc estimates that he traveled at least 130 miles. The storm forced Lindpainter, one of the contestants, to alight. Le Blanc and Aubrun, however, drove their machines ahead of the storm, escaping the centre of it, but getting badly "mixed up" in the edges.

A crowd of 50,000 greeted Le Blanc on his arrival here and the enthusiasm was the greatest that has yet marked the race. Le Blanc was carried to his hotel on the shoulders of frenzied admirers.

"OLD DATE."

A Young Girl Graduate and the College Professor.

By ELIZABETH PARKER.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

When I was invited by Mrs. Winston to meet Professor Dayton, the man whom everybody was talking about for having made so many remarkable scientific discoveries, I was somewhat surprised. I was but eighteen years old, didn't know anything about science and seemed to myself to be an unfit person to be asked to meet a scientific man.

But there was not much going on in our quiet town, and mamma said there would certainly be some other young persons invited or an invitation would not have been sent to me. So I accepted. I arrived late and found a mixture of young and middle aged persons standing about in little groups. I saw Sue Bond standing alone and joined her. I had been "out" but little, and as she is one of my intimate friends I felt reassured at tying myself to her. I saw Mrs. Winston, who was chatting with a dandified young fellow with a very high shirt collar and very long cuffs, look at me in a way that led me to believe she meditated getting me away from Sue and attaching me to the young man. I was not averse to her doing so, for I dreaded lest I should fall into the hands of some of the learned men invited to meet the professor, if not the professor himself. Then I saw her bringing the young man toward me, and I knew that my prognostications were correct.

I was very diffident. Indeed, I was so intent upon thinking how I would start conversation with the young man that I heard nothing of Mrs. Winston's words of introduction. But when left alone with him I hadn't thought of anything to say to him. He soon put me at my ease by rattling off several commonplace remarks, which gave me time to find my tongue.

"WELL, I DECLARE!"

"I don't understand," I remarked, "why we young people are invited to meet this professor. I suppose Mrs. Winston has invited us to fill up and will surround him with the older ones."

He gave me a pleasant smile, showing a set of very white, regular teeth, and said, "Surely you're not afraid of him!"

"I wouldn't get caught with him for half an hour on any account," I replied. "What could we talk about?"

"Oh, he doesn't talk shop in company," he replied.

"Do you know him?"

"Very well. He lectured at my alma mater."

"Have you been graduated?"

"Certainly. Why do you ask?"

"Why, you don't look old enough."

He seemed to be much amused at this and told me that he had been out of college quite awhile, but admitted that he had entered very young.

"Oh, well," I said, "if you are a college graduate you might coach me upon some topic that would enable me in case I should meet this learned man to open conversation with him."

"Certainly. Upon what subject would you like to draw him out?"

"Oh, I leave that to you. I don't know anything about any of them. I have only been to the high school and couldn't learn even the elements of any science while there."

"Well, I'll tell you what you do. Say 'Professor, is it true that the discovery of radium has upset the theory of the conservation of energy?' "

"I couldn't remember all those big words. Can't you give me something easier?"

"You might ask him to tell you what your own sex has had to do with recent scientific discoveries. That will draw him out on a subject that should be interesting to you."

"What would he say?"

"What would he say? Good gracious, do you suppose I know? Do you take me for a scientific phenomenon? I am simply giving you a pointer for the professor."

"But you have heard him lecture?"

"Yes."

"Then you must know things he has said. Tell me some of them."

"His lectures are very dry. He has little faculty for making scientific truths interesting. His forte is in getting his nose down to his test tubes and blowpipes in his laboratory and digging out things that way."

"I shouldn't think such a man would care for society, and I should expect him to be awfully hard to talk to."

"On the contrary, 'Old Date,' as the students call him, is very fond of society."

"How old is he?"

"Somewhere between thirty and forty."

"Thirty isn't old—that is, not very old."

"All the professors are old to the students. They always prefix 'old' to the names of members of the faculty and cut off one or more syllables."

"Where is Old Date, as you call him? Is he in this room?"

"I don't see him," he replied, looking about him. "Would you like me to find him and bring him to introduce to you?"

"Oh, heavens!" I gasped. Then, remembering myself, I put on what dignity I could assume and added: "If there is any one you wish to talk to don't hesitate to leave me. I dare say Mrs. Winston will take care of me."

"Not by any means. You have talked so much of Professor Dayton that I thought you might like to know him. I assure you I should consider it a deprivation to give you up to him."

At that moment Mr. Winston approached with a baldheaded man in spectacles whom she introduced to me and took the young man I had been chatting with away to introduce to some one else.

The rest of the evening was very dull to me, and I was glad when I saw mamma making a move to leave. As I was passing out of the house the young man I had passed a pleasant half hour with stepped up to me and asked me if he might not come and see me. I gave the required permission.

The next day the weather was very warm, and in the afternoon I sat out on the piazza overlooking the garden. About 5 o'clock I saw the young man I had met the evening before coming. He was dressed immaculately in white flannel and an orchid in his buttonhole. As soon as he came near he lifted his hat and, turning at the gate, joined me. He looked so pleased at seeing me that I was quite set up. I had never had any attention from a real grownup young man before, my oldest beau being less than twenty.

I felt more at ease sitting in my own wicker chair at home, and, flattered by such marked attention from a grownup man, I was quite myself. I'm not disposed to sit mute any more than any other girl when I am at ease, and I kept up my end of the conversation very well, if I do say it myself. But I think my caller contributed to this. He had a way of drawing me out. Indeed, I got to gabbling without realizing that I was doing all the talking. But he seemed so interested in all I said and listened so attentively, was so deferential, that I could not help talking on. It was an hour before I bethought myself that I, a chit of a girl, had been monopolizing a conversation with a young man who might be twenty-five or twenty-six years old. Then he rose to go, and I was quite mortified that I would have no opportunity to redeem myself by permitting him to say a few things himself. In withdrawing he said he had passed a delightful hour, and I showed my own appreciation of him by asking him to call again soon, to which he replied that he would be leaving the next morning. As I bade him goodby I could not but wish that he would delay his departure. Somehow by this time I had forgotten his stylish dress and had come to consider him quite sensible.

As he went out of the gate he stopped and said: "By the bye, 'Old Date' is to be at Mrs. Martin's this evening. Are you going?"

"I'm not invited. Are you?"

"Yes. I shall be sorry not to meet you again. Goodby."

So was I; sorry enough. In less than half an hour Helen Martin called me up on the telephone and asked me to come round in the evening. Professor Dayton was to be there—only a few people informally. I had no interest in "Old Date," but I had a great deal of interest in a certain young man who was to be that evening at the Martins'.

When I entered the Martins' drawing room I was the second guest to arrive. The young man whom I now met for the third time was the only one who preceded me. He was chatting with Helen Martin and as I entered looked at me with a very comical expression on his face. I supposed it had something to do with my having, after all, been invited. As I approached the two Helen said:

"Evelyn, I don't know if you have met Professor Dayton. Professor, this is my friend Miss Cummings."

"Well, I declare!"

My exclamation was not especially intelligible to Helen, but it was to Professor Dayton. His eyes fairly danced with amusement.

"I'm 'Old Date,'" he said, "true enough."

I was so mortified, so angry, that I turned with the intention of striding out of the room; but, recollecting myself, I turned again and, with hot cheeks, stammered:

"You shouldn't have"—

"Pardon me," he interrupted. "You are quite right. No one has any right even for amusement to sail under false colors. The temptation was too strong for me. Any penance you name I will do."

And I took care that he should do ample penance. I kept him dangling about me for six months after his first proposal and did not accept him until he had made a dozen.

Woodpecker's Wisdom

Let us pause a moment as we progress with the arguments denunciatory of the high cost of living, the total depravity of trusts, and the all round cussedness of plutocracy in general, the while we consider the wisdom of the humble woodpecker as he applies it to the isolated problem of food.

The woodpecker, for real, practical working knowledge and foresight, has the owl bedecked in a dunce cap and arrayed in motley. This smart little bird is able to see far beyond the end of his bill. He not only lays aside things for a rainy day, but he makes them work while they wait. When autumn leaves begin to fall and hints of frost are in the atmosphere, the woodpecker puts in his spare moments hiding fat, juicy acorns in nice little cavites pecked out by himself in ancient and decaying pine trees. By the time winter has wrapped old earth in its chill embrace and clothed the woods in dreariness, the busy little woodpecker has a hundred or more of these succulent acorns scattered around, here and there, but always where he knows they will be safe until he wants them. Curiously enough—and thereby hangs this tale—the woodpecker is not a vegetarian, however. He prefers fleshy repasts. Were he a human being he would not join the beef boycott. He would beat it at its own game—wise little woodpecker!

You see, the woodpecker lays aside his acorns in such wise and in such places that, though they be hidden from outside interference, they are not beyond the reach of certain living creatures that most do congregate inside those same ancient and decaying pine trees aforesaid; so when hard times come and hunger gnaws at our diminutive hero's vitals he flies away to one of his caches—stretching the world's meaning a trifle, to be sure—and there uncovers that which recently was a fat and juicy acorn, but now is, in woodpecker philosophy, at least, a bundle of extremely appetizing and palatable worms.

The moral of this recital is so obvious and the subsequent and merited hungerless estate of the woodpecker so plainly indicated, that we deem it not worth while to elaborate the discussion or amplify the argument. We merely serve it up au naturel, as it were, hoping and believing that it carries its own lesson written so compellingly and attractively that even he who runs may read

Cute and erudite little woodpecker! How many mere men live their threescore years and ten without accumulating a tithe of the smartness you demonstrate in the matter of acorns and worms.—Washington Herald.

Expert Says it Was Belle Elmore's Body

POSITIVE PROOF ESTABLISHED OF IDENTITY OF LONDON MURDER VICTIM.

London, Aug. 11. — It is reported to-day that the authorities have discovered a clue to the certain identity of the body now unearthed in the Hilldrop Crescent home of Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, now under arrest in Quebec awaiting extradition on the charge of having murdered an unnamed woman.

The police have contended all along that the bits of flesh were parts of the body of Belle Elmore the actress wife of Dr. Crippen, but their identification as such has been a matter of much doubt. It is generally believed that the case of the Crown rests on a positive identification and the greatest importance is attached to the latest developments.

The hopeful clue was obtained during an exhaustive examination of the body made by Prof. Pepper the Home Office Expert, who had previously given many hours to the problem.

During the five hours that he worked, Prof. Pepper obtained conclusive evidence that the sex was feminine, and it was also established that the victim had undergone a surgical operation.

Women of Ninety Swims in the Ocean.

Boston, Aug. 11.—Old Orchard boasts of the oldest summer girl in the world in Mrs. Patrick H. Burns, of Dover, N. H., eighty-nine years old. Mrs. Burns is an all round athlete of wonderful ability for her age and has never allowed a summer to pass since 1846 without a few weeks of sea bathing. She is a good swimmer, and undoubtedly the only woman of her age that indulges actively in the pastime.

"Anybody who is eighty-nine years old, and has taken sea baths is really younger," says Mrs. Burns. "Now, without trying to praise myself, I think that it is pretty good proof of what sea baths can do when a woman just turning ninety years enjoys her daily swim, and I want you to understand that I really do swim."

The truth of Mrs. Burns' remarks about her ability to swim may be borne out by those privileged to witness her every morning as she breasts the big waves for from five to ten minutes and then springs out as spryly as a boarding school undergraduate to hurry to her room in the Dorr house and prepare herself for luncheon.

The Astronomer.

In the popular mind the astronomer is a man who spends night after night at the eye-piece of a great telescope scanning the heavens at random and waiting for a new planet to swim into his ken. No doubt the picture was accurate enough when Galileo trained his little instrument on Jupiter and discovered his satellites, but it is as inapplicable to the astronomer of our time as the principles of gunnery in the days of John Paul Jones to the firing of a broadside of a modern battleship. Indeed the men in the turret of a dreadnought are very much in the same position as are modern astronomers, but never see the target. Nowadays the work of an astronomer at the telescope is largely confined to such tasks as keeping a star at the precise intersection of two cross hairs, in order that heavenly bodies may be sharply recorded upon a photographic plate. His most interesting work is done, and most of his discoveries are made, when the plates have been developed and are subjected to long scrutiny under the microscope. Thus it happens that Halley's comet was discovered on September 11, 1909, at Heidelberg, by Dr. Max Wolf, not by the human eye, but by the telescopic camera. The story of that discovery is more romantic than it may seem.

For many months two mathematicians of the Greenwich Observatory, Messrs. Cowell and Crommelin, had been calculating the positions of Halley's comet in its orbit. There was not an hour hardly, when they could not have laid a mathematical finger upon it, even though they could not see it. Thanks to their labors the astronomers in the world knew where the comet might be photographically picked up at the most favorable time. During the summer of 1909 every telescopic camera of the world was directed toward the constellation of the Twins, because Halley's comet was there to be found.

Y. M. C. A. Notes

The boys have just returned from their camp at Presqu' Isle, and look as brown as Indians and the picture of health. The fishing this year was excellent; every day someone caught a big string of bass, sunfish and perch. They had a good time playing baseball, as many other cities were represented: viz. Rochester, Montreal, Brighton and others.

Last Friday, August 5, the boys held a big field day. George Steele making the highest number of points. His record for throwing the 12 lb. hammer is 89 feet, which is remarkably good.

Each evening the boys published a camp paper, "The Waywayanda Times". No one knew who the reporters were except the editor, so that many pithy comments found their way.

Victim of Accident Was Buried To-Day.

The funeral of the late John Wesley Jordan, who met such a deplorable death on the Grand Junction railway tracks on Pinnacle street, took place this afternoon from the home of his parents, in Thurlow. Rev. A.H. Drumm, pastor of John St. Presbyterian Church, in this city, conducted services, and spoke very feelingly, praying for Divine consolation for the ones afflicted. Many beautiful floral tributes were placed on the coffin, following being a list:

Platform Fell, Man Badly Hurt.

A young man named McDonald yesterday afternoon, whilst assisting in loading a vessel at the dock of the Lehigh Cement Works, sustained a painful accident. A platform upon which he was standing gave way and he fell a considerable distance. His injuries consisted of a broken arm and painful bruises about the body Nothing serious is anticipated.

Hon. Dr. Rheaume Had An Enjoyable Trip.

Last evening the Provincial Government patrol boat Navarch arrived in the harbor from Montreal. When the craft left here a few days ago Hon. Dr. Rheaume, Provincial Minister of Public Works, accompanied by his son Norman, was on board. The trip was purely a private one and was thoroughly enjoyed by the Minister, who travelled incog., not wishing to interview any person or be interviewed. The trip did the Hon. gentleman much good. The trip to Montreal was made by western channel of the St. Lawrence, including the running of the rapids. The return trip was made by way of the Rideau, and through the Rideau Canal. Dr Rheaume and his son left the Navarch at Kingston on Wednesday afternoon, going to Toronto by train. It is expected that the Minister of Public Works will, later in the season, make a trip through the Bay of Quinte on official business. Capt Hunter, Fish and Game Inspector superintended the trip.

New Boat Launched

Yesterday afternoon a handsome gasoline launch the property of Mr. Charles Blaylock, a G. T. R. engineer who has recently taken up his residence in this city, was launched in the harbor and christened Louisa by his daughter Florence. A number of spectators were present to witness the proceedings. The boat, which is of steel frame, is a handsome craft, and is a valuable acquisition to the fleet here. It is finished in the latest style and provided with a brown leather awning which covers the greater portion of the craft. The boat was manufactured at Salem, Ohio, and cost $500. It is 20 feet long and designed rather for pleasure than swiftness. The cushions are a novelty and should also prove useful in case of an accident, being designated as life preserving cushions. The owner is naturally proud of his purchase, and has every reason to be.

Deceased was born in Ernesttown, seventy-three years ago, the last of a family of thirteen. Mr Clark was turnkey of the Napanee jail for thirty-seven years, and was a most faithful employee. In all his long term he discharged his duties to the satisfaction of every one. He leaves a widow, also a granddaughter, Lena Merrin, who has made her home with them. The funeral takes place on Friday afternoon to Riverside vault; interment will be made later at Cataraqui cemetery.

Kingston Pokes Fun At our City League.

Kingston Standard: Belleville sure is one funny town. This peaceful little hamlet, which, for the benefit of those who know not of its whereabouts, reposes on the side of the Bay of Quinte boasts of a city league. The "city" part of the league is a joke. Last Saturday Purtell, the stellar find of the Irishmen, twirled for the "Coleman Flats," of the Belleville City league and won the game for them. Yesterday Saunders, J. Ewart and Browne visited the sleepy town and won a game for the "Stations" in the same league.

G. T. R. Traffic Has Increased Lately.

Since the close of the recent strike there has been a noticeable increase in passenger traffic on the Grand Trunk. Although the passenger service was generally fairly well kept up after the first day or two of the trouble there was a big drop in the patronage of the trains, owing to a feeling of doubt in the public mind engendered by the strike. But as soon as the strike was ended the rush of passenger business started to flow once again through its usual channels, and the customary summer crowding of fast trains on the Grand Trunk was again in evidence.

HOOSIER POET IS ILL

James Whitcomb Riley Is in a Critical Condition.

America's Best Beloved Poet of the Farm and Child Life Has Been Suffering From a Mild Form of Paralysis for Several Weeks and Has Had a Turn For the Worse—Was a Journalist.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 12.—James Whitcomb Riley, the "Hoosier poet," is seriously ill at his home in this city. He was able to sit up only a few minutes yesterday. Mr. Riley, who is said to be suffering a mild form of paralysis, has not been able to leave his home for several weeks, but his condition has not been regarded crucial until recently.

James Whitcomb Riley, one of the most human and lovable of American poets, was born at Greenfield, Indiana, in 1852. He was for some time engaged in journalism. His first attempts in literature were published under the pseudonyn of "Benj. F. Johnson of Boone." Among his works are: "The Old Swimmin' Hole," "Afterwhiles," "Character Sketches," "Old Fashioned Roses," "Pipes o' Pan," "Green Fields and Running Brooks," and "Pomes Here at Home."

Jealousy Caused Tragedy.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 12.—Andrew Rossi, an Italian, will probably be sent up to-day for trial on a charge of murdering Diego Siracuso, in the city of St. John on July 23rd last. Jealousy was the cause of the tragedy.

Siracuso, the murdered man, was the proprietor of a little grocery store, and Rossi was his clerk. Among the customers of the store was Minnie Jones, a pretty young woman who had been married in Boston to a young Brunswicker named Grigoire, but later left him and returning home took the name of Jones. Both Italians were attentive to her and she accepted gifts from them.

Capt. Scott's Ship Overdue.

London, Aug. 12.—Considerable anxiety is felt for Capt. Scott's Antarctic expedition ship, the Terra Nova, now eleven days overdue at Cape Town. The vessel has not been spoken since she left Madeira on June 27.

Capt. Robert F. Scott, commander of the British expedition, which set out on June 1 from London for the South Pole, is not yet aboard the Terra Nova, but left July 16 to join the vessel in New Zealand. Lieut. E. R. Evans is second in command, and the other officers and scientists number 28. The crew consists of 27 picked men.

Voting on Two New Industries.

Owen Sound, Aug. 12.—A number of capitalists, represented by J. A. Minchner of Stratford, will build and equip a large furniture factory here. The town is granting a loan of $20,000 to the concern, and the bylaw sanctioning it will be voted on by the ratepayers on Aug. 27.

Another bylaw will be voted on by the ratepayers on Aug. 29, sanctioning a bonus of $50,000 to a million-dollar shipbuilding plant promoted by British capitalists, and, in addition, taking stock in the industry to the extent of $50,000.

Big Coal-Handling Plant.

Fort William, Aug. 12.—A contract for a mammoth coal-handling plant for the Fort William Coal Dock Co. of this city, has been let, and construction will be commenced at once. The company will become the coal-handling department at the head of the lakes, of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

The first unit of the plant, which will be completed in less than two months, will cost about $170,000. The unloading capacity will be 4,000 tons in ten hours.

Put Off Train, Died.

Beaverton, Aug. 12.—Wednesday night about 10 o'clock, an Indian named Scott Barnhardt of Midland, while under the influence of liquor, was put off the G.T.R. excursion train here. The train was returning from Peterboro to Midland. Dr. Grant, G.T.R. physician, was called to attend the Indian, who was found to be in a serious condition. He was removed to the village lockup, where the doctor remained with him until he died next morning at one o'clock.

Carried Red Flags.

Halifax, Aug. 12.—Hundreds of red flags floated in the breeze in the mining town of Springville yesterday, where the striking U.M.W. miners were celebrating 52 weeks of idleness. The idle workmen formed a procession, and marched through the principal streets in the business section to the picnic grounds a mile from the town, where a great demonstration was held.

Confessed to Breaking Her Skull.

New York, Aug. 12.—Because his conscience troubled him, Bernard McMahon surrendered to the police and confessed to breaking a woman's skull with a hammer. He is a carpenter, and on Aug. 1 crept up behind his landlady, Mrs. Bessie Taylor of Third avenue, struck her down with a hammer and robbed her of $11.

Jolted By the Train.

Kenora, Aug. 12.—Early yesterday morning Lieut. G. Baker, a passenger destined for Hamilton, on No. 94, was jolted off the rear platform of the sleeping car several miles west of here. When picked up a few minutes later it was found that he had miraculously escaped with a few scalp wounds and bruises.

Serious Floods In Japan.

Tokio, Aug. 12.—Serious floods continued throughout Japan. Thousands of houses are submerged and many lives have been lost. The interruption to the railway service is unprecedented. There is much suffering in Tokio.

The wires of a full sized piano, if straightened, would extend a mile.

If Canada's wheat crop last year had been shipped by rail, each car holding 15 tons, it would have made a continuous train 1365 miles long

A CURSED DIAMOND.

The Gleaming Gem Was Fatal to All Who Touched It.

By KARL K. SHIMANSKY.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

The captain sat in his little cabin with his head in his hands. He was thinking hard and of the mortgage that fell due in only ten days.

"And I haven't a cent of money, and I don't see how I can get any," he thought. He would not have minded so much if it had not been for his wife and children. His wife could sail with him if they had to give up their home, but his little ones must go to school, and he knew that "mother" would never leave them alone on shore.

"Cheer up, Captain Mathews—cheer up!" cried a hearty voice at his door. "We're about to sail." And the boyish second mate went clattering down the passageway.

"Henry is a fine young fellow," soliloquized the captain, "and big hearted. He offered to lend me all his money, but I wouldn't touch it, for he needs all he can get to support his old mother."

Jenkins, the first mate, was not on hand.

"All aboard!" shouted Henry.

"Hey! Hey!" cried a familiar voice from far up the dock.

"Huh!" grunted the second mate. "Here comes Jenkins with a passenger. That's strange. I never saw him so enterprising."

By this time the two sweating runners had reached the boat and rushed aboard. Henry gave the signal cord a jerk, and slowly the Salt Spray pulled out of her dock. The fat man who had accompanied the mate came panting up to the bridge.

"How soon will we be out of sight of land?" he asked hurriedly.

"Can't tell," replied Henry. "There comes somebody up the dock."

It was an Italian, running at full speed and crying to them to wait.

"Hurry, hurry!" screamed the fat man, not to the Italian, but to Henry, at the same time convulsively rubbing a small package which he held securely under an arm.

FIVE TINY PRONGS SHOT UP.

The boat was now twelve or fifteen feet away from the dock. But the Italian, with a cry of "I'll get you yet," sprang for the side. His foot tripped as he leaped, and he dived into the water toward the stern of the Spray.

There was a cry of "Man overboard!" and a great scurrying on the part of the boat's crew and the people on the dock. The engines of the Salt Spray were stopped, but too late.

"A strange fellow that Jenkins brought aboard this afternoon," observed Henry to the captain that evening.

"Yes," replied the captain; "he gave him $25 for getting him here safely. This afternoon he told me his story. He said that he had been a lawyer in Italy for many years. Two weeks ago a man came to him and said that he had in his possession a blue diamond, a very rare and valuable stone. It originally belonged to a distant relative of the client. When the relative died, instead of willing the gem to his son, who was a good-for-nothing young man, he gave it to the client. The son got together a gang of Italian toughs for the purpose of recovering the diamond. They were pursuing him when he went to Hagerton for advice. The client told Hagerton," continued the captain, "that if anything happened to him he should take the jewel and flee to England. The next day the client was found dead."

The Salt Spray was a tramp freighter, and Mr. Hagerton was the only passenger on this trip. He took his meals with the captain and the mates in their little mess room. He was a very interesting man. He was in unusually good spirits the next morning. At breakfast he told the first mate the tale that Captain Mathews had detailed to Henry the night before.

"Have you opened the box that contains the jewel?" inquired Mate Henry.

"Why, no, I haven't," answered the lawyer, "but if you will wait a moment I will get it and open it here."

In a few minutes he reappeared with a package under his arm. Henry noticed that it was the same one that he had carried when he had run up the dock.

"Now, gentlemen, I am going to show you an almost priceless jewel. It has been in the same family for several hundred years, and four generations back a curse was placed upon it. You may laugh, gentlemen, but three times in the last fifty years men have been found lying on the floor dead with the jewel case open beside them. Two of the men were thieves, and the other was my client that I told you about, and he died only last week."

"Hey, captain!" shouted the petty officer, who was on the bridge. "Captain, the bo'sw'n's fell down a 'atch and busted his leg."

The two mates rushed out to the assistance of the unfortunate sailor. The captain paused an instant to snatch up his portable medicine chest and then lumbered after them. The lawyer was the only one that remained behind. The three officers ran down the ladder to the hold, where they found the boatswain lying unconscious with the blood streaming from a cut on his head. In a few minutes the captain arose from his side and exclaimed in a disgusted voice:

"Nothing broken; only a little cut on his head. He's drunk. Put him to bed for a couple of days, and he will be all right."

"We had better hurry back. I want to see that diamond," said the first mate.

When they were walking along the passageway near the mess room they heard a loud exclamation and a thud. They rushed in. There lay Hagerton on the floor. The captain knelt beside him and put his head to his heart.

"Dead!" he announced solemnly.

"Well, I'll be hanged!" exclaimed the first mate hoarsely.

"Look!" ejaculated Henry, pointing to the table.

On the edge, nearly ready to fall off, was the jewel box, open. On the cover were the words, "There is a curse." The captain closed it with a snap.

After a thorough examination of the body of Hagerton the captain arose slowly from the floor. His face was very pale as he spoke:

"There is not a sign of violence on his body. The only thing that it can be is heart failure. This is the fourth man that has died beside that box."

"That is the strangest thing I have seen in a long time," said Henry. "Isn't there a cut or bruise on him?"

"Only a few little cuts on his finger," said Mathews, "and they would not kill him."

And so it was entered in the log, under date of March 2, that Hagerton, passenger, had died of heart disease. The captain put the jewel box on the locker in the mess room.

Captain Mathews had the bridge the first watch that night, and as he stood there he grew thoughtful. It was lonely and still, and the exciting events of the day caused him much worry.

"I must have some money," he argued, "to pay on that beastly mortgage. Hagerton said that I should take the diamond if anything happened to him. But it won't do me any good, as it will be claimed when we get to England."

In the meanwhile Second Mate Henry had been going through the dead lawyer's papers in order to find where to send his belongings.

"That certainly was a strange occurrence," he thought. "Hello, what's this?" And he unfolded a small blue paper.

"Please give this to Captain Mathews if anything happens to me," he read. "If I should be killed before we reach England the diamond will become the property of the captain. He must sell it as quickly as possible in order to lose the curse. Hagerton."

"That will fix the captain's mortgage all right," said Henry as he started toward the bridge to give the letter to Mathews. As he passed the mess room he heard a cry behind him, and he saw the first mate staggering backward. Henry sprang toward him, thinking that he had fainted. As he caught him something dropped, and Henry gasped. It was the jewel box. He laid Jenkins on the floor and rushed to the bridge.

"Captain," he cried—"captain, the mate has tried to steal the diamond."

Mathews heard him and called to the watchman to take the bridge and then flew after Henry.

They found the first mate stretched out in nearly the same position as they had Hagerton. The captain knelt beside him and pronounced the same grewsome verdict that he had the night before.

"Come, help me pick him up, and we will carry him to his cabin," said the captain. "I can't find a thing on him that looks like a wound. Ah, here we are. Here are the same marks on his fingers that there were on Hagerton. Look."

Henry saw several little slits on his fingers and thumb.

Mathews calmly picked up the fatal box and opened it. Within lay a beautiful blue diamond gleaming brightly.

"It looks innocent enough, doesn't it?" asked the captain. "But I want to try something. Have you a pencil?"

Henry handed him one wonderingly.

Mathews took it and tried to take out the jewel. The instant he touched the diamond it sank into the plush cushions, and five tiny prongs shot up and dug their points into the pencil.

"They are poisoned," said Henry.

The captain cut away the plush with his knife and disclosed a set of coils and springs. Engraved on the bottom of the box were the words, "This is the curse."

"If the diamond was mine I could pay off my mortgage," said the captain gloomily.

"It is yours," answered Henry, smiling and handing him the paper that made him owner of the diamond and the curse.

A simple system of levers, to be attached to a door knob, makes it possible for a person to open a door with one foot while both hands are filled.

Beneficial results are said to have attended experiments in a London hospital by which asthma, bronchitis and even tuberculosis patients were required to breathe compressed air for a few hours at a time.

CURED OF CONSTIPATON

Mr. Andrews praises Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Mr. George Andrews of Halifax, N.S., writes:
"For many years I have been troubled with chronic Constipation. This ailment never comes single-handed, and I have been a victim to the many illnesses that constipation brings in its train. Medicine after medicine I have taken in order to find relief, but one and all left me in the same hopeless condition. It seemed that nothing would expel from me the one ailment that caused so much trouble, yet at last I read about these Indian Root Pills.
That was indeed a lucky day for me, for I was so impressed with the statements made that I determined to give them a fair trial.
They have regulated my stomach and bowels. I am cured of constipation, and I claim they have no equal as a medicine."
For over half a century Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills have been curing constipation and clogged, inactive kidneys, with all the ailments which result from them. They cleanse the whole system and purify the blood. Sold everywhere at 25c. a box. 2

NON-PARTISAN OVATION.

All Calgary Turns Out to Welcome the Premier.

Calgory, Aug. 13.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier completed another leg in his western tour, when he arrived here at 1.30 yesterday afternoon. An immense crowd greeted the Premier, and Mayor Jamieson, on behalf of the city, read an address of welcome. In reply, Sir Wilfrid referred to the growth that had taken place since his last visit to Calgary, sixteen years ago, a growth he was not altogether prepared to see. He declared that Calgary was one of the commercial metroplises of the Dominion.

A pleasing incident occurred on the way from Red Deer. As the Premier's train was passing through Bowden at about ten miles an hour, a group of school children had gathered at the station. Sir Wilfrid appeared on the observation platform of his car, and was bowing pleasantly, when out of the crowd burst a young man bearing a bunch of flowers. He raced after the train and did not give up until he had placed the offering in the hands of the Premier, who leaned forward to receive it.

The reception was carried out on a mammoth scale, and was entirely non-partisan, among the prominent citizens taking part being R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader in the Provincial Legislature. A procession was formed and Sir Wilfrid escorted to Broemar Lodge, where he will enjoy a much-needed rest until to-night, when he will address a mass meeting at the Arena. He attended a public reception and lawn party at the barracks of the Mounted Police in the evening, and shook hands with hundreds of citizens anxious to do him honor.

The Maritime Province Association of Calgary tendered a banquet yesterday to E. M. Macdonald, at which that Parliamentarian made an eloquent appeal for united action by the east and west in up-building and strengthening the common country.

Two Girls Also Drowned.

Toronto, Aug. 13.—The aftermath of the disaster on the bay Thursday night in which the ferryboat Mayflower ran down the yacht Directoire, shows that two of the girls who were reported safe lost their lives in the wreck.

They are Miss Margaret Jaffray of 17 Hannah street, and Miss Scully of Windsor, Ont. It was at first believed that the girls were at the Island, but yesterday it was discovered that they had never been taken from the water. Their bodies, along with that of Jack Pearce, the third victim, were recovered yesterday.

Threw Acid Bombs Into Taxi.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—On suspicion of having thrown acid bombs into a taxicab, burning the clothing and hands of Knights Templar visitors from Minneopolis, the police yesterday arrested John McKenna and Louis Lovell. Both men are said by the police to have been under arrest before for alleged violence during the taxicab strike, which has been on for five months.

38-calibre revolver yesterday afternoon and was rushed to this city, where to-day the physicians say he will recover. After his act Pilfrey calmly called a neighbor and told him what he had done.

Liner In Collision.

London, Aug. 13.—The Hamburg-American steamer Sparta, from Bombay, July 9, for Antwerp, was in collision Thursday night in the English Channel with the Dutch steamer Hollandia, and put back to Amsterdam with her bows stove in.

The Hague, Aug. 13.—Senator Root, continuing his speech respecting the meaning of "bays" in the renunciation clause of the treaty of 1818, said that the negotiations onl yhad in view the exclusion of Americans from territorial waters within the usual three-mile limit. Britain never claimed the extension of her jurisdiction outside the limit in large bays. Senator Root recalled the fact that, in 1907, the Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs, Lord Fitzmaurice, declared in Parliament in the name of the Government that territorial waters were those within a distance of three sea miles from shore, and bays with a breath of less than six sea miles, unless this limit were extended by long-established users under treaty or by special convention.

If the negotiations of the treaty of 1818 aimed at the exclusion of American fishermen from the great bays, Root continued, they would have employed other terms of definition such as "areas between headlands" which was the expression used to define larger bays. The treaty should be framed in such a way that the line of demarcation would be indicated as three sea miles from shore, otherwise fishermen never knew whether they were inside or outside protected waters.

Pullman Rates Exorbitant.

Washington, Aug. 13.—Allegations that the rates exacted by the Pullman Co. for upper berths in sleeping cars are exorbitant, were made in a petition filed yesterday with the Inter-state Commerce Commission by the State of Indiana.

The complaint is directed against the Pullman Co. and practically all the railroads operating in Central Traffic Association territory. It is urged in the petition that upper berths in Pullman sleeping cars are not worth more than 50 per cent. of the lower berths, but, notwithstanding that, the Pullman Co. and other defendants, exact an exorbitant charge for upper berths from points in Ohio, Illinois, Michigan and Kentucky to and from points in Iowa and Indiana.

A Boatload of Bishops.

London, Aug. 13.—The special copy of the Book of Common Prayer which the King is presenting to the Church of England in Canada on its bi-centenary celebration is being taken out by the Bishop of London, Rev. A. F. Ingram, who sails on the Empress of Britain.

The Archbishop of Westminster, the Roman Catholic primate of England, acompanied by Father Jackman and Mgr. Joseph Batt, are also passengers on the same steamer.

An Attempted Murder?

Lindsay, Aug. 13.—A pedlar from Toronto is badly frightened because of what he believes was an attempt on his life. He says he was fired at twice Thursday night by someone concealed in Victoria Park.

He was walking on Kent street, past Victoria Park, when he heard a report from a gun and a bullet whizzed by. He started to run, and a second shot went speeding by his head, causing him to increase his speed.

Fish Hatcheries for Cape Breton.

Halifax, N.S., Aug. 13.—John Neville, whose firm controls the lobster fishing on the south shore of Cape Breton, states that he has a definite assurance from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries that the Government will next year establish a series of fish hatcheries in Cape Breton in pursuance of the move made in Parliament last session. He estimates next year's lobster fishing will be the greatest in the history of Cape Breton.

Soldiers to Fight Fires.

Washington, Aug. 13.—Major-Gen. Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the army, has directed that two battalions of the 25th Infantry be withdrawn from manoeuvres at American Lake camp, Washington, and return immediately to Fort Wright at Spokane, Wash., to fight forest fires along the line of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railways in Western Montana, Northern Idaho and Flathead Indian reservation.

Rescues Two Children.

A pathetic burning fatality occurred near Kalgoorlie, West Australia, on the farm of a man named Thomas Walsh. The farmer, who was some distance away, saw his home in flames, and, rushing to it, rescued two of his children. A third child was burned to death.

Clothing Torn Off.

While working at the Yarraville sugar works, Melbourne, F. Parkerson was caught in the belting and whirled among the wheels. When rescued all his clothing had been torn off except his boots and socks. He was severely injured.

GOES TO SOUTH AFRICA

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux Will Represent Canada There.

Postmaster-General Sails for England on Aug. 20, and Will Confer With Imperial Authorities With Regard to Cheaper Cable Rates — Scheme Is Formulated Which Will Be Forerunner of All-Red Service.

Ottawa, Aug. 13.—Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Postmaster-General, has been appointed by the Government the official representative of Canada at the opening of the first Parliament of United South Africa. He will sail for England on Aug. 20. The South African Parliament opens on Oct. 5.

The Duke of Connaught will be the representative of His Majesty King George at the function, which event prevented his earlier arrival in Canada as Governor-General.

It is a commetary upon the cosmopolitan nature of the people who live under the protection of the British flag that the Premier of South Africa is a Boer, namely the famous Gen. Botha, while the representative of Canada is of French extraction. Delegates of other nationalities will also be there.

While Mr. Lemieux is in England he will confer with the Imperial authorities regarding the question of better and cheaper cable connection across the Atlantic. It is expected that a definite scheme will be formulated and adopted shortly. When this is accomplished the greater scheme of an all-red cable will be undertaken.

London, Aug. 13.—G.T.R. gross receipts for the half year are £3,321,600; working expenses, including reduction of £120,000 in engine, car renewal expense account, £2,456,000; net receipts, £65,600.

After meeting revenue charges and deducting deficiencies on working the Canada Atlantic and Detroit and Grand Haven, there is a surplus of £47,200. This, with £11,800 brought forward, enables the company to pay full dividends on the 4 per cent. guaranteed first and second preference stock; £12,000 is carried forward.

The Great Western, with balance forward, shows surplus sufficient to meet interest on the first mortgage bonds, leaving £17,200 carried forward.

Of expense account there should now remain only £77,000 to be wiped out during the current half year. During the second half of last year £260,000 of revenue was absorbed by this account, and the difference of £133,000 in favor of the current year should go a long way toward counteracting the strike loss and higher wages bill.

Emperor of the British.

London, Aug. 13.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Express prints answers from Canadian mayors in regard to its suggestion that the King should be crowned Emperor of the British. Mayor Geary of Toronto says that such a change would not be contrary to the wishes of the people of Canada, and takes the opportunity to reassure The Express that there are many other links between the Dominion and the home land than the King. Mayor Chisholm of Halifax sees no advantage in the change.

Youthful Apaches.

Cornwall, Aug. 13.—A case of youthful depravity was brought to the attention of the police this week. It seems that an 11-year-old lad named Marshall was shamefully abused by two other boys, who, in Apache style, bound him to a tree in the wooded part of a pasture and slashed his bare legs with Scotch thistles. The two culprits were before the police magistrate and their mothers advised to look after them, else they would be taken charge of by the authorities.

Hydro Power In Berlin.

Berlin, Aug. 13.—Work on the hydro-electric transformer station is practically completed, and the transmission wires are up within a mile of the plant. Supt. Sheppard of the General Electric Co., stated yesterday that the station will be ready for a general inspection in two weeks' time. The erection of the horn gap or lightning arrester tower commenced yesterday, and the plant will be ready for the distribution of Niagara power Oct. 1.

Will Tender For the Navy.

Ottawa, Aug. 13.—The British firms who have asked to be permitted to tender for the construction of the ships of the Canadian navy are Harland & Wolff, Swan & Hunter and Vickers, Sons' & Maxim.

The Canadian firms who have asked for the privilege of seeing the Admiralty plans are: The Polson Iron Works, Toronto; the British Columbia Marine Works, Victoria, and the Collingwood Shipbuilding Co.

Farmers Will Net More.

Vancouver, Aug. 13.—Reports submitted show that while the wheat crop will range from eighty-five to ninety million bushels below last year, farmers will derive at least twenty per cent. more return than a year ago. This is figured out the expectation that they will net twenty cents per bushel more than a year ago, and labor this season will be cheaper than when last year's crop was harvested.

CURRENT EVENTS.

I consider work one of the greatest blessings. I am not sure but that it is the greatest blessing says Erman P. Ridgway in the Delineator for September. I must think it is for I recall now that I wrote four injunctions in my boy's Birth Book and work heads the list. Work keeps the body healthy the mind steady. When the heart is sick, work. When hope is dim— work. After failures get up and work. Go at obstacles on the run. Tackle impossibilities hard Measure to-day by last year, five years ago. If gaining, fine; work. If losing, too bad! work harder. Be glad that you have work to do. And if you haven't any definite work, find it quick, and get at it. If you have done your work, and earned leisure, and are worn out, don't rust out. Travel; study; go in for community work; lend a hand; help somebody somewhere, somehow. That is living.

Some interesting figures. The United States Treasury officials estimate the population of their country at 90,483,000, who in their ordinary business used $3,133,752,000 of money and paper circulation representing money or promises to pay money. Of this considerable sum $591,665,000 was in gold coin, and $831,663,000 in gold certificates issued on the strength of gold held in the treasury; $72,150,000 was in silver dollars. $478,999,000 in silver certificates, and $141,728,000 in subsidiary silver coin. Then there was $673,363,000 in national bank notes and $337,891,000 in notes of the United States Government. The average amount per person of circulation was $34.63, which seems small, though it is actually large, for carrying on the commercial affairs of a busy people It is, of course, supplemented by the bank cheque, which is more and more taking the place of money or notes in the carrying out of even small commercial transactions while in large ones it is used almost exclusively.

Toronto is having its full share of drowning acidents this sumer. There seems to be a lesson in it for somebody. By the way, do all Belleville motor craft carry lights? If they don't they should. We are informed that some do not.

It is said that the cause of the accident in Toronto was the fact that the tiller of the ill-fated yacht Directoire suddenly went out of order. This, if true, explains the tragedy. Better care in the management of small craft seems to be needed in Toronto.

Who is Britain's legitimate king The Legitimist Kalendar for 1910 puts Mary Theresa Henrietta Dorothea of Bavaria, in the place of honor as Queen Mary IV. and III. of England, Scotland, France and Ireland. It also shows that by hereditary right there are 932 persons with a better claim to the throne than George V., the 932nd being one Patrick of the House of Hennesy. Between Mary Dorothea and the other 931 legitimists and the throne there is, however, an act of the Parliament of Great Britain, approved by the people, and confronted by such a title simple hereditary claims lose their force. The Stuart legitimists of Great Britain are interesting and harmless. Bye and bye the Bourbon legitimists of France and Spain will lapse into the same category.

The theatrical manager who offered Crippen $1,000 to appear in vaudeville, forgets that the doctor has an engagement to appear in tragedy in London, shortly.

Champagne, we learn, is to be advanced in price in France. In other words high living will come higher.

The prohibition question is again agitating the Northwest. Certainly an immense territory to be drained.—Canadian Freeman.

Carrie Nation's Home for Drunkards' wives is a failure. Sure. Persons like that have no wives. Man isn't given to monopolizing all the joys of life at once. Better turn the place in a retreat for Suffragetes' Husbands.

Kingston papers are conducting a campaign for proper bathing places for boys and girls. If the campaign is as successful as former campaigns of the same kind waged in Belleville the Kingston youngsters will get their bathing places about the same time that the Yankees annex Canada.

James Whitcomb Riley, the Hoosier poet, is dying. Well, "Good-by Jim; take o' yerself."

Brockville's strike troubles cost that town over $700 for military protection. The old game of trouble making comes high — and the worst of it is the people who make the trouble don't always pay the piper.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

SPORTING NOTES.

"You see," said Sir Charles Comiskey, explaining the technique of the game to the Earl of Euston, "when Purtell, who is now at the bat for us, hits the ball, which he won't, and goes to first base, which he won't, Tannehill, the man who is now on first, will start for second, and never get there. Then Collins will come along with a two-base hit, that is maybe, and Tannehill and Purtell will come in with two runs tying the score, sometime next season when we're going good." "Quite so," assented the Earl of Euston deeply impressed.—Hek, in Chicago Tribune.

The athletic game was never so busy in this region as it is to-day. When I don't find some twenty or thirty year old record broken at one of the meets that are held almost daily I feel kind of lonesome. This season the honors have unquestionably gone to Mel. Sheppard, the middle distance runner of the Irish-American A. C. But Dan Ahearn the Limerick Lightfoot of the same club, is also entitled to much credit for his work in the hop, step and jump—an event dear to the hearts of Irish athletes, who become proficient in that style of physical effort through adopting it as a rest after running a distance. When an Irishman wants a rest he does something different from that which tired him. Did you ever see an ironworker take a day off at Coney Island? He just picks up a mallet and welts a peg all afternoon in his effort to ring a gong showing the strength of his blow. And he pays for the privilege of doing it, too, although for about six union days he is paid about $8 each twenty-four hours for the same kind of stunt and raises the devil if the money doesn't come across with regularity and dispatch.

Which is why he is human.—New York World.

Catholic Mutual Benefit Society Bars Liquor Men

AFTER DEBATE LASTING SOME HOURS MEMBERS UNANIMOUSLY VOTE FOR THE CHANGE.

Ottawa, August 12.—At the conclusion of a session lasting until the early hours of this morning the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association Convention adopted a unanimous resolution that in future no one is to be admitted to membership who gains a livelihood directly from the sale of intoxicating liquors.

The restriction applies to bar-tenders and hotel-keepers, but not to laboring men who may work around breweries or hotels in a capacity other than selling liquor.

There was a spirited debate on this recommendation of the law committee and grand legal adviser.

One or two delegates who are hotel-keepers who did not drink but sold liquor, whom they considered just as good men as any others.

Swayed by an impassioned appeal by Rev. Father McNeil, of Nova Scotia, and by the report of the grand medical adviser, Mr. Ryan, of Kingston, Ont., that the expectency of life of those engaged in the sale of liquor was not up to the average, the delegates rose in a body and carried the recommendation.

Acomia

MANY MEN HAVE IT AND MOST OF THEM WORRY ABOUT IT.

ACOMIA—it's a magic word—what does it mean? Simply absence of hair.

A baldheaded man has ACOMIA—absence of hair.

A million more men will have ACOMIA a year from now if they do not get rid of disgusting dandruff.

Dandruff is caused by a germ. This germ is a persistent sort of germ. He works while you sleep and when you awake. He breakfasts, dines and sups on the vitality stored in the hair roots, and the longer you tolerate his presence the surer you are of displaying a shiney headpiece later on Kill the dandruff germs; that's the only way to keep from growing bald Any capable doctor will tell you so)

How can you be sure that you are killing the dandruff germs? Simply by using daily for two weeks Parisian Sage, the most pleasant tonic for the hair the world has ever known.

Parisian Sage is the most pleasant and invigorating hair dressing in the world. It is not sticky or greasy. It will make women's hair soft, silky and luxuriant in a few days. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle. Fifty cents a large bottle at druggists everywhere and at J. V. Doyle's who guarantees it. Mail orders filled all charges prepaid, by the Canadian makers, Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie Ont.

FIGHTING SAM IN COMMAND.

Col. Hughes M.P., Has Developed Into a "Reglar" Soldier

Col Sam Hughes has of late years practically become a professional soldier, though nominally but a colonel of the 45th Provisional Battalion of Militia. This year he is commandant of Barriefield camp, where the raw troops of Central Ontario have been receiving their annual licking into condition. Under appointment from the Minister of Militia, he has been attached to the staff of Major-General Sir John French during his recent visit to Canada, and at the Quebec tercentenary two years ago he was similarly attached to the Canadian general staff which was associated with the present King, Lord Roberts and Sir Reginald Pole Carew in the great military review. His military fame has arisen chiefly since the South African war of ten years ago, when, despite a sensational controversy with Major-General Hutton which defied all British military conventions, he did very useful work for Lord Kitchener in the latter's cleaning up operations which were in some degree performed by irregular forces. A native of Durham county, he has been a military officer since 1873, when he was gazetted a lieutenant of the 45th Provisional Battalion. Of this regiment he became lieutenant-colonel in 1897. He has been many other things. Like his brother, James L. Hughes, he started out as a pedagogue, and many are unaware that for ten years from 1877 to 1887 he was teacher of English Literature at Jarvis Street Colegiate Institute, then the only High School in the city of Toronto. Many a Toronto boy now in his last thirties or early forties recalls with pleasure and amusement the breezy mode that "Sam," as they all called him, conveyed instruction in the beauties of our British speech. In 1887 he branched into journalism as editor of The Lindsay Warder, but he has made this calling subordinate to a political career, and some years ago abandoned newspaper work altogether. In Victoria many a scheme has been framed up to defeat Sam Hughes, but the counting of the ballots has always left him at the top of the heap. Besides being a soldier, journalist, and politician, he has a great athletic record. Middle-aged lovers of the national game of lacrosse often sigh for the good old days when the Hughes brothers, Jim and Sam, and big Ross Mackenzie used to show them a game that had some "innards" to it. In 1872 Col. Hughes won the one-mile amateur championship of America with the sculls, but he never followed up his career as an oarsman. Altogether, "Fighting Sam" is a man after Roosevelt's own heart.

Hard on the Minister's Wife.

A Scottish minister had returned home from a long holiday trip on which he had been accompanied by his wife. At a prayer meeting shortly afterward an elder offered up thanks for the minister's safe return, but unfortunately put his foot in it: "O Lord," he said, "we thank thee for bringing our pastor safe home, and his dear wife, too, O Lord, for thou preservest man and beast!"

An Aristocratic Grain.

Could plants lay claim to aristocratic position, as representing an old family, rice might safely claim to be of the most ancient pedigree. It is the earliest cereal known. Originally a native of India, it has crossed the ocean and made a home for itself where heat and moist soil could be found. It grows in all warm portions of the globe and furnishes the principal food of nearly one-third of the human race.

Provoking.

"Yes, dear, he caught me in his arms"—

"How shocking!"

—"and was just going to kiss me"—

"How awfully horrid!"

—"when ma came in the room."

"Oh, how provoking!"

A Time Killer.

"You look old to-night, John, dear," said Mrs. Peters as she finally announced her readiness to start for the theatre.

"Yes, my love," replied Peters. "I age a good deal while you are putting your hat on."

Hydrofluoric Acid.

Hydrofluoric acid is the best agent to use for removing sand from castings, particularly those of iron and steel, as it attacks the sand and dissolves it, while other acids attack the metal and only loosen the sand so that it falls off.

Better Still.

"I wonder what the teacher meant about the singing of my two daughters?"

"What did he say?"

"He said that Mamie's voice was good, but Maud's was better still."

FREEZING CAVERNS.

Subterranean Caves That Are Lined With Crystalline Ice.

There are deep cavities and tunneled recesses in the earth far away from sunlight and held in the tight embrace of rocky strata where secret hoards of glittering ice find habitation all the year round. Yet down in these queer places the ice is as clear and chrystalline as any that nature maintains in the open air. Moreover, it occurs on a truly grand and massive scale.

Imagine thick underground ice walls and floors and craftily fissured columns beautiful in shape and color streaming from roof to floor of lofty rock chambers! And under the slow drip, drip, drip of percolating water this same ice learns to fashion itself into cave adornments—frozen water drops, curling slopes, stalactites and stalagmites of fantastic shape and rainbow hues.

Subterranean cold waves, or "glaciers," as they are frequently called, crop up in some 300 scattered localities in Europe, Asia and America, but all, with rare exceptions, whether true ice caverns or grottoes and deep hollows, are confined to the north temperate regions of these continents—that is, to places where there is a sufficiently low temperature at some portion of the year to reach freezing point and render snowfall possible.—Pearson's Magazine.

THEY SIT AND LOOK.

Women Who Watch For Celebrities In a New York Restaurant.

"I always wonder," said a New York woman who lunches out a good deal, "what satisfaction the women get out of life who flock to a certain fashionable uptown restaurant at lunchtime just to see celebrities.

"They look as if they cannot afford to be there, and the truth is they do not apparently go there for food. I have watched them ordering and noted what was brought them, and almost invariably it is some such thing as cafe parfait, or an ice of some kind, or a cup of tea or of chocolate and a sandwich.

"They sit and look. The moment some stage celebrity comes in there is a craning of necks, and you hear excited whisperings, 'Oh, there's So-and-so!' mentioning an actress or a matinee idol, and the neck craning keeps on until a fresh subject for scrutiny comes in.

"You can see this sort of thing every lunchtime at this restaurant. There is a regular contingent of these rubberneckers, and they are not visitors from the far west, either."—New York Sun.

A Considerate Composer.

It is not always the great conductor that shines as a composer, though unfortunately he often labors under the delusion that such is the case. On one occasion Hans Richter was present at a concert given by a brother composer at which the latter performed a long and not particularly interesting work of his own. When the composition came to an end Richter expressed his criticism in a very few words. "Well," he said, "I, too, haf written compositions to make a pile so high," raising his hand three feet from the ground, "but I haf burned them!"

Going From Dan.

Mark Twain's best friend in his Nevada days was another young journalist called Dan de Quille. One day Mark and he had been for a walk from Gold Hill down to Virginia City. All of a sudden Mark said, "S'long," with a wave of his hand and started to leave his friend.

"Where ye goin', Sam?" asked Dan.

"Waal," replied Mark in his famous drawl, "I guess I'll take a run down to Beersheba. That's the correct place to go when you leave, Dan."

Greatest Battles of History.

Burke in his letter on "Natural Society" says that Sylia destroyed 300,000 men in each of three battles, one being at Cheronea. The Persians are said to have lost 230,000 men at Plataea. II. Chronicles xiii, 17, records 500,000 slain on one side, which, however, may not have been in a single battle. I Kings xx, 26, tells of 100,000 men being killed on one side in a single day.

Emphasizing a Fact.

There are peculiarities, idiosyncrasies of expression, which emphasize and accentuate facts. It is not enough to say "he is deaf." We invariably add "as a post." It would appear sufficient to say "he is blind," but we prefer in nearly all cases to admit of no contradiction by announcing that he is "stone blind." To be "dead" should suffice. "Dead as a doornail" clinches the fact.

The Grand Junction Dock

The acquiring by the corporation of the city, that portion of the harbor, and the dilapidated wharf, at the foot of Pinnacle street, known as the "Grand Junction Wharf," now in possession of the Grand Trunk Railway Company, for the purpose of putting it in such a state of repair as to render it available for use by all classes of vessels that navigate the Bay, is a subject that has been under consideration for some time past by the Board of Trade, members of the City Council, and the Harbor Commission.

The absolute requirements of the harbor have again brought the subject prominently under the notice of the citizens who are moving in the direction of securing the property, and it is to be hoped that their worthy object in this respect may be realized.

The present state of the property is an eye-sore, not impressing those who enter the harbor, very favorably; on the contrary it cannot but impress upon the mind of the stranger the idea that the city is in a decaying state.

The allowing of the wharf and its approaches to become a ruin, is evidence that the property is no longer required by the Grand Trunk Company, hence there should be no good reason why the G. T. Company should hesitate in surrendering whatever claim it has to the property to the city for the purpose of having the wharf put into a condition that would render it useful to all classes of vessels that navigate the Bay. At present many large freights and many other large vessels pass on West and Eastward, without stopping, owing to the difficulty of entering the harbor, and turning round when they desire to pursue their journey.

Let this property be acquired by the city and put into a proper state of repair extending into deeper water, if necessary, and it would add materially to the trade and business of the city, and remove the impression, now forced upon the visitor to our city by water, that Belleville is decaying and but a relique of the past.

This is a proposition into which the Grand Trunk Railway should heartily enter, and co-operate. This wharf has been of use to the company in the past, and if put in repair would be in the future, hence it should in its restoration to usefulness. It is also a work of sufficient importance to justify the Government of the Dominion in making a liberal grant in support of the scheme, the Bay of Quinte has, since the construction of the Murray Canal, and is every day becoming more so, the highway of travel, East and West, which has justified the deepening the channel in two or three places, and would justify aid in making the harbor what it should be in the interest of trade.

Let us suggest that those who have the matter in hand, do not let it lag, but bring the importance of immediate action before the city, Grand Trunk and the Government. Don't let it drop.

Queen's Own Rifles.

This fine regiment under the command of its Colonel, Sir Henry Pellatt, had a suitable send off tendered by the citizens of Toronto, on their departure for England to take part in a military review at Aldershot. The beneficence of Sir Henry is worthy of admiration, as this act of his is at his own personal expense, taken, as he himself expressed it, for the purpose of giving the "Mother Land an object lesson showing the underlying strength and the fighting unity of the Empire, tending to a closer consolidation of the Empire."

The Lieut.-Governor of Ontario, Col. Gibson, who, with many other notables, was present, addressed the Colonel and the regiment, during which he said:

"Many things have occurred recently going to show that there is a growth—it may be imperceptible—of the Imperial Federation spirit on the part of all branches of the Empire. We are becoming more closely allied with the Australasian colonies and the South Africa new union as we are becoming more closely attached to the mother country. I know of no movement which will be a clearer demonstration, which will have greater significance in the growth of the imperial sentiment than this trip you are about to take as soldiers of the King and Empire, to march side by side with the British regiments and to satisfy them that there is the right sort of stuff in Canada."

These are the sentiments of every true Canadian, and present a striking contrast to the vaporings of Sir Wilfrid Laurier about creating a "Nation of Canada." The Governor speaks the sentiments of the people of Ontario when he intimates that Canada is part of a nation, the greatest the world ever saw, and that we want no greater honor.

Do You Weigh Too Much?

THE REAL REMEDY AND THE RECIPE.

There are some stout people whom the above question does not seem to trouble very much. They are, however, wrong to be so careless, for obesity is a complaint which brings many evils in its train. There are others who have sought long and earnestly for a really reliable remedy for obesity and to these the following prescription will be of absorbing interest, because it presents in a simple and harmless form and sure relief — a remedy which is rapidly gaining a world-wide reputation The reader may make up the prescription for himself (or herself) on getting the ingredients from the druggists — or the latter will do so willingly.

This is the full recipe: 1-2 oz. Marmola, 3-4 oz. Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, and 4 3-4 oz. Peppermint Water. Take a dose of one teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

This admirable and quite harmless remedy will soon take off pounds of the offending fatty excess; and as day by day, the weight decreases, strength and vigor will return in equal ratio; for, be it observed, there is no fasting or exercise required. Rest, good food, regular doses—these are all that is necessary to reduce weight to normal, increase the supply of pure blood, clear the skin, beautify the complexion, and restore energy and excellent spirits.

HERO OF MAFEKING WILL OPEN FAIR

General Baden-Powell to Press Button at National Exhibition Review of Boy Scouts.

Noted Soldier to Inspect Canadian Branch of Organization He Founded

General Baden-Powell and his boy scouts will open the Canadian National Exhibition this year. The chief of the boy scouts of the British Empire has accepted an invitation to come to Canada and touch the button at the big fair, and at the same time hold a grand review of the various scout corps throughout Canada. The review will take place in front of the Grand Stand, where the opening ceremonies of the Exhibition this year will also be held. The boy scouts will be camped on the Exhibition grounds, and everything will be done to make the occasion the first Red Letter Day in the history of this young but steadily growing organization of which Baden-Powell is the founder. "B.P." is the most popular officer in the British army, even as Lord Kitchener is the most respected. He has seen service in Zulu Land, Ashanti Land, Matabele Land and South Africa. Everybody remembers the relief of Mafeking. The wave that swept over Canada when the glad news flashed under the sea that the first long stride towards breaking the powers of the Boers in South Africa had been taken. That night while bells pealed and crowds gathered, the name of B.-P., the defender of Mafeking for one hundred long days was on every lip. Most heroes are soon forgotten, but B.-P. has been too busy a man to drop even for a moment out of the people's mind. At the close of the war he organized the South African Constabulary, and in 1908 founded the boy scouts.

In bringing Baden-Powell to Canada, had two things in view. One was to keep in mind those deeds of heroism which do so much to rouse the pride of Britons and feed the fires of patriotism, and, further to give recognition to a man who is doing so much in times of peace to develop the youth of the country and to make of every Canadian boy a thorough Briton.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL.

Mr. Walter Alford, who has been ill for several days, is improving.

Mrs. E. P. Frederick has returned home after a two months' visit at Winnipeg.

Mr. John Elliott wrote thus on July 30: "On board S.S. Hesperian. Just passing Ireland. Party all well. Delightful voyage."

The engagement is announced of Miss Ethel M. Wardrope, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Winer Wardrope, of Belleville, Ont., to Major J. A. Little, of Port Arthur, Ont. The marriage will take place in the autumn.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Moon have as their guests their daughter, Lulu, from Toronto: Mrs. Moon's sister, Mrs. O. W. Wolfe; her daughter, Mrs. J. W. Havens and friend, Miss Helen Overpeck, from Terre Haute, Indiana.

Wm. Harrison, who claims to be a resident of Sidney township, pleaded guilty to being drunk. This being his second offence within a few weeks a fine of $5 was imposed.

VAGRANCY.

J. Coughlin, a young man, and a woman domestic were charged with vagrancy. They were arrested at 2 o'clock this morning on Bridge street. Coughlin was remanded for a week and the woman was allowed to go.

JUST PLAIN SIMPLE LIES.

That Are Told by Almost Everybody, Almost Every Day.

Here are a few examples of the lies, one or more of which we tell almost every day of our lives:

"Mr. Brown, allow me to introduce to you a friend of mine, Mr. Henry Smith; Mr. Smith, Mr. Brown."

And Mr. Brown tells Mr. Smith he is pleased to make his acquaintance, when, as a matter of fact, he is nothing of the kind.

Mr. Brown has heard of Mr. Smith more than once; in fact he has heard of him from none other than Mr. Jones, who has told Brown about Smith beating his wife, about his having skinned his partner in business, about his having burned down his store for the insurance, and, in general, about his being a fellow whom no one should be particularly desirous of meeting.

And yet Jones, upon a chance meeting, introduces Smith to his friend, if not as his "very good friend," and Brown says he is pleased, if not "delighted," to meet him.

"Did you have a nice time, dear?" asks the devoted wife of the husband who has spent Sunday down the river with friends, fishing.

"Great," says the husband. "Only one thing to mar the pleasure of the day, pet, and that the fact that my dear wife wasn't along."

Which, nine times out of ten, is a lie.

He was glad to get away a day, all by himself, and probably resolved to himself on the way home there was going to be more of such days.

Then his wife tells him how lonesome she was and how she wished several times during the day he was home, when, if she spoke the truth, she would tell him she was rather glad he was away; that there was no Sunday dinner to fret about; that she had a long, restful nap, and that she rather appreciated a day off.

"I beg your pardon," says the man who steps on our corn on the street car.

"Don't mention it; that's all right; excuse our big feet," we say, when we would like to take the man by the throat.

Here's another example: "Don't go home yet, it's only 10 o'clock."

"Now be sure and come again."

"And you come over and see us."

These for:

"Will they ever go?"

"Well, I hope they don't call again, soon."

And, "Now, I presume we will have to entertain them."

And yet we still claim to be as "honest as the day is long!"

Nature Fakers of Fame.

Fancy and imagination are at a discount, and our young Gradgrinds want strict facts. It was different years ago, when boys delighted in "The Island Home," even though the author of that desert island story made the albatross come up from the depths of the sea, a beautiful glittering creature with fins and scales, and described a battle royal between a sperm whale and a thrashing shark and swordfish.

Again, how popular was "The Swiss Family Robinson," in spite of the fact that in their wonderful island were found a lion, a polar bear and a kangaroo, and the whole family, though armed with guns, were blockaded for days by a boa constrictor.—London Outlook.

A Famous Statue.

The great temple of Zeus Olympius at Olympia, Greece, was 354 feet long and 171 wide. The columns of this famous shrine were 60 feet in height and 6 1-2 feet in diameter and are the largest which now remain of ancient architecture in marble. Sixteen of the wonderful columns are still standing and are among the most imposing in the world. In this temple stood the colossal statue of Zeus, forty feet high, on a pedastal of twenty. This statue was the masterpiece of Phidias, the world's greatest artist, and so famous was it that it was considered a calamity to die without seeing it. The immortal work was removed to Constantinople by Theodosius I. and was destroyed by fire in the year 475 A.D.

Peanuts In the Zoo.

"I am perfectly used," remarked a visitor to the zoo, "to seeing monkeys and elephants eat peanuts. And I do not think it strange that the toucans relish them, for they are very like a parrot. But when it comes down to polar bears, buffaloes, wild dogs and rhinoceroses liking peanuts it disturbs my ideas of wild animals." Peanuts, however, seem to furnish the finest of dainties to even the "wildest" animals in the zoo. The deer, antelopes, brown bears, ducks, golden pheasants and all the animals there, except perhaps the lions, tigers and eagles, eat peanuts. The peanut seems to have charms to soothe the savage breast.—New York Tribune.

Fooled the Doctor.

It is not only with big drinkers that doctors have difficulty in determining the treatment of patients. Big smokers need special consideration. The late Sir Edward Burne-Jones when in failing health was asked by his doctor how many cigars he smoked a day. "Six," was the answer. "Well, you had better smoke no more than three," the doctor advised, and the artist was wont merrily to relate that the prescribed number happened to be exactly the quantity he had been in the habit of smoking.

She Knew Better.

Ostensible Head of the Family—Marie, there was a canvasser at the office to-day who wanted to sell me a work on etiquette and good behavior. Teaches it in six lessons. I told him I'd ask you if you thought we wanted it.

Real Head—It's all humbug, John. It can't be taught in six lessons. I've been trying to teach it to you for sixteen years and haven't succeeded yet.

Weight Variations.

A man weighs less at noon and midnight than at sunrise or sunset at the time of new moon and full moon owing to the moon's and sun's attraction then acting together. In fact, he is subject to the same force which causes the tides.

To prevent explosions of coal dust in mines, experiments are under way in Germany in which water is pumped into borings under pressure. It thus is forced into fissures and, after it is pumped out, the coal can be broken down with picks without blasting.

The Broken Trust

In another part of the garden, in a wilderness of odorous lilies and crimson roses, there is a sunny-haired girl, and by her side stands her governess, a lady with a patient look of gravity on her beautiful face. A lady whom every one admires for her strange beauty, the dark eyes and golden hair that long ago won the heart of Paul Lynne, yet failed to keep it.

There is a strange story in the sad fair face; the shock of horror has fled out of it, the awful look of terror has left the large, lustrous eyes, but the face of Esther Bruce tells no common sorrow has fallen to her lot.

For many long months after that tragedy in Belgrave Lodge Esther had lain fighting with King Death. When she recovered it was to find Lady Blanche her true and steadfast friend.

The mistress of Carsdale would never let Esther leave her again. She remained with her some years as companion, and then, when the children required a governess, Lady Blanche would not hear of any one save Esther. A stranger walks across the lawn, the young Curate of Oulston, the Rev. Max Herwell, and he approaches Lady Aynsley with some degree of nervous trepidation in his manner. After some few words of greeting he turned to her.

"Have you pleaded for me as you promised — is there any hope?"

Lady Blanche looked grave — a look of pity came over her fair face

"I have done my best, Mr. Herwell, she said; "but I am afraid — I do not like to give you the pain — but I am afraid it is all useless."

The curate's noble face grew pale even to the lips.

"I hope against hope," he said; "it seems to me such love as mine must meet with some return. If I must bear the disappointment, I will meet it like a man; at the same time I would do anything to divert it. She will give me no chance of speaking myself?"

"I will make another effort tonight," said Lady Blanche good-naturedly. "If that fails you must give up all hope."

"If that fails I shall go out as a missionary," said the young man sadly. "I could not remain here."

Sir Vivian came up and claimed his attention; then Lady Aynsley rising, went over to where the white odorous lilies grew in rich profusion.

"Violet," she said to her little daughter, "run away and play. I wish to speak to Miss Bruce.'

The child ran after a gorgeous butterfly.

"Esther," said Lady Blanche, "I came to make a last appeal to you—is there any hope for Max Herwell; he is good and true, so devoted to you. Could you not be happy with him, could you not love him if you tried? You are too young to shut all love and hope from your life."

The sweet, south wind brought the odorous breath of the lilies to them, and Esther, stooping down, gathered a tall, white one. She took from out its shining leaves the golden heart, and crushed it with her fingers.

"See, Lady Aynsley," she cried, "is there anything now that can restore life and strength to the flower?"

"No," was the grave reply.

"What you see I have done to the heart of this beautiful lily," said Esther, "was done to mine; it was so hopelessly crushed nothing can put life or love into it again, nothing can restore it."

"You are so young, Esther," said Lady Aynsley, "and so fair to see; is it quite impossible?"

"Quite," replied Esther; "in all my life I have loved only Paul Lynne. We do not know what passes in another world. I may meet him there the mantle of sin that shrouded him when he died fallen from him. Whether eternity restores him to me or not I must be true to him, true to him in life and death. Say no more to me. I ask no greater happiness than to serve you and your children until I die."

Max Herwell never forgot her as he saw her that evening amid the odorous white lilies, her beautiful, patient face raised to the sky, and the shining leaves clasped in her hands She remained with them until her death. When Esther Bruce died they found her little Bible and in it was written in her own hand: "The wages of sin is death."

When Baby's Life Is Most in Danger.

Summer is the season when the mother finds it most difficult to keep her little one well. The complaints that afflict the babies during the hot summer months come on so quickly and so unexpectedly that often it is too late before the mother realizes that her baby is anything but well. In summer the mother should make a special effort to keep baby's bowels regular and his little stomach sweet and pure, for this is the secret of successfully warding off these dangerous summer complaints. The mother will find a great friend in Baby's Own Tablets during the hot weather These Tablets regulate the bowels sweeten the stomach and thus ward off sure cholera infantum, diarrhoea, colic, vomiting, etc. Mrs. Wm. Sinclair, Bonaventure River, Que., writes: "I can highly recommend Baby's Own Tablets as they have done my baby good.' Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Pet Mispronunciations.

"Have you ever noticed," asked the teacher in English, "that a great many well-educated people persistently pronounce at least one word incorrectly? I know a college man who for some reason always says 'timodity' for timidity, and he drags this oddity into almost every sentence he speaks. Then there's little Mrs. Barrett, who invariably talks of practicing 'economy.' Mrs. Smith's pet word is 'prejudice,' while Mrs. Jones can't help saying 'guijantic.' Just listen to them and you'll hear the same people repeating over and over such mistakes as 'connumicate,' 'predeliction, 'circutuous,' 'perculator,' 'areated,' 'cupolo,' etc."

Watches and Pickpockets.

"It's a peculiar thing," said the headquarters detective, "that with the increase in popularity of cheap watches the number of reports which we have received of watches stolen by pickpockets has diminished greatly. No first-class pickpocket tries for watches any more. The same skill is required to get away with a dollar watch as a hundred dollar one, so when the dips found they were touching well dressed men for imitations they gradually ceased trying for them The objective points now are stickpins, which the crooks can appraise before trying for them, and wallets, which they are willing to take a chance on."

Jewelry In the Laundry.

"Yes, these are genuine diamonds, all right," said the owner of a downtown laundry as he drew a pair of heavy links from a gentleman's shirt. "Often happen? Why, look here!" and he drew open a small box and displayed a dozen links and collar buttons. "These came in this week. Some are valuable, some are not, but a dishonest dealer could really make a small fortune in a year's time. We don't find much jewelry in women's apparel. They are not as forgetful as men in this respect."

How to See Under Water.

A lens for seeing under water is described as producing an effect which is both astonishing and delightful. It gives distinct vision to objects from twenty to thirty feet below the surface which are usually out of ordinary eye range. The eye's loss of extending vision when under water is owing to the fact that an entirely different focus is required. The spectacles which can adjust this focus are made by putting two watch crystals back to back or with the concavities outward. Try it and be surprised.

ALL A CARLIST PLOT

Premier Canalejas Says Clerical Trouble Is Political.

The Sum of Eighty Thousand Dollars Was Spent In Supplying Peasants With Meal Tickets During Demonstration—It Was Intended to Exploit a Revolution on the Belief That Spanish Majority Is Clerical.

Paris, Aug. 13.—The Paris Temps yesterday prints a long, sensational interview with Jose Canalejas Y. Mendes, the Spanish Prime Minister, covering the recent events which culminated in the severance of diplomatic relations between the Spanish Government and the Holy See as well as his future program, which, the paper says, the Premier dictated.

Premier Canalejas begins by declaring that the movement in the north of Spain is directed by rich Carlists, who are inveterate separists and enemies of the remainder of the country, and intransigeant Catholics, whose only program is the reign of Jesus Christ.

The Prime Minister affirms that he possesses knowledge that the committee behind the movement spent $80,000 in giving the manifestants of July 10 meal tickets, besides their railroad fares. After the manifestation, Canalejas says, the agitators organized juntas, "of which, and I announce this publicly for the first time, village priests are the leaders." He said that he officially protested to the Bishop of Vittoria and to the Vatican, but both replied that it was none of their concern. He says he will welcome interpellations of the Carlists, which will give him an opportunity to lay bare the detestable conspiracy against civilization, the king and the country.

PREMIER CANALEJAS.

"There is no religious question in Spain," the Premier continues. "It is simply an effort to exploit religious sentiment upon the ground, now disproved, that the Spanish majority is clerical. The majority, as was indisputably proved at the elections, is anti-clerical. Most of the municipalities sent addresses approving the Government's policy. I have received 150,000 telegrams urging me to continue this policy."

Senor Canalejas declares that he does not propose to abuse the power confided in him, but that he will use it resolutely to establish a preponderance of civil power. It is his intention to pass a law insuring neutral official education not hostile or favorable to any creed or philosophy, but free from any dogma. He insists that the policy of the Government is not directed against religious orders, but he would have them pay taxes, from which they are exempted by Conservative Governments, and the number of orders reduced.

"If I cannot reduce the number of orders by an agreement with the Vatican, I will by law," he declares.

The Premier expresses unqualified satisfaction at the reports that the Vatican now desires conciliation, and says he will make every effort to reach an agreement with the Holy See, but he maintains that the bill interdicting further orders cannot be withdrawn.

The Prime Minister declares the reports that his policies are inspired by the councils of the French Government and the royal family of England do great injustice to King Alfonso. He says: "One might as well say that the opinion of all foreign statesmen and the intellectuality of the world weigh upon the king, for there is not a single publication in civilization which does not applaud the dawn of a Liberal spirit and the laicization of Spain.

"The king in the present case obeys a profound conviction. He is a fervent Catholic, but his mind is open to grand ideas, and he is a serious student of contemporaneous civilization. He is a liberal, tolerant and truly constitutional, and, without forgetting his royal prerogatives, will follow popular impulsion. He give his confidence to a Ministry sustained by the majority of the cortes."

Merry Del Val Replaced.

Rome, Aug. 13.—It is stated here that Cardinal Rampolla, former papal secretary of state, has accepted the provisional direction of the policy of the Vatican, replacing Cardinal Merry del Val, who will, however, retain the rank and title of secretary of state. It is said that Cardinal Rampolla has advised the Pope to make concessions all along the line to Spain.

According to reports received at the Vatican, the Catholic organization on the Spanish peninsula is perfect, making it impossible for Premier Canalejas of Spain to bring about a complete separation of church and state as was done in France. Some of these reports state that only a word from Rome would be necessary to have the whole population rise and sweep away all the enemies of the church.

New Record for Height.

Lanark, Scotland, Aug. 13.—It was officially announced yesterday that J. Armstrong Drexel, the American aviator, Thursday night attained a world's altitude record by rising 6.750 feet.

If a petcock be placed close to the cylinders in an under-water exhaust pipe of a motor boat and opened when the engine is shut down it will prevent water being drawn into the cylinders as they cool.

C.P.R. TRAIN WRECKED.

Passenger Ditched Near Caledon—Two Persons Hurt.

Orangeville, Aug. 13.—The last car of a C.P.R. passenger train containing twenty-five people bound for the west, was ditched at Horse Shoe Curve, within a few miles of Caledon shortly before eleven o'clock yesterday morning. The injured are:

Mrs. Colbeck of Grand Valley, aged 70, ribs broken and otherwise hurt.

Clifford Day of Teeswater, aged 19, leg badly crushed.

The accident occurred almost on the spot of several railroad fatalities. Five of the six coaches, all laden with harvesters and their relatives, succeeded in rounding the curve, but the last car jumped the track and rolled over in the ditch. Young Daly jumped from the front end of the coach as it rolled over, but it pinned his leg beneath one of the corners.

Both the injured were treated by Dr. McFadden of this town, and were taken to the Western Hospital, Toronto.

A chum of Day's Samuel Bell of Teeswater, happened to go into the car ahead a moment before the accident. The move probably saved him from injury.

Remove Vatican to Montreal.

Detroit, Aug. 13.—L. Corple-Mordaunt, formerly colonial manager of the British Colonial Press Association, passed through Detroit Thursday, in the course of an extensive tour of the country. He is among those who believe the growing rumor that campaign plans have been formed by the papal councillors to transfer the papacy to this side of the Atlantic, should the chain of painful events surrounding the Vatican in Europe add many more links.

"There is no question in my mind that the report is true," said he. "There are strong reasons to believe that the idea has been deeply considered to establish the papacy in Montreal whether it ever materializes or not. Those in a position to feel the pulse of events at Montreal expect stirring times within the next two years."

His view of the papal question is borne out in George Sylvester Viereck's "Confessions," just published, where Viereck claims to have been assured by one of the greatest statesmen of the German Empire that a plan of making America the seat of the papacy has been formed.

Manitoba Grand Lodge Granted.

Ottawa, Aug. 13.—The supreme lodge, Sons of England, decided upon an important new departure at yesterday's sitting, when a report by the general purpose committee in favor of acceding to Manitoba's request for the right to establish a provincial grand lodge was adopted. No official announcement was made as to the amount of financial assistance granted to Manitoba to establish a grand lodge, but it is understood that $500 was voted for that purpose, and that the supreme lodge will pay all claims on funeral fund for a period of six months.

Niagara Falls was chosen as the place where the grand lodge will meet in 1912. Among the places competing for the honor were Toronto, London and Vancouver.

May Be Sent to Asylum.

Detroit, Aug. 13.—The police say that a medical examination will be made of Delaney, the former Windsor telegrapher, who on Wednesday night shot two of his fellow-operators in the Western Union office. Neither will prosecute Delaney, and the police say that they will not give him freedom, because of his mental condition. The Probate Court will be asked to order an examination with a view to having him committed to an asylum.

Arthur McArdle, one of the men shot, after a relapse that placed him in a critical condition Thursday, is again improving, and is expected to recover. Schwartz, who was wounded in the neck, is also doing well.

A Safety Submarine.

Paris, Aug. 13.—A submarine in three sections, the middle section being detachable and capable of rising to the surface, as a means of rescue in the case of accident, the invention of Chief Constructor Artur of the French navy, was launched yesterday at the Brest navy yard.

Trimming the Absentee Landlord.

Melbourne, Aug. 13.—A progressive tax on the unimproved value of land is provided for a bill read for the first time Thursday. It will provide that in case of an absentee landlord the tax will be a penny a pound throughout, with no exemptions.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT

AN APPRECIATION OF THE NEXT GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

London Daily Mail Gives Some Personal Facts Concerning the Record of King George's Uncle—He Has Been a Serious, Practical Soldier for Forty-Two Years—His Coming Marks New Epoch for Dominion.

The following personal appreciation of the Duke of Connaught appears in The London Daily Mail:

During the minority of the Prince of Wales, heir apparent to the throne, the Duke of Connaught is destined to take a conspicuous place in public duties and ceremonials. Already he has been named successor to Earl Grey as Governor-General of Canada and as representative of the King at the opening of the first federal Parliament in South Africa.

For both these tasks the Duke of Connaught is admirably equipped by nature and by training. Like his brother the late King Edward, he has tact and capacity and industry that would fit him for any position. A correspondent in Ottawa recently hinted that the duties of the Viceroy in Canada were more onerous than ornamental. Had he known the Duke of Connaught he would not have felt it necessary to utter this warning, for his royal highness has shown in a long and busy career that he is no idler. He has no ambition to occupy a sinecure.

From the day—forty-two years ago—when he entered the Royal Engineers he has worked at his profession not as a dilettante but as a serious and practical soldier. The record of his services is in itself a proof. He passed through every branch of the army—from sapper to gunner, from infantry to cavalry. He commanded the Guards at Tel-el-Kebir in the Soudan campaign of 1882, and shared with the Duke of Cambridge the distinction of a royal prince who had been under fire. Twice he has held a command in India, twice in England, and once in Ireland. Perhaps the severest test of his military capacity was made in India, where he remained for six years. The first three years were spent in Bengal with the rank of major-general and the last three in command of the Bombay army. Only a man who is a born soldier and a hard and conscientious worker can control a great Indian military district. The Duke of Connaught in those years established his military reputation on a firm basis and confirmed the impression which the people had already formed of his earnestness and capacity.

Those who imagine that no disabilities attach to royalty know nothing of the Duke of Connaught's bitter disappointment when he was forbidden to share with his comrades the risks of war in South Africa. But Queen Victoria was adamant, and her widowed daughter, Princess Henry of Battenberg, was at hand to remind her that death knocks at the door of the palace as well as at the door of the cottage.

A strict disciplinarian and a diligent officer, the Duke of Connaught commands the respect of soldiers, while his good nature and his sense of humor win their affection. Only of a commander with these human qualities could be told this anecdote for which his royal highness is the authority. A young subaltern putting a company of infantry through their drill managed to get them into a terrible muddle. The duke, who was watching the effort, called the subaltern to him and asked, "Have you any idea what your men are supposed to be doing?"

The boy saluted and replied, with a confiding smile, "Not the slightest, sir. Have you?" There is also the story that illustrates both his humor and one of the difficulties of his position. It is related that at a reception at the Horse Guards the duke asked an officer who had been presented what he wanted. "Nothing, thank you, sir," was the modest reply. "My dear sir," exclaimed his royal highness, shaking the astonished officer vigorously by the hand, "I am really glad to meet you. It is a long time since I met an army officer who wanted nothing."

These anecdotes indicate characteristics that will appeal to Canadians, who, while they love a governor-general who is royal, delight especially in one that can unbend and divest himself of ceremonial. And the Duke of Connaught can do both, for though born in the purple he has little taste for its formalities and knows the virtue of camaraderie. No governor-general, we venture to predict, will prove more popular or more efficient in the discharge of his official and social duties. These qualities will commend him to the people of South Africa also. His visit, it is true, will be one of ceremony, for it marks a new epoch in the new Dominion. But his royal highness will give to the ceremony an intimate personal note. A great traveler, he has by instinct and experience the sympathetic understanding that puts him at once into harmony with his surroundings. No one can feel long a stranger in his presence or can withhold his innermost confidence. And he has, too, that broad and imperial outlook which is the gift of temperament of travel. Many people have perhaps forgotten the sacrifice he made in order to retain the nationality which is his pride. Without hesitation he gave up his claim to the Grand Duchy of Saxe-Coburg and and left to his nephew the Duke of Albany, the honors and emoluments of this great position.

Another qualification the Duke of Connaught has to commend him to Canadians and South Africans as well as to Britons in every part of the world. He is a famous sportsman. As everybody knows, he has lately returned from East Africa, where for the second time he appeared as a hunter of big game.

No Other Hands But Yours

To be sure, Madam, how very particular you are that no impurity should come in contact with your foodstuffs—if you can help it.

But you can't always help it, since you must buy your flour on faith.

So we say this to you: "Madam, your own white hands are the very first to touch FIVE ROSES flour."

Resigned Portfolio as Protest.

Mr. Ezra Hounsfield Riley, the member of the Alberta Legislative Assembly for Gleichen, whose resignation as a protest against the composition of the new Sifton Cabinet has been described in some papers as "the act of an enthusiastic crank," has the reputation in Calgary, where he resides, of being not merely a level-headed man but a cultured Christian gentleman. He is one of the most enthusiastic and devoted churchmen in the diocese of Calgary, a delegate to the diocesan Synod and a member of the Bishop's Council, a sort of private executive committee peculiar to Calgary diocese. In business he is a rancher, one of the few who have made a complete financial success of that industry. He is a Liberal and has been in the Alberta Legislature ever since the creation of the province. He is of English parentage but was born and educated in Ontario. His particular grievance, it appears, is that Mr. Cushing, the former Minister of Public Works, who resigned his portfolio as a protest against the Alberta and Great Waterways Railway bargain, was not taken into the new Government by Premier Sifton. It seems that Mr. Cushing is as devoted a Methodist as Mr. Riley is an Anglican, and their work together in church and benevolent work, particularly in connection with the Laymen's Missionary Movement, has established a strong bond of friendship between them.—Family Herald and Weekly Star.

Killed by a Car.

Montreal, June 2.—The twelfth street railway tragedy in 1910, yesterday, had little Charlie Bell, the five-year-old son of an Englishman, as the victim. The child was playing on St Catharines street, stealing a ride, when knocked down by a trolley and killed.

THE COLD TUBBING.

First Rate In Its Way, But Not the Real Thing as a Bath.

A great many people seem to pride themselves on being well-bathed individuals on the ground that every morning of their lives they jump for a short moment into a tub of cold water. As a matter of fact, says Youth's Companion, it is quite possible to perform this feat for 365 days in the year and yet to entirely miss the real purpose of the daily bath.

The cold shower or plunge is excellent in its way for those to whom it is suited that is, for the young and vigorous, who react perfectly. For these it is invigorating and stimulating. As a cleansing process it is hardly enough, because getting clean does not mean merely letting water pass over the body.

To be really clean one must make sure that the millions of tiny pores, by means of which the skin does its work for the physical economy, are kept cleared of waste products and in good working condition. The skin is one of the most important of the scavengers of the system, but one cannot expect it to do its work properly if its myriads of tiny holes through which it gives off waste matter are blocked.

This waste matter is largely given off in the perspiration, which is coming through it all the time, whether sensibly or insensibly. If this perspiration is checked the waste products are driven back into the system, with the result that the other organs of elimination are asked to do double duty; and double duty is not demanded of any organ long without a bill having to be paid somehow, some time.

To keep the skin in perfect working condition an occasional bath that really washes it is called for. This bath should take the form of plenty of warm water, some good mild soap, a small brush, and above all, a good rough towel, for the final rub is really more important than the soap and water wash.

A Doctor's Trip.

To render a patient urgently needed aid a West Highland doctor recently made a perilous night journey. Dr. A. R. Gunn, of Lochbroom, received in the early morning an urgent call to a keeper's house twenty-five miles distant, and although he left behind a patient who must be visited that night at all hazards, he departed on his bicycle. The day proved most tempestuous, and to cycle home was out of the question. To walk back by road might mean the death of the patient at home. The only way was to take a short cut over the hills. This course entailed climbing the dreaded Colgach Rock, a spur of Ben More. By day this rock will try the nerve of the hardiest mountaineer. By night it is the height of foolhardiness to attempt it. Nevertheless, accompanied by a guide, Dr. Gunn accomplished the journey, and after an arduous experience, arrived at his destination in a very exhausted condition, but in time to render aid to his patient.

Schools to Reopen On September 1st.

BOARD OF EDUCATION SO DECIDED LAST NIGHT—MUCH TALK ON SCHOOL SITES, BUT NOTHING DEFINITE DONE.

At a regular meeting of the Board of Education, held last evening, the members present were Messrs. W. S. Morden, Chairman; J. H. Anderson, C. F. Sharpe, J. Rabbitts, C. M. Reid, J. F. Wills, S. S. Moore, B. Mallory, F. S. Deacon, G. A. Bennett, P. Harrison and Col. Ponton.

The most important matter considered was that of sites for school purposes. Nothing definite was done as the question was referred back to the Sites, Building and Repairs Committee to ascertain the size, prices, etc., of certain proposed sites, and report at an adjourned meeting next Friday evening.

A lengthy document was read from Mr. W. J. Diamond, as Solicitor of the Board, detailing his opinion as to the Board's power to expropriate certain lands in the rear of St. Agnes' School owned by Mr. F. R. Lingham, for a school site. The solicitor's opinion was that the Board had the power to expropriate if it desired—Laid on table.

The Finance Committee recommended the payment of the following accounts:

Downey Coal Co.	$355.00
D. Stapley	20.04
J. A. Latta	5.00
H. J. Clarke	58.00
Morton & Herity	7.35
W. T. Patterson	.20
Albert College	300.00
R. H. Ketcheson	39.00
T. S. Carman	4.25
Bell Telephone Co.	15.00
F. D. Diamond	11.00
Cherry Press	5.20

The Sites, Building and Repairs Committee presented a report showing that J. Lewis and Company's tender was the only one for certain plumbing to be done at Queen Victoria school, namely, $372.50.—Laid on table.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Board went into committee of the whole on reports, etc., Mr. Moore in the chair.

The Finance Committee's report was adopted without discussion.

Mr. Bennett stated that he had asked plumbers in the city to give tenders for certain plumbing in Queen Victoria school and only one had tendered, namely, J. Lewis & Co., for $372.50

A motion prevailed that the tender of J. Lewis & Co. for $372.50 be accepted. —Carried.

The tenders for oiling of floors in all the schools, the whitening of the basement of Queen Victoria school, and some painting at Queen Victoria school, were as follows:

Scantlebury	$ 75.00
Madden	95.00
Sharpe & Hatte	110.00
Cornelius	110.00

It was decided that the tender of Mr Scantlebury be accepted.

The report of the Sites, Building and Repairs Committee, which was laid over for further discussion from a special meeting of the Board held a week ago, was taken up. The report was in reference to the purchasing of a site for the erection of a public school building.

Mr. Wills suggested that the report be referred back to the committee for further consideration as to recommending what property should be purchased and the amount of land required.

Col. Ponton said he was in favor of the purchasing of the Lingham property, between William and Ann streets, as it was vacant property. It was a central place and every bit of available land should be secured. He believed this property could be secured without expropriation proceedings being resorted to.

Mr. Morden thought that the committee might also look into the site known as the old Vinegar factory on Dundas street.

Mr. Bennett was opposed to the old Vinegar factory site, as it was far too far east. He still was of the opinion that the site referred to in the report namely, the Bell property, and other property adjoining was the best site but if a change is contemplated the committee should be so instructed.

Mr. Wills moved, seconded by Mr. Sharpe, that the report be referred back to the committee for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of land available in the Lingham property or other property.

The motion was adopted.

The clause in the report that Mr. H. Taylor had offered to sell two acres of land on Pine street for $2500 was considered.

Mr. Bennett stated that Mr. Taylor had spoken to him in reference to this property, and his price was $2500.

Mr. Morden was of the opinion that a much better site could be secured than that of Mr. Taylor's land on Pine street. The school should be more central, namely, at the north end of Albert street.

Mr. Bennett was opposed to the ideas of Mr. Morden. He (the speaker) contended that the Pine street site would be more central, and no residences would be disturbed.

A resolution prevailed that this matter be referred back to the committee the committee to ascertain and report if there are other available sites in that vicinity.

The committee rose and reported The report was received and adopted.

It was decided that the schools should reopen on Sept. 1st, and the Principals of the various schools to be so notified.

Col. Ponton said the Board should take cognizance of the fact that the pupils of the High School had done well in the recent examinations, according to the published reports.

Mr. Lazier, caretaker of Pinnacle street school, asked for an increase of salary.

Mr. Rabbitts moved, seconded by Mr. Deacon, that Mr. Lazier be paid $7 per month instead of $6 — Carried.

The matter of the sale of the debentures for building a school was on motion referred to the Finance committee, to consult with the City Council in regard to same.

Board adjourned until next Friday night.

Sons of England Elected Officers Of Supreme Lodge.

Ottawa, August 12 — All forenoon at the meeting of the Supreme lodge, Sons of England, was occupied with the election of officers and the same work will be continued this afternoon. The question of where the next meeting place will be, will also be a lively one. The sessions will close to-night and nearly all the delegates are staying until the convention is over. The resolutions on public questions were left over until this afternoon.

The results of the elections were—Supreme President, Vice-President T. Ferguson of Toronto (unanimously.)

Supreme vice president, Mr. E. A. Miller, of Aylmer, Ont., chairman of this session's committee on general purposes.

The valued supreme general secretary, J. W. Carter, was unanimously reelected, as was also the able supreme treasurer, B. Hinchcliffe.

The trustees are: Mr. C. Meach of Toronto, Mr. J. Boxall of Lindsay and Mr. Proctor of Toronto.

These officials will be installed this afternoon.

Nominations for members of the chief committee, that of general purposes, closed at 10 o'clock. The number of names submitted was larger than usual, giving evidence of a widespread desire to act on this important committee.

A resolution was passed by the meeting expressing the society's appreciation to the city of Ottawa for the warm welcome which has been extended the delegates. The generous treatment was recognized as commensurate with the importance of the Capital city of the Dominion. It was moved by Canon Chambers and seconded by Mr. E. A. Miller.

Vancouver delegates circulated striking literature booming the Pacific city for the next meeting in 1912. Dodgers had already been issued of neat design urging the advantages of Niagara Falls for this meeting.

At noon the delegates were taken around the city in automobiles by the publicity department.

LADY DOUGLAS SCRATCAED POLICE CAPTAIN'S FACE.

Spokane, Wash., August 12. — With her hands calloused and scorched from working over the cooking stove of a lumber camp, Lady Sholto Douglas was sentenced for vagrancy in the police court here. She was arrested in a police raid on a cheap lodging house, her companion, Wm. Martin, being charged with disorderly conduct.

Lady Douglas fought with the officers and scratched the face of Police Captain Miles. She was sent to jail for thirty days.

"I want to go back to my husband," she said in jail. "I am not a bad woman, and I can return to the life I formerly lived."

May Irwin Abandons The Inn Business.

POPULAR ACTRESS FINDS NOTHING IN IT IN A NO-LICENSE TOWN AMONG THE ISLANDS.

Clayton, N. Y., Aug. 12.—May Irwin the actress, has decided to abandon the hotel business, according to information gained here. Not that she doesn't like to shine as the hostess of one of the pleasantest inns on the St. Lawrence, but there were certain things which changed the popular artist's mind after last year's experience.

In the fact that the majority of the voters of the town of Clayton declared themselves at the polls last election in favor of no-license town, and that the Irwin Inn happens to come within the town limits, though upon an island, far removed, was the abandonment of the inn as a public resort largely attributed.

The inn, which is really a sumptuous summer home of Miss Irwin, is open and sheltering the actress and her friends, but when it comes to running it as an hotel, with all the consequent cares and trials, and without the privilege of opening a bottle of Brut or Sec with a handsome profit, there is nothing to it, says May.

THE FORMULA OF "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Is On The Outside Of Every Box For All The World To See

Every user of "Fruit-a-tives" knows exactly what is being taken. The formula of this famous fruit medicine is printed plainly on the outside of every box. We have stated many times—and now state clearly—that "Fruit-a-tives" is made of the juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes, with valuable heart and nerve tonics and antiseptics.

Everyone knows that fruit juice is healthful—but perhaps some do not understand why this is true.

Fruit juice consists of about 91% water, 8% of sweet principle, and 1% of a bitter substance. It is the quantity of bitter principle in fruit that gives the fruit value as a medicine. An eminent physician of Ottawa, after years of experimenting, found a method of increasing the bitter principle in fruit juice, thus increasing the medicinal or curative qualities.

The juices are first extracted from fresh, ripe oranges, apples, figs and prunes. By a secret process, some of the sweet atoms are replaced by the bitter principle. Then tonics and antiseptics are added, and the whole made into tablets, now known far and wide as "Fruit-a-tives."

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world that is made of fruit juices, and is one of the few remedies that have let their composition be known from their introduction to the public.

"Fruit-a-tives" is nature's stimulant for the liver, bowels, kidneys and skin. In cases of obstinate Constipation, Liver Trouble, Indigestion, Backache, Rheumatism, Headaches and Impure Blood, this wonderful fruit medicine cures when everything else fails.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold everywhere at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c., or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited. Ottawa.

AN ODD LITTLE STATE.

A Living Bit of the Antique World on the Face of Modern Europe.

Wedged in like a debatable land between France and Spain lies a quaint little state which calls itself the Republic of the Valleys of Andorra, and dates its foundation from the year 782, when Charlemagne gave its people a charter of independence, as a reward for the aid they had given him in his struggle to drive out the Saracens from Barcelona and Seo d'Urgel. This charter, one of their most precious possessions, is still preserved in a curious iron armory with six locks, which stands in the House of Parliament at Andorra-la-Villa, the metropolis of this miniature state, says the Wide World Magazine.

From time to time, during the changeful history of Europe, Charlemange's charter has been confirmed by various monarchs; even Napoleon, ruthless destroyer though he was, spared this miniature republic as a public curiosity, which it certainly is, patriarchal and primitive to an almost incredible degree—a wonderful living, breathing bit of the antique world, lying intact on the face of modern Europe. Andorra has no written history, no written laws; everything is done according to traditions, handed down from generation to generation, and the form of government and the manners and customs of the people are essentially the same to-day as they were 1,200 years ago.

The fact of the republic's isolated position contributes as much as anything to this curious state of affairs. The Andorrans are almost as conservative as the Chinese. They mistrust foreigners and foreign inventions, and have a rooted objection to such things as photographic cameras, railways, telegraph wires, telephones and other modernities. Nature has provided them with impregnable fortifications in the shape of Pyrenean masses that shut them in securely on every hand, and they have no mind to allow their peaceful harmony to be disturbed. Let other nations quarrel and fight with each other if they choose; Andorra has no ambitions.

The confines of the country at the beginning of the 20th century are just exactly the same as they were in the year 782, neither more or less. She is very tenacious of her independence, and her antique traditions, of her manners and customs, but she is content to remain what she has ever been, a miniature state in the midst of modern Europe; managing her own little affairs as she chooses. To get into or out of Andorra on any side, you must cross an elevated mountain pass, and there is not a single highway leading into the country either from France or Spain. The principal entrance from the French side is the Pass of Solden, nearly 8,000 feet above the sea level. This is the only one practicable for horses; the others are mere mule-tracks of footpaths, and all of them are blocked during the snowy season.

Up In the Thousands.

A golf champion said one afternoon on the links:

"That chap ahead of us plays very poorly, doesn't he? Let us say nothing to him about it, though. His poor playing is often enough rubbed in on him.

"His caddie, one day when he was in particularly bad form, lay down near the ball in a bunker and pretended to sleep.

"The man looked up from one of his many vain swats at the ball and growled:

"'Say, you must be tired, boy, lying down!'

"'I ain't tired of carryin',' said the boy, 'but I certainly am tired of countin'.'"

Mustard Plaster Cure.

"Mustard as a promoter of morals was a new role," said the woman. "Yesterday I heard my Bohemian neighbor say to her eleven-year-old daughter:

"'If you do that again I'll put a mustard plaster on you.'

"The child didn't do it again. When I asked why the mother told me that in her country disobedient children are punished by applying a mustard plaster. It is more efficacious than whipping, scolding or moral suasion. The plaster isn't left on long enough to blister badly, but even without a blister a mustard plaster is a corrective measure that all little Bohemians try to avoid, even at the expense of good behavior."

Scriptural Misquotations.

"He who runs may read" sounds very Scriptural, but it is in reality a mangled version of the verse in the prophet Habakkuk, "Write the vision and make it plain upon the table that he may run that readeth it." Another Biblical misquotation is "By the sweat of thy brow shalt thou earn thy bread," the real text in Genesis being "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread." And when we pour "oil on the troubled waters" thousands search the Scriptures in vain for the metaphor.—London Chronicle.

Natural Pottery.

Excellent natural pottery is manufactured by nature in the case of a certain cactus. Woodpeckers are apt to excavate nests in the trunk and branches, and in order that it may protect itself again these incursions the plant exudes a sticky juice, which hardens, forming a woody lining to the hole made by the birds. Eventually the cactus dies and withers, but the wooden bowl remains.

A Miraculous Escape.

A motor car with several passengers went over a cutting in Manawatu George, near Wellington, N.Z., and raced down a steep bank, carrying trees and shrubs with it. Strange to say the car remained upright, and stopped in the river bed 70 feet below. The occupants were unhurt.

An Old Balloon Project.

As early as 1786 the French Government granted a sum of money to establish a balloon service between Paris and Marseilles with what were known as the Montgolfier air balloons, though the project never became more than a project.

In a new helmet rescue apparatus adopted in the Pennsylvania anthracite region the wearer is supplied with oxygen from tanks in the usual way, and in addition, his exhaled breath is purified by potash cartridges so it may be inhaled again

IS ONE PER CENT. LESS

But Customs Tariff Is Really Heavier, Says Mr. Borden.

Conservative Leader Speaking at Sherbrooke, N.S., Contrasts the Customs Duties With Laurier's Promise of Reduction—Excess of Revenue Is Bringing No Excess of Buying Power for the Nation.

Sherbrooke, N.S., Aug. 13.—A great crowd gathered in this town to hear R. L. Borden and the other Conservative speakers. The Opposition leader was given a great ovation.

Mr. Borden opened his address by quoting Sir Wilfrid Laurier's promise, when in opposition, regarding the reduction of expenditure and taxation, as follows: "If we get into power, we will follow the example of Mr. Mackenzie, and I say that, although we may not be able to bring the expenditure to what it was under him, we can reduce the amount two, yes three million dollars per year."

"From 1900 to 1909, both inclusive, the total amount of taxes collected was $524,391,293, and from 1887 to 1896, both inclusive, the amount was $285,398,543. In 1896 the taxation per head amounted to $5.46. At the present time the taxation per head is over $10. The total taxation for 1896 amounted to $27,759,279, and the total taxation for the year 1910 amounted approximately to $75,482,580, or an increase of nearly $50,000,000.

"But it is claimed by Liberal speakers and Liberal organs that the customs duties have been reduced. The total net reduction in the tariff amounts to about 1 per cent., but under actual existing conditions the customs duties upon a pound or yard of any commodity imported into Canada are much heavier than they were in 1896.

"The price of all commodities imported into this country has largely advanced during the past ten years. This appreciation in price accounts for a portion of the increase in the volume of our foreign trade. The average increase of price would probably amount to 40 per cent.

"Assuming the duty to be 29 per cent., instead of 30 per cent., as before, you find that the total customs duty will be $40.60, or more than $10 in excess of the duty paid on the same quantity of the same article in 1896. Thus the total cost to the importer in 1910 would be $180.60.

"High prices are thus made still higher as customs duties must be paid on the increase of prices.

"The Conservative party does not object to Liberal expenditures, but it stands for the principle that public money should be expended only in the public interest, and that for every dollar paid the country should receive a dollar value.

"But the expenditure of the present Government has been guided in many instances by motives of party expediency rather than public interest.

"The estimates of last session represents three times the expenditure of fourteen years ago. In the interval the country has increased in population by no more than 50 per cent. The present administration has received from the people of this country because the money could come from no other source, $367,650,000 in excess of the amount which the late Conservative administration received during their last ten years of power. This excess revenue of $367,650,000 would have paid off the entire public debt of Canada in 1896 ($253,000,000) and have left $100,000,000 of excess revenue to meet the necessities of the public service during the past ten years. Not a dollar of the public debt has been paid off, but $78,000,000 have been added to it.

"Generous expenditure for wise public purposes can always be justified, but the record of the past fourteen years is that of spendthrifts and profligates."

Two Insane Murderers Make Sensational Escape From Asylum On Mountain at Hamilton.

(Intelligencer Special.)

Hamilton, Ont., August 15 — Gunner Moir, who murdered Sergeant Lloyd, of Wolseley Barracks, London, and another insane murderer named Haggart from York County, made a sensational escape from the asylum on the mountain here during last night.

There is great excitement in the neighborhood, and armed police are scouring the country.

The Moir-Lloyd tragedy occurred on Good Friday evening, 1908. When partly intoxicated, Moir was reprimanded by the Sergeant, and seizing a rifle, he followed the latter and shot him dead. He was captured after a chase of several weeks, on a farm north of Guelph.

On the ground of epilepsy he was sent to the Asylum.

Taggart's Crime

Taggart was a Toronto man, who killed his wife in 1899.

Moir and he had formed a strong friendship lately, and it is thought that the scheme to escape had been carefully planned, with outside assistance, and the collusion of some attendants.

How They Escaped

Apparently Moir had secured duplicate keys of the doors of his room, which he opened quietly, climbed through the transom, pulled away a bar in Taggart's cell, and they slipped out together, unlocking several doors and locking them after them leaving other insane murderers and attendants fast asleep.

Some body heard an automobile out in the grounds about five o'clock, and it is thought they were whirled away in that.

At five-thirty an attendant found the men gone and raised an alarm.

Police Notified

In a short time the police everywhere were notified from Detroit to Niagara Falls and from, Hamilton to Montreal. Superintendant English thinks they are safe in the States.

Description of the Two Murderers

Moir, the escaped insane murderer, is aged 23 or 24, 5 feet 3 inches in height; weight 120 pounds; dark moustache, hair and complexion; dark grey suit; tan laced boots.

Taggart is aged 50; 5 feet 10 inches in height grey moustache and hair; dark brown coat and darker trousers; black laced boots.

Believed Men Had Outside Assistance

Hamilton, August 15 — That the two insane murderers were not very insane and that they had the assistance of outsiders is evinced on investigation.

They apparently coolly went to the bathroom and changed their clothes right beside the rooms of attendants.

There was no night watchman on duty, notwithstanding the fact well known that Moir was desperate and hade made previous attempts to escape.

Dr. Bruce Smith, Inspector of Asylums, is here investigating.

The people of Hamilton are afraid to meet strangers on the street.

Quebec, Q., August 15.—Dr. Crippen to-day expressed his satisfaction that everything was ready to take him back to England to stand trial.

The warrant is expected from the Governor-General to-morrow, and it is probable that the Scotland Yard police, with Crippen and Leneve, will sail Thursday.

Like Automobiles Better Than Babies

Topeka, Kan., August 10.—Are Kansas mothers kept so busy with their automobiles that they have not time for babies?

This seems to be the case. The statistics gathered by the State Board of Health show a decrease of 2,130 babies born in 1909 from the number born in 1908.

"I am ashamed of the record," said E. T. Fairchild, who has just completed the school statistics for the present school year. "While we should feel proud that the average Kansas farmer is prosperous enough to own an automobile, it is deplorable that with the advent of the 'bubble' wagon births should begin falling off."

In 1907 there were 25,990 babies born in Kansas. In 1908 the baby crop was 25,980, a decrease of ten. The total for 1909 was 23,850, a decrease of 2,130 for the year.

Father of Veterinary Science in Ontario in Grave Condition.

One of Ontario's Most Honored Educationists, Who Has Been a Life-Long Lover of the Horse, Is Suffering From Blood-Poisoning—Was a Founder of Ontario Jockey Club and Is Widely Known.

Toronto, Aug. 15.—Dr. Andrew Smith, F. R. C. V. S., known as the father of veterinary science in Ontario, and as a foremost lover of the horse, is seriously ill at his home, 311 Jarvis street, where he has been confined since about the 10th of June, suffering from a form of blood-poisoning. The fact that an eminent specialist from Johns Hopkins University has been summoned, indicates the gravity of his condition, and his many friends are anxious.

Born in Ayrshire, Scotland, about 77 years ago, Dr. Smith has been a resident of Toronto for almost half a century, and has identified himself closely with the life and growth of the city. He was one of the founders of the exhibition in 1878, and continued as an active director until 1909, when he was made an honorary life director. So greatly is he loved and esteemed by his colleagues, that on this occasion he was presented with a beautiful portrait in oils.

All life long his hobby has been the horse. He was one of the group of gentlemen who founded the Ontario Jockey Club, and there has been no more faithful attendant at the meets. Like the late William Hendrie, he has always stood for the highest type of sportsmanship, his sole purpose being the better development of the horse.

A life long Liberal, Dr. Smith has been on different occasions pressed to run for political office, but though his great personal popularity would have made him a strong candidate, he always declined the honor. He is a member of the National Club, and connected with many societies whose aim is to improve the breed of the horse. It has long been recognized that in knowledge of the subject which he has made a life study, he stands almost without a peer in Canada.

Charged With Bigamy.

Port Hope, Aug. 15.—Charles Spiers, a merchant tailor of this town, was arrested here Saturday night on a charge of bigamy. The complainant was wife No. 1, from Brooklyn, N.Y., and she claims that Spiers left her over twenty years ago. Her brother, Mr. Jacobs, visited Port Hope some time ago, when he learned that Spiers had married again. Since that time they have been collecting the necessary evidence to bring the case to court.

Spiers has been a resident of Port Hope about eighteen years, and ten years ago married Miss Amelia Clarke of this town. He is a Jew, and carried on a small tailoring business. He had three children by his first wife, and the eldest son is here to give evidence against him. The case will be heard this afternoon. Spiers was allowed out on his own bail of $400 cash.

Presentation to Mr. Graham.

Calgary, Aug. 15.—While the Premier rested Saturday night and yesterday morning the citizens did honor to his colleagues. At the Northwest Mounted Police barracks old residents of Leeds, Grenville and Dundas surprised Mr. Graham with an illuminated address and the presentation of a gold-headed cane. Ald. M. Halliday read the address, while Dr. Anson Donaldson made the presentation.

Mr. Graham congratulated Calgary on the citizens she was securing from the east.

Senator Gibson, P. G. M. of Grand Lodge of Canada, was banqueted by Ashlar Masonic Lodge, and delivered a stirring speech, dealing with the growth and development of the west, and recounting a visit to the British Masonic lodges,

CRIMEAN HEROINE DEAD

Florence Nightingale the Famous Nurse Dies Aged Ninety.

Woman Whose Name Has Been a Byword In Every British Home Passes Away as Result of a Relapse on Saturday—Was the Only Woman Who Ever Received the Order of Merit—Funeral to Be Quiet.

London, Aug. 15.—Florence Nightingale, the famous nurse of the Crimean war, and the only woman who ever received the Order of Merit, died Saturday afternoon at her London home.

Although she had been an invalid for a long time, rarely leaving her room, where she passed the time in a half-recumbent position, and was under the constant care of a physician, her death was somewhat unexpected. A week ago she was quite sick, but then improved, and on Friday was cheerful. During that night alarming symptoms developed and she gradually sank until two o'clock Saturday afternoon, when an attack of heart failure brought the end.

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE.

Her funeral will be as quiet as possible, in accordance with her wishes, made during recent years. Owing to her feebleness and advanced age Miss Nightingale has received but few visitors. On May 12, last she celebrated her 90th birthday, and was the recipient of a congratulatory message from King George.

The difficulty of procuring a suitable nurse during an illness in her family first drew Miss Nightingale's attention to the need for training educated women to replace the "Sairey Gamps" and "Betsy Prigs." She devoted herself to the study of the question, visiting hospitals at home and abroad. Later she took in hand the management of the Home for Sick Governesses in London, and was so engaged when the Crimean War broke out.

The sufferings of the soldiers in the autumn of 1854, after the battle of the Alma, sent a thrill of indignation through Britain. In the dilemma Sidney Herbert, the War Minister, bethought himself of his friend, Miss Nightingale, and wrote asking her to organize and take out a band of nurses to the relief of the soldiers, as he believed her to be the "one woman in England" who had the knowledge and training for the task. His letter crossed one from Florence Nightingale offering her services.

She set out Oct. 21, 1854, and reached the great Barrack Hospital at Scutari with her friends, Mr. and Mrs. Bracebridge, and a band of 38 nurses on Nov. 4. Within two days the huge barrack building, which lacked everything that a hospital should have, was filled to overflowing with the wounded from Inkerman. They came in by the shipload from the distant Crimea, with wounds undressed, limbs unset, and their only clothes stiff with gore.

Miss Nightingale spent a year and eight months at Scutari and in the Crimea, and not until peace was declared did she quit the scene of her heroic labors. She traveled back under an assumed name to avoid a public ovation, and went quietly to her family at Lea Hurst.

Died While Cutting Hay.

Onion Lake, Sask., Aug. 15.—Yesterday morning the body of Samuel Baptiste Dumont was found in a hay field a few miles from here. Deceased had been cutting hay, and a passerby, seeing the team standing alone, went over and found the body near the machine, the team having stood there all night.

Dumont was a grandfather of the notorious Gabriel Dumont, one of the leaders in the northwest rebellion, and leaves a family of several grown-up children.

Will Be Tried for Manslaughter.

CURRENT EVENTS.

Some of the members of the City Council who went to Picton to see the tar macadam roadway being put down in that town are not wildly enthusiastic over the proposal to build a roadway of the same kind on Front street. The system is practically the same as was advocated by the late Street Surveyor Hulme in this city some years ago. It is hardly likely, we are told, that anything of the kind will be inaugurated in Belleville this year, at all events.

In Ontario, just now, Old Dame Nature is at her prettiest. Surely we live in a goodly pleasant land, where every prospect pleases.

Recorder Weir, of Montreal, has rendered a judgment, which, if it means anything, it is that if a saloon keeper gives liquor to a man, until he becomes drunk, he should not lay claim for any damage the man may do in the saloon. In giving judgment he said: "When a saloon keeper comes here before me and wants the court to order reimbursement for damage done to his property by a man who has been drinking in his establishment, for two hours, he need not expect it.

"Here is a case of a man who was in a saloon for two hours, according to the evidence. What can you expect when people get drunk on your premises? Something is going to happen surely." The drunk man was fined three dollars for disturbance on the street, but the saloon-keeper got no damages. This may not be strictly law, but it's equity.

Hon. Mr. Allard, Minister of Crown Lands in Quebec, referring to the policy of preventing pulpwood from being exported to the United States, told a Montreal interviewer "that he was pleased to state that his department was beginning to see some of the effects of the prohibition of the export of pulp wood, as many American paper manufacturers are now negotiating for the establishment of paper mills in the province. Mr. Allard said that in the near future further developments would be ripe for publicity and would be of a most interesting character. This is the result of protecting our pulp wood from being exported to the United States in its raw state.

The Montreal Star informs its readers that "during the month of July, the city dog-catchers captured 246 unlicensed dogs, including many terriers, and 103 of them were killed, and then adds "all lovers of rats must rejoice in this wholesale destruction of the natural enemies of their pets," and as a result 'Montreal can now boast probably more rats to the acre than any equal area in the whole wide world, and now enjoys the possession of many millions of rats, and that the industry is capable of still greater development of intelligently encouraged by civic by-laws." Montreal should import Chinese, rats being a favorite food for them.

Mr. R. L. Borden, the Conservative leader may be a most attractive speaker and may have a devoted following but against a circus as a counter-attraction he is outclassed. — Toronto Globe.

Right for once, Globe. No circus is complete unless it has a bevy of clowns, hence the Laurier circus "outclasses" that of Mr. Borden, who has none upon his staff.

Kingston Whig: An exchange says that music makes fish bite. Some of the alleged music we have heard would make anything bite.

Two things Belleville needs: Permanent paving and a public bathing place.

Weren't the flies numerous and savage in church yesterday? Everybody just HAD to keep awake.

The City Council of Toronto has decided to grant Mr. William Crawford a pension from the Firemen's Benefit Fund, of $32.16 a month for the remainder of his life on the report of a doctor that he "was physically unable to perform his duties as a fireman." This the Grits are denouncing as political grafting. There are no men better deserving a pension than firemen, who risk their lives at fires in the protection of life and property, and when incapacitated deserve favorable treatment.

The British cadets who will compete at Rockliffe Rifle Range, near Ottawa, sailed by the Empress of Britain from England on the 12th inst., in command of Captain McCalmont Eaton. Two New Zealand cadets accompany them.

Unemployment in England is now said to be less than at any time in some years. Of 416 trades unions, employing 705,000 men, there are 3.7 per cent. unemployed.

The residents of Belleville may be assured of money well spent by paying a visit to the Family Theatre this week as the Griffin Amusement Co. have sent on one of their strongest acts to appear to-night, Tuesday and Wednesday.

In presenting Arthur and Jeanet, that peerless pantomimic pair, the patrons will witness a refined act, that has caused quite a sensation in the States.

Propose Associate For Rev. Dr. Carman

IMPORTANT CHANGES WILL COME BEFORE THE METHODIST GENERAL CONFERENCE IN VICTORIA.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 13.—The Canadian Methodist Conference opens here on Monday. Already many delegates have arrived, and more are coming by every train.

One of the most important propositions with which the conference will probably deal pertains to the election of an associate for Dr. Carman, the General Superintendent. Either this will be done or the possibility of electing a new superintendent will be discussed. There would be no doubt as to Dr. Carman's continuance, but for his advanced age, he having passed his seventy-seventh birthday. The names of Rev. Dr. Chown and Rev. James Allan are mentioned in connection with the proposed formation of an associate superintendency.

New Missionary Secretary

There is not much doubt but that Rev. T. E. E. Shore, M.A.,B.D., will be chosen to succeed Rev. Dr. Sutherland as General Secretary of the Foreign Department of the Missionary Society.

Foreign Missions, Church Union, and other questions of vital interest, are to be considered.

Great preparations have been made by the people of Victoria for the entertainment of the Conference, the citizens generally, co-operating most heartily. During the fortnight several social functions will be held, the most important of which takes place on Wednesday evening next, when the Conference will, by invitation of the Government of British Columbia, attend the reception to Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

OBITUARY,

STEPHEN EUSTACE.

On Monday, July 25th, Mr. Stephen Eustace, of this city, was the victim of a paralytic stroke, which ultimately proved fatal, as he passed away at an early hour on Sunday morning.

Deceased, who was in his 63rd year, was a son of the late James Eustace. He was born in the Township of Sidney. When a young man Mr. Eustace went to Rochester, N. Y., where he resided for 15 years, being connected with the American Express Company. Returning to his native land he made his home here, where he had since resided. Deceased was respected by all who knew him, and had many friends who regret his demise. Mr. Eustace was a member of St. Michael's church, also a member of the C. M. B. A., under whose auspices the funeral will be conducted.

After returning to this city from Rochester, deceased married Miss McGovern, who, with a family of one son and five daughters, survives. The son, Eddie, resides here. The daughters are Misses Annie, of New York; Ray, Bessie, Stella, and May, of this city The family will receive the sincere sympathy of many friends. One brother, James, and one sister, Miss Eliza, reside in Rochester, N. Y.

Inherits Fortune; Keeps on Working.

New York, August 13.—William P. Hahn, thirty-three years old, an elevated guard on the West End line of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, received a letter from his brother Arthur recently containing the information that he had inherited $60,000 from a wealthy aunt who had died in Offley, England. He continued his work, pulling the gates and slamming the bell cord as if nothing had happened.

"I have seen as much money before," he said. "There is no use of getting excited and no use throwing up a job even if you have a little pin money. I have not made any plans. I am single and may get married, but as yet I haven't seen the girl."

BUTTER-IN GOT WHAT WAS COMING TO HIM

"Gracious! That's a peach of a black eye. Where did you get it?"

"Got it on the left side of my nose. Where did you think I got it—over the ankle bone?"

"Don't get heated. How did it happen?"

"That's different. It was all a piece of my confounded tough luck. I was up on the Blue Cliff road looking at a piece of real estate, when along came a coatless and bareheaded fellow running for dear life, with a lot of panting pursuers stretching in a long line behind him. I joined in the chase. Being fresh, I rapidly overhauled the fugitive. I had nearly collared him when a big ruffian grabbed me and profanely told me to clear out. I spoke rudely to him and kept on running, and he suddenly reached out a fist like a ham and knocked me into the ditch. What do you suppose it all was?"

"Give it up."

"It was a rehearsal for a moving picture film, and now my portrait will go all over the country and be seen in thousands of theatres as a bruised and battered butter-in who got just what was coming to him."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SHOOTING UP LANIGAN'S.

He blowed inter Lanigan's, swingin' a gun
An' swearin',
Declarin'
Red rivers 'ud run
Down Alkali valley an' oceans o' gore
'Ud wash sudden death on th' sagebrushy shore;
An' shot a big hole into Lanigan's floor.

He blowed inter Lanigan's, swingin' a gun,
A new one,
A blue one,
A Colt's forty-one.
He shot some, permiskus, where Lanigan stood
An' would have put Lanigan in bad fer good,
But th' leg that he happened t' shoot in was wood.

He blowed inter Lanigan's, shoutin' like mad
An' ravin',
Gun wavin',
Gin ugly an' bad.
He shot a knothole outen Lanigan's leg—
Th' wood one—an' shot th' bung outen a keg,
An' nigh let th' liquor all out, every dreg.

An' Lanigan, seein' him goin' too far,
Too fricky,
With whisky
With cash at th' bar,
Reached over an' pulled out a big forty-four
An' plugged him between th' back bar an' th' door
Till he was less harmful than he was before.

He blowed inter Lanigan's, lookin' fer gore,
An' tarried—
We carried
Him out on a door,
An' Lanigan took a big splinter o' leg
An' got out his jackknife an' whittled a peg
To stop up th' hole he shot inter th' keg!

FIXED UP THE LUNCH BASKETS.

Anecdote of Bjornson Which Shows the Sort of Boy He Was.

Bjornstjerne Bjornson, the great Norwegian writer and patriot, was the son of a clergyman. As a boy he was nearly always in mischief and to no one did the old saying that a minister's son is no saint, apply more fittingly. The following is but one of scores which are told to this day of the boyhood of the great man:

One Sunday, feeling too restless to sit quietly, he slipped unnoticed out of church while the service was in progress. In the waiting room near the church, as was customary in the coast districts, where many of the people had to come long distances by boat, rows of dinner baskets stood waiting their owners. The temptation was irresistible. Quickly he changed the contents of the various baskets, smiling to himself the while, and then, with innocent face, he hung around after church was out to watch results.

He was not disappointed. The people, laughing and talking, unsuspectingly picked up their baskets and separated into merry groups out on the green, a few even inviting the minister's son to partake of lunch with them. But Bjornson wisely shook his head. Soon on every side were heard exclamations—angry, joyful, all surprised. The baskets belonged to the right people, but what of the food? The fish balls and potato cakes of one basket had been transformed into rye bread and gamle-ost of another, and vice versa; salt herring lay composedly in baskets from which coffee, bread and gooseberry compote were joyfully anticipated; an old man who had been tasting his lips throughout the sermon over the quail that he was to have for his lunch found in its place a slice of smoked herring, and the children of the poor widow rejoiced in a basket of goodies such as they had hardly dreamed of before.

There was a hopeless mix-up, and it was not until some time later that good humor was restored. Only the old man who so greedily gloated over his quail could not be consoled. Bjornson was suspected of the prank, but he knew enough to keep out of reach, until the affair was taken as a joke.

Stoves of the Middle Ages.

The stoves of the middle ages and of the era of the Roman empire and throughout Germany and Scandinavia generally were built of brick, tiles or similar material and were so large as to be stationary, sometimes taking up the whole side of a room, and in the latter country in winter the couches and blankets were spread thereon, and the family used them in lieu of the bedsteads of subsequent years. The fire was built at the bottom, and the heat and smoke passed through various flues, distributing warmth, before they made their exit to the chimney. Some of them were faced with porcelain and were highly ornamental.

"He is a stingy old curmudgeon, isn't he?"

"The worst I ever saw. Why, he'd haggle over the cost of building a spite fence."—Exchange.

THE BORA OF TRIESTE.

Havoc Wrought at Resort by the Strong Wind.

The wind which has raged over Trieste for the last three days, sweeping down from the snowclad Karst and whipping the sea into watery dust, deserves a place in the meteorological chronicles of Europe. Along the eastern Adriatic littoral the bora has an evil reputation; but reputations may be exaggerated, and in calm weather the blue water seems ready to supply many a grain of salt for the seasoning of travelers' tales. I confess to having listened skeptically to stories of the bora's terrific force told by officials in Herzegovina or by Dalmatian longshoremen, for, in a modest way, I have had some experience of European winds and was disposed to class the bora with the mistral or the tramontana. I fancied, moreover, that, in point of sheer force, a stiff libeccio, such as mows the thickets on the Tuscan Coast level as a college lawn, could hold its own against any child of Boreas. True, the bora is piercingly cold; but I remember the "Black Friday" of January, 1881, in East Anglia, and have felt the veracity of the Roman rhyme:

"Quanno er Tiritone mette la camicina,
Tira 'na Tramontana proprio sopraffina."

Now, however, I know the difference between tramontana and bora. The worst tramontana can only swathe the Roman Triton and his fountain in ice; a bora would blow Triton, fountain, and ice from the Piazza Barberini into Piazza Colonna!

The bora realizes the conception of "thorough." Solidity and impermeability case to be positive ideas. Walls, be they stone; windows, be they double; wraps, be they of fur, afford no protection. Indoors the wind screams and wails; without, it sweeps along with a roar as of express trains passing in endless procession over an iron viaduct. To walk against it in the open is impossible; to stand upright is an athletic feat; to drive is to risk life and limb. Adroitly though the Triestini slink around street corners and dodge the gale in alley and passage, the hospitals are kept busy on bora days binding up broken heads, setting fractured limbs, and plastering cuts and bruises.

The tourists who started out in a cab to see the city returned on discovering that the by no means modern vehicle had a passion for aviation. On the Istrain light railway near Muggia a crowded train was lifted bodily off the rails and hurled down an embankment. A large steamer, moored to the sturdy columns of Istrian marble on the Molo San Carlo by a massive steel chain and four-inch cables, was simply blown out to sea, the cables parting like tow and the chain cutting through a yard of solid marble as through cheese. Seagulls hid from the frigid fury of the gale, and a foolish pigeon that had ventured on the Molo was twice baffled in its attempts to reach the shelter of the governor's palace, fifty yards away.

Strangest of sights was the sea. Out in the offing waves may have run high and fast, but from the land no billows nor "white horses" were visible. Two furlongs from shore everything was shrouded in a hissing whitish haze whipped by the bora from the green surface of the uncannily calm water—Vienna correspondent, London Times.

Bagpipes In Nero's Time.

Bagpipes are generally ascribed to Scotland, where they have been in use for a long time, but it was an instrument upon which the ancient Greeks and Romans played. Nero is said to have performed upon it, and an old piece of Grecian sculpture represents a player on the bagpipes dressed in the fashion that is known to-day as the highland costume.

Monuments of Woe.

"Did you notice Mr. Jones' new teeth?" asked Mrs. Sharpeye. "I never saw anything so ghastly. They look like gravestones."

"Yes," said Miss Sinnie Cal; "I presume he had them placed in memory of his lost ones."

Explained.

"What're ye comin' home with your milk pail empty fer?" demanded the farmer. "Didn't th' old cow give anything?"

"Yep," replied his chore boy—"nine quarts and a kick!"

A Graceful Compliment.

Some famous compliments have been paid to members of the sterner sex, and one of the most gracefully turned was that uttered by Boileau, who, when the virtuous De Mesnies, president of the parliament of Paris, was elected an academician, congratulated him in these terms: "I have come to you, sir, in order that you may congratulate me on having you for one of my fellow academicians."

Many "Weak Sisters" In Laurier Cabinet.

That it will be in the interests of the country and the Liberal party if Sir Wilfrid Laurier wields the pruning knife and lops off some of the deadwood from his Cabinet tree, is admitted even by those who under ordinary circumstances support the present administration through thick and thin. Some of the men who sit around the council table have either outlived their usefulness or have degenerated into barnacles on the ship of state impeding its progress. A shakeup appears imminent, as it is well understood that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will not face the electors again with a water-logged craft.

Some of the young blood which was brought in has signally failed to make good.

Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King he of the high-sounding name, has proved that in addition to inordinate vanity and ambition he possesses the ability to dream like a student and the inability to get right down to the practical administration of an important department. His bungling of the Grand Trunk strike should not add to the favor in which this Government is supposed to be held by the working classes.

Then there is Hon. Charles Murphy secretary of state, who, by reason of the fact that he helped the Government out of a tight hole in the matter of the Hodgins charges, was dragged from an obscure lawyer's office in Ottawa to a minister of the Crown. Mr. Murphy has done nothing to justify that mark of the premier's esteem, except to court a violent quarrel with the chief Liberal organ, the Toronto Globe. His parliamentary career so far has not risen above the average standard of that of the ordinary back bencher.

George Graham, Minister of Railways, is another bright and shining light of incapacity. He was brought from the office of a country newspaper to fill the position he now occupies, and his chief stock in trade is "jollying" the public and parliament. It will, however, take a great deal more than jollying to make the people of Canada believe that the Intercolonial under the present system of mismanagement will ever be anything more than a political comedy, or that the millions lavished on the Grand Trunk Pacific are being wisely spent.

Of the old timers, Sir Richard Cartwright and Hon. William Paterson have reached that stage of life where the slippers and fireside are more comfortable than a Minister's chair Sir Richard has charge of the Department of Trade and Commerce, one of the most important in view of the increasing statue of Canada as a nation. That the aged minister cannot give to it that attention which it demands, and that the country as a whole is suffering thereby, is admitted on all sides. The man who lives in dreams of the past, whose thought is continually reverting to by-gone political triumphs has little if any grip on the present needs of trade and commerce.

Hon. William Paterson is also in the class due for retirement. The venerable Minister of Customs, for several sessions past, has sat idly by and watched with childlike interest the wheels go round. His day of hard fighting and the strenuous political life is done.

Then there is the lady-like Mr. Fisher, who is experimenting with the Department of Agriculture. Mr. Fisher can do less, and spend more time explaining the why and wherefore than any other Minister. He is the parent of much ill-conceived legislation, which invariably has to be tinkered with and patched up in such a way that even its own father would hardly know it.

Tail-Enders Battled at the Ball Yard

There was peace, perfect peace, at the Belleville ball yard on Saturday afternoon, when the Ontarios and T. A. S. tail-enders in the local City League crossed bats. The boisterous scenes of the previous Saturday were happily entirely missing, and the game, though it was not played up to quite National league form, was a pleasure to witness. After his rather rough experiences on the 6th of August, Mr. Jack Truaisch swore by the beard of the prophet that he'd never umpire another game here. Perhaps the prophet got a shave since then. Anyhow, Mr. Truaisch was on the job again as large as life last Saturday. And he did a very neat job, too. The lads were all on their good behavior, and the umpire had them eating out of his hand. One or two of the pirates in the bleachers whose dinners probably laid a bit heavy on their minds, made a few remarks which were, perhaps, a trifle out of order, but on the whole all was peace and quietness. Before the game started the Ontarios were picked as easy winners but it was nearly a case of another good thing going wrong, for at the end of the third the score was 7-4 in favor of the T. A. S. In the fourth, however, by means of two hits, one of them a three-bagger, assisted by a wild pitch and five blood-curdling errors, the Ontarios came steaming over the pan with six runs, putting the game on ice there and then. It was a free-hitting contest the Ontarios gathering 11 safeties, with a total of 15 bases, while the Total Abstainers made 9 hits with a total of 11 bases. In addition to thus clouting the ball, the teams tore off 13 errors apiece which as our old college chum Bill Shakespeare forgot to say, was going some. But for all the large number of errors, the game was exciting and interesting, and the result was in doubt till the last T. A. S. man was out in the 9th. It may, perhaps, safely be said that neither team played quite up to form, except with the bat. The way some of the lads laced the ball was a sight for sore eyes. Each team used two pitchers and none of them had many terrors for the opposing batsmen. Hence the big score, 14-10.

In the first the T. A. S. tore off three runs. The first man was out. Error gave the next two their bases. Then Hogan exploded a two-bagger which scored N. and J. Goyer. French then hit for two bases, but was caught trying to stretch it into a three-base hit. Hogan scored. Ross drew a base on balls, but Whelan was out at 1st. Three hits and an error also enabled the Ontarios to make three, LaVoie, Hagerman and McGie scoring.

In the second for the T. A. S., Goyer reached 1st on an error, Barrett was out, and then Champagne banged the horsehide for three bases, F. Goyer scoring. The next man was assassinated at 1st. J. Goyer then proceeded to lean against one of Moore's benders for a clean two-bagger. Champagne came in, and the batter followed him after the Ontarios had obliged with two more errors The next man, Hogan, was out at 1st In their half of the second the Ontarios drew a goose-egg. Score 6-3.

The Water-Wagoners got another in the third, French getting to 1st on an error, and scoring while the others were being retired. For the Ontarios, Hagerman made a run.

In the fourth for the T. A. S. Barrett made a two-bagger, scoring later. Then the Ontarios made six runs. The record of the disastrous incident is printed up in front. The score was now 10-8. But the ginger-ale boys, though behind, were not conquered. They tried hard all the time, but never got in front again. They squeezed out two more in the 7th and 8th, but, though they gathered three safeties from McGie in the 7th, they did not seem able to gauge him much in the other innings. In the 8th a soul-stirring incident occurred. McGie was at bat and hit safe. Wallace cracked up a high fly which no less than three Abstainers ran for. While they bumped their heads and hands together the ball dropped harmlessly on the Dominion of Canada, while a pained expression chased itself over the classic features of young French, who was doing the heaving for the Temperance men. To make it better—or worse—the next batter, Ketcheson landed on the ball for a bingle good for two bases, and the other two base-runners came steaming in with the runs which brought the Ontarios' total up to 14.

Before giving the score it may not be amiss to point out that nearly all the players on Saturday were "kids." One or two of the T. A. S., perhaps, might be called on to carry weight for age, but the rest are all youngsters. And they all make a noise like lads who will be real ball players some day. In the language of a once great statesman, "Wait till you see 'em next year."

How I Got My Start — By Ty Cobb.

It took me a long time to convince anyone that I was a good ball player. I think the first one who ever thought I was a great player was Cobb himself, and because others refused to believe it he felt bad.

I was born down in Georgia and began playing the game while at school. As I recall it, I always played the same way, took all the chances there were, and ran all the time. Lots of people now think that is good baseball, but the fellows with whom I played, refused for a long time to think so. In fact, at the finish of the game, our team usually was divided into two factions, with Cobb on one side and all the others on the other. I had ideas regarding how to play the game, but none of us ever had seen much baseball, and we had to think it out for ourselves.

One of the big wonders to me is, that I as a boy, made plays the same way, and for the same reasons that the star ball players of the big leagues were making, and I never had heard of them. After I got older I commenced to watch the professional team in the Southern League play, and although there were a lot of reasons why I shouldn't have left home. I longed to become a professional player. It was not for the money or anything like that, but because I loved the game and loved to be in the midst of it every time there was a game.

Now, it is my advice to all young fellows not to go into baseball or into anything else unless your heart is really into the work and you love it, and then quit it just as soon as your love of it and your enthusiasm for it begin to die out. No man can work right or win fame or honor anywhere unless his heart is in the work. I would rather have an armless and legless blind man on a team than a good player who plays only because the first and the fifteenth of the month means salary. They will win more games. But as to my experience I was fast and hit well, so they tried me out. I left home to show up the league, and a few weeks later Jack Grim bought me. The club I was with sold me to Grim, I think, for $8.50, the price of the car fare home and my hotel bill. I had been doing the same thing again, and my overzealousness cost me the position. I was slated to go away down into the bushes and perhaps I would have stayed here and never come out but for the fact that Detroit had some sort of a string on me and Grim could not get me. So I went to Detroit.

If ever a fellow had a hard time making good, I did. My ideas of how to play the game conflicted with the ideas of others, and I always was ready to fight for my own ideas. I was learning, however, and beginning to see that I was not always right and the others began to see that I was not always wrong. Jennings, too, took hold and taught me to curb myself, and to use my speed and natural ability to some advantage. Then I saw what I needed was a balance wheel, and when I saw that, I began to play ball to better advantage to save myself and benefit the team. I simply had learned to use my own ability.

FISH AND GAME PROTECTION

A new departure, but one that should receive the approval of all sportsmen, marks the August issue of Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, Ltd., Woodstock, Ont. The greater portion of the reading pages is given up to the production in full of the Interim report of the Ontario Fish and Game Commission. As a rule Government publication receive only scant attention and have but a limited circulation. In this instance, however, the report, through its appearance in the magazine, will be brought prominently before the attention of sportsmen, not only through Canada but also in the States, and the many suggestions and recommendations contained therein can scarcely fail to have some effect than a wider field than the province. The interest taken in Fish and Game protection is now general throughout North America, and this document will be studied and quoted for a long time to come. The statement of existing conditions and the many recommendations for improvement will bear much consideration from sportsmen. Through their organizations they should let the Government know their views on these matters in order that legislation may be based upon at least some of them. The interesting experience gained in "Canoeing on Lake Superior" is concluded, and the story told of Mr. Vance's Pet Fox, while the capture of a big fish is related. For trapshooters the number is fascinating as it gives interesting accounts of many big meets and numerous smaller ones, showing the importance attached to this branch of sport throughout the Dominion.

THE DEMAND FOR RUBBER.

The Supply Is Entirely Insufficient and Prices Are Soaring.

There is a great scarcity of rubber in the industrial world. More rubber is produced now than at any other time in history, but the varied demands for it are so great that the supply falls short of meeting them and prices have rapidly advanced. England is rubber mad and speculation there is almost as great and wild as in the days of the South Sea bubble of infamous memory.

The real commercial value of rubber on a large scale began with the discovery of the vulvanizing process, which permitted the making of a homogeneous joint between two pieces. At that time half a million dollars would have covered the value of the world's output. At present $80,000,000 would scarcely buy a year's output, while the total weight of the crude rubber as drawn from the tree reaches 70,000 tons.

During recent years an enormous amount of rubber planting has been going on and savage wildernesses in Asia, Africa and America have been ransacked for rubber trees. It was the increased demand for rubber that led to so many of the Congo atrocities under the administration of the late King Leopold of Belgium. Brazil is now supplying a good share of the world's supply, with the result that in the wild scramble for the product its forest are being drained. Ceylon, Java, Borneo, New Guinea, Burma, the Malay peninsula—all are planting rubber trees on an extensive scale.

In this connection we print an interesting picture dealing with rubber gathering in the Congo. Among the most industrious people in that vast and wild region are the Batetela. In gathering rubber they go into the forests inhabited by the Baukutu, who are a head-hunting people. While the men are in the forests, the provisory camp is guarded by a man who surveys the surroundings from a platform and a drummer. When the Baukutu are seen to approach the drummer beats the alarm and the men return to the camp to fight. The weapons used are spears and shields, or bows and arrows. The gathering of rubber in the Congo to satisfy the commercial greed of civilized man has been marked by many tragedies.

Hard on the Eyesight.

Looking into the fire, particularly a coal fire, is very injurious to the eyes. The stimulus of fire and heat united soon destroys the eyes. Looking at molten iron will soon destroy the sight. Reading in the twilight is injurious to the eyes, as they are obliged to make great exertion. Reading or sewing with a side light injures the eyes, as both eyes should be exposed to an equal degree of light. The reason is the sympathy between the eyes is so great that if the pupil of one eye is dilated by being kept partially in the shade the eye that is exposed cannot contract itself sufficiently for protection and will ultimately be injured.—British Health Review.

Saving.

The true basis of economics is that laid down by Mr. Micawber. If you spend sixpence a year more than your income, you are miserable; if sixpence less, the result is happiness. This is entirely too simple for most persons. They run into debt gleefully and have a hard time getting out. If there were a modern Ben Franklin who could wield the proportionate influence that the sage did in his own day, he would be the greatest of Americans. Spend less than you earn and buy nothing because it is cheap.

THE RED LOTUS.

A Story of a Visit to an East Indian Temple.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

It was twilight when Harry Ayers and his guest found themselves outside the Temple of the Five Sighs. They had visited a dozen ancient Calcutta temples that afternoon, and now the dusk had suddenly fallen and turned the crooked length of the narrow street into a dim perspective, lighted here and there by a lantern swinging above a doorway.

In the foreground arose the blank walls of the stone edifice, pierced by a low door, beyond which trembled a faint red glow.

"Have you the courage for another one before dinner?" asked Ayers, pausing at the foot of the stone steps.

"Certainly," returned Longwood. "The dozen we have seen this afternoon have not left the impression of antiquity and mysticism for which I was prepared. The carvings are without doubt exquisite, the images masterpieces of horror, but the priests—bah!"

Ayers laughed. "I prophesy that you meet your Waterloo here, Dick. I have never visited this shrine, but Lester has. You know Lester of the India bank?"

Longwood nodded. "Chap with white hair—met him at your club."

"Lester claims his white hair was the result of a night spent in this temple," said Ayers over his shoulder, leading the way up the steps.

The other made no reply, and together they passed through the door and stood in the outer court of the temple. Here mendicant priests squatted about the door of the inner shrine, presenting skinny hands for alms.

Once past these birds of prey they were engulfed in a pale blue cloud of incense, and through it they dimly perceived a large image of the Buddha, gay in rich vestments and sparkling with gems. The massive head looked down upon them with expressionless eyes and calm, inscrutable face. Behind the sealed bronze lips were locked secrets of the centuries.

ALWAYS THE CURLING, CLINGING VAPOR.

A solitary shaven priest adjusted a prayer screen and arranged on a long teakwood table a row of porcelain bowls. Then he vanished, leaving the Americans alone in the sanctuary.

They drew together and moved nearer the idol. Down in the radiance cast by hanging bronze lamps their momentary depression fled, and they examined with interest the rich carvings and inlaid work within the great niche.

As they lingered the silence seemed to close in about them like a wall, and with one accord they turned toward the door, but the doorway was obscured in heavy swirling clouds of incense, and through the blur they could scarcely discern each other's pale features.

Ayers opened his mouth to speak, but the words were never uttered, for at that instant a low, sighing whisper stirred the silence until the very air seemed to vibrate with its intensity of sorrow and then died away.

The two Americans scowled at the impassive idol in the niche, as if seeking some explanation of the mysterious sound and the strange influence that seemed to rob them of all vitality—to leave them helpless and inert before the inscrutable face.

Between the feet of the squatting god was a small bowl of some strange substance in the form of the beautiful red lotus flower of the east. In turn they touched it with their fingers and admired its beauty. When it was again on the altar their gaze clung to it, and as they looked the petals seemed to expand and float on the misty vapor as on some quiet, gray bosomed lake. Again the long sigh swept over them and with it a breath of exquisite perfume from the lotus flower.

With a mighty effort Longwood tore his gaze away from the flower and made toward the place where he believed the door to be. Ayers followed with laborious panting breaths as one who battled against heavy waves. Solid walls evaded their eager search—always the curling, clinging vapor, receding, advancing in larger billows until, choking and gasping, they found themselves once more at the feet of the god, where petals of the lotus flower writhed and twisted like tongues of rosy flame.

Once more the strange whispering sigh swept over them, a sigh heavy with ominous foreboding. It died away and was repeated, and then fell the oppressive silence.

Ayers clutched his companion's arm. "If it comes once more I shall go mad," he breathed hoarsely.

"It will come once more. There is the name, you know—the Temple of the Five Sighs. There must be one more." Longwood's voice was tense with restrained emotion.

And so they listened in the silence, with the heavy perfume of the red lotus encompassing them like a rosy cloud, until they seemed to stand together isolated from the world in the midst of eddying shadows and vague murmuring sounds, with no object in view save the implacable face above them and the writhing flower at its feet.

Hours seemed to pass before the faint whispers of the last sigh stirred the shadows. When it had passed over them and died away in a shuddering moan Ayers was crying like a little child, while Longwood stared wide eyed at the diminishing flames of the lotus flower on the altar.

As if by some magic influence the air cleared of the swirling incense, objects came plainly into view, and the perfume of the lotus flower changed to the acrid smell of opium that clings to many Hindu temples. The lotus flower was gone, and its palpitating beauty had given place to the delicately tinted bowl they had at first admired.

Ayers regained his composure and faced his companion with defiant eyes. "You may believe me to be a fool, Longwood," he began, when the other interrupted him. "I know, too," he said slowly. "Let us find Lester."

Without another word they went through the low door and out upon the street, where the begging priests cringed away from their white faces and where the solitary lanterns dotted the blackness of the street. Ayers scratched a match and looked at his watch.

"Seven o'clock. It was 6:45 when we entered," he announced grimly.

Longwood made no answer.

A half hour later, still silent, they found Lester at his bungalow. He was a tall man, lithe and slender and not more than thirty years of age, yet the thick hair above his forehead was as white as snow. His keen dark eyes questioned them.

Ayers nodded. "We've been there, Lester. I owe you an apology for doubting your experience in the temple. If it was anything like ours"—He shuddered and threw himself into a chair.

"How did you guess we had been there?" asked Longwood, with a strange dread in his tone.

Lester swung open a door on the inner side of which a mirror was paneled. In its surface they saw reflected Ayers' flaxen head and pale face and Longwood's jet black hair with a single white lock on the forehead.

"I knew by that!" said Lester gravely. "And—let me see your hands!"

The two men held out their hands, palms upward.

On the thumb and forefinger of each right hand was a small blood red stain shaped like the petal of a red lotus flower.

"You can't obliterate it," continued Lester, with a note of pity in his voice. "It is the lotus mark, and every man who has laid profane hands on the sacred bowl will carry that mark to his grave, and it will be an early grave, too, unless one can cover it up. That is one way to avoid the espionage of those who avenge. The other way"— He paused, and his voice lowered.

"The other way?" asked the two men eagerly.

"Is to leave the country, to clear out forever, and yet sometimes vengeance follows unless one covers the mark!" He moved to the cupboard and took down a bottle of some liquid and poured a little on his handkerchief. He rubbed the palm of his right hand and there sprang into view a small and perfect flower of the red lotus.

"We merely touched it and went down into hades!" breathed Ayers heavily. "And you—you"—

"I held it in my hand and went still farther," said Lester coolly as he replaced the bottle and took down another one containing a milky substance. With a small sponge he covered the palm of his hand, and the red flower faded under a uniform flesh tint. "Here, hold out your hands," he added. "Water will not harm this covering. Time will wear it off, and it must be renewed. I will give you the recipe. We who use it call it our 'life preserver.' It will be yours too."

"Why do they leave the blasted thing exposed like that? Why isn't there some warning that it must not be touched?" demanded Ayers excitedly as the red stain vanished from his fingers.

Lester smiled. "The temple is not for uninvited foreign devils to enter save at their own risk. If you had been warned of its malevolent influence, would you have touched the red lotus?"

The two men nodded assent, and Longwood asked, with a curious hesitation:

"What are the force and the—the sigh? What is the explanation?"

Lester crossed the room and leaned from the window into the darkness of the garden. Presently he turned toward them, and his voice was low and strained.

"Only one man ever learned the truth about that. He was my friend. And before he could impart his knowledge to others"— He paused and again looked into the night.

"Yes?" prompted Ayers.

"He died," finished Lester quietly.

In the British navy canvas that is to be painted also is water-proofed by adding to each seven pounds of paint an oz. of yellow soap and half apint of hot water, two coats being applie two dais apart.

If a petcock be placed close to the cylinders in an under-water exhaust pipe of a motor boat and opened when the engine is shut down it will prevent water being drawn into the cylinders as they cool.

IN DEFENCE OF HYDRO

W. K. McNaught, Issues a Pamphlet Concerning Power.

Important Pronunciamento Declares That Ontario's Coal Supply Needs Supplementing by a Government Ownership and Conservation of Water Powers—Danger of War or U. S. Export Prohibition.

Toronto, Aug. 15.—An important pronouncement concerning the Hydro Electric Power policy of the Ontario Government was issued in the form of a pamphlet yesterday by W. K. McNaught, M.P.P. He replies to the charge that the ordinary citizen will profit little by the scheme and that only the southern part of the province will benefit in any way.

Mr. McNaught says in part:

It has often been asserted by the opponents of the Ontario Government's Hydro-Electric power policy that while it might perhaps be all right for the manufacturer, it would be of little or no value to the ordinary citizen.

Objection has been made, that while this power policy may be of benefit to those towns and cities lying contiguous to the Niagara Falls, it can only be local in its scope, and that therefore the other parts of the province should not be called upon to contribute towards it in any way whatever.

The first of these assertions has been so often disproved, that I need not do more than point out that, although the manufacturer may primarily be the greatest gainer by this enterprise, it will also beneficially affect in the following ways every citizen residing in any of the districts where cheap Hydro-Electric energy is supplied:

(1) They will be able to purchase electric light very much cheaper than they get it at present.

(2) The cost of lighting public buildings and streets will be very much reduced. The same thing will obtain in regard to the power used by the municipality for pumping water for fire protection, street cleaning purposes and household use. Power used for operating electric street railway systems, especially those operated under public ownership.

Every citizen who works in a factory, office or store will be a gainer in health by the substitution of electricity for lighting purposes, and in comfort by the elimination of the smoke nuisance.

As I have already said, these benefits are so self evident that they have only to be stated in order to convince any fair-minded person that they are absolutely true.

The other assertion, while plausible on its face, has only to be examined to show how unfounded it really is. The Hydro-Electric power policy of the Ontario Government is a much larger and far-reaching question than the general public have heretofore imagined, and I desire to take this opportunity of drawing attention to some phases of it which, so far, have not received the publicity and consideration to which they are entitled.

The Province of Ontario is unfortunate in respect of its fuel supply. Although it has an almost illimitable supply of pulpwood and other valuable timber, it is entirely without any coal of its own.

But bad as is the present condition of affairs in regard to the coal situation, it might be, and indeed it will surely be, very much worse, unless we become alive to the situation and conserve our natural fuel resources.

As I have already pointed out, although we have an almost inexhaustible supply of puplwood and other valuable commercial timber, our supply of hard wood has been wasted to such an extent that it cannot be counted on in the older settled portions of the province except as a "dernier resort" during a period of fuel shortage, so that, after all is said, the citizens of Ontario are really dependent for their fuel upon a foreign country, and the supply of this vital necessity may be cut off at any time from any one of a number of causes such as a strike amongst the coal miners, or war between Great Britain and the United States (which God forbid), when the export of coal to Canada would at once be absolutely prohibited by the United States Government.

But, even granting that war between Canada and the United States is absolutely impossible, there is still another and a more real danger confronting us in regard to the coal question that we cannot argue away, and that is, that the time is not far distant when necessity will force the United States to prohibit the export of coal and other natural products which cannot be replaced.

This being the case, what remedy will the people of Ontario have? So far as I can see, their remedy can only lie in three directions.

First—The application of scientific methods to our great virgin forests, and the reforestration of cleared lands which are unsuited for agriculture.

Second—The exploitation of the immense beds of peat fuel to be found within the boundaries of the province.

Third—The nationalization and development of our water powers.

A LIVELY FOURTH.

His Proposal of Marriage Was Made Under Difficulties.

By T. DEWITT BOWMAN.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

Crack!

"Oh, dear, the Fourth has opened! I hope it's time to get up." I looked at a clock. The hour hand stood at 5, the minute hand at half past 5. I turned over and was dropping into a dose when—

Snap!

That ended it. I was wide awake and must lie abed for two hours. Worse, I must listen to the firing, which came at nerve wracking intervals.

I had been invited to spend the day with the Hunters at their country place. Tom Hunter, my chum, and his two sisters, Margaret and Josephine, constituted the junior members of the family. Margaret was an extremely ladylike young woman of twenty. I was sweet on her, but her sister Joe, aged seventeen, was such a disagreeable creature that I hesitated about entering the family.

LIKE A DOG RUNNING AROUND AFTER HIS TAIL.

The explosions all took place very near my window—indeed, so near that I could see the sparks and smoke above the casement. I suspected that Joe was setting them off for the express purpose of annoying me. All doubt of this was removed when I saw a firecracker dangling at the end of a string right before my window. It sputtered just long enough to make me dread the explosion, which was the more harrowing when it came. Then I heard an idiotic te-be.

They say boys between fifteen and twenty-one should be barreled up and put away. There are some girls between those limits who should be walled in. Joe Hunter was one of them.

After two hours of discomfort I arose, dressed and went down to breakfast. The family were all very jolly. Some people could sleep peacefully on a battlefield. None of the family seemed to have been awakened by Joe's firecrackers. I had a headache. If the noise hadn't continued I should have liked to go back to bed. Joe had the assurance to ask me if I had slept well.

I thought that I would take occasion, having a whole day before me, to settle matters with Margaret Hunter, to whom I had for some time been paying attention. Indeed, it was expected that I would propose at no distant date, and as I would be welcome in the family the event was looked forward to by them with pleasing expectation. As I have said, the only thing that delayed me was my antipathy for Joe. But no such ordinary matter as a dislike for a member of a girl's family will long deter a lover, and I had made up my mind if I should meet with a convenient opportunity I would go back to the city after the Fourth with my fate settled.

Since the family expected that I was about to make my proposition it was natural that Joe should know all about it. Whether she did or did not I don't know, but one thing I do know—notwithstanding both her sister's and my efforts to "shake" her she persistently kept tagging about after us. Did we sit on the piazza, she came and occupied the hammock. Did we go out to sit under a copper beach tree whose hanging branches formed a convenient screen, she must come and poke her nose in under pretense of having lost something there. Margaret in order to get rid of her took me up into a cupola, and the fiend came up, saying that it was the only place from which she could see the paper balloons that were being sent up. There was not a balloon in sight, but she stayed in the cupola waiting for one.

There was nothing for us to do but go down. Joe went down with us and was not away from us long enough for me to enter upon, much less finish, what I had to say to Margaret. Luncheon came and nothing accomplished. After the meal I stole away to get a nap under a tree some distance from the house. I was falling into a doze when a cracker exploded within a foot of my ear. I looked around, but, of course, could see no one. I tried to doze off again, but another cracker came, then another and another. I knew very well who was throwing them. It was Joe. But it was impossible to get a sight of her. I got up, went to my room and got a brief nap. Why she consented to let me sleep I don't know. Perhaps she was busy annoying some one else.

About 5 o'clock I met Margaret on the piazza and proposed a walk. We both looked about furtively to see if Joe was within sight or hearing. There was no trace of her. We started, following a secluded path through dense shrubbery. We passed on to a rustic bridge leading over a creek. I paused and leaned against the rail. Margaret did the same, both of us facing the roadway. Feeling safe from interruption, I began my declaration.

"Margaret," I began, "it is time that I should tell you of that feeling which has gradually been rising in my breast ever since I have known you. I have had ample opportunity to observe your beautiful character, your kindly disposition and your native purity. I know that it is presumption in one so unworthy as myself to aspire to be anything more than a friend. I feel"—

"Crack!"

The sound was so near me that it shook every nerve in my body. I could not only hear it; I could feel it. But I couldn't see it, for it was directly behind me. Indeed, the explosion occurred at the end of my coattail.

It was followed by another and another in rapid succession. I turned, but the explosions turned with me.

Some one had tied a bunch of firecrackers to my coattail.

I could neither see nor reach them, for as I turned they turned with me. I endeavored to take hold of them, but only turned faster and faster like a dog running around after his tail. Then I backed up against Margaret that she might relieve me of them, but she gave a little shriek and retreated.

"Take them off!" I cried.

"I don't dare. They'll set my dress afire."

True, dressed as she was in thin white muslin, a spark from the pesky things might ignite it and cause a tragedy. An opportunity to stop the horrid snapping occurred to me. There was water under the bridge. I ran down there, feeling like one pursued by cracking rifles, and, squatting in the creek, had the satisfaction after a few muffled snaps beneath the surface of being relieved of the annoyance.

My white trousers were wet nearly to the knees. My coattail was dripping. I was in no condition to continue a declaration of love. By an unexpressed consent we turned and walked rapidly to the house. We had not taken a dozen steps when we heard what I had heard before when rising that very morning—an idiotic "te-hee!"

Then I knew that we had been preceded by Joe; that she had taken position under the bridge and had tied the crackers to my coattail.

On reaching the house Margaret showed me a rear entrance where I could go up to my room without being seen. There I took off my trousers, wrung them out, sat on them in lieu of ironing and when they were dry enough to put on went down and joined the others on the lawn. Joe was there and when I approached looked at my trousers with well feigned surprise and asked if I had been bathing with my clothes on. I turned my back upon her without reply.

All waited till it grew dark enough to set off the fireworks, of which an abundant supply had been provided. I was determined to have matters settled between Margaret and myself, and as soon as the pyrotechnic display commenced I led her away. Some one saw us and asked where we were going. Margaret, equal to the occasion, replied:

"To the cupola. We can there see not only our own fireworks, but those all about us."

Following the suggestion, to the cupola we ascended. But I paid no attention to what was passing below. This was my last opportunity to get in my proposal, and I hastened to avail myself of it.

"Margaret," I began again, this time taking her hand, which she did not withdraw, "I was about to say to you this afternoon when interrupted that from the first moment of our meeting I have been impressed with your beautiful character and, though I know it is presumption in me to"—

Whiz!

A rocket screached not half a dozen feet above our heads.

I looked down on the lawn and by the red light saw Joe, assisted by a couple of her boy friends, aiming another rocket directly at the cupola. We had barely time to get down on the floor before the fiery thing shot with its horrid noise above us. It was followed by a discharge of roman candles, the balls of which fell either on the roof of or in the cupola. There was nothing for us to do but beat a precipitate retreat. Margaret lost her head completely and ran down the steep staircase so fast that she fell. Catching her up, her head fell upon my shoulder.

"Sweetheart! Margaret! Dearest! Speak to me!"

After all my proposition had come—not, as I had intended it, in formal words, but from the heart.

The most eventful Independence day in my life was over—eventful not only that I had been accepted by the girl I loved, but on account of the difficulties under which I had made my proposal. I have now been married some years, and, although I must admit that my sister-in-law has grown to be a sedate woman, I have never forgiven her the levity that caused me so much trouble.

KISS IN THE DARK

The Meeting In the Train and the Close of the Episode.

By ESTHER VANDEVEER.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

George Goddard, starting for the seashore one day in July, felt so buoyant that it seemed he must go up in the air like a balloon. He flung his belongings down into a seat, then walked through the cars, out on to the platform, anywhere, everywhere. He was so happy he couldn't keep still. Then came the cry "All aboard!" He jumped on to the train and rolled out of the station, it seemed, on strewn flowers.

In a seat on the opposite side of the car sat a young lady reading a book. She was tastefully dressed. Her hair shimmered in the sun that streamed in at the window beside her. She was an altogether attractive looking person. The girl seemed to be absorbed in her book, and there was no chance to scrape an acquaintance. Had she been without reading matter he might have resorted to the old device of offering her a magazine, a book or a paper, but since she was already supplied to offer more would make the underlying motive too apparent.

The girl seemed to be unaware that there was a young man in the car who was eying her longingly. The book she was reading must have been absorbing, for she did not pause a moment to look out of the window or anywhere else for that matter—not even in the direction of the admiring Goddard. His happiness excited in him a confidence that would have led him to use any excuse had he been able to invent one, but so long as she kept her eyes glued to the pages before her there was no opening.

An hour passed, during which Goddard's eyes were as firmly fastened on the girl as her own eyes were fastened on the book, and all this while the especial feature to which his glance was directed were her lips. There are certain lips that can only be described by one word—kissable—and this girl's lips were of that kind. Surely it was dangerous for a youngster just escaped from a treadmill to sit for a whole hour looking at a pair of kissable lips. Indeed, Goddard, worked upon by his gladness of heart, the beautiful morning, the attractiveness of the girl and those two delicately curved vermilion lips, did that which the moment after it was done filled him with consternation. When the train dashed into a tunnel he made a dash for her, threw his arms around her neck, there was a momentary struggle, and he had kissed her.

SHE WAS THE GIRL WITH THE KISSABLE LIPS.

It was all over within a quarter of a minute, and luckily so, for the tunnel was a very short one; indeed, so short that no lamps had been lighted in the car. When the train shot out into daylight Goddard was looking out of the window with apparent unconcern, though his heart was beating like a kettledrum. It was some time before he dared look at the girl, but when he did she was reading her book. There was another woman who sat in the seat next back of her who was fanning herself vigorously with an appearance of annoyance. Goddard wondered if he had made a mistake. He was not sure. This set him to thinking. If he had kissed the wrong person the kiss in the dark had been just as delicious as if he had kissed the right one. Singular, wasn't it?

But Goddard was quite sure he had kissed the girl with the kissable lips. She sat two seats in advance of him and on the opposite side. In order to make sure of going the right distance he had put his hand on backs of the two seats in passing. No; he had kissed the right person, but why did the woman in the rear seat look so flustered, and why was the girl in front so undisturbed? It was a mystery that he could not solve.

The conductor called "Pebble Beach," and the train slowed up at the station at which Goddard was to stop. Collecting his hand baggage, he arose. The girl with the kissable lips arose too. She left the car in advance of him and, giving her hand baggage and checks to a cabman, entered the cab, while her admirer entered another. When he was driven up to his hotel the girl was ascending the steps.

Goddard felt uneasy. A friend of his mother's had given him a note of introduction to a Miss Margaret Deane, who was at the hotel or expected to be there soon after his arrival. Suppose the young lady he had kissed should be this Margaret Deane? And suppose she knew he had kissed her? He shuddered. Unless she were a woman of rare good sense and discretion she could make it hot for him. Should she tell the story to his friends he might better take passage for Australia or some port where he would be lost to his former existence. When he had fancied that he might have kissed the wrong woman he had been much displeased and disappointed. Now he hoped he had.

Going to his room, he changed his dress for dinner. Just before going into the dining hall he passed the girl he had kissed. She was walking through the hall. She did not notice him. He was encouraged to think that either he had kissed the other woman or that this one did not connect him with the person who had kissed her.

On the register he found the name of Margaret Deane, it having been placed there not far from his own. After dinner he called a servant, gave him his card with his note of introduction and told him to find Miss Deane and deliver them. The servant returned and said Miss Deane would meet Mr. Goddard in the drawing room. Goddard went there and waited a few minutes, when the lady entered. She was the girl with the kissable lips.

She advanced to meet Goddard without the slightest indication of ever having seen him before. The blood suddenly departed from his cheeks; but, encouraged by her manner, he regained confidence and was enabled to stammer some commonplace remarks. Then when they came to chat more freely he observed her closely with a view to discover whether there was evidence of her knowing that he was the person who had taken the liberty the consequences of which had thrown him into so great a terror. He could not detect the slightest sign of her ever having seen him before or of antagonism or embarrassment at meeting him. Surely he must have kissed the wrong woman after all.

Mr. Goddard saw more or less of Miss Deane. His mind was on his secret, and he could not let it alone. He was impelled to discover what would have been his fate had she been kissed by him, as he had intended, knowing him to be the culprit. He made a supposititious case in which a friend of his had done the same thing and asked her had she been the girl kissed what she would have done.

"A man I had never seen and knew nothing about?" she asked.

"Yes."

"I don't know what I should have done openly; inwardly I should have despised the man who kissed me."

He shuddered.

Toward the end of his vacation Goddard recovered largely from his fright. Every day he felt more and more sure that he had kissed the woman who had sat behind Miss Deane, and he sincerely hoped that that woman had gone to the other side of the globe for a permanent residence. Had he kissed Miss Deane surely she would have given some intimation of the fact that she had passed through the experience of the person he had mentioned in the supposititious case.

But one day he received a terrible scare. Miss Deane appeared one morning on the beach, her neckwear pinned with a horseshoe scarf or stickpin the exact duplicate of one he had owned. This would not have been so terrifying had it not been that he had worn his horseshoe in his scarf on the day he came up from the city to the seashore. He had noticed soon after his arrival that he had lost it and, recalling the circumstances of his journey, had remembered that when going to the train on a street car he had been jostled in a crowd. He had assumed that at this moment he had been relieved of his pin. Now, seeing its exact counterpart on Miss Deane, he was seized with one of those alarms that are the result of a guilty conscience.

He joined the young lady and riveted his eye on the pin she wore. It looked familiar. A horseshoe is a common form of scarfpin, but this was certainly very like the one he had lost.

"Rather a neat pin that of yours," he remarked.

"Do you admire it?"

"Yes."

"Well, then, I suppose I'll have to give it to you. It's really a man's pin." She removed it from her person and handed it to him.

"Oh, really, I didn't mean to ask for it."

"I don't value it. It's one I found."

Goddard's heart began to beat faster.

"Found! May I ask where?"

"The owner lost it on the train, I fancy, the day I came up here."

Goddard's heart stood still.

"Did you find it on the floor?"

"No."

"Well, then, where did you find it?"

"Why, to tell the truth, I didn't find it at all. I took it."

Goddard's knees were beginning to give way beneath him.

"Won't you tell me," he stammered, "how you came by it?"

"Yes. Before I came up here a friend of mine told me that she would give a young man a note of introduction to me, showing me his photograph. I saw him get on to the train. In a tunnel some one kissed me. In the struggle my hand brushed against his scarfpin and I seized it."

"He ought to be tarred and feathered."

A burst of laughter from the girl, and the episode was ended.

The argument advanced in favor of a new phonograph which has its records in the form of endless belts is that it is possible to provide much longer selections than by the older methods.

By means of a special system of electrical ventilators an Italian naval designer has succeeded in doing away with funnels on torpedo boats. The government is keeping the details secret.

EVOLUTION OF A KING

REMARKABLE STORY OF BERNADOTTE, KING OF SWEDEN.

How the Son of a Poor Lawyer Became a Great Soldier Under Napoleon and Was Made Monarch of Sweden—He Devoted Himself to His Adopted Country and Founded the Present Ruling Family.

The people of Sweden are preparing to celebrate the accession to the throne of their country of Jean Baptiste Jules Bernadotte, the occasion being the centenary of his family's reign.

The story of Bernadotte is one of the most remarkable in history, a tale which would seem like a fable were it not amply attested by the facts. He began life as the son of a poor lawyer. He was one of the revolutionists who stood guard before the guillotine on which Louis XVI. was executed, and he died in 1844 King Charles XIV. of Sweden and Norway, one of the most powerful monarchs of Europe.

It was the French revolution and the series of extraordinary events which followed that great overturning that made such a career as Bernadotte's possible. The breaking down of social barriers and the uprooting of the very foundation stones of society which followed in the train of the revolution and of the epochmaking successes of Napoleon gave opportunity, practically unexampled in Europe, for men to rise by sheer ability.

Bernadotte was born in the town of Pau, in France, January 26, 1764. His father wanted him to follow the law, but the profession held forth little attraction to a youth whose ambitions were boundless and whose natural craving was for a life full of activity. He therefore decided to become a soldier, and in 1780 enlisted in the royal marines.

Within a few years came the French revolution, sweeping away arbitrary distinctions of classes and opening up to all the path of preferment. The abilities of Bernadotte were speedily acknowledged. He joined the revolutionists and became a power in their councils. He was one of the soldiers who assisted at the execution of Louis. When he died there was found tattooed upon his right arm a picture of the guillotine and in French beneath it the legend: "Death to all kings and tyrants."

With the restoration of order in France came Napoleon and that series of brilliant military exploits which has made "the little corporal's" name immortal. France was quick to see Bernadotte's talents. In rapid succession he became a colonel and a general. In the campaigns of the Rhine and of Italy his military talents found ample scope for display, and as ambassador to Vienna he demonstrated his merit as a diplomat.

When Bonaparte went to Egypt Bernadotte was appointed Minister of War. He organized the whole French army and paved the way for the conquest of Holland. In the battle of Austerlitz he distinguished himself. Although there had always been rivalry between the two men, Napoleon never lost an opportunity to heap riches and honors upon Bernadotte. In addition to giving him great estates, he created him Prince of Ponte-Corvo.

Napoleon had reached the point in his career where he had begun to realize that France could not forever be the battle ground of Europe. To avert the danger of wearing out his country by the continuous raising of troops, he inaugurated a policy of seating on the thrones of Europe monarchs who would be friendly to him.

In 1810 the death of Prince Augustenburg of Sweden left the throne of that country without an heir. Bernadotte conceived the idea of having himself elected crown prince, and in this he was supported by Napoleon. At first great opposition developed among the Swedish nobles, but a better acquaintance with the man who sought the throne weakened this enmity, and eventually Bernadotte was elected to the place.

Bernadotte immediately devoted himself to the internal improvement of the country. He united Sweden and Norway under one crown, built roads, encouraged industry and brought his people to a fine state of prosperity. He was never very popular, for he never learned to master the Swedish language, but the country appreciated his merits and remained loyal to him.

In 1813 and 1814 Bernadotte turned against Napoleon and joined the coalition organized to crush the emperor's power forever. His Swedish contingent virtually decided the battle against the French at Leipzig.

As a business man Bernadotte demonstrated that he possessed great abilities. He had inherited from his peasant ancestry ideas of thrift that served him in good stead as the conserver of his country's resources and the builder up of her industries.

Bernadotte left only one son. He married Josephine de Beauharnais, and upon his accession to the throne took the name of Oscar I. After a reign of 15 years mental weakness compelled him to entrust his scepter to his eldest son Charles, who was made regent. After the death of his father, Charles XV. assumed full power and proved himself a remarkably gifted man. He found compensation for the boycott to which the proud old nobility of Sweden had subjected his court by mixing with the masses of his people and patronizing literary people and artists. His younger brother, Oscar II., succeeded him. He had married a rich wife, Princess Sophia, daughter of the Duke of Nassau, which partially compensated for the fact that Charles XV. had willed all of his great estate to his only daughter Louise, the Queen of Denmark. Oscar II. was succeeded by the present King Gustav, who married Victoria, sister of the Duke of Baden and a first cousin of the Kaiser.

The Coffee Shrub.

As a rule, the coffee shrub first flowers in its third year and then bears only a small crop of fruit. The fifth year is usually the time of the first considerable yield. In Java three gatherings are made annually, called the "early," the "chief" and the "after crop," but only the second is of great importance. The flower enjoys but a very ephemeral existence, as the setting of the fruit generally takes place within twenty-four hours, and the petals wither and fall off almost immediately. A coffee estate in full flower is a very beautiful sight, but its glory is very soon past.—Westminster Gazette.

A Witty Suggestion.

At the time when Thaddeus Stevens was a representative in congress a member of the house who was noted for his uncertain course on all questions and who confessed that he never investigated a point under discussion without finding himself neutral asked one day for leave of absence.

"Mr. Speaker," said Stevens, "I do not rise to object, but to suggest that the honorable member need not ask this favor, for he can easily pair off with himself."

Few Wits.

Him—I was confused for a bit, I confess, but it took me only a moment to collect my wits. Her—Yes; it couldn't take any longer than that. Go on."—Cleveland Leader.

'Prentice Boys Went To The Tabernacle.

INSPIRING SERMON PREACHED BY THE REV. MYERS GILBERT A PAST GRAND CHAPLAIN OF THE ORDER — LARGE TURNOUT OF THE BRETHREN.

To commemorate the anniversary of the closing of the Gates of Derry the members of Maiden City Lodge, 'Prentice Boys, last evening attended divine service at the Tabernacle church In addition to the members of the local lodges, visiting 'Prentice Boys from Frankford and Trenton were present; also members of the Orange Order and True Blues. The turnout was most creditable. Headed by the I. O. O. F. band, rendering a sacred selection, the societies proceeded to church.

The preacher for the occasion was the Rev. Myers Gilbert, a Past Grand Chaplain of the 'Prentice Boys. Although the night was warm the church was filled to the doors. The discourse was in keeping with the occasion. After the usual devotional exercises the Rev. gentleman announced his text, namely, Ephesians 4th chapter and a portion of the 1st verse;:

> "I therefore beseech you that ye walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called."

The preacher in his opening remarks referred especially to the 'Prentice Boys society and the object it stood for; also to the closing of the gates of Derry, and the noble band which defended that city. Organizations like the 'Prentice Boys stand for religious freedom and religious liberty. The closing of the Gates of Derry was an event worthy of commemoration, as was also the battle of the Boyne. They were as stones which form a great monument for religious principles and freedom of thought. We have a noble heritage, a grand ancestry, and religious liberties of which we are naturally proud. These privileges were secured to us by men who feared God, who stood for toleration, not oppression. Such men should be honored, in fact all men should be honored who do right. Honor all men, as we have a duty to do in this respect. We should be all of one family all should be imbued with a love towards mankind generally. Be united, not divided; union is strength, division is weakness. Be God fearing men and honorable in the sight of all men As Enoch walked with God, so should we walk with him. Be such men as to receive the emulation of fellow-citizens; be courageous men, for such men were needed to-day. Be men of broad vision and men of sobriety. In concluding his address the Rev. gentleman appealed to all members of the Societies present to be God-fearing men, to live up to the principles of their Order, which are noble and uplifting, and above all to become members of the Society of the Lord Jesus Christ.

During the service Mr. Jas. Dyer sang, most acceptably, a solo entitled "His Love Can Never Fail," and the band rendered a selection.

After the service the procession reformed and marched back to the hall on Front street.

Back from Long Tour Of 86000 Miles.

Mr. Reg. Hinchey, a Belleville boy, on a two years and four months' trip with the famous Kilties' Band, of Belleville, has returned to the city, looking the picture of health. The band, he says, travelled 86,000 miles on its long tour, and the experience was one he would not have missed for anything. Mr. Tom Power and family will be home about the middle of the week. The band opens its season in New York next month.

The Tussock Moth.

A past president of the Horticultural Society writes:

We are all proud of our city, and its beauty is due in a large degree to our magnificent shade trees, but these same trees are in danger of having their beauty largely impaired by the ravages of the above named moth, that has already given such trouble in Toronto.

Two years ago, you would occasionally see a single moth or rather the caterpillar, a little hairy fellow something over an inch long, striped lengthwise yellow and black with a tuft of red. Last year they were more numerous, and this year there are a considerable number in certain sections of the city, and also in the country.

At present they are largely in the dormant state and their white cocoons may be seen on the trunks of the shade or orchard trees. On emerging from this state, the female, which is wingless, will deposit her eggs in a white mass on her empty cocoon.

It would be well, as we pass along our streets to destroy these cocoons, for if the moths once get established here, it will be very difficult, if not impossible to successfully fight them in trees as large as ours.

Anglers Stung by Smooth Stranger.

Stony Lake, August 13.—He was from Buffalo, N. Y.

At least he said so.

He was genial, affable, smooth with the smoothness of velvet.

He had been everywhere, and talked airily of tarpon fishing in Florida, luring salmon in New Brunswick and hunting moose in Maine.

He called everyone brother when he first met them, and on the surface looked like the real article.

Naturally when he blew into a Stony Lake boarding house, a short time ago, he was received with open arms.

Everybody was shouting his praises.

"A good head," "a prince of good fellows," were some of the encomiums that followed in his wake.

"Was" is use advisedly, for the idol is shattered.

One morning not long ago he arose in the dark hour before the dawn and raided the ice-house belonging to the hotel.

Here rested in sawdust beds some beautiful specimens of the finny tribe, hauled after some difficulty from the lake by the smooth one's-fishing compatriots and religiously preserved to take home as specimens of their angling prowess.

Among them might be mentioned a twelve-pound lunge and some bass that tipped the scales at very close to the five pound mark.

When the morning sun commenced its daily task of painting freckles and brunette shades on the faces of the anglers old Sol found said visages shrouded in a gloom that even his ardent rays could not drive away.

The man from Buffalo had disappeared, so had all the prize fish. There were rumors of an unsettled board-bill, a guide murmured something like "stung" and there was general indignation, especially among the fishermen.

There was nothing to be done except to sit around the verandah and say things and some of the anglers showed an admirably selected and comprehensive vocabulary that seemed to fit the situation.

Many New Teachers

This year there are 1600 new teachers in the Province of Ontario. This rate of supply, if kept up for a couple of years, it is thought ought to remedy the shortage that has been felt for some time, despite the influx to the west. In a recent interview the Minister of Education urged strongly the necessity of raising salaries of qualified teachers if they are kept in Ontario.

THE COST OF LIVING.

(Toronto Star.)

Out on Danforth avenue, between the old city limits and Little York is a market gardener who sells his produce to wholesale dealers in the city. They send their wagons for it and, of course, bear the expense of cartage.

Yesterday the gardener sold what are called by the trade "small potatoes, of uniform size," at 20 cents per bushel.

Retail dealers in the city—butchers and grocers—to-day asked 35 cents a peck for the same potatoes or $1.40 per bushel, for what the grower got 20 cents for.

The same gardener sold a dozen bunches of onions for 10 cents, while retail dealers sold three bunches for ten cents, or four times the price the grower received.

Earl Spencer, who was twice Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, is dead.

Hon. Wm. Pugsley visited Port Elgin and Southampton and inspected the harbors on Saturday.

An Ottawa despatch says Liberal politicians predict a general election next year following the King's coronation.

At 6 o'clock yesterday morning it was announced that the floods were subsiding in Japan. The casualties reported to date are 385 dead and 500 missing.

Emile Larouche, aged 18, of Hull, was drowned in the Ottawa River yesterday. His overturned boat was found, but the body has not been recovered. Larouche, who was fishing, upset his boat.

Lloyd's News say that the voice of the Canadian west and Laurier's endorsement of the farmers' grievances has produced among tariff reformers here something like the paralysis which follows a great disaster in war time.

Wm. J. Campbell, a contractor, and Henry Twigby, were injured by the collapse of an old frame house they were moving in Toronto. The house was made notorious in 1898 when an insane woman murdered her three children.

Cage With Seven Men Falls.

Cobalt, Aug. 15.—In one of those inexplicable accidents that so often happen in mines, seven men were dropped in the cage in the main shaft of the Temiskaming mine at four o'clock Saturday afternoon, with the result that three are in the mine's hospital with serious injuries. The men in the hospital are: Coley Mackie, compound fracture of the arm; Philip Duash, injured back and badly shaken up; Nicholas Yantha, severe concussion of the legs.

That the affair was not more serious and no deaths resulted is most remarkable. The men boarded the cage at the third level, and gave the usual signal to "hoist men." In some way the cage with its seven passengers, broke loose and dropped into the fourth level, a matter of about fifty feet, before the automatic safety device was brought into play. The three men in the hospital are Finlanders, who were muckers. Unless they are injured internally, they will probably recover, although their condition is serious. One of the other four sustained a sprained ankle, but none of them were injured to such an extent that would necessitate bringing them to the hospital. This is the second time that this Temiskaming cage has dropped with human freight.

Canadian Crew Champions.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Winners a week ago of the senior eight oar championship of Canada, the same eight, Ottawas from Ottawa city, Saturday won the championship of all North America. They took first honors in the prime event of the entire closing day of the thirty-eighth annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur oarsmen in a spectacular manner.

The race of the senior eights was an international event. Two Canadian crews, the Ottawas and the Argonauts of Toronto, were entered for the north and the Potomacs of Washington, the Vespers of Philadelphia, and the New York Athletics for the States. The American oarsmen were no match for their rivals from across the border. The real contest was between the Ottawas and the Argonauts, and as at St. Catharines last week, the former crew crossed the line less than a length ahead of the latter.

N. B. Jackes, the star of the Argonauts, won the intermediate singles for sculls in easy fashion. Up to the quarter he was three or four lengths ahead when both J. B. Kelley of the Vespers, and James a Keenan of the West Lynn (Mass.) Boat Club, moved up.

Doctors Balked.

Brantford, Aug. 15.—Local doctors, appointed to conduct vaccination in Eagle Place, where the outbreak of smallpox has been confined, have balked on the jab, owing to the treatment they have received while in their house to house visit. Unless the city changes the order and requires each person to appear at stated hours at an office set aside for vaccination purposes, the doctors will not continue their work. Two new cases have been reported, both of whom refused a week ago to be vaccinated.

Grandstands Were Burned.

Brantford, Aug. 15.—Fire at nine o'clock Saturday night broke out in the grandstands at Mohawk Park, completely destroying the structures in a few minutes. The stands accommodated 1,500 people, and were of frame construction. A loss of $4,000 is covered by insurance, held by the Street Railway Co. There was no means of combating the fire and a number of firemen were only able to watch the stands burn.

Fell Off the Wharf.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 15.—While fishing from the Maid of the Mist dock early Saturday night, Albert, the 11-year-old son of Albert Schisler, lost his balance, fell and was drowned. There is a strong current at this point, and all efforts to save him were fruitless. The body has not been recovered.

Drowned While Fishing.

Bridgeport, Aug. 15.—Gordon Klem a young lad ten years of age, son of Leander Klem of John street, Berlin, fell into the water here Saturday noon while fishing, and was drowned. His body was recovered about half an hour afterwards.

Prof. E. Stone Wiggins Dead.

Ottawa, Aug. 15.—Prof. E. Stone Wiggins died last evening. He was widely known as an educator, scientist and storm and earthquake predictor. The doctor was 71 years old.

The wires of a full sized piano, if straightened, would extend a mile.

If Canada's wheat crop last year had been shipped by rail, each car holding 15 tons, it would have made a continuous train 1365 miles long

BRUSSELS FAIR IN RUINS.

Fire Destroys Great World's Exposition—Two Persons Killed.

Brussels, Aug. 15.—The White City of the world's fair, as the Belgians have called their 1910 exposition, was last night a mass of flames and smouldering ruins. A spark, falling into inflammable material in the telegraph building, burst into flames, which, driven by a high wind, swept rapidly in all directions. Soon the Belgian, English and French sections were destroyed. Firemen and detachments of soldiers found themselves baffled by the gale, which carried the burned embers to all parts of the grounds.

To the left of the main building arose the picturesque roofs and spires of Bruexelles' Kermesse, a Belgian Coney Island, with water chutes, toboggan slides and scores of sideshows. This place was alive with Sunday crowds, and before they could be got out with any semblance of order, the Kermesse was afire. The crowds became panic-stricken, and men, women and children fought madly to escape. The exits became choked with the struggling masses, and men used their fists to clear the pathway. Many were trampled under foot and badly injured.

An engine corps from Antwerp attempted to dynamite the bridge of the French section, in the hope of checking the fire, but the flames leaped across and engulfed the Italian, Russian, Austrian, Japanese, Chinese and Norwegian buildings. Forty houses on the Avenue Solbosch, adjoining the exposition, were destroyed.

At the time of the outbreak not less than 100,000 persons were circulating in the grounds and the Kermesse. Troops were ordered out, and came at double quick time to aid the police in clearing the grounds. This was accomplished in fair order, except within the limits of the Kermesse. Considering the rapidity of the conflagration, the small loss of life is marvelous. So far as is known up to a late hour last night, only two are dead. The injured, as officially announced, number 30, but probably many hundreds received minor hurts.

As the flames reached the menagerie it was decided to shoot the beasts, but the heat drove back the soldiers, and the animals were left to their fate. The multitude of people were driven back to a safe distance and watched the destruction of the White City.

A late dispatch does not mention the fate of the Canadian section, but an earlier despatch states that it was then untouched. The famous Tudor panelling, belong to the Toronto Museum, was destroyed.

The fire was finally got under control. The Belgian and British sections are in ruins, while all the other sections, including the American, were partly destroyed.

Bands of thieves engaged in pillage and a soldier was stabbed while attempting to arrest three men, whom he found rifling a jewelry exhibit. The loss is estimated at $100,000,000. The diamond exhibit owners are heavy sufferers.

Suicided In Buffalo.

Buffalo, Aug. 15.—Mrs. Blanche Jenkinson, 22 years old, wife of Merrill Jenkinson of Cayuga, Ont., shot herself dead in her apartments on East Chippewa street Saturday night. She had been separated from her husband about a year.

Mrs. Jenkinson left the following note addressed to a room-mate:

"Dear Helen: Don't be surprised at what I have done. I am despondent and up against it. I telephoned Merrill yesterday, and he said he would have nothing to do with me. He is the only person I ever really cared for in this world. Try to be good and don't do what I have done. To be good is all that counts. Please don't laugh at my writing."

Caught by Undertow.

Leamington, Aug. 15.—Yesterday about noon, while Reginald Williams and Jerry Kitchen, both of Leamington, were bathing from a small boat in Lake Erie off Point Pelee, Kitchen either dropped into a hole or was caught by the undertow and drowned. Williams reached the shore in an exhausted condition and gave the alarm. The body has not yet been recovered. Kitchen was about twenty years of age and a machinist.

The undercurrent which flows around the east beach from Point Pelee renders that part of Lake Erie a very dangerous place to bathe. In the past few years there have been many narrows escapes from drowning at this point.

Atlantic Lemonade.

New York, Aug. 15.—One million lemons will be spilled on the seas by the crew of the steamer Lapland, which sailed Saturday for Antwerp, as soon as the liner reaches a suitable distance from land. Ten thousand cases of lemons were brought here by the Lapland to a commission merchant, who refused to accept the consignment because the fruit was over-ripe. The health department condemned the lemons, and they were dumped into the hold of the Lapland to be handed into the ocean's keeping on the liner's return trip.

Parolled to Get Fortune.

Laporte, Ind., Aug. 15.—Parolled from the Indiana State Prison so that he might go to England to claim an estate valued at $100,000, Charles Adams of this city, who was sentenced to five years' imprisonment on conviction of forgery, sailed Saturday from New York for London.

Attorneys had established Adams' claim to the fortune to the satisfaction of the Indiana prison authorities, and Adams promised that he would return to this state to report.

A Well-Known Criminal.

Montreal, Aug. 15.—Supt. McNamara, of the Canadian Pinkerton agencies, said last night that Gerald M. Crowe, recently arrested at Calgary for theft and forgery, was a well-known criminal who had been followed by the Pinkerton men from New York to Chicago and Calgary, and it was now expected evidence had been secured for a long term of imprisonment.

CONSTRUCTING A STORY.

A Young Man and a Young Woman Collaborate.

By F. A. MITCHEL.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

There were green hills about us, and the sky was very blue. Occasional melodious pipings of birds and in a distant field the rattle of a mowing machine made a strange contrast of sounds.

"I should think you story writers," said Kitty to me as we strolled, "would find inspiration in such surroundings as these. The air up here in these hills is so bracing, the sunlight so life giving, everything so conducive to stir the faculties necessary to composition."

"I find strong tea a better bracer," I replied.

"Oh, dear! How can you get any romance out of tea? If I could write I should wish for no better stimulant than this lovely scene."

"How do you know you can't write?"

"I never tried, but I'm sure I can't."

"Suppose we lay out a plan for a story right here where you think you can draw such inspiration. We'll do it together."

"TELL ME ABOUT THE GIRL."

"Let it be one of everyday life."

"Well, then, we'll have it that a young man sees a girl at the opera. He is struck with her and looks at her so steadily that she is impelled to turn her gaze upon him. She is equally struck with him. A love affair results."

"Simple, isn't it?"

"Very. But we'll get them into a great many pickles before they are married. Perhaps they'll never survive them."

"Go on with your story. The young man looks at the girl at the opera. How do you know—I mean how does he know—that she is struck with him?"

"He doesn't, but we, who are telling the story, know all about it. We can do anything we like with them."

"It seems to me that he must be very conceited to assume that she is struck with him."

"I just told you that this assumption is ours, not his at all."

"Well, go on. But I know he felt confident that she was struck with him all the same."

"He watches for her when she leaves the opera and sees her handed by a handsome young man into a carriage. Now we must have something by which to designate these people. The young man—the hero"—

"Is he a hero?"

"Well, the 'leading gentleman,' as they say in plays. He is Mr. A.; the girl is Miss B.; the man who hands her into the carriage—he's to be the villain—is Mr. C."

"The villain! Is he the villain?"

"Yes; we're going to make a villain of him."

"Oh, well, if you're determined to attribute such things to him I suppose it's all right, but it won't be true to life."

"Aren't there villains in real life?"

"I suppose so, but in this case"—

"Well, in this case?"

"I don't consider that there's any villainy about it. Mr.—what's his name?"

"Mr. C."

"Mr. C. is a very gentlemanly"—

"But wait a bit. Mr. C. is not formed yet."

"I thought you said he was a villain?"

"What I mean is that Mr. C. being an imaginary person"—

"How can he be imaginary when he handed the girl into a carriage?"

"I fear you have your mind fixed on a real person who handed a real girl into a real carriage."

"Oh, go on! Tell me about the girl. Are you going to make a villain of her too?"

"By no means. She's to be the heroine."

"What does she do that's heroic?"

"She may not turn out a heroine. This is to be a realistic story, you know. If she is fooled by Mr. C. and doesn't really care for Mr. A. she may not fulfill the conditions of the story. You see, characters often run away with the authors who create them and do just as they like in spite of him."

"I see. You may depend upon it—this Miss B. will fall in love with just whom she pleases. Maybe she won't fall in love with either of them."

"I fear collaboration with you will prove very difficult. If you're going to run away with the heroine, perhaps I shall have something to say about the hero. I'm not bound to make him marry Miss B. He may be very much disappointed in her."

"And she may be very much disappointed in him."

"This won't do. We're not getting on at all. We're going to construct a realistic story, but we don't wish it to be so realistic that the collaborators will quarrel over the characters and whether they are to be good or bad, lovable or unlovable. Let us go on to where Mr. A. meets Miss B. a second time. He next sees her dancing with Mr. C. at Mrs. Schermerhorn's ball."

"I thought it was at Mrs. Van Vechten's."

"We'll call her Mrs. Van Vechten if you like. The name doesn't signify. Mr. A. secures an introduction to Miss B. and dances with her twice when one of his friends says to him, 'You needn't waste your time on that girl; she's engaged to C.'"

"Well, I declare! Who took it upon himself to say that?"

"One we'll call Mr. D."

"I think you'd better make him the villain, going around saying things that are not true."

"You don't seem to understand the part of the villain in a story. Mr. D. is only a dummy, one of those persons thrown into the story to enable the author to say things instead of saying them himself. Mr. C., who is supposed to have considerable influence with the heroine—an influence not divulged till the end of the story—is the villain or, in other words, a foil for Mr. A. He is like a knight in the game of chess. Mr. D. is only a pawn."

"Oh, I think these skeletons of stories are like the skeletons of people—horrid. If you authors write stories that way I don't wonder many of them are so uninteresting. Can't you get on to something pleasant?"

"Well, we'll pass to the third meeting. Shall we have it at the seashore?"

"No."

"In the mountains?"

"No."

"Suppose we have them meet among these hills. We'll begin that chapter by having Mr. A. and Miss B. strolling just as we are, listening to that mowing machine down yonder"—

"No; to the birds."

"Very well, to the birds. They came together at the same hotel by coincidence."

"By coincidence?"

"Yes. Why not?"

"Oh, nothing. I thought he said he knew she was here and came here on purpose to meet her."

"Did he say that?"

"Of course he did."

"That's better for a real life than an imaginary story. In the latter accidental meetings add to the interest. They're less prosaic."

"Well, what next?"

"The first step for him is to find out what are her relations to Mr. C."

"It seems to me that he's bothering himself altogether too much about Mr. C."

"It makes the story more interesting."

"But it's very disagreeable to her to have her name connected with a man she cares nothing about."

"Are you sure she acted all the while as if she cared nothing about C.?"

"Maybe. If she did it only makes the story more interesting, you know."

"Not to A."

"But he's only an imaginary character. He doesn't feel anything. What does he do next?"

"We now come to the end of the story. A. always supposed that if he got C. out of the way he would have nothing to do but propose to the heroine to be accepted. Lovers always feel that way. But C. having been eliminated, A., arriving at the declaration point, is suddenly seized with stage fright."

"Are they always that way?"

"Well, A. is a very sensitive man, you know, and conscious of his own imperfections. Miss B. is a thousand times too good for him, and he knows it."

"I wouldn't put that in. It's overdrawn."

"Well, as I said, A., even if he is an imaginary character, feels a great deal. He remembers the first time he saw you, Miss B., at the opera, then his delight at seeing you again at Miss Van Vechten's ball, and he confesses he did know you were here and came here to see you. He also admits that he has suffered dreadfully at seeing another so devoted to you, fearing that you were listening to that other's flattering words. He further admits that he invited you to take this walk that he might tell you that he loves you and ask you to be his wife."

There was a silence, which she broke.

"Is this a real or an imaginary story?"

"It is real. It is burned into my heart. I feel it coursing in my blood. It is in my brain, and without the one word I covet it will be more than a story. It will be a tragedy."

I felt her hand against mine. I grasped it, knew that I had received the answer necessary to complete my happiness.

Just before luncheon we walked back to the hotel.

"What have you two been doing?" asked her younger sister.

"We've been making up a love story."

The police of Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Buffalo are notified and given full descriptions

The story is that they are in Buffalo or adjacent parts of New York State. Superintendent English now admits that the escaped patients must have had inside assistance, and recalls that discharged guards accused of being in collusion with Moir had keys with them for days.

COLLISION IN GORGE

Two Cars at Falls Collide on Brink of Whirlpool.

Nine Persons Are Injured When Crowded Trolley, Rushing Down to Boat, Fails to Answer to Its Brakes and Dashes Into Up-Bound Car—Some Wreckage Falls Into Swirling Torrent Beside the Track.

Niagara Fals, N.Y., Aug. 16.—In a head-on collision between two trolley cars on the Gorge route last evening, nine persons were injured, one seriously. The collision occurred at Swift Drift, at the point in the gorge where the river breaks into the swift rapids above the Whirlpool. The ledge upon which the tracks rest is narrow, and on the riverside there is a sheer drop of 20 feet into the churning waters. Both cars were shattered by the terrific force of the collision, but neither left the rails.

The accident was due to the failure to work of the brake on the down river car. Above Swift Drift there is a stretch of double track, where the up and down cars meet. The down river car, which left the Falls shortly before 6 o'clock, arrived at the double track ahead of schedule time. The motorman applied the air to stop his car, but the brakes failed to respond.

At this time a Lewiston car was coming up the sharp grade from the Whirlpool. The motorman on it saw the down car approaching at high speed, and heard the motorman wildly clanging the gong. Realizing that something was wrong, he reversed the power, but before he could bring his car to a standstill, the runaway car crashed ito it. Both cars were completely wrecked. So near were the cars to the edge of the river that pieces of the wreckage fell into the water, and were carried down to the Whirlpool.

A special car brought the injured to Niagara Falls. Those who remain at the hospitals are: Samuel Sadies, Bowling Green, Ky., cuts and bruises about head and lower limbs, in bad shape; Mrs. Jarritt, San Francisco, and Mrs. Melvin, Newark, Ohio, bad cuts and both badly shocked; Mrs. Martindale, 463 Manning avenue, Toronto, bruised hip and cuts about head; Mrs. James Gordon and Miss Elizabeth Campbell of Ottumwa, Iowa, suffering from shock and bruises; Charles Vanettes, conductor, Niagara Falls, badly bruised and cut. The two motormen, Charles Vaughn and Henry Furman, were both caught in their vestibules. Vaughn's condition is critical. The 200 uninjured passengers walked up the track, about half a mile, to the top of the bank.

Guysboro Greets Borden.

Halifax, Aug. 16.—Not since the days of Sir John A. Macdonald has a political leader received such an enthusiastic reception in Nova Scotia, as is being accorded R. L. Borden on the present tour of his native province. The great Conservative chieftain held the third meeting of his tour in Guysboro yesterday, and it was the largest and most enthusiastic ever held in the country. The meeting was held in the court house, the largest building in the town, and it was packed to the doors. A notable feature was the large number of Liberals present. The county is a Liberal stronghold, and yesterday's meeting was largely composed of Liberals.

After dealing with purely provincial matters, Mr. Borden turned his attention to recent utterances of the Prime Minister in the west. The Prime Minister has dwelt with much pathos upon all the differences in the ranks of the Conservative party in respect to the naval question.

Committed For Trial.

Port Hope, Aug. 16.—Charles Spiers, the tailor, arrested here on a charge of bigamy, came up for a preliminary hearing yesterday, and was committed to Cobourg for trial. Mrs. Spiers No. 1 produced the Hebrew marriage certificate confirming her marriage to the defendant in New York. She also produced another certificate, showing that the defendant had married Miss Amelia Clarke of this town. Mrs. Spiers No. 1, and her brother, Mr. Jacobs, identified the prisoner as the former's husband. Spiers declined to give any evidence. He was allowed out on his own bail of $400 cash.

Implicated In Another Murder.

Baltimore, Aug. 16.—The Baltimore Sun prints a sensational story linking the murder of Edith May Thompson Woodill near St. Michael's, Md., in June, 1909, with that of Mary Scott Castle Charlton, at Lake Como, Italy, and suggesting the possibility that Mrs. Charlton was the woman referred to in the letter of "Lame Bob" Eastman, as having killed Mrs. Woodill by striking her on the head with a full champagne bottle.

The Coins Are Good.

Toronto, Aug. 16.—Norman Tovell of the Receiver-General's office, said yesterday that the silver coins which have been given a reputation for being bogus because the crown on the "tail" side is next the same circumference as the crown on the King's head, are perfectly good. It is a peculiarity of the Canadian mint, that's all.

CURRENT EVENTS.

The loss in the Brussels Exposition fire was $200,000,000. Which will make a good many insurance companies sit up and ponder.

Another comet is coming. Whether it will be an evening or a morning affair no one has said yet.

The way of the peacemaker is not always pleasant. A Queen's Own man last Saturday night, tried to separate two men who were fighting. Then they turned on him and beat him up so badly that he could not go to England with his regiment.

Moral—Don't butt in.

A corporation employee was working on Coleman street, digging a hole in the road. An inquisitive citizen stopped and asked him what he was digging for. And the horny-handed son of toil, who was right "onto his job," said: "For a dollar and a half a day."

You cannot keep Hamilton out of the limelight. When Hamilton people are not murdering each other and not getting caught they are shivering in their shoes because escaped insane murderers are liable to bump up against them any evening after sundown. Hamilton papers once in a while indulge in rude jokes at quiet Belleville, which, as everybody knows is noted for its beauty and love for the simple life. But who, in his right senses, would exchange Arcadian Belleville for Hamilton, with its characteristics of Hades?

People cannot be too careful about what they leave within reach of their young children, as the following incident will show: Rupert Tucker, aged two years and eight months, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tucker, of Duane, N. Y., found a box of blue tipped matches and ate about sixty of them. The parents of the little one were momentarily out of the house and when the mother returned and discovered what happened she promptly summoned assistance. The child was in convulsions which continued until death occurred seven hours afterwards.

To whom is Canada Indebted for her present prosperity and proud position in the Empire? The Halifax Herald answers the question in a nutshell. It truthfully says "The National Policy inaugurated by the Liberal-Conservative Government in 1879, and developed and adjusted from time to time during the Liberal-Conservative regime, is one of the three great measures that have led to the vast and prosperous Canada of to-day. The other two were the acquisition of the territory of the Hudson's Bay Company, and the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway. All three were opposed to the utmost by the Liberal party; and hence it was only through the continuous and repeated defeat of the Liberal party that the building of a great Canada was made possible.

Some of the members of the House of Commons are earning for themselves unenviable reputations. A short time ago Manley L. Chew, M. P., for East Simcoe, Ontario, was fined some $150. for selling liquor to Indians. Now we have Dr. McAllister, M. P for Kings-Albert, New Brunswick distinguishing himself on a race course by a pugilistic exhibition. The Halifax Herald thus describes the scene. "While the races were on he appeared near the judges' stand and, so far as can be learned, without any provocation or warning, struck Alderman James A. McAnn a blow in the face. Alderman McAnn stepped back and informed the belligerent M. P. that he was liable for arrest for such conduct.

McAllister said: "To hell with you and your police," and made another rush for McAnn.

The alderman then went to the police station and laid information for assault against McAllister and in due course his arrest was effected by Chief of Police Rideout.

McAllister gave recognizance for his appearance in the police court, and returning to the race track again commenced to spread himself, offering to fight McAnn with one hand tied behind his back.

Simcoe and Kings should be proud of their representatives.

Clever Officer Comes to Canada

BRIG.-GEN. MACKENZIE AS MILITARY ADVISER.

Ottawa, August 15.—In regard to the announcement made from England that Brigadier-General Colin J. MacKenzie has been detailed from the Imperial army as first military adviser on the Canadian Military Council, to succeed Major-General Lake, a prominent military man here says: "The detail has been made on the application of the Canadian Government, as it is deemed desirable that a British officer should be practically, if not nominally, at the head of the Canadian militia. The only difference is that, prior to the Dundonald affair, the British general officer was in real command. Under the new order of things he is the power behind the throne. When Major-General Lake came to Canada, he was made chief of staff, and ex-officio member of the Militia Council. When Lord Aylmer retired he became inspector-general of the forces, but as that rank did not include membership in the Militia Council, General Lake was specially appointed Military adviser of the Minister of Militia, with a seat at the Council Board. General Lake's term of service in Canada expired last Autumn, but at the urgent request of the Minister of Militia his term was extended until October next.

"In selecting Brigadier-General MacKenzie, the British War Office has apparently gone to some pains to choose an exceptionally well qualified all-round officer. To Canadians who were in South Africa the fact that he has commanded an infantry brigade for three years, under General Smith-Dorrien at Aldershot, will be a guarantee that he is well up in practical work. He will also be remembered by many as the military governor of Johannesburg during the twelve months following its capture by Roberts' army, an appointment which needed a strong man. Previous to the South African War, the general had seen service in Burmah. After occupying such important staff appointments as D.A.A. G., director of military intelligence, and assistant inspector-general in South Africa up to 1905, Gen. MacKenzie was on the British headquarters staff until 1907, since when he has commanded the 4th and 6th infantry brigades at Aldershot, which is one of the best centres for training in practical work that the British army possesses. To complete the list of its qualifications, it may be mentioned that he speaks French, and has passed the Staff College. In the light of General French's still-to-be-published report, General MacKenzie should have a large field of usefulness in Canada.

Tax Committee Met

The committee appointed by the City Council to consult with the Tax Collector in reference to the collection of back taxes met last evening and examined the lists of unpaid taxes. They instructed the Collector to have warrants served at once on over 500 delinquents. None on the list were passed over excepting a few women who are ill or otherwise in distress. This looks like business straight from the shoulder.

ZAM-BUK CURES SUNBURN

Neglect of sunburn on face, arm or neck often leads to the after-growth of the skin which is freckled or coarse; and this is particularly distressing to ladies. Timely application of Zam-Buk will prevent this. Zam-Buk is a herbal balm, which soothes and cools the burned skin, and assists nature to replace the damaged tissue with soft, velvety skin.

Zam-Buk is also good for stings, scratches, heat sores, blisters on hands, or feet, and all skin injuries. Applied to these it quickly stops the smarting and ensures quick healing. As it is free from animal fat, and mineral coloring matter, and particularly suited to the delicate skin of babies, suffering from heat rashes, chafed places, etc. Sold everywhere by druggists and storekeepers. Beware of harmful imitations, and see the name "Zam-Buk" on the box before buying.

Effect of Altitude.

MAN BORN DEAF HEARD ON TOP OF PIKE'S PEAK.

Colorado Springs., Colo., Aug. 15—The summit of Pike's Peak, whose altitude is 14.147 feet above the seas has established a new record in its effect on Edward G. Hainey, a Chicago delegate to the world's congress of deaf which has just ended here He was born deaf and has remained deaf during his forty years of life. While in Pike's Peak, in company with its delegates, he felt a peculiar buzzing in his ears. He explained to his companions that he heard sounds His friends enunciated a few words and Hainey signalled that he heard, although he could not distinguish any words. He heard the noise of trampling and conversation and engine, and finally the braying of a burro, which startled him. As Hainey descended his partial hearing left him. At Manitou, 8000 feet below, he was as deaf as ever.

May be Big Strike on Toronto Street Railway

The officials of the Street Railway Corporation of Toronto, are again in trouble with their conductors. Judge Barron has for some time past been trying to arrange and settle the difficulties between the parties. From what has transpired it is evident that the knife has been put to the throat of the corporation, and that the men will not yield. They have demanded the pound of flesh and are determined to get it, or stop the running of the cars. The Fair is to be held in a short time and advantage is taken of that fact. When a reporter mentioned the rumored plans to strike at fair time, president McMahon only replied, "That's for Mr. Fleming to say."

It was apparent that the committee of the union men are not prepared to recede many paces from their position originally taken. "It is up to Mr. Fleming now," said Mr. Angus Sinclair, the Yankee Boss and International officer.

Conductors when asked their opinion replied, "As we know we could tie up the railway by a strike, it is not likely that we will back down on our just demands."

Sir. Wilfrid's Trip.

COMMENTS OF THE WESTERN PRESS.

Victoria, B. C., Daily Times, (Liberal)—"Another deputation of western grain growers has laid its views on the tariff question before the Prime Minister fearlessly, frankly and bluntly. It is clear that the farmers of western Canada as well as their brethren in the eastern parts of the country feel very strongly on the subject and that their views are entitled to grave consideration. But there are other interests to be considered as well as those of the farmers of the prairies.

The British Columbian, New Westminster, B. C.—"Reading the confident assertion of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues respecting the building and early completion of the Hudson bay road, the people of Canada can well conclude that the Laurier Government would build a railway to the moon, if there was political capital to be made out of it.

Calgary, Alta., Daily News, (Liberal:)—"The tariff issue has been persistently brought to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's attention since he began his tour of the West and he has been quite willing to meet the petitioners for freer trade half way. It must be understood that the federal cabinet is in a delicate position when it comes to mapping out a tariff policy. Canada is a country of diversified interests and if the cabinet is to be absolutely fair, all these interests must be consulted when a tariff schedule is being drawn up.

Tribune (Winnipeg)—"One expression of the popular feeling, and that the most loudly voiced, has been the open discontent of the free trade wing of the Liberal party. But there is something far more widespread deeper, and more politically significant than that in the generally contemptuous reception given Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the west. Even a subsidized press cannot manufacture a success out of his tour. But those with intimate experience of the west, to whatever political party they belong, alone know what a stupendous failure the expedition has proved itself to be."

The Saskatoon, Sask., Capital says the political meeting held in the Laurier interests in the Court House in that town was appropriate, for Sir Wilfrid was actually placed on trial there by men "fully acquainted with the short comings and the political crimes of the hoary-headed promise breaker and his confreres." The Premier was informed in plain English, that unless he got busy at once in making his promises good he would get none of their votes in the future. "What made his humiliation the more complete was the fact that every speaker who reminded him of his broken promises said he was a Liberal and had helped to place the squirming victim where he is." "To be told their speeches were political and Tory was adding insult to injury," says the Capital "and they had no hesitation in making that fact plainly understood by the Premier and his colleagues." The paper adds that Sir Wilfrid, by his treatment of the Liberals of Saskatoon, showed plainly "that he felt he was approaching his Waterloo."

Neepawa, Man., Register—"Twelve farmers, all members of the party led by Laurier, spoke in turn (at Saskatoon), each dealing with a different topic and denouncing the Premier for betrayal of the promises upon which they had supported him and urged his return to power. It indicated that not even such means as held the West for Laurier before can hold it again; perhaps it indicated even more—that the day of mealy-mouthed kowtowing to power unscrupulously obtained is past."

Evening Journal, Edmonton, Alta., —"Taking it all in all, the farmers have found Sir Wilfrid a smooth sophist who, when confronted with the evidence that he has not kept a promise, undertakes to placate his accusers by making more promises."

Daily News, Nelson, B. C. — "Sir Wilfrid's tour has proceeded much as expected, except that the farmers have been much more outspoken in their demands than was probably anticipated. On the tariff question Sir Wilfrid is reaping what he has sown. When he was in opposition and looking for votes to get into power he held out expectations with regard to the tariff and made promises which have not been fulfilled, and which could not be fulfilled. He has been in power for fourteen years and the tariff is a protective tariff still. There is no prospect that it will be anything else."

Scotland Yard Can Hold Its Own In Comparison With New York.

London, August 1.—Scotland Yard is the greatest crime-detecting organization in existence. Any person versed in detective work will admit as much. No country has a more effective bureau. The New York Central Office is not its equal—certainly not its superior, taken as a whole. Its men have many characteristics which seem unfitting—even absurd—from an American viewpoint; but the things they accomplish are great.

Conan Doyle's stories really prove this, for they were all based on Scotland Yard exploits recounted to him by Scotland Yard men. The wonderful feats of deduction attributed to Sherlock Holmes, though undoubtedly made more remarkable by the author, were founded on real cases.

FIRST USED THUMB PRINTS

Sir Edward Richard Henry is present commissioner of police in London, and receives 2,000 pounds a year. He is the man who suggested thumb prints as a means of identifying criminals. This system has been adopted in most of the countries of the civilized world.

Sir Melville Leslie Macnaughton is at the head of the detective service, and receives 1,200 pounds a year.

The police headquarters of the metropolitan district of London, is at Scotland Yard, and from this fact the C.I.D., or Criminal Investigation Department, takes its name. Frank Froest, whose name has appeared frequently in the London cables on the Crippen case, is the Superintendent of Scotland Yard.

In order to understand the work of these English police, it must be remembered that they have entirely different kinds of criminals to contend with there—or rather they have the same kinds in entirely different proportions.

FEWER MURDERS

They have far fewer murders than the police on this side. America, of all modern civilized countries, is the place in which murder is practiced most ruthlessly and abundantly. There's a reason of course. America has those hordes of foreigners pouring in at Ellis Island constantly, and those hordes include the refuse of European nations, and this refuse furnishes a large proportion of the crimes which so swell the homicide statistics. The fact that the New York police cope as well as they do with the tremendous influx of foreigners—each foreigner is an unknown quantity—is a fact greatly to their credit. The London police have a more settled population to deal with, and they are spared much of the homicide problem.

FEW "YEGGMEN" ABROAD.

They have few "yeggmen", safecrackers, and bank robbers nowadays America is the field for that sort of operations, because its population is diffuse, its stores and banks are less safely guarded, its habits are more careless, and its criminals nevertheless, are of the cleverest. England is a compact country, well settled, well protected, a place where all the means of prevention have been developed to the highest degree.

In that word prevention is the key to much of the work of Scotland Yard. That wonderful police machine bends all its energies to prevent crime, so that it will not have to go to the effort of hunting down the criminal after the wrong has been committed.

SECRET GALLERIES

Many of the larger Post Offices in the United States—for instance, the branch one in the new Custom House on Bowling Green, New York City—have secret galleries in the masonry of the walls. From these galleries a person can obtain a view of the mail clerks at work without a possibility of being seen himself. Post office inspectors enter these galleries from time to time, unannounced, and watch the clerks. It is needless to say that in such post offices the number of letters stolen is not very large.

That is precisely the principle on which Scotland Yard operates to a large extent. It has a huge number of stool-pigeons and informants. None of these are ever known as being in the employ of "The Yard," but they go their accustomed way, mingling with their own sort, be they murderers, thieves, anarchists, or what not, and from time to time they give the police hints of what is going to happen, and the police see to it that the plot is frustrated.

Meetings are held in Hyde Park, and Socialists make violent speeches. There are always a few agents of Scotland Yard in the audience. They are not those tall, square-shouldered, square-toed fellows, such as a sophisticated New Yorker can pick out of almost any street crowd as "plain clothes men." They look like all others. Perhaps one of them is that very hothead who is going to get up presently and make a speech suggesting that the King be hanged and that the Parliament Buildings be burned to the ground. He is the fellow who, if a plot ever is formed to put his advice into effect, will inform Superintendent Froest secretly in time to have the ringleaders clapped in irons.

There are hundreds, indeed, probably thousands, of these informants, in the pay of the Crown, although their names never appear on any pay roll. The existence of this great staff of stool pigeons is one important difference between the London and New York police systems. It will be remembered that several of the New York Commissioners have complained bitterly because they were compelled to do business entirely with detectives and never received any appropriation to establish "secret police." It would seem as though the very essence of successful "detection" would be to have in the employ of the department men who would not be recognized as detectives. Yet practically nothing has ever been allowed to any public commissioner to pay stool-pigeons and informants.

Care of Young Fruit Trees.

While looking over several young orchards in the southern districts of Hastings county, Mr. A. D. McIntosh, District Representative at Stirling, says he finds a great many dead and dying trees. Many of them are badly affected with oyster shell scales and the egg masses of the appletent caterpillars are very abundant, and unless something is done before next summer the trees no doubt will suffer very severely. The green apple aphis is a serious pest this summer. The growth of young wood this year in most cases, is excessive and it will be well for the trees if they are headed back some for next year. Early spring is probably the best time to do the pruning of young trees.

It is while trees are young that they get their shape to the grower's liking and those who are buying trees will do well to get two year old trees, and then see that they get a good start.

The Codling worm is getting in its work this year in the old orchards, with the results that very many wormy apples may be seen in many of the old orchards. If the only losses were the wormy apples it would not be so bad but the extra expense of picking and sorting to get a few good ones very naturally affects the price the buyers can afford to pay for apples.

Demonstration orchards which are conducted in every county, ought to prove very beneficial in the fruit districts of Hastings county, and if the fruit growers make the best use of the branch department of agriculture at Stirling there is no reason why a number of demonstration orchards cannot be carried on in this county.

Fruit growers who have orchard problems to solve will consult their own interests by dropping a card to the Department of Agriculture in Stirling, asking Mr. McIntosh to loo kove rtheir orchards and see what insect pests or fungus diseases may be there. No doubt he will also suggest a remedy.

DEATH OF PROMINENT TEMPERANCE WORKER

A wide circle of friends will learn with regret of the death of Miss Jemima Perkins, who passed away at an early hour yesterday morning after an illness of about four months. The deceased lady, who was a daughter of the late Thomas Perkins of H. M. Customs, and sister of the late W. H. Perkins, of Frankford, Ontario, was an active member of the Methodist church. She was also a prominent temperance worker, having been secretary of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union for a number of years.—Quebec Chronicle.

Because native trees are too slow of growth to meet the demand for lumber, trees from America and Europe are being introduced into New Zealand.

MONTREAL, 22nd February, 1909.

I HEREBY CERTIFY that I have drawn by my own hand ten samples of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co's EXTRA STANDARD GRANULATED SUGAR, indiscriminately taken from four lots of about 150 barrels each and six lots of about 450 bags each. I have analyzed same and find them uniformly to contain 99-99/100 to 100 per cent of pure cane sugar, with no impurities whatever.

Second Danger Mark Passed.

Hoboken, N.J., Aug. 16.—The watchers at the bedside of Mayor Gaynor of New York, breathed easy yesterday with the passing of the sixth day crisis.

"No indications of blood poisoning have developed, and the recovery of the patient is now practically assured," was the word given out by the attendants at St. Mary's Hospital, where the mayor has been since he was shot down last Tuesday by J. J. Gallagher.

Two periods of danger from blood poisoning have now been safely passed—that ending with the 48th hour after the shooting and yesterday's.

Mr. Gaynor awoke refreshed. His appetite was good and almost his first words were a request for breakfast. He was given coffee and eggs and later wine jelly and cream.

"I feel fit as a fiddle," he said to Dr. W. J. Arlitz and Dr. C. D. Dowd. He jokingly said, "I helped myself more than you medical fellows. I found how to cure my own cough."

The mayor discovered for himself that by lying in a certain posture he could rid himself of the irritating cough that has been bothering him for several days.

After a long series of tests German scientists seem to have disproved an old theory that resin is a beneficial ingredient in soaps, their decision being that the washing power of a soap decreases as the resin content increases.

Woman's World

Velma Howard, the American Boswell For Selma Lagerlof.

Almost everybody has heard of Selma Lagerlof, one of the most famous of Sweden's women writers and educators, to whom the Nobel literary prize was awarded recently. But comparatively few people have heard of Velma Swanston Howard, Miss Lagerlof's English translator. Yet to Mrs. Howard's beautiful and faithful interpretations of her stories the Swedish authoress owes her present popularity here in America.

"The Wonderful Adventures of Nils," "The Christ Legends" and Miss Lagerlof's latest book, "The Girl From the Marshcroft," have all been translated with wonderful delicacy and faithfulness to the original by Mrs. Howard. When asked recently about her literary work Mrs. Howard said: "I scarcely know what to say about myself. I have given the best part of me to Miss Lagerlof for nearly four years, and I feel as if there is not much left of Velma Swanston Howard's personality. It has all been merged into the greater personality of Selma Lagerlof."

To one who knows Mrs. Howard there is no fear that her own charming self or her literary ability will ever become completely merged in that of another. Mrs. Howard's life has been one of varied activities and literary enthusiasms. She has done very clever editorial and creative work both here and in her native country, Sweden. For eight years she followed the profession of acting, playing with the best companies in this country. After retiring from the stage she gave Ibsen readings and lectures. Indeed, one might say that she popularized Ibsen in this country and at great risk of losing her own personal reputation, for, strange as it now seems, at that time to openly confess an appreciation of Ibsen's writings was to place oneself outside the pale of respectability.

VELMA SWANSTON HOWARD.

But even as a child Velma Swanston had a capacity for discovering originality and genius in others and for impressing their qualities upon her auditors. An instance of the kind occurred in her fourteenth year when she was receiving her education at the public schools of Chicago. An opportunity of earning some pin money came to her during the summer vacation. It was to do some figuring in compound fractions for an insurance company. To a girl of fourteen the recompense of a dollar a day looked like a fortune.

But there was a Swedish girl in her class at the art school who was a marvel at figures, whose skill was the envy and admiration of the small Velma. So great was this admiration that when an interview took place between Velma and the man who was to engage her services she told him all about her mathematical friend instead of trying to prove her own ability for the position. So well did she plead the cause of her prodigy, dwelling upon her quickness and mathematical accuracy and finally enthusiastically exclaiming, "She's the girl for you!" that the man gave the job to the girl whom Velma Swanston boomed for the position.

And to quote Mrs. Howard: "I've been 'whooping it up' for somebody or something ever since. I like it, too, as it takes me out of myself. Every Johnson needs a Boswell—in other words, every genius must have a promoter. And a good promoter has to have a certain kind of talent in order to convince people of the worth of his wares, whether these wares be books or buttons."

One of Mrs. Howard's pleasant remembrances is an interview she had with the late King Oscar of Sweden, and among her most cherished souvenirs is a large autograph photograph which his majesty gave her on that occasion.

Novel Place Cards.

A novel place card, homemade, for the wedding breakfast or for a bridesmaid's luncheon is made by getting small photographs of the bride, as many as there are guests.

The heads only are used. They are pasted on oblongs of water color paper an inch wide and two and a half inches long. The upper part of the card is shaped around the head to resemble a veil and simulated with pen and ink or painted in. The photograph is then colored to look like a miniature.

Another set of cards may have the silhouettes of the bride and groom placed side by side, so that only half the groom's face, which is underneath, shows.

Contrary to the general belief that hard woods give more heat in burning than soft, Government experts have found by tests that linden, a very soft wood, has the greatest heating power, with fir, another soft wood, next.

THEY'RE THE LAST CRY.

If In Doubt Buy a Red Hat.

THE CHERRY TRIMMED TURBAN.

"Cherries red, cherries ripe"—you may have them for your dinner and you may have them on your hat. But be sure to hang them on a red creation such as the millinery triumph pictured.

A huge red velvet bow helps to break up the center of gravity at one side of the creation, but milady is wary, and she has studied exactly the right angle to perch the hat knowingly on her pretty little head, and she has succeeded, has she not?

A Dainty Foulard Gown.

There seems to be no end to the popularity of foulard silk this season as a dress material. Even tailored suits are made of this fabric, which until now was thought to be suitable only for house dresses and street gowns. And for these uses the silk is most decidedly at its best. The frock sketched is of black and white foulard, and the effect is somewhat that of a Russian blouse suit, but with a difference that is very smart. The skirt adornment is of an elaborate design in swiss insertion, which is further augmented by a battlemented band of plain black satin. This insertion is attractively used on the bodice, which has at the side a band of narrow insertion that reaches to the skirt trimming. Black velvet ribbon loops trim the band and finish in a bow at the bottom.

CHARMING EFFECT IN BLACK AND WHITE.

To Wear on Shipboard.

A pretty fashion is that which makes it permissible for women who travel on the water, whether crossing the ocean or merely on an extended lake trip, to dispense with the long chiffon veils, which at best are hard to manage, and to appear instead in motor bonnets.

Even the woman who does not own a motorcar may buy a snug little yoke bonnet of the bewitching kind worn by the motor girl and, tying this securely upon her head, appear on shipboard with perfect propriety. The bonnet is easier to adjust than the veil and gives more protection. With this can be worn a motor coat or ulster of either fur or cloth.

If, however, a girl chooses a long sweater coat as her deck costume she would do well to wear with it a white wool cap either in tam-o'-shanter form or of the kind worn at winter sports in Switzerland.

Summer Window Screens.

When the window screens are brought out for summer they often are in bad condition. If rusty, try rubbing them with vaseline, then with a bit of fine emery paper or an old nail file. Dust should be removed and the wire be given a coat of varnish and woodwork freshened with paint. If holes appear, patch by cutting pieces from wire cloth several inches larger on all sides than hole. Pull out wires on edge to make a fringe, push it through meshes of screen beyond holes and bend flat on other side.

A glass bottle may be cut off easily by tying around it a piece of string saturated in kerosene, lighting the string and allowing it to burn until the bottle is heated, then plunging the bottle into cold water.

SPROUTED OATS DANDY FOR POULTRY.

A friend whose husband was forever teasing her because she got no eggs in winter quietly came to us for a tip.

She wanted winter eggs, but she wished to have one on John more.

She had been feeding cut bone and mixed grains, but no greens, and the solid ration made her hens too fat to lay.

We furnished her enough sprouted oats till what she soaked should sprout and advised her to give her hens less grain and to make them scratch hard for that for antifat and blood circulator.

Pretty soon the eggs began to come, and instead of accepting it all as bona fide John accused her of feeding egg dopes.

She showed him a long box of sprouted green oats which had been kept covered behind the kitchen stove, and the laugh was on John.

SPROUTED OATS.

Note the picture.

This oats was sprouted in cheese box lids fourteen inches in diameter, kept warm beside our hot water heater in the cellar in January.

Two quarts of heavy oats when soaked are enough for a lid and make a good meal of green feed for forty to fifty hens.

A sprouting space 3 by 3 feet will give a plentiful day's feed for 600 hens.

All that is necessary are a box with a rim, good heavy oats, plenty of water and a temperature of 60 degrees or more.

Soak the oats for twenty-four hours, then spread them no deeper than two inches in the receptacle and water well every day.

Bore a few holes in the box for drainage, set it level and do not stir the oats or allow them to get dry.

For a continuous supply you must put oats to soak right along to take the place of what you feed.

The oats soon begin to grow, the sprouts coming to four to six inches in from ten to fifteen days. All poultry like sprouted oats. Pheasants and Belgian hares run for it. Feed it when tender as lettuce, feed it regularly and watch the eggs pile up.

HELPING THEMSELVES.

DON'TS.

Don't keep poultry right close to the well. You can't use the water; it will smell.

Don't forget that fruit and poultry pay. There'll be fruit to sell and store away.

Don't leave doors open. Your cocks may get together and be spoiled for show.

Don't imagine crows are just pest exterminators. They are great chick perambulators.

Don't let the babes alone in the house where they can get at the incubator. Oh, no; you're not such a careless mater.

Don't let the chickens track the back porch. Such a man any wife should scorch.

Don't put that brooder too near the road. Some thief may haul it off all in one load.

Don't bed small chicks on sawdust. It brings ills and kills.

One handle of a new dental forceps consists of a long iron rod on which a weight slides, the jolt as it strikes the end pulling a tooth to which the appliance is attached.

RATIONS FOR THE CALF.

Feeding the Youngsters Too Early May Prove Injurious.

It is well to leave the calf by itself for at least twelve hours and, in case the calf has run with its mother for several days, possibly twenty-four hours. Attempts to feed the calf earlier than this usually do the calf no good and may injure the feeder's temper. Such is the opinion of an authority on dairy matters. If the calf's muzzle is held in the milk and its mouth pried open once so that it tastes the milk it will drink without the feeder being obliged to place his hand in the milk and allow the calf to suck his finger.

The calf is unable to handle hay or grain until it is a week or ten days old. During this period it is not wise to try to feed skimmilk. At first the whole milk should be fed three times a day—four pounds in the morning, two pounds at noon and four pounds at night—at blood temperature. In about a week or ten days the calf can be fed twice daily. During this time the allowance of whole milk can be gradually increased to about twelve pounds. This amount depends somewhat on its ability to handle increased quantities.

The stomach of the young calf is very delicate, and all changes should be made gradually. When about two weeks the calf, if a strong, vigorous one, can be gradually changed to skimmilk. During the first day decrease the amount of whole milk one pound and add one pound of skimmilk, and so on each day until the change is complete. Previous to this the calf should have a little grain (corn or Kaffir corn meal or a little mixture of both) placed in its mouth immediately after drinking its milk. In this way it gets a taste of the grain and will soon go to the feed boxes and eat with a relish.

After the change to skimmilk is completed the amount may be gradually increased as fast as the calf is able to consume it without scouring. Care must be taken not to increase too rapidly. The calf is a greedy animal and will appear more hungry after drinking its milk than before, and if given too much it will soon be on the sick list. The milk fed should be weighed or measured at each feeding. Our experience has been that a calf three to five weeks of age can be fed from ten to twelve pounds daily, from seven to eight weeks old fourteen to sixteen pounds, and when three to five months of age can be fed eighteen to twenty pounds of milk. The milk should always be fed warm and sweet.

FOR CHURNING RESULTS.

Close Attention Always Necessary to Realize the Best.

There can be no definite rule laid down as to the temperature at which the cream should be churned, as different creams require different temperatures. The fat is in the form of microscopic globules, and they must have a certain degree of softness if they are to unite.

When the cream enters the churn that is properly ripened and contains 28 to 30 per cent fat the temperature should be such that the cream will churn in thirty to forty-five minutes. This will give an exhaustive churning and leave the butter in a condition in which it can be easily handled without injuring the texture.

Before putting the cream in the churn the churn should be thoroughly scalded and as thoroughly chilled with cold water. The advantage of this is that it will freshen the churn and fill the pores in the wood, so that the cream and butter will not stick to it.

The outside temperature of the churning room should be as nearly as possible the same as the churning temperature. If it is warm the cream will warm up rapidly and the butter will likely be soft and will require more washing to remove the buttermilk.

It is useless to lower the cream rapidly to the churning point just before churning. It should be there at least two hours before churning. The reason for this is that fat is a slow conductor of the heat, and, although the serum has cooled and the thermometer reads the right temperature, the fat has not actually reached it, and the results would be the same as if churned at an actually higher degree.

THE HORSEMAN

Don't Whip or Jerk the Horse.

It is a shame to whip or jerk a skittish horse that has shied or been frightened by an unusual obstacle. Soothe him rather than try to unnerve him.

Wash For Horse Lice.

For lice on horses take half a pint of kerosene in two gallons of water and wash the horse with this twice, with an interval of two or three days between the applications.

Ruining a Spirited Animal.

A spirited horse will in the end be made slow and spiritless by constant nagging, twitching of lines, peevish urging and other wearing processes that fretful drivers practice.

Excellence of Hay.

A colt or horse will live and develop on good hay alone, but he will thrive better upon a two-thirds ration of hay and the rest straw. A ration of oats given with these will be all the better.

Rolling Scratching Horses.

After a hard day's work in the field the horses will enjoy a few moments to roll in the yard about the straw pile. Your horses will scratch themselves more in five minutes by rolling than you can do with a currycomb in thirty minutes.

A machine on the principle of an aeroplane, yet which runs on the ground, has been built by a French instructor of aviators so his pupils may run no risks in their preliminary lessons.

WORKBAG AS A PRIZE.

It's Made of Chiffon and Is Very Dainty.

Have you seen the new chiffon workbags? They are novel, good looking and, more surprising yet, wear better than do silk ones. A girl has given one hard use for a year and a half, and it is still in good condition.

To make such a bag for a prize at a bridge party cut an oval bottom of stiff cardboard, dimensions 11 by 7 inches, with rounding ends. If the board is heavy enough one piece will answer. Generally two ovals are better. Cover first with cotton batting, then with white satin, and overcast the edges neatly together. Put under a weight to prevent warping.

The top is made from white chiffon over a color. Three-quarters of a yard of each color is required. Cut the pieces across from selvage to selvage and sew into the seams at each end.

Put the colored chiffon underneath and turn in the edge at the top to the depth of a quarter of an inch. Turn the bottom up into a quarter inch hem to give more body for the overcasting. Selvage is placed to selvage, but the chiffons are not sewed together.

Two inches from the top run an inch wide casing, sewed by hand, in silk to match the lining. Leave an opening through the selvage of white chiffon to insert drawstrings of inch wide double faced white satin ribbon. To open the bag to its full extent allow five yards of ribbon cut into two yard lengths.

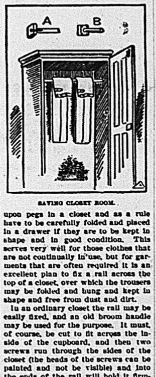
Overcast the bottom of the bag to the oval bottom and finish the top with half inch white cluny or valenciennes lace.

For a card party of half a dozen tables such bags would form handsome prizes if each one were made up in a different color, such as lavender and white, yellow and white, green, pink, blue and coral color, with ribbon and outer layer white.

Chiffon is used rather than chiffon cloth, but the latter will probably wear better, though not so fluffy. In selecting the chiffon get a good quality and make sure that both are the same width, as it simplifies the joining and lets the parts fall in more graceful folds when drawn up.

A Trouser Rail.

A handy contrivance that may be fitted up in a bedroom cupboard is illustrated here, and it will be found a great convenience and save considerable time and trouble. Trousers, like other garments, cannot well be hung upon pegs in a closet and as a rule have to be carefully folded and placed in a drawer if they are to be kept in shape and in good condition. This serves very well for those clothes that are not continually in use, but for garments that are often required it is an excellent plan to fix a rail across the top of a closet, over which the trousers may be folded and hung and kept in shape and free from dust and dirt.



SAVING CLOSET ROOM.

In an ordinary closet the rail may be easily fixed, and an old broom handle may be used for the purpose. It must, of course, be cut to fit across the inside of the cupboard, and then two screws run through the sides of the closet (the heads of the screws can be painted and not be visible) and into the ends of the rail will hold it firmly in its place, and the trousers may be hung over it in the manner shown in the picture and be ready at hand whenever they are required.

In a closet that is perhaps made in a recess in the wall it is a little more difficult to fix up a bar, but it may be done in the manner shown in the two small diagrams at the top of the sketch. A square block of wood should be screwed on to either end of the rail. The bar can then be fitted into its place and nails run through the block of wood and into the wall. A glance at the diagram will explain this.

A New Food Fad.

Are you drinking sour milk?

"Certainly not. That is food for pigs, not human beings," say you.

Professor Metchinkoff of Paris, with Dr. Osler to back him, says differently. These gentlemen declare drinking of sour milk will prolong life and cite the longevity of the people of eastern Europe, who live largely on this diet, to back them.

So every one is drinking sour milk, for life is a precious commodity, and the latest means of achieving it is cheap and convenient.

Like all other fads, moderation is desirable. An exclusive diet of sour milk is not to be advised. Indeed, do not start it without consulting your physician, as it may be just the food you should not take under any circumstances.

This diet is supposed to be beneficial to the kidneys and the stomach and to act as a sort of tonic.

The argument advanced in favor of a new phonograph which has its records in the form of endless belts is that it is possible to provide much longer selections than by the older methods.

BEST RATION FOR COACH STALLIONS.

According to a prominent breeder, there is nothing better than the usual stallion ration of oats and bran. Crushed oats mixed with about one-fourth as much bran by weight make a good combination. It is bulky, safe, nutritious and agreeable to the stallion's taste, digestion and requirements. A bran mash once or twice a week has for years been deemed desirable for its laxative effect unless the stallion has access to grass, but some of the leading practitioners condemn the weekly bran mash as conducive to colic.

Some owners prefer to depend entirely on cured feed throughout the season, but others equally successful esteem a few minutes' grazing daily at the halter or the run of a grass lot as very essential to the health and vigor of their stallions. The freedom of a roomy lot with a high strong fence is a splendid thing, grass or no grass.

The essential thing in the feeding is to furnish the horse abundant nourishment, keeping his system in vigorous, healthy form. Whatever grass is fed should be grazed by the horse. It is not safe to feed it in the barn, for almost surely some of it will at some time sour in the manger and produce trouble. It is better to graze the horse in the evening rather than in the morning.

Timothy hay is the safest kind to feed, and most of it should be fed long. If the horse bolts his grain cut some hay short and mix about two quarts of that with each feed of grain. The total amount of the grain feed per day should be about one pound for each hundred pounds that the horse weighs, but more should be given if he has a large amount of road work or is a hard keeper.

There is great variation in the requirements of different horses in this respect. Of hay he should have about a pound a day for each hundred pounds that he weighs, and little variation need be made from this rule unless he gets considerable grass.

Give the grain in three equal feeds, and give about half the hay at night and the rest divided between morning and noon. If strictly first class clover or alfalfa hay is available a little of it may be fed with evident benefit. A little oilmeal, not over a pound a day, is fed by some successful stallioners with good results.

FINE SET COACH STALLION.
[By courtesy of Iowa State college.]

It is doubtful if sufficient benefit follows the use of eggs to make it worth while to use them in most cases. If the horse appears to be poorly nourished and has a very large patronage there may be something gained by feeding them.

Men who feed eggs generally give two to four eggs beaten up in as many quarts of milk. To this may be added a double handful of oilmeal, first scalded, and the whole fed warm after supper.

Butter Hints.

In some parts of the country during the last fifteen years the price of grain has increased from 50 to 150 per cent, while dairy products have gone up only 25 per cent. It is not the dairyman who overcharges.

Pure bred cows pay the best, but not every pure bred cow is a good one. You must select among them the same as among scrubs, but the general average is higher and the pay better.

The sire is often said to be half the herd. If so, he should be a good one, and you can afford to have no other. Nor can you stand back on a little more cost. If the true value is there, money saved in cost is money lost.

The trouble with inbreeding is that without care it perpetuates the bad as well as the good points of the breed. This should be obviated by careful mating.

Lumps on Horses' Legs.

On the appearance of any lump about the legs of a horse it should be bathed diligently with water as hot as can be borne. What might develop into a spavin may sometimes in this way be checked at the start.

Oilmeal Is Valuable.

Two tablespoonfuls of oilmeal put in the horse's ground feed each time will keep the bowels relaxed and healthy, the appetite and spirit keen and the coat sleek. It is better than any condition powder.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

BASEBALL

Plank Says Lajoie Has it on Ty Cobb.

With the Lajoie-Cobb batting feud the chief attraction in the American League outside the battle of the pennant, Eddie Plank, the veteran southpaw of the Athletics and ranked as one of the shrewdest students of the batsmen in the league, analyses the style of batting of the two players, and gives first honors to Lajoie. Without qualification, Plank declares that the Cleveland second baseman is the harder man to pitch to of the pair, with the idea of outguessing him.

This is the manner in which Plank compares the two: "Lajoie has anything, inside, outside, high or low, over the plate, and it is almost impossible to pitch and fool him. Stick one close to his abdomen and he will crash it over the infield, maybe to the fence. Drop one low and he will hit it a mile. Around his shoulders, he will do the same thing. Groove one, and it is suicide.

"I never try to outguess Lajoie, for I admit I have nothing with which I can fool him. I simply take my chances and confess that he is my superior. The easiest time to pitch to the big fellow is when there are men on bases. He does not hit then as he does when the pillows are empty.

"Two years ago in Cleveland, I was trying to waste a ball. He hit it a lick with his bat and knocked it over the roof of a building but off the grounds. I pushed him one in the last series with the Naps inside and down around his knees. He bounced it to left field.

"That's the reason I pitch to Larry and hope for luck. You can't outguess him.

"With Ty Cobb it is different, although Ty can hit anything that is thrown to him. However, he is not so hard for me to pitch to, perhaps because he is a left-hand batter and Lajoie is right. You can fool the Georgian where you cannot the Frenchman. When I am pitching against Detroit I take a chance with Cobb and sometimes I can outguess him, although I admit his ability as a batsman. He didn't get a hit off me Tuesday at Bennett Park.

"The reason for this is plain. You must pitch to Cobb. He will not reach out, and hit a waste ball out of the lot like Lajoie. He waits for you to hand it to him where he thinks he can hit it, and unless he gets it there he is not so formidable.

"Cobb, with his great sprinting ability, beats out bunts and infield hits. That's why you have to figure for him all the time. Larry is a slugger, pure and simple.

"Now, if Lajoie were as fast as Cobb and laid down bunts, the gasoline go-cart would be used by Lajoie in 1911. No one could touch him in the American League. For good, clean hitting he is in a class by himself, and when he gets one it is one on which a boy could get to first, second, third or home. He is the real batter in the League, the hard man to pitch to, and a clean hitter. At least that's the way I found him."

England is Having A Summer of Gloom

Nine years ago England shared with the rest of the world one of the finest summers on record. Since then, fine weather has not altogether deserted other portions of the globe, but if the British Isles have enjoyed anything like the beautiful summer of 1901 there has been little publicity given the fact. The current year seems to have brought the acme of meteorological gloom. It was the habit in that first fair summer of the 20th century for the English newspapers to rhapsodize over the beauties of the unaccustomed brilliance of the sunshine and the clarity of the air. Now, as the following jeremiad from the London Express shows, they are going to the opposite extreme. Somehow it recalls Charles Lamb's description of a bad cold. Most twentieth century men and women are persuaded that the British climate is not as good as it was, and they are not convinced when searchers of past records assure them that "it never was." But all that has ever been thought or said unkindly of the British climate would be hopelessly inadequate as an expression of popular feeling this moment.

ALL HOPE ABANDONED

The most courageous apologists for its vagaries must be silent. We have ourselves hoped against hope, and spoken smooth things of the weather in the hope of placating its ferocity. But the effort is vain. Further concealment would be indecent. The weather is, but no, we dare not attempt to say what the weather is. It is unprintable and unspeakable. It is of a Stygian blackness, desolate, abominable frigid and calculated.

There is not one of us who has no tale of personal suffering and loss. The least that the weather has done is to ruin pleasure and inflict pain. Holidays turned to cold, damp bitterness, influenzas, rheumatisms, and depression bordering on acute melancholia have been the commonplaces of this dreadful year. These are ill enough. But more serious and permanent ills have to be written.

GOOD-BYE, SUMMER

The summer, is gone. Goodwood Week has come, the social season is finished, lavender and walnuts are with us, and the sun is sinking fast. Already the decaying hand of autumn begins to shake the short-lived leaves from the trees and the fires in our rooms begin to seem less out of keeping with the calendars on our walls. The summer is gone. The summer has never come. We have enjoyed the small mercy of some ten days of fine and tolerably warm weather. The rest has been rains and after rains and icy hurricanes and floods and cold and a sort of waking nightmare of climatic intemperance. Farmers are face to face with ruin. The sodden crops, beaten and bruised with rain and wind, cry out for sunshine and see no hope for it. Tradesmen are wounded by the season on which they rely for the best business of the year. There has been no business on the river, there has been little business in the shops, there have been slumps and reactions in the stock markets; even rubber has not been resilient enough to withstand the universal depression.

NEVER RAINS BUT IT POURS

The weather has been a national calamity imposed on a nation already struck by the heavy hand of death. It is not wonderful that superstitious minds should find in this congestion of calamity portents of woe. When we seek some explanation of an entirely abnormal conditions the comets at once present themselves as an available excuse. But scientists assure us that the comets are innocent of guilt. The scientists, indeed, put forth various accounts of cause and effect. But these leave us unmoved. The cause is comparatively immaterial. The effect is deplorable. The climate seems to have gone irredeemably to the bad. Our modern winters are muggy and unhealthy. Our summers are the rainy season. We get neither clear, frosty weather to invigorate us, nor sunshine to make us alive. Soon we shall perish of inanition, and the world become so unattractive that regret may be lessened. That is indeed the only compensation which optimism can find for ills that can neither be cured or endured.

On electric railroads speed can be produced up to about 27 miles an hour at but little more cost than at ten miles an hour, but beyond the former rate there there is a rapid increase in cost for every additional mile per hour.

Motive In Decorations

The primary motive in Wall Covering is not merely to "ornament" the room as pictures would but to MAKE THE WALLS DISAPPEAR, to help us forget their BOUNDARY.

This motive is clear enough in the splendid Tapestries of early date, probably the first and finest Wall Coverings ever used. The subjects and colorings of these Tapestries show that they were designed to carry the imagination beyond the prison-like stone walls into the freedom, light and color of the great outdoors.

THE DESIGNS, COLORINGS and quality of our papers carry a guarantee of work that is backed by reputable experience and present efficiency that keeps our papers ALWAYS IN THE LEAD for decorative salability.

Cute Boys Made Run On Carnegie Hero Fund

Paris, August 15.—A run on the Carnegie hero fund come to an end here today, through the watchfulness of the Paris police. For days the newspapers have been filled with acts of bravery by boys of from twelve to sixteen years of age. Daily two or three rescues have been made from the river and the canals by mere tots.

To-day it was discovered that there existed a band of small boys in the habit of drawing lots to see which would fall into the water and which effect the "rescue." Together with the dripping lad the "hero" would hurry to the nearest police station, and claim the reward given the rescuer of a drowning person, after which the boys would sell the story to one of the newspapers and divide the proceeds.

Fought Off Rats For Three Hours.

New York, August 13.—A man who said he was John Maugham, clung in water up to his armpits under a dock at the too of West Thirty-Ninth street yesterday for three hours, fighting off savage rats that tried to bite him. He was finally rescued by the police in such a condition that he had to be given hospital treatment before he could be sent home. Maugham had been drinking heavily last night, and wandered down to the dock. He told the police that members of the "Hell's Kitchen gang" had robbed him of $400 and pushed him off the dock.

The tide carried him under the dock and he caught a strand of rotting rope by which he was able to support himself.

Horrible Death of Young Balloonist.

New York, August 15.—Benny Prinz, a young balloonist, met a horrible death at the close of the aviation meet at Ashbury Park, N. J., in making a double parachute drop, the second parachute failed to open, and he fell more than 2,000 feet.

As the swaying body neared the ground it struck the limb of an apple tree, and the boy's head was transfixed on the limb, like an apple on a spit. As it struck the ground the headless body crushed into an unrecognizable mass.

A gang of thieves is said to be at work in Peterboro, and four stores have been entered and robbed recently. Other robberies are rumored to have taken place.

For some days past, Mr. Morris, of North Bay, Grand Organizer for the Sons of Scotland, has been in the city in the interests of the Society As the result of his sojourn here, 19 members were secured for Camp Rob Roy, and these were initiated last night at a meeting of the Camp.

After the installation proceedings an open meeting was held, which was thoroughly enjoyable in every respect.

Past Chief Bro. Alex. Morrice occupied the chair. During the evening songs were given by Bros. Gray, Sergt. Major Blaind, Backster, D. Grant Snody, Peter Johnson and J. McIntosh, the latter singing in fine form "The Scottish Blue Bells." Piper McIntosh also evoked enthusiasm with bagpipe selections.

Bro. R. Bogle gave a reading from Shakespeare.

The evening was in every respect a most enjoyable one and a large number of the members of the Camp participated.

Old Bellevillians Met in Minneapolis

Mr. T. A. Stevenson and family, of Toronto, are visiting relatives in this city. Mr. Stevenson has just returned from the International Typographical Union Convention at Minneapolis. He says that, last Thursday night, there was quite a Belleville Old Boys' Reunion in Minneapolis, among others present being: Dr. Thomas T. Warham, Minneapolis; Robt. Bell, Montreal; James Andrews, Minneapolis; William Harold, Minneapolis; Col. Wm. Street, Minneapolis; Chas. J. Holden, Toledo, O.; Franklin W. Hynes, Minneapolis; Thos. A. Stevenson, Toronto. Many of those present were International Union delegates.

A very gay evening was spent with reminiscences, etc., and the lads all pledged themselves to meet again in Belleville at the next Old Boys' Re-union, (if the undertaker doesn't get them before that.)

A Ruffianly Act.

Can't Beat It

(Peterboro Review.)

You can't beat the Lord's Prayer for comprehensiveness. Yet every Sunday the long suffering public, in weather hot or cold, in season and out, are, if they go to church, forced to listen to long drawn out prayers that girdle the earth in length, that ask for everything from blessings on the heathen of China to the missionary in the far far west. Why scatter the effort and waste the energy—especially during this hot weather. Brief and to the point in sermon and prayer would make a distinct and unique hit here, there and everywhere.

Lightning's Freak

Ottawa, August 15.—Mrs. Sims, of Westboro, had great holes burned by lightning, in the shoe on her right foot, and her stocking cut into shreds, but the foot only slightly burned. Mr. and Mrs. Sims and child were sitting at the door watching the storm when the bolt struck them. All three were rendered unconscious The father and baby boy were not hurt and recovered in a moment. Mrs. Sim's escape was miraculous. One-half of the shoe was almost burned away, while the other half was untouched. The child's cot was burned slightly, and a hole knocked through the back of the house.

Gave Demonstration of Wireless Telegraphy.

The members of the Bridge street Epworth League and their friends were treated last evening to a splendid demonstration of wireless telegraphy by Mr. Arthur Steele, assisted by Mr. Will Campbell. It may be news to many that Belleville has wireless operators and experimentors in her midst, but some of the younger generation are quite enthusiastic in this science, and the formation of a "wireless club" among the older school boys is among the possibilities for the coming winter. Besides proving practically and to the satisfaction of all present the feasibility of sending and receiving messages, lighting lamps, etc., at a distance without the aid of wires. Mr. Steele gave a very interesting running talk explaining the apparatus used, and also giving the theory and principles of the electrical utilization of the ether waves. Other demonstrations were made with Tesla apparatus of high potentiality, by which electrical stars and other most beautiful effects were produced by sending the current through Geisler vacuum tubes.

The audience was well pleased with the exhibit, and Mr. Steele received many compliments afterwards on the degree of proficiency he, a young man has attained, in this, the newest of all sciences.

CARMAN AT JACKSON

Superintendent Takes Another Tilt at Higher Critic.

In Discussing the Evil Effects of Too Great Prosperity Among the Members of the Church, He Says That Wealthy Men Bring In Pleasing But Unwholesome Doctrines—Calls Jackson's Teaching Heathenism.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 16.—Rev. Dr. Carman, general superintendent of the Methodist Church, yesterday morning delivered his charge to the assembled general conference, which opened yesterday, and which will continue three weeks. His referances to the influence of wealthy men within the church, with an especial reference to Sherbourne Street Church, Toronto, and its relationship with Rev. George Jackson, have created much comment."

"I have but one anxiety concerning our methodism," said Mr. Carman. "It is that we be saved from worldliness and spiritual sloth, and indifference, and all their consequences in every form, shape, measure and degree. Herein, possibly, is our greatest present danger; we are becoming wealthy, and may easily lose the vigor and tension of spiritual life, and the voice and tone of aggressive evangelism. We have time for vain jangling and oppositions of science, falsely so called. It is very easy to slacken up our push and pace; be satisfied with our attainments and sink into the lap of formalism and naturalism and of worldly comfort and ease. At such times and under such conditions novelties are preached for the well-proven doctrines of converting grace and sanctifying power. The eye of the church is dimmed and her arm is paralyzed. There is no strength in her movement, or victory in her march.

"Even good men are dazzled with the glitter of theories and befooled with empty speculation. The grey solidity and stern simplicity of the truth have no charms for their intoxicated understanding. The tendency, current and force in the spiritual life of our humanity, left to itself, is ever downward and not upward, as some do vainly and erroneously teach. They build up conjecture, assumption and human art and device to our utter undoing. This is heathenism; this alone in the Christian and Biblical ethnology explains the paganism of the nations.

Dr. Carman then made a direct reference to Dr. Jackson's connection with Sherbourne Street Church and with Victoria College, in which he referred to "incipient heathenism," adding:

"You will see I am decidedly with our chancellor in stiffening up the conception and clarifying the idea of the personality of God and man in the instruction of the colleges. And I think we could find half a dozen Methodist superannuates who could and would do it."

Welcome to British Columbia.

Revelstoke, B.C., Aug. 61.—Leaving Banff in the early morning, when Sir Wilfrid Lausier crossed the boundary line into the most westerly province of the Dominion, a telegram from Hon. Richard McBride was delivered, welcoming the federal Premier to British Columbia. The local member also boarded the train and felicitated Sir Wilfrid on his trip to the coast. The Prime Minister replied to his welcome in fitting terms, sending a message to Premier McBride.

A short stop was made at Golden, where Sir Wilfrid addressed a crowd of several hundred. Hon. George P. Graham spoke of the application of the Kootenay Central, which is projected from Golden to a point near Fernie, and said he was hopeful that that railway would shortly be built.

Addressing a large meeting here at 6 o'clock, Sir Wilfrid promised the erection of a large Government building, mentioning $100,000 as the cost. Hon. G. P. Graham said the Government would provide a subsidy for a railway at Death Rapids, to give connection via the Columbia River with the line of the C.P.R., and Grand Trunk Pacific.

"Until the people have all the transportation they need, we will not cease aiding railways," he declared.

Auto Was Upset.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 16.—A board stretched across Mayfield road on which there was no danger light, upset an auto bearing Miss Lois Moyes, Toronto, tennis champion of Canada. Miss Moyes was accompanied in the car by Mrs. John B. Burgess of Toronto, and Catheryn Abbott of 2,520 Euclid avenue. The car was driven by Henry Wick, jr. They returned to the hotel bruised and badly frightened.

In an Awkward Plight.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 16.—Edward Britt and his two sisters of Boston; James Britt of Calais, and Misses Cummings, Donahoe and Howe of St. Andrew's, were out in a motor boat in Passamaquoddy Bay, when something went wrong and the boat began to fill. They had only one oar, and after three hours of agony and waist deep in water and gradually sinking when Lightkeeper Rowley saw them.

Thirty-Seven Were Killed.

Royan, France, Aug. 16.—Thirty-seven dead and fifty-eight wounded have been recovered from the wreck of the Bordeaux excursion train, which crashed into a freight train at Saujon while running at a speed of 50 miles an hour Sunday. Six cars of the excursion train were telescoped. The bodies were horribly mangled.

Canadians Safe.

Toronto, Aug. 16.—"Canadians all safe; please publish."

The above cablegram was received yesterday by the Methodist mission board here, allaying all anxiety, of friends of missionaries in Japan, in view of the recent disastrous floods.

The French military authorities in Africa are bending every effort to increase the number of a species of camel which can travel more than twice as swiftly as the ordinary camel of commerce.

DOCTOR IS DEAD.

Andrew Smith of Veterinary College Is No More.

Toronto, Aug. 16.—The death occurred yesterday afternoon, shortly before 3 o'clock, of Dr. Andrew Smith, F.R.S., V.S., announcement of whose critical condition was published yesterday. The doctor has been in low health for the past two months, and when several days ago hardening of the arteries developed, no hope was held out for his recovery. The immediate members of his family, his son, Dr. D. King Smith of 22 Wellesley street, and his daughters, Mrs. A. D. Burritt and Mrs. McMurray of Toronto, and his widow, had been with him continually since recovery was despaired of.

THE LATE ANDREW SMITH.

The funeral will take place from the residence, 311 Jarvis street, on Wednesday afternoon at 2.30, and will be private. Interment will take place at Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Q.O.R. Working Hard.

Quebec, Aug. 16.—Work was commenced in earnest at the Queen's Own camp at St. Joseph de Levis yesterday, and before leaving the men had smartened up wonderfully in their drill. In the morning each company was handed over to an instructor and put through their facings. The material is here and it is expected that the smartest drill instructors in Canada will make them equal to any regular troops in Canada before leaving on Saturday. The men know their drill and all that is needed is practice.

It is said that, no matter how well soldiers are fed, they will kick. The food is much better than usually found in military camp, but, because it is not as good as home fare, they grumble. Large numbers of them went without supper and ate in Quebec last night. Notwithstanding the hard work the men are having a good time.

The camp is situated on the heights beside the St. Lawrence, in a small natural valley about three miles below Levis, at St. Joseph de Levis. In the opening of the valley can be seen the waters of the river and the farms, still retaining the same elongated formation in which they were first laid out in the infancy of Canada, the Montmorency Falls, and in the distance the Laurentian Mountains.

The men are not the only ones being drilled. The non-commissioned and commissioned officers are getting their share. A riding school is being conducted for the benefit of mounted officers.

Sir Henry Pellatt and the officers of the corps have been invited by Lt.-Col. Davidson and officers of the 6th Royal Rifles of Quebec to dinner tomorrow.

Five Barns Destroyed.

Berlin, Aug. 16.—Lightning caused heavy losses within a radius of a few miles of Berlin yesterday evening. Almost simultaneously two big barns, within half a mile of each other, three mile east of here, were struck and totally destroyed with the whole season's crop. One belonged to David Thaler, and the other to A. Kinzie. The insurance will not nearly cover the loss. Anthony Mattusch, near Freeport, fared still worse. His barn, crops, implements, eight horses and seven calves were burned. Loss partially covered by insurance. Mr. Rutherford's barn, near Strassburg, was also burned down.

Wall Collapsed; Four Dead.

Cornwall, Aug. 16.—Four Italians were instantly killed and 15 or 20 men, mostly foreigners, were more or less injured by the collapse of a concrete wall at Massena, N.Y., ten miles from here, yesterday morning. The T. A. Gillespie Co. of New York City are building an extension of the St. Lawrence Power Co.'s power house and dam, and one of the concrete units, which were built hollow, was being filled with concrete, when it burst, and the whole mass fell on the men who were working below.

Four of the injured were brought to the Hotel Dieu, Cornwall.

ESCAPED FROM ASYLUM

Moir and Taggart Get Away From Hamilton.

Murderer of Sergt. Lloyd and Slayer of Wife Have Aid From Outside and Flight Is Made by Means of an Auto About Two o'Clock In the Morning—Car Without Lights Is Also Seen Passing Beamsville.

Hamilton, Aug. 16.—Dr. English, superintendent of the Hamilton Asylum, intimated last night that he had discovered the first clue to the mysterious disappearance of Moir and Taggart, the escaped murderers. He had found out definitely that an automobile without lights was seen in the grounds of the asylum at about two o'clock yesterday morning. Word, he said, had also reached him that an auto, also without lights, passed through Beamsville, bound east, at about 5.30. The doctor thinks that this goes a long way towards clearing up the mystery as to how the men got away so completely and so quickly.

The efforts of the provincial authorities will now be directed towards finding out whether or not an automobile passed over the bridge at the Falls. Detective Miller made an examination of the asylum grounds and buildings yesterday afternoon, but refused to give out anything to the press about any discoveries he may have made.

The following is a description of the two men:

William Alexander Moir—Height, 5 feet 6 inches; slightly built; dark hair and moustache; light-colored suit of clothes, with small check in it; tan lace boots; may be wearing a cap; age, 26 years and 6 months.

Robert F. Taggart—Fifty years of age; 5 feet 10 inches in height; stout build; grey hair and moustache; blue eyes; dark brown suit made in the institution, fitting loosely; black lace shoes.

It was 5.30 in the morning when Taggart's cell door was found open. Investigation then revealed Moir's absence. A knotted sheet hung from his window to the ground. It was believed he was furnished with keys from the outside. A bar in the narrow transom above the door had been removed sometime before evidently, the three-inch screws being replaced by wooden imitations until the time came to get away. Then Moir squeezed through the 30 by 6 inch aperature, a wire, which he attached to a bolt on the door, easing his descent. He then made his way to the clothes-room and put on day attire. Then he released Taggart, who evidently left in a hurry.

This was Moir's third attempt at escape. Once he attacked the guard, next he sawed the window bars with a file. Moir was convicted in April 1908, at London, Ont., for shooting Col.-Sergt. Lloyd at London barracks, while drunk. Medical evidence was submitted to show that he was an epileptic and he escaped the gallows.

Taggart, a milkman, killed his wife at their home in Sydenham street, Toronto, early one winter's morning in 1898, and surrendered to the police.

Boy's Neck Broken.

Toronto, Aug. 16.—Douglas Allen, four years of age, 115 De Grassi street, was picked up yesterday noon in Bolton avenue, just after a hook and ladder truck had passed. He was taken into a nearby house by Policeman Miller, and attended by Dr. Hamilton, Broadview avenue, who discovered that his neck was broken. It is believed that he was trying to steal a ride on the truck, which was on its return from a blacksmith shop. No one on the truck saw the accident.

Coroner Graham will hold an inquest Aug. 25.

Charged With Bigamy.

Toronto, Aug. 16.—Dr. Herbert E. Sheppard, 64 years of age, who has practiced at 18 Gloucester street for a number of years, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Inspector Kennedy, of the morality department, upon a charge of bigamy. The doctor admits three marriages, but says that the first was dissolved, and that he had not heard of his second wife for more than seven years, when he contracted the last union in 1908. He was admitted to bail in the sum of $1,000.

Exposition Will Reopen.

Brussels, Aug. 16—It will take many days to place the Belgian Exposition in a fit condition for the re-opening, although a large majority of the buildings are still intact. The known loss caused by the fire which swept through the "White City" yesterday is between $6,000,000 and $10,000,000. This is chiefly confined to the Belgian and British sections, but the damage by smoke and water has been general, and will add materially to the total loss.

Double Drowning.

Brockville, Aug. 16.—A double drowning accident occurred Sunday at Crippen Lake, of the Rideau chain, near Lyndhurst, the victims being two young men named Harry Raymond and John Carlyle.

They, with three others, were bathing, and, getting beyond their depth, were drowned before assistance could reach them.

Attacked Wife With Club.

Winnipeg, Aug. 16.—A farmer named Knight, a few miles from this city, yesterday attacked his wife with a club. The hired man, attracted by the screams, came to her rescue, and Knight, taking arsenic, rushed to the barn and set it on fire. Changing his mind, he left the burning building and was found in a field.

Barnardo Boy Sentenced.

St. Thomas, Aug. 16.—Alfred Tagg, aged 21, a Barnardo boy, accused of assault on an 11-year-old girl at Port Stanley on Thursday last, was sentenced by Magistrate Hunt to one year 11 months and 25 days in the Central Prison.

If a petcock be placed close to the cylinders in an under-water exhaust pipe of a motor boat and opened when the engine is shut down it will prevent water being drawn into the cylinders as they cool.

GOLD OF THE INCAS FOUND.

Bolivia May Become Centre of the World's Supply.

If government reports may be accepted as truthful, all the gold that has been taken out of the fields of California and the Klondike of Alaska will be insignificant compared with the product of the fields of Bolivia in South America within the next few years. The source of the wealth of the ancient Incas has been found in its unexplored interior. More gold is left there than was mined by the old civilized tribe of Indians and which enabled them to offer to Pizarro as a ransom for the Incan King gold to fill a room 22 by 27 feet. The same field were the source of the metal that enabled the Indian tribe to furnish the Temple of the Sun, which Pizarro's followers reported was "literally covered with plates of gold."

The report is made by Alexander Benson, the American secretary of the legation at Bolivia. He says that Bolivia may become the centre of the world's gold supply through the development of these fields by modern machinery. Here and there a shrewd Peruvian has plowed one and been rewarded with riches. The reason why these fields have not been developed has been the immense difficulty in reaching the fields and in transporting any of the products from them. Transportation is difficult in the extreme and the cost enormous. Rough mule trails are the only means of entering this region and the transportation of heavy machinery now is well nigh impossible until passable roads are built. The building of these roads and the other preparations necessary before the gold can be taken out and marketed affords a great opportunity for American capital and enterprise.

The gold is declared to be principally in the forest-clad ravines of the eastern Cordilleras, which culminate in the important River of Kaka. The trails that lead in here and the appearance of the soil show that mining has been carried out to a great extent by old methods, but the gold that could be reached only by modern mining methods is there still. This has been done by private parties that made large fortunes within a few years of working.

In the River of Kaka it is not unusual to wash a pan of surface dirt and find gravel averaging $1 a yard on the surface, which would indicate enormously valuable deposits below. Where the river widens out below Incahuara and the canyons give way to an open country, gravel is deposited in large island and bars. These form a natural gold-saving table for all the gold-bearing flooded rivers that emerge from the richest known part of the Andean mountain chain.

On the River Kaka, where washing tests for gold have been made, there is a very large proportion of black sand, which accompanies the gold in the residues washed. This black sand is very heavy, non-magnetic, and is likely to show under analysis, in addition to a considerable quantity of gold, both tin and platinum.

The Peanut's Perfections.

The man who buys 5 cents' worth of peanuts perhaps doesn't realize that his purchase is helping to build up one of the largest farm products in this country, now worth some $15,000,000 annually. The thin covering is very like wheat bran and is excellent food for live stock when mixed with other things. The shells are burned in the factories as fuel, and the ash is used for fertilizer. The vines make fine forage. Those peanuts that are not sold on the market are ground up into butter and into meal, which is used in the manufacture of confections of various kinds. But oil is the most highly prized by-product of the peanut, of which a bushel will yield about a gallon.—Harper's Weekly.

The Limitations of Science.

Johnny was sent to study mathematics, and the teacher told him that it was a true science.

"For instance," she said, "if it takes one man twelve days to build a house, then twelve men could build it in one day."

Johnny replied: "And 288 men will build it in an hour, 17,280 in a minute, 1,036,800 men will put it up in a second. Now, I don't believe they could build even a single brick in that time. Again, if one ship can cross the Atlantic in twelve days, twelve ships should be able to cross it in one day. I don't believe that either, so I'm not going to study mathematics." And Johnny left the teacher studying it herself.

Children's Answers.

The superintendents of public schools tell many anecdotes of odd answers which have been made by children to the questions of teachers.

One teacher explained to the class in a lower room that an island was "a body entirely surrounded by water." Then she asked one of the little fellows in the class, "Now, Willie, what is an island?" "It's a person in a bathtub, teacher," said the confident Willie.

Another teacher in the physiology class asked the class in general which was the most curious bone in the human body. "Please, ma'am," was the quick reply from a little girl, "it's the wishbone."

Toronto Men In Big Fight.

Toronto furnished more supporters of Jack Johnson and less spectators for the big fight in Reno than any city of a similar size on the continent.

It is a peculiar coincidence that the managers of both principals are Toronto men, viz., Sam Berger, manager of Jeffries, and Tom Flanagan, manager of Johnson. Berger spent his boyhood and attended school in St. Matthew's Ward, while, of course, Flanagan is at present a citizen of that city, with a legion of athletic followers. Johnson's recent frequent visits to Toronto make him popular, regardless of color.

Considerate.

"Have you ever done anything to make the world happier?" asked the solemn looking person with the unbarbered hair.

"Sure," answered the jolly man with the double chin. "I was once invited to sing in public and declined."

A familiar shaving paste known as cream of almonds is made by melting one part of caustic potash into three parts of lard with enough essence of almonds added to give it a flavor.

B. C. For Protection.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 17.—Following the cue given by Premier McBride, Vancouver yesterday tendered to Sir Wilfrid Laurier a non-political reception. On the Prime Minister's arrival, J. H. Senkler welcomed him on behalf of the Liberal Association, Mayor Taylor and members of the City Council gave an address of welcome, and President Buchan one from the Board of Trade.

The party then proceeded to Dominion Hall, where over four hundred sat down to luncheon. Later, Sir Wilfrid opened the British Columbia Exhibition before a distinguished company.

In the addresses presented a strong plea was contained for a higher tariff to protect the local lumber industry.

Sir Wilfrid noted in reply that the prairie provinces were inclined toward a low tariff on free trade sentiment, while British Columbia favorer protection. The matter would be referred to the Minister of Finance.

"I feel confident," he added, "that Mr. Fielding will be able to frame a moderate tariff which may be in the nature of a compromise, which, I hope, will be satisfactory to all sections of the country."

Thirty-Nine Were Drowned.

Gibraltar, Aug. 17.—The Spanish Martos foundered yesterday morning off Tarift, on the African coast, at the entrance of the Straits of Gibraltar, after a collision with the German steamer Elsa.

Thirty-nine were drowned, of whom 32 were passengers. The survivors were landed here.

The German boat stood by and put out small boats, which picked up the survivors, many of whom were found clinging to wreckage.

PEACE IS PROBABLE.

Judge Barron Says Toronto Street Car Men Will Not Spoil Fair.

Toronto, Aug. 17.—"I think that both parties have come so near together that an award may be made that will be acceptable to all parties concerned.

"Mr. Mackenzie is a sensible man, and I believe he will accept the award of the board, which will be made tomorrow night. The men are no fools either and they realize what a serious thing it would be to this city if a strike occurred. Why all business would come to a standstill and, even factories would have to close up."

So said Judge Barron last evening, after a day spent in further negotiation with William Mackenzie, president of the Street Railway Co.; General Manager Fleming, and representatives of the men at which George Gooderham, M.P.P., and president of the Canadian National Exhibition, was present as an urgent advocate of peace.

When it is considered that Judge Barron knows just what the award will be, and that he had discussed all points of the question with those who voice the will of both parties, it amounts to little less than a declaration.

Fire May Cause Financial Panic.

Brussels, Aug. 17.—Business men of Brussels are demanding that an extra session of the Belgium Parliament be called to make provision against a panic following the financial reverse occasioned by Sunday's disastrous fire that almost wiped out the Brussels Universal International Exposition.

The exposition was re-opened yesterday under the most discouraging circumstances. Only a handful of visitors were present, and it is now certain that the enormous crowds that were expected during the latter part of August and September will not materialize. This not only means that the exposition will be conducted at a tremendous loss, but that the merchants and townspeople will get practically no return on the heavy investment they have made. Already thousands of exposition employes have been let out and local labor conditions are in danger of being upset by this army of unemployed.

Parliament will probably be asked to vote a bonus to the promoters of the exposition and to inaugurate government works to provide for those out of employment.

A special commission yesterday began an investigation into the fire.

Brassey Loves Canada.

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—"I come to Canada because I love Canada."

With these words Lord Brassey, the distinguished English seaman, famous the world over for his cruises on his beautiful yacht, The Sunbeam, greeted a press representative when he stepped off the train.

After an absence of 38 years, Lord Brassey returns to Ottawa to confer with Hon. Sydney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, upon matters relating principally to immigration. His host was waiting at the station for him. Lord Brassey in the afternoon visited the experimental farm and drove through the city, and he left again on the afternoon train for Montreal. Lord Brassey has been called home to England to preside at a meeting of the association of Chambers of Commerce of the United Kingdom, of which he is president.

Rain Checks Forest Fires.

Kenora, Aug. 17.—The first heavy rain since March visited this district Monday night, when the precipitation between eight in the evening and four in the morning amounted to over two inches. It was accompanied by a violent electrical disturbance, which put the power plant out of business for some time and plunged the town in darkness. The rain has quenched the numerous forest fires which have been running unchecked in many localities. A boat brought in word yesterday that the precipitation was general twenty-five miles south, and if it covered a wide area its value to lumbering interests is incalculable.

Suicides to Evade Law.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 17.—To escape the law, Bartho Bednarsky, 49, of Buffalo, yesterday afternoon shot and killed his wife and himself in an apartment house here.

Bednarsky recently held up and robbed a man in Buffalo. He was trailed here by his victim, who reached the city about the same time as Bednarsky did yesterday. Finding himself trapped, Bednarsky used his revolver. When the shooting took place, the victim was in the City Hall, swearing out a warrant for Bednarsky's arrest.

Will Not Rest In Abbey.

London, Aug. 17.—The executors of the will of Miss Florence Nightingale, the "Angel of the Crimea," who died Saturday, definitely declined yesterday the offer of a public burial in Westminster Abbey among the historic great of England. They consider themselves bound by the terms of her will, in which she expressed a wish for a simple private funeral.

An Exciting Election.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 17.—Word was received here yesterday of a general fight in a school election in Breathitt County, in which Lewis Napier was shot and killed and several others more or less hurt.

Gaynor Still Improves.

New York, Aug. 17.—A bulletin at 9.30 last night says: "Mayor Gaynor has passed a very comfortable day. There has been a general improvement in his symptoms.—Arlitz, Dowd, Stewart, Parrish."

THIS DAY IN HISTORY.

Battle of Preston, 1648.

CURRENT EVENTS.

It was certainly a duck of a day for picnics.

The soft water came down very hard.

It looked like two strikes on the railwaymen.

However, the rain will do a lot of good to some people, so let us cheer up and watch the cisterns fill up.

This year of our Lord 1910 seems to be a great year for calamities Every day, almost, the papers have another horrible tale to unfold.

A man arrested in Toronto says he has three wives living, but he is not a bigamist. What is he then? A member of the Tom Pepper Club?

The free traders of the old country appear to believe that the request for free trade from the Canadian northwest means that Canada is about to espouse free trade. England is probably nearer protection than Canada is to free trade, and when the wage earner of the east speaks out this will be amply demonstrated.

The Edinburgh Scotsman is moved to bewail the passing of porridge. It remarks, somewhat sadly: "No one with his eyes open can fail to observe that in Scotland oatmeal is being gradually deposed from its former high place in the national dietary And there is no denying the value of oatmeal. Dr Franklin has said that the same amount of work may be obtained from oatmeal costing 3 1-2d as from butcher meat costing 3s 6 1-2d. There is something to be said too, for porridge as a promoter of longevity. The Scots who lived almost exclusively on oatmeal seldom died of anything but senile decay. The late Mr. Sydney Cooper, R. A., who came within near sight of his 100th birthday, attributed his long life, and excellent health entirely to porridge And if oatmeal could make such men as John Knox, and Drs. Chalmers, Scott and Bunrs, Carlyle and Macaulay, James Hogg and Hugh Miller, the Scots to-day—ay, and the English too—might well heap up the porridge dish and persuade their children to eat it."

A recent departmental return issued by the British Government contains an excellent summary of the empire's growth in population and trade. So widespread is the British Empire that the most recent figures whose compilation took till recently, only applied to the year 1908, and indeed the return shows good work in bringing the statistics up, even to that point The following figures indicate the Empire's growth in population in the past twenty-seven years:

United Kingdom, 34,884,848; 45,008,421.

Australia, 2,250,198. 4,275,306.

New Zealand, 489,933; 972,982.

Canada, 3,745,574; 6,945,000.

The total population of the Empire which in 1881 was 303,694,000 had increased by 1901 to 385,357,000 while the area had reached 11,340,000 square miles, giving an average population of 34 to the square mile.

The figures for the United Kingdom per square mile is 342.4. for British India, 213.3, for New Zealand 7.8, for Australia 1.3, and for Canada, 1.4 About three-quarters of the total population of the Empire are claimed by British India, which including the native states, has a population of nearly 300,000,000.

This is what the Picton Gazette has to say of the new tar macadam roadway now being put down in that town;

"For the past two weeks a part of the business portion of Main street has been rebuilt under improved crushed stone, which is supposed to bind them together and keep the water from getting into the street. Just how much better this is going to be than the ordinary macadam yet remains to be seen. It looks good, but has already been condemned as 'N G.' by the wise ones who daily assemble along the curb stone. On the other hand, however, those of the council who investigated its use in other places, say that it gives good satisfaction and is well recommended Whether it proves a failure, or otherwise the council deserves credit for trying to get something that wil be permanent, and put an end to the large expenditure annually for up keep of our Main st.

Old Bellevillians Woo'd the Muses.

The following lines were composed and read at a recent gathering of Belleville Old Boys at Minneapolis, Minn. They were composed in honor of Messrs. Stevenson, Holden and Bell, delegates to the International Typographical Union Convention from Toronto, Toledo and Montreal. At the conclusion of the reading of the poem all the former Bellevillians present signed their names. The lines follow:

The twin city Belleville boys, loyal and true
Gather here this night to welcome you,
Though we have wandered far through many states
We gladly come together our stories to relate—
And as we tell our tales, be they sad or bright,
Our hearts will burn for the spot where we first saw light.
Though the old town seems slow and tame
Our blood runs swift as we hear the name.
And memory turns back the wheel of time
And we grasp hands, for Auld Lang Syne;
Robert Bell, is known and dear to all,
At this time the representative of Montreal,
Quite consequential, perhaps my memory is dim,
Seems as though he used to bear the cognomen of "Slim."
Charley Holden, a young man much more discreet
With pleasant smile and kind word always we greet,
Tom Stevensen represents Toronto, manipulates the mats,
He lived near Flint's mill, location "Sawdust Flats."
To greet these young fellows we gladly come
To laugh and joke about old times at home,
And though our hair is gray, perhaps white—
We talk and tell stories and stay out late to-night.
Though the old town seems so slow and tame,
We have travelled far and widely spread its fame,
And sometime she will see a brighter day
Then we'll be glad to shout for the City of the Bay.

IMMENSE LAW FEES.

A SINGLE FEE OF $750,000 IN INDIAN LAND AFFAIRS.

Sulphur, Okla., August 16.—Lawyers' expense accounts running as high as $300,000, a single fee, already paid, amounting to $750,000, and contingent fees still pending that would aggregate about $5,000,000, figured in the investigation here of the Indian land affairs by the special committee appointed by the house of representatives.

It was pointed out that the Indians never obtained large amounts of money due them without having to pay large sums in the shape of fees, and although they employed regular lawyers on yearly salaries, extra fees were constantly paid for the employment of special counsel. The special fee of $750,000 was paid several years ago to J. F. McMurray and his law partners after they prosecuted what is known as the "citizenship case," which it is said kept off the rolls 32,000 persons who wanted to participate in the claims against the government.

George W. Scott, formerly treasurer for the Choctaw Indians, testified before the Gore investigating committee that he understood he was removed from office because of his activity in the land contracts held by J. F. McMurray, through which the latter would have made commissions amounting to $3,000,000.

Kingston, Aug. 16. — There are 150 delegates in attendance at the annual meeting of the Supreme Grand Lodge of the Loyal True Blues Association of British North America which opened its session this afternoon in the Orange Hall. Officers present include J. I. Hartt, of Orillia Supreme Grand Master; Grand Secretary Nicholas Ingram, Port Perry; Grand Treasurer, E. W. Sheriff, Picton. Before opening the Grand Lodge this evening, Mayor Couper delivered an address of welcome to the visitors on behalf of the city. GRAVE DIGGERS STRIKE.

FRENCH SOLDIERS COMPLAIN OF NEW DUTIES.

Paris, Aug. 16.—The strike of Parisian gravediggers is spreading seriously. At a meeting held at the Bourse du Travail, it was decided to call out the gravediggers and other workers in all the six cemeteries in the suburbs. The strike will then be general in the Paris district.

Great dissatisfaction is expressed in army quarters in Paris at the employment of soldiers to do the gravediggers' work, wash the tombstones, and keep the cemeteries in order. It is pointed out that the young men who are doing their military service expect to serve their country, and to learn soldiering, but do not expect to be set to work at any trade of which the members happen to be out on strike.

It is pointed out, too, that the police, who are paid for their work, could far better spare men for such odd jobs than the army, and best solution of all, say the malcontents—why not engage the immense army of unemployed in Paris, who ask nothing better than to earn a trifle at any job demanding unskilled labor, or even labor which requires a certain skill.

Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

San Francisco is determined to be the city in which the completion of the Panama Canal will be celebrated. 1915 is fixed for the event. Already, five years ahead, Chas. S. Fee, Chairman, Committee on Publicity and Exploitation, is urging all friends of San Francisco to request their representatives in Congress to select San Francisco as the celebration city. New Orleans and Washington are also aspirants, the City of the Golden Gate appears to have a long lead.

Among the interesting claims now advanced by Mr. McFee are that the citizens of San Francisco have subscribed $6,300,000, and will make it $7,500,000—and that the city and State of California will add as much or more; that 90 per cent. of the people who take vacations do so in the summer, and one of the factors influencing their destination is cool climate; that (contrary, possibly to general belief in the east) cool summer climate is San Francisco's strongest card, temperature averaging 59 degrees, which is only 7 degrees higher than winter; that the new San Francisco built in the past four years at a cost of $300,000,000, is the last word in the great Cities, and in itself is a magnificent exposition of everything modern and beautiful in structure and the things that stand for a clean, healthy place to live and do business; that it is best equipped in hotels, and finally that the success, financially and otherwise of the exposition is assured from the fact that experience has shown that 75 per cent. of the attendance at previous great expositions came from within a radius of 250 miles, and as San Francisco and the Cities around its Bay within 30 minutes ride have a population of 900,000, within 50 miles of San Francisco 1,000,000, and within 250 miles 1,400,000, the people nearby can be depended upon to make it go as well as to give sufficient life and snap to insure a pleasant reception for those coming from a distance.

By its enterprise at this early date San Francisco sets an example worth following to all Cities ambitious to hold great international expositions which usually are slow in commencing their preparations and incomplete and disappointing at their opening, thus resulting in unfavorable impressions being widely circulated that cannot be fully corrected by the best of later efforts.

LAURIER NOW AN IMPERIALIST.

Western sentiment, and the purity of the western air, has had a wonderful effect upon Sir Wilfrid and his star performer, E. M. Macdonald, M. P. These gentlemen have become Imperialists, and prate no more about having made Canada a nation, and that the accomplishment of that great end had been consummated by the creation of a Canadian Navy, with which to assist in defending England in case of war with foreign nations. His first speeches were not of such a character. Having reached the foot of the Rockies the performers began to sing a different tune, and boast of their love for the Empire and their great desire to remain a part of it.

A telegram from Calgary of the 14th inst., says:

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier made a strong Imperialistic speech. He said that he was more than ever satisfied that all the new settlers in the Canadian West were attached and faithful to the British connection. He believed that many persons in his audience would live to see Canada with a population of 50,000,000 people. "but," he added "whether we are 15,000,000 or 50,000,000, we will still sing "God Save the King."

These sentiments would charm the heart of Col. Denison, President of the Empire League. Here is another tit-bit;

"The new Canadian navy, he explained, was a step toward building up the Empire, which must some day depend for its existence upon the strength of the daughter nations. "If England is ever in danger—no, I will not say in danger, for England can never be in danger—if England is ever attacked, then the Canadian navy, the Australian navy and the South African navy will rush from the four corners of the world upon the enemy and crush him."

These were the sentiments of His Majesty's loyal Opposition in Parliament when the Navy Bill was being considered, and repudiated by Sir Wilfrid and his faithful followers. Why did not Sir Wilfrid tell his audience in Calgary that the Canadian Navy was not to "rush from the four corners of the world upon the enemy and crush him," as declared by Sir Wilfrid in Parliament, until his Cabinet had approved the action of Britain in declaring war, adding that he did not approve of the action of England and France in declaring war against Russia, nor of the Crimean campaign. Sir Wilfrid is the quintessence of a political charlatan. Wait until he speaks in Quebec, and as soon as he airs his eloquence in that province he will repudiate all his imperial utterances during his western tour.

Sir Wilfrid was followed by Mr. McDonald, his principal actor in the farce they were playing in Calgary He, the report says,

"Referred with pain and surprise to the charge that Sir Wilfrid was a separatist. "It was the French-Canadian Premier," he declared, "who gave us the British preference. The whole aim and ambition of his life has been the consolidation and preservation of the great Empire to which Canada belongs, and in whose councils she must some day have a voice and vote."

No one knows better than Mr. Macdonald that no preference was offered or given to England that was not offered to all the nations of the world All that any nation had to do was to conform to the terms of the Canadian tariff, and the preference was theirs. Public men know this yet the Laurierites are constantly harping upon giving a preference to England, as if it were a concession to the Mother Country alone. Less of such deception would be more honorable.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

BASEBALL

Belleville's Best to Play in Peterboro' Saturday.

Peterboro Review: Baseball fans will be given something really live to discuss this week, and also to witness on Saturday afternoon.

Since the decisive defeat of the West Ends by the T. A. S. baseball enthusiasm seems to have taken a sudden drop but the news that a picked team from the five City League teams of Belleville, will be here for Saturday afternoon itching to take the measure of the renowned T. A. S., has set all baseball followers agog with enthusiasm and anticipation.

Hopkins, the famous pitcher of the Belleville team, will be in the box. It will be remembered that this twirler delivered the goods for Lindsay when they played the T. A. S. here last Labor Day.

Some idea of the classy ball which the visitors play may be gleaned from the fact that in a seventeen innings game between the Grand Trunk and the Belleville Park Nines the score at the finish was only 5–4.

More particulars of the game will appear during the week, and judging from present indications it is a sure thing that a record crowd will be on hand when these teams clash.

If the T. A. S. hand out the same fine brand of baseball as they did on the memorable day of the defeat of the West Ends, it will certainly take some very fast work on the part of the visitors to annex the big end of the score.

BOXING

Johnson on the Stage

The harvest days are here for Jack Johnson, champion heavyweight pugilist of the world, says the Chicago Record Herald. Commencing to-day the big black will open a 30 weeks' tour before the footlights with the initial bow before a Cleveland audience. The man who stepped into fame and fortune by his defeat of Jim Jeffries left Chicago last night, making the last lengthy stay he will have at home for close to one year and a half.

Accompanied by his retinue, the titleholder pulled away from his home town with the announcement that he was about to make a cleanup through the theatrical game, and with a broad golden grin evinced the softness of being champ. It is thought that before Johnson gets through stringing his big Bull fiddle before audiences in every part of the country he will have cleaned up a sum which will eclipse the purse he grabbed off in the Reno fiasco.

After a week at Cleveland he will appear at Detroit, and later will be in Chicago for an engagement, following which he will head for the Northwest to take in the big cities in that section of the country.

Before his getaway Johnson had little to say on the fight situation, but seemed assured that his next big battle would be either in London or Melbourne, Australia. As for Sam Langford and his continued callings for recognition, Johnson had nothing to say, simply carrying out his former statement "that the Boston black was too much of a fake to mingle in the champion's game."

Following the tour of 36 weeks duration Johnson will hurry back to Chicago and prepare for his second invasion of Europe. His first stopping place will be at London, where he will open another theatrical tour and incidentally talk business with Hugh McIntosh, the Australian promoter, who is anxious to stage Johnson's next fight, whether it takes place in London or the Antipodes. There is a possibility, according to Johnson, of McIntosh attempting to rematch Tommy Burns, but the champ. is not adverse to meeting the Canadian again

HOCKEY.

Then Carry a Raffia Parasol.

THE NEW SUNSHADE.

Raffia makes our porch cushions this summer and the newest of our parasols, and a pretty, dainty, light kind of sunshade it is, to be sure, one that will stand any amount of wetting. Indeed, the raffia parasols may be carried right into the surf without damaging their beauty or usefulness.

In the illustration the model is in natural colored raffia, and the long fringe is an attractive finish. The handle is of brown wood and elaborately carved. The handle is long, as is the case on all the best parasols of the summer.

To Save Alcott Home.

Efforts are being made to inaugurate a movement for the preservation of the old Alcott homestead in Concord, Mass., where Bronson Alcott lived and died and where Louisa Alcott created the immortal children that run through the pages of "Little Men" and "Little Women." The place at present is fast falling into hopeless decay, and action must be started soon if it is to be preserved at all. "Perhaps if Miss Alcott had been dead two centuries instead of only about thirty years her former home would not be in such a dangerous plight as it is in today," said a New York woman who is trying to interest others in its preservation. "But by and by Miss Alcott will have been dead 200 years, and if Orchard House is not saved now American soil in future generations will be the poorer for our neglect. We never shall raise a harvest of ancient association for our land unless we take care of the associations while they still are comparatively modern."

Gardening For Nervousness.

Gardening as a curative pastime is the newest idea introduced by the head of a fashionable sanitarium for nervous women, and each patient has her particular plot to look after. She is even given the task of spading up the ground and is expected to spend a certain amount of time daily cultivating it regardless of the weather. On clear days, after the garden hour, the entire force of fair women is supposed to turn to and rake and burn leaves and fagots and play they are amateur farmers. The benefit that the out of doors life and interest do to the nerves is incalculable, and the novelty of it makes it something to be looked forward to.

What Ice Cream Should Be.

(By H. W. Wiley, Chief of the U. S. Bureau of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture)

Ice cream should be made from pure cream, fresh and derived under sanitary conditions. It should not contain over 100,000 bacteria per cubic centimetre. Only such flavoring matter should be used as is derived chiefly from fruits and nuts, including vegetable extracts, such as vanilline.

Ice cream positively should be eaten within 24 hours after its manufacture. It should be made locally, and consumed the same day. It should be eaten slowly, especially in hot weather. Such ice cream I consider wholesome when eaten in moderate quantities. The government officially defines ice cream as follows:

Ice cream is a frozen product made from sugar and cream, with or without flavoring, and contains not less than 14 per cent. milk fat. Fruit ice cream is a frozen produce made from cream, sugar and sound, clean, mature fruits, and contains not less than 12 per cent. of milk fat.

Nut cream is a frozen product made from cream, sugar and sound nonrancid nuts, and contains not less than 12 per cent. milk fat.

In order to comply with the Federal law, ice cream must come within these requirements, but there is little opportunity to apply the pure food law, as but little of it is shipped in interstate commerce."

DWARF TREES

How to Grow Aboreal Delights in Miniature.

Nowadays, when all things Japanese are so much in people's minds, and Japanese gardening, with its diminutive landscape features, its flowering shrubs and its dwarf trees coming into fashion, it may be of some interest to learn what may be done by ordinary people, with little or no technical knowledge, to imitate the art of producing miniature trees and shrubs, says London Queen. Of course, these could not bear comparison for a moment with those triumphs of skill imported from the "Land of the Rising Sun", firstly from want of the experience of generations of successful growers of these tiny treasures; and, secondly, because home grown specimens themselves can only number years of growth, instead of tens of hundreds of years, as in the former case.

A correspondent began experimenting fifteen years ago with an acorn, grown at first in water, and now possesses a charming little oak tree, about five inches high, six inches across the branches, growing in a three-inch pot. It is healthy and vigorous, though subjected to severe root pruning last year—fifteen years old. Holly seedlings were tried next, but failed, owing possibly to injudicious watering. Then a larch was potted, and it is now, at the age of six years, a quaint little "miniature tree" green and bright in its spring foliage, though owing to necessary pruning, possessing few of the larch's distinctive characteristics. It is four inches high, about four inches across the branches, and is in a 2 1-2 inch pot—six years old.

Each of the chief organs of the body is a link in the Chain of Life. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, the body no stronger than its weakest organ. If there is weakness of stomach, liver or lungs, there is a weak link in the chain of life which may snap at any time. Often this so-called "weakness" is caused by lack of nutrition, the result of weakness or disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases and weaknesses of the stomach and its allied organs are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the weak or diseased stomach is cured, diseases of other organs which seem remote from the stomach but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, are cured also.

The strong man has a strong stomach. Take the above recommended "Discovery" and you may have a strong stomach and a strong body.

THE INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE

FOR SATISFACTORY PRINTING

Milady's Mirror

Engraved faces are more often the result of habit than the marks of Time, that professional etcher that usually receives all the credit for feminine ugliness. Woman is not content with expressing herself in words. She must needs make little noses and funny faces to give completion to her ideas. If you wail about your lack of beauty watch yourself for one short day. You will be surprised to find what wonderful things you will do with your own face. If countenances were not so substantially built they would sooner show the wear and tear imposed upon them.

Wrinkles and lines are indexes to one's life book. The fretter has a signboard on her forehead, and she advertises her profession of official worrier by growing box plaits between her eyes, by allowing her mouth to droop at the corners and by taking on the plaintive portrait of misery in which she really rejoices.

But the optimist, the individual of good cheer and laughter, sails serenely along the high seas of existence with a smooth, nicely ironed face which makes her remain so young that she never really outgrows her happy days of mud pies and pinafores.

If Possible Ride Horseback.

Horseback riding is one of the best known exercises for women. It gives grace and health. Anything that makes for health in woman makes for beauty, for even the most famous beauty doctors will tell you to "begin at the root of all evil—the disordered stomach, where indigestion is centered. If you have indigestion I can do nothing for your complexion." Horseback riding is good to keep the liver wide awake and going all the time. A good liver means a good complexion, no bilious attacks, no head swimmings. Where can one find a greater delight than an early morning dash on a light footed, spirited animal? All the troubles that one had meant to worry about on that particular day fly on the feet of winged Mercury the moment the horse throws his head in the air and starts down the woody scented road at a brisk canter.

Chin Straps as Aids to Beauty.

Chin straps are peculiarly ingenious instruments of torture. The aeroplane figure calls for the long Gibson neck and throat and the Whistler chin, and in order to furnish this the chin straps must be worn for eight or ten hours at a stretch. Tight fitting bands bind the superfluous flesh around the neck, while other bands raise the chin and compress it to the proper tilt. Other bands are fastened tightly around the forehead and smooth out the wrinkles on the brow, while still others pin back the ears and iron out the drooping lines that sometimes run from the nostrils to the mouth. The rubber jacket is used simply for the purpose of reducing flesh, being worn whenever hard exercise is taken, and, uncomfortable though it is, it gives a good account of itself on the weighing scales.

The Girl Who Motors.

Here is a simple beauty suggestion. For the girl who motors, says an expert, an ounce of prevention is as valuable as the proverbial pound of cure.

Instead of getting the pores of the skin thoroughly filled with dust and dirt and then undoing the damage with cold cream she will find that her skin will be kept in better condition if she uses cold cream, taking care to rub it in thoroughly before putting on her veil. This prevents cold or dust injuring the skin, and just before she reaches her destination she can remove all traces of it with an old, soft handkerchief. All who have motored for some time take this precaution, but do not often impart the knowledge of it to their friends, although to do so would be a kindness.

Lettuce Cream For Summer Use.

A good cream for healing tanned and irritated skin: Four ounces almond oil, one ounce spermaceti, one ounce white wax and two ounces lettuce juice. The lettuce must be scalded with boiling water and allowed to stand a few minutes. Pour off the water and pound the lettuce to a paste in an earthen bowl or mortar, then strain through cheesecloth. Melt the first ingredients in a double boiler over a slow fire. Do not let them come to a boil. Just melt them, then drop by drop add the lettuce juice, constantly beating the cream with a fork until all the juice is added and the cream perfectly smooth and cold.

Massage of Hands.

Massage of the hands, and especially the fingers, will do much to keep them soft, firm and youthful looking. The hands, by the way, indicate age more surely than the face, a fact not generally known.

A Beauty Tip.

A skillful doctor of the scalp says she gets best results for the hair by working freely on the muscles that run down the neck at the ears.

After a long series of tests German scientists seem to have disproved an old theory that resin is a beneficial ingredient in soaps, their decision being that the washing power of a soap decreases as the resin content increases.

A NOBLE RED MAN.

He Was Not the Stately Chief Wolseley Expected to Meet.

Lord Wolseley was stationed in Canada many years ago. On one occasion he spent a holiday in the wilds, building a wigwam and practicing generally what we should now call the "back to nature" cure.

It was soon after his arrival in the country, and as the means of communication were still somewhat primitive he had never seen an Indian and was most anxious to make the red man's acquaintance. Some friends of his promised to send one or two to see him, as there was an encampment not very far away.

At last one morning Lord Wolseley was informed that a chief had called to see him. With his mind full of the conventional Indian, a man of commanding presence, arrayed in all the glory of paint and feathers, he eagerly stepped outside his wigwam to make his acquaintance. But he received a rude shock when he found a wizened gentleman dressed in a tattered frock coat and ancient waistcoat.

However, the general stifled his astonishment and played the genial host, although horribly bored at the incessant chatter of the Indian, who had been in the service of the Hudson Bay company and therefore could speak broken English fairly fluently.

At length, anxious to get rid of his visitor, he took a twenty-five cent piece out of his pocket and, fearing he might be grossly insulting his visitor, presented it to him.

The latter took it, looked at it carefully, felt the edges and then said:

"Can you mak' it half dollar?"

THE WET RAIN.

There Are Several Varieties, and All Have Their Whims.

Rain is principally composed of water, but it should not be confused with mining stock.

Rain always comes on Sunday afternoons and wash days.

Wash day may be changed to any day in the week, systematically or indiscriminately, but the rain will come.

Sunday afternoon, however, cannot be changed to any other afternoon. The rain will hold off until you are ready to go driving, and then the word will be passed along the mysterious currents of the air, and a double order of cirrus and cumulus will be hurried in from the west.

Also in the morning, when you leave home and carry your umbrella and raincoat, the rain will go away and sulk. But if you take heart of the fair sky and leave the umbrella and other trimmings then the rain will wait until you leave the office and then get you. Incidentally it will tuck a few grip and rheumatism germs into your system.

Rain is good for the crops, but why it takes you for a crop is hard to understand.

Rain never brought fame to any one except Noah. Probably on the day the flood began he watched the last picnic party drive out of town in a bus, shouting sarcastic things at him through the dust.

There are several varieties of rain, but the one most popular with the weather bureau is called "Probably."—Chicago News.

A Great Assistance.

"Good morning!" greeted the young man in the threadbare suit.

The millionaire turned around in his plush chair.

"Er—I think you have the advantage of me, young man," he said distantly.

"Why, don't you remember me, sir? I am broke. Two years ago you told me if I ever went broke to come around and see you."

The millionaire beamed a benevolent smile.

"So I did, my son; so I did. Here is the envelope all ready for you."

The young man took the bulky envelope, and his spirits rose like the mercury on a July day.

"Ah, a little assistance, I suppose?"

"No; a great assistance. It is a valuable little pamphlet I wrote during my spare time entitled 'How to Be Broke and Happy.'"—Chicago News.

Persian Shawls.

The "shal" of Kerman—whence our word "shawl"—is made of goats' hair. Like the carpets, the shawl patterns are learned by heart, and the work is even finer. Children also do this work. It is estimated that Kerman turns out $300,000 worth of shawls, handmade, a year. The finest product is a fir cone pattern, a rich color effect, made especially for the governor of the province, who wears it as a robe of honor on the Persian New Year's day.

He Got Her.

"It's so long since you called upon me," said the girl as she came down to the young man in the parlor, "that I was beginning to think you were forgetting me."

"I am for getting you," replied the smart youth, "and that's why I've called tonight. Can I have you?"

A Real Crisis.

"Johnnie, do you understand what is meant by a crisis?"

"Yes, mum."

"Tell us, Johnnie."

"Two out an' the bases full, mum."—Buffalo Express.

HE IS OFF FOR LONDON

Sir James Whitney Will Study Immigration Problems.

Premier of Ontario Will Be Away Five or Six Weeks to Visit the London Office—Farm Laborers and Domestic Servants Have Been the Specialty of the Agency This Year—Some of Newcomers Have Gone West.

Toronto, Aug. 17.—Sir James Whitney leaves this morning for his trip to the old country. He will sail from Montreal on Thursday on the Royal Edward. It is expected that he will be gone for about six weeks or so.

On being asked yesterday regarding his trip to England, Sir James said:

"I leave to-morrow morning and will be away five or six weeks. Some time ago an order-in-council was passed providing that in the future either a Cabinet Minister or the Deputy Minister of Agriculture should visit the Ontario Government Agency, in London, at least once every year with a view to observing the working of our immigration policy and other matters connected therewith.

"During the current year the efforts of the colonization bureau have been chiefly directed towards relieving the demand for farm laborers and domestic servants. We have been much encouraged by the result. Up to the present time about 1,600 farm hands have been distributed throughout the province; this is, of course, aside from the number placed by the Salvation Army and other agencies. It is likewise several times as large a number as has been placed any other year.

"After remaining in Ontario for a few months a number have left on harvest excursions for the west, but this number seems to be less than in previous years. This, of course, is one of the conditions which we have to meet, and just as we have to meet the fact that numbers of our school teachers soon after getting their certificates go to the Northwest to seek larger salaries.

"Outside of other organizations at least 500 domestic servants have been placed so far during the current year."

"The London office has had one of the busiest years in its history. There have been a great number of enquiries as to the investment of monies in Ontario. The official staff has been kept very busy supplying information not only as to the agricultural resources of the province, but also as to mining, manufacturing and other lines of activity. To such an extent has the work increased, that our London agent expresses the opinion that additional quarters must be secured in order to furnish sufficient accommodation for the work to be done.

"The Minister of Agriculture being unable to leave the province this summer, I am going over in connection with these matters. I will meet Mr. James, the Deputy Minister of Agriculture, and also the Minister of Education, shortly after my arrival in London, when we will take up the whole subject, including the suggestion as to additional quarters."

Alfonso to Stay In London.

London, Aug. 17.—According to the Central News yesterday, King Alfonso of Spain had ordered apartments put in readiness for him and Queen Victoria at the Spanish embassy in London, in anticipation of an indefinite stay in England as a result of the deadlock in the negotiations for a settlement of the dispute between the Spanish Government and the Vatican.

Crooked Work of Jury Panel.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Declaring from the bench that "crooked work is being done," Judge Kerston yesterday dismissed a panel of 100 veniremen called in the case of Lee O'Neil Browne, who is accused of bribing a legislator to vote for William Lorimer for United States Senator.

MAN, STUDY YOUR HAIR!

Then Before You Comb It Study the Architecture of Your Face.

Just as surely as hair is woman's crowning glory it is man's glorious crowning—that is, to those that have it. Those whose heads have pushed up through their hair usually use a huckaback towel for the delicate process of parting the hair, but unless one has the peculiar requirements it is not worth while to cultivate them.

Men with low, squatting foreheads should not pull their hair down over their brows, and men whose foreheads are beginning to work back should invite their locks down. If your hair has quietly slipped down toward your ears on each side, leave it there. If you bring it up in strings and wisps it will merely look like climbing vines and will never really have the free and easy homelike appearance that ought to be the part of all natural hair.

Do not part your hair any earlier than you can help. Hair is in a hurry these days, anyway. Usually it doesn't stay more than long enough to make sure that the baby is going to be a boy before it hastens off. It will part of itself soon enough the best you can do.

Before combing your hair you should get acquainted with the architecture of your face. If your face is of the harvest moon variety do not inlay your hair. Puff it up as much as possible. It's better to look like a feather duster on a Monday morning than a scratched billiard ball on a Saturday night.

But if your face is of a long, galloping ensemble do not encourage your hair to fluff. Instead keep it down close to headquarters. If your head inclines to run up to a cone do not spread your hair around in imitation of a palm tree thatch. Rather fluff it up and windrow it for fear some unbred person will begin to talk about spring radish tops.—Homer Croy in Delineator.

UNCLE SAM'S DOCTORS.

Rank and Pay of Physicians in the Government Service.

Uncle Sam employs more than 1,000 physicians.

These doctors are pretty evenly divided between the medical corps of the army, the medical corps of the navy, the marine hospital and the public health service. The complete army medical corps includes 444 medical officers in addition to the medical reserve corps, the hospital corps, the nurse corps and the dental corps. The medical corps embraces "a surgeon general with the rank of brigadier general, 14 colonels, 105 majors and 300 captains or first lieutenants, with the rank, pay and allowances of officers of corresponding grades in the cavalry arm of the service."

The pay of doctors is interesting. The lowest rank held by medical officers is that of first lieutenant. The medical lieutenant gets $2,000 per annum, or $166.66 monthly. At the end of three years he is promoted to captain and receives $2,400 a year. In two years he receives an increase of 10 per cent, or five years' service, making $2,640, or $220 per month. After ten years' service the pay would be $2,880, or $240 per month. The pay attached to the rank of major is $3,000 per year, which, with 10 per cent added for each five years' service, becomes $3,600 after ten years' service, $3,900 after fifteen years' service and $4,000 after twenty years' service. The monthly pay of lieutenant colonel, colonel and brigadier general is $375, $416.66 and $500 respectively.

In addition to their salaries, officers are furnished with comfortable quarters and the keep of two horses free, and groceries, fuel, etc., at wholesale prices.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Bald Eagle's Nest.

Among birds the home of the bald eagle is perhaps the most striking, possibly because of the majesty of the bird itself. It appeals to the imagination. Built of huge sticks loosely interwoven and situated on some lofty and inaccessible ledge, with the bones of the eagle's victims scattered round about it, it gives a proper setting to the stern and savage character of its builder. Here the eagle reigns supreme, and here year after year he and his mate rear their young. This is the aerie from which he can scan the whole countryside and, like the robber barons of old, levy toll on all who pass his door.

Her Lost Jewels.

Backlots—What's this I hear about Mrs. Swellman being robbed of her jewels? Subbubs—Fact. They're gone, and Mrs. Kraft is the guilty party. Backlots—What! You don't mean to say she stole— Subbubs—What else can you call it? She offered the cook 15 shillings a week and the chambermaid 10 shillings, and now she's got 'em.—London Tit-Bits.

A Substitute.

"Pardon me, gentlemen," said the individual who had just moved into the little town as he entered the grocery store, "but is there a chicken raiser here?"

"Why don't you take an ax?" asked the village Talleyrand. "A razor will lose its edge if you use it on a chicken."

Well Fed.

The Barmaid—Your dog is getting very fat. What do you feed him on, Mr. McPherson? McPherson—Oh, I dinna gi'e him ony reg'lar meals. Jist whenever I drop in for a drink he gets a biscuit.—London M. A. P.

Will Go to China.

Montreal, Aug. 17.—Yesterday was election day in Chinatown in Montreal and in fact practically all over the Dominion. The election, however, was not altogether of a local character, as the representatives of the Chinese are to go to China to represent the Chinese of Canada. Yesterday some twenty-five hundred Chinamen cast their ballots with the result that Lee Mon How, Montreal, and Houn Suam, Ottawa, will represent the Chinese of Eastern Canada at the next assembly. Manitoba and the west also elected two.

FOOTPRINTS OF GLACIERS.

They Present a Serious Problem For Future Generations.

The site of New York city was once buried under hundreds, possibly thousands, of feet of ice. Ample proof of this is found in many places on Manhattan Island, the most tangible being the "footprints" of glaciers. Examine the surface of the rocks in Central or Riverside park and you will find numerous peculiar marks.

These peculiar marks, called by geologists "striae," are the "footprints" of glaciers. They were produced by the grinding of pebbles upon the rock surfaces under the glaciers as the latter moved to the sea.

How long ago it was that glaciers flowed over Manhattan Island is a matter of uncertainty. The period has been variously estimated at from 5,000 to 50,000 years. The present trend of opinion is in favor of the smaller estimate. But, knowing as we do that the site of New York city was glaciated at a time remote or comparatively recent, the portentous question arises, Are the glaciers likely to descend on it again? No human means could arrest their irresistible advance. Palatial homes, towering skyscrapers, East river bridges, all the magnificent monuments of human achievement, would be ground into atoms and swept into the ocean.

Striae, or "footprints" of glaciers, are found from the highest northern and southern latitudes to the equator. Was the entire surface of the earth at one time covered with ice? Some geologists have taken that view, but the evidence does not warrant it.

That the earth has changed its axis from time to time and is still changing it is a fact well known to astronomers. It is conceivable, therefore, that in the course of ages, before the earth's crust assumed its present formation, the poles may once have been on the present equatorial line and the equatorial line where the poles now stand. By oscillation of the globe and consequent interchanging of polar and equatorial lines every part of the earth's surface must have been successively glaciated. Such a general lateral movement of the earth furnishes a reasonable explanation of the glacial "footprints" everywhere found.

The north is undoubtedly growing warmer. Some 500 years ago Alaska was still covered with glacial ice. Five hundred years from now there will scarcely be a glacier to be found there except in the highest mountains. "The next generation will find few of them with their fronts still in the sea," says Henry Gannett in Dellenbaugh's "North America of Yesterday." The present trend on the earth's axis is to push the north pole farther north. But the question is, How long will this movement continue in the present direction? It may continue until Greenland shall come again to have a temperate climate, or it may be reversed in the near future to bring the ice back to the destruction of great cities. This is a problem for posterity. The present generation need not lose any sleep over it. But some future generation may find itself confronting a serious condition.—William E. Simmons in New York World.

What Good Is Father?

Father has always been the "goat." It was always father who held the family from the achievement of its social ambitions. It was father who made blunders that put the family to shame. Father never would take to the new fashioned ideas. He was against the domination by the younger generation, against suffrage, against women's clubs, against the teaching of French to the children—in a word, a natural reactionary. It was but natural, therefore, that father should become generally known as a back number, useful only in bringing home money and writing checks.—Washington Post.

East Indian Monkeys.

A naturalist who has traveled in the East Indies says: "The effect on the monkeys of man's appearance is most interesting. The expression of their emotions is certainly almost human as they sit and stare at him, coughing and snarling with anger and contempt, drawing back their heads and throwing the hand before the face with a gesture of abhorrence and other movements indicative of shocked and outraged feelings. But predominant is the expression of absolute horror, which, coming from those we consider our still degraded cousins, is to our superiority very aggravating."

A Healthful Costume.

When the Fraser highlanders landed in North America in 1757, it was proposed to change the dress on account of the cold winters and hot summers. The officers successfully opposed this and were ultimately justified by the highlanders being the healthiest soldiers in the army. In the campaign in Holland in 1794 some regiments lost as many as 300 from disease, but the Black Watch, which had 300 recruits in its ranks, had only twenty-five casualties, including the killed in battle.

LEFT HOME IN SABOTS.

When the Late Jules Renard Fooled His Mother.

M. Jules Renard, the well-known French author, who has just died, did not, as so many famous Frenchmen have done, come to Paris in "sabots," but it was in sabots that he left his native village. The charming writer of "Poil de Carotte" thus describes his departure from home:

"For a long time I wanted to go to Paris and earn my living. But my mother was opposed to my departure, and she kept a strict watch on me, fearing that I would leave home without her permission. Every morning, as I got up before she did, she listened for the sound of my footsteps. If she heard my sabots she said to herself, 'He can't go very far.' But if she heard me walking about in my boots she would cry anxiously from her bed, 'Where are you going with your boots on? It is neither a holiday nor the day of the fair.' I replied: 'Mother, I'm going to the plow, and I put on my boots because it's raining, and my sabots would stick in the mud.' And I dared not leave home that day. One morning, however, I left the farm with my boots under my arm, at the same time making a lot of noise with my sabots. Some distance from the village I took off my sabots and threw them over the hedge of a little field belonging to my mother. Then I put on my boots, and continued my way towards Paris. When my mother took the cow to the field she found my sabots. At first she did not understand. But when she called me and I did not answer, she returned to the house and began to search for my boots. When she was tired of looking for them she sat down in a corner of the chimney and cried a long time."

M. Renard was the mayor of Corbigny, in the Nievre. Every Sunday he contributed to The Journal de Clamecy, and this is the sort of thing he used to give the peasants. Writing of The Journal Officiel, posted up on the wall of the mairie, and which no one ever reads, he said:

"I had forgotten the goats. One of them never misses a number. Standing on its hind legs, with its front legs resting on the poster, it moves its horns and beard from right to left, like an old woman reading. When it has finished reading, as the official sheet has an appetizing smell of fresh paste, the goat eats it. After nourishing the mind, one must feed the body. Thus nothing is lost in the commune. What a pity that all novel readers have not the stomach of this practical goat! They might then eat the books they had read, buy more, and so the man of letters would in the end be able to eat in his turn."—Paris Correspondence London Globe.

King of Arms a Song Composer.

Sir Alfred Scott-Gatty, Garter King of Arms, who was a prominent figure at the recent solemn functions in London, is one of England's most famous popular song composers and his "True Till Death," "Little Songs for Little Children," "The Goose Girl," and others have been instanced as examples of his talents in that direction. Few, however, who witnessed Garter King of Arms proclaiming George V. in all the glory of his mediaeval trappings and listened to his Majesty's phraseology, associated him with those typically negro plantation ditties which bear his name both as composer and author. Millions have sung the choruses of "De Ring Tail Coon," "De Ole Banjo," and "Dat's Berry Queer," to mention three of Sir Alfred's most popular efforts in negro minstrelsy. Altogether he has hundreds of plantation songs and many more nursery rhymes and children's songs to his credit.

The Druggist Lost In Ibsen.

Some one in Scandinavia unearthed the report of the examiners on Dr. Ibsen's papers at his examination for the degree of bachelor. It runs as follows: Norwegian, good; Latin prose, good; Latin essay, fairly good; Latin conversation, moderate; Greek, bad; arithmetic, bad; German, very good; French, good; religious knowledge, good; history and geography, good; Hebrew, good; geometry, good. General remarks: A young man not to be despised. In spite of many "goods," however, Ibsen was plowed owing to his deficiencies in Greek and arithmetic. He aspired in those days to be a pharmaceutical chemist and, failing to satisfy the examiners, had to seek some other opening in life.

Serious Enough Business.

"Where's your father?" asked the man on horseback.

"Up the river fishin'," answered the boy.

"Where's your big brother?"

"Down the river fishin'."

"What are you doing?"

"Diggin' bait."

"Hasn't your family anything to do but amuse itself?"

"Mister, if you think we're doin' this for fun you wait an' hear what maw says if we come home without any fish."

No Performance.

Little Marian had been taught several pieces which she was called upon to speak on various occasions. There came a time, however, when the worm turned, and on being requested to speak for a visitor one day she absolutely refused. The assembled family coaxed, but in vain, and finally the visitor said, "I don't believe Marian can speak a piece."

Upon this Marian took her finger out of her mouth and said solemnly, "Mrs. Wobinson, I can, but I ain't!"

Regular System.

"Nothing ever goes to waste in this house," said the landlady from her seat at the head of the table.

"What do you do, then, madam, with what's left over?" a new boarder asked.

"I hash it, of course," she answered.

"But what do you do," the boarder persisted, "with the hash that's left over?"

"Why, rehash it."

Youthful Taste.

"We keep our own cow," explained the hostess proudly, "so we're sure of our milk."

"Well," interrupted the small son of the guest, setting down his cup, "somebody's stung you with a sour cow."

Nine Points In Law.

A three-year-old was being made ready for a bath, much to her discomfort, as she heartily disliked soap and water. "Don't dit water in my eyes," she said, "and don't dit soap in my nose."

Thinking to quiet her, her mother said, "Never mind, Dorothy; it's my nose, anyway."

"Well, I don't care," replied Dorothy, with feeling; "it's me that's using it."—Delineator.

HAROLD

On Friday night about seventy-five neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Woodward gathered at the's home to spend a last evening in social intercourse before Mr. and Mrs. Woodward leave for their new home near Edmonton. Following is the address:

Mr. and Mrs. Woodward,

Dear Friends,—We, your friends and neighbors have gathered here to-night to spend a social evening with you, and it is with deepest regret that we feel the time has come to sever the ties that have bound us so long.

As you go out into the broader world and form new friends and neighbors we trust you will not forget the true friends you have left in Rawdon. For fifty years some of us have known you, and have had pleasures and sorrows in common and have always found you sympathetic ever ready to give the glad hand to any whom you could help. Your cheery smiles and pleasant words will always be remembered and will be referred to when you are far away. We can only wish that success and prosperity will attend you in the new home to which you are going.

As a small token of our esteem and respect we ask you to accept this purse and we hope and pray that God in His infinite mercy may lead you by pleasant ways and help you to establish a home

As sweet as Heaven designed it
Nor need we roam to bring it home
Though few there be that find it;
We seek too high for things close by
And lose what nature found us
For life hath here no charms so dear
As home and friends around us.

Signed on behalf of friends and neighbors.—

ALEX. JOHNSTON,
THEO. M. REID.

Hon. Mackenzie King's Trip.

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—The Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Minister of Labor, left yesterday afternoon for Montreal, when he will sail to-day on the Royal Edward to attend a number of international conferences on important questions of social reform.

The orders in council deputing the Minister of Labor as a representative of Canada at the several conferences were passed some weeks ago, prior to the departure of Sir Wilfrid Laurier for the west.

The conferences in question are the International Congress of Social Insurance, to be held at The Hague on Sept. 6 to Sept. 8; a congress respecting higher technical education, to be held at Brussels Sept. 9 to 12; international conference on unemployment, to be held at Paris, France, Sept. 18 to 21; International Association for Labor Legislation, to be held at Lugano, Switzerland, Sept. 26 to 28, at which will be specially discussed the question of the eight-hour shift in uninterrupted processes, and the question of a minimum wages policy in connection with home work.

Not Much Bad Money.

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—Enquiry was made at the Finance Department yesterday in regard to reports that great quantities of counterfeit silver are in circulation throughout Canada.

It appears that the impression has got abroad that on all genuine silver coinage, the small crown on one side is not opposite the crown on the King's head, but on the opposite edge of the coin.

It is explained that this is true, in so far as coinage minted previous to Jan. 1, 1908, is concerned, but since that date, when the Canadian mint opened, coins have been so made that big and small crowns are opposite one another.

It is asserted at the Finance Department that there was never a time when there was less counterfeit money in circulation.

Picture of the Empire.

London, Aug. 17.—The proposed festival of Empire is being enlarged on novel lines. It will be the Empire in miniature, with replicas of overseas Parliament Houses, a model of the all-red route, with ingenious scenic effects. Lord Desborough is arranging an imperial sports meeting.

Raspberry Buns.

Scald five cupfuls of milk. When cool add one teaspoonful of salt, one yeast cake and sufficient flour to make a drop batter. Beat well and set aside to cool. Cream together one pound of butter and one pound of sugar and stir it into the sponge when light. Add more flour to make a soft dough and set aside to rise a second time. Make up into small round buns, cut a slit in the bottom of each and work in a half of a teaspoonful of raspberry jam, pinch the cut together and place the buns on greased tins, cut side downward. When light bake in a hot oven and wash over with a little beaten egg while hot.

Cherry Sponge.

Soak one-half of a box of gelatin in one-half of a cupful of cold water. Pit one quart of stemmed cherries, steep the pits in one cupful of hot water for half an hour, then strain. Add to the water one cupful of sugar, bring to the boiling point and boil for three minutes. Pour over the cherries, cover and let stand for ten minutes, then press all through a colander. Dissolve the gelatin over hot water, add to the cherry mixture and set away until it begins to thicken. Add the well beaten whites of three eggs and beat on ice until all is thick and light. Turn into a wetted mold and set in a cold place until firm.

One Cause of Bad Coffee.

The cause for unpalatable coffee may often be traced to the cotton bag used in making it. Coffee, like butter and milk, has the quality of absorbing flavors from other foods, and if the bag has not been properly cleansed it may be sure to take the edge from the flavor of the coffee. The bag cannot be scalded in soapsuds and ever again be free from a taint of the suds. Once a week is not too often to make a fresh bag from new cheesecloth. After use it should be washed in clear water and be scalded and dried.

A Fine Shortcake.

For delicious shortcake—the most delicious known—make baking powder biscuits, break them in two while hot, arrange them broken side up on a platter and pile each with strawberries that have been cut in two or three pieces and left in sugar for half an hour or so, or the berries may be mashed and sweetened. There should be a good allowance of berries and juice in a bowl to serve as sauce on the biscuits.

Vanilla Ice Cream With Maple Sirup.

Put two or three tablespoonfuls of maple sirup in the bottom of a sherbet cup, add a well rounded tablespoonful of vanilla ice cream and sprinkle a tablespoonful of chopped walnuts on the top of the cream. Caramel or chocolate sirup may be used in the same way, or preserved strawberries or bar-le-duc currants may replace the sirups.

Oatmeal Soup.

Have three pints of broth—lamb, veal or chicken—nicely flavored with onion, celery, parsley, herbs and carrot; add one-fourth of a cupful of oatmeal and stir until boiling. Let simmer an hour, then strain. When ready to serve stir in the yolks of two eggs beaten and mixed with half a cupful of cream. Do not let boil after the addition of the egg yolks.

THROWING THE LASSO.

Cowboys Not the Only Adepts at Roping —Tugboatmen Also Handy

The cowboy is not the only man on earth who can rope things. The tugboatman also is pretty handy with the lasso.

When a tugboat comes alongside a wharf there is very likely to be somebody there willing to take a line and drop it over a spile, but if there shouldn't happen to be there may be on the boat a deckhand who can drop the loop of a hawser over that spile without leaving the boat, who can lasso the spile. In fact there are plenty of deckhands who can do that, throw the hawser up over the rail of the boat and over the stringpiece of the wharf, to have the loop drop with certainty down around the hitching post.

Twelve or fifteen feet is about as far as such a lasso can be thrown, on account of the hawser's weight; that length of it is about as much as any deckhand can handle, but even at that distance lassoing the post is a nice thing to do, as any novice would discover who tried it. The deckhand can do a good deal better still with a heaving line.

Let the boat be coming alongside a wharf or alongside another boat or lighter moored to the wharf end, and if the occasion requires it a deckhand on the approaching boat will make a bowline in the end of a heaving line and throw that a distance of twenty-five feet, the lasso loop on the end of the line to settle with precision around the spile or timber head aimed at; the expert gets it every time. Then if this is a heavy heaving line and the tugboat isn't too big they may by judicious handling haul the boat alongside by this heaving line if they are going to stay there only a little while without putting out a hawser at all.

Tongue Can Distinguish Four Tastes.

Only four distinct taste qualities are discoverable by the human tongue, is the announcement of a scientist, and he goes on to show in just what particular portion of that organ these differentiations are possible.

Sweets and salts, two of the taste qualities, are observable at the tip of the tongue, and he points out that in one's determining whether the white crystals be salt or sweet the tip of the tongue unconsciously is used. Sour and bitter flavors are the only strictly tongue tastes and can be determined only upon being carried back upon the tongue toward its root, when the sensations will be interpreted to the brain by the edges of that organ.

Dry substances that remain dry cannot be tasted, and many things remain tasteless, but because they are not soluble in water. Again, spices are differentiated through the correlative sense of smell. Holding the nose and chewing a raw onion and a raw apple by turns the gustatory nerves will show little or no difference in the flavor of the two.

To prevent explosions of coal dust in mines, experiments are under way in Germany in which water is pumped into borings under pressure. It thus is forced into fissures and, after it is pumped out, the coal can be broken down with picks without blasting.

Motive In Decorations

The primary motive in Wall Covering is not merely to "ornament" the room as pictures would but to MAKE THE WALLS DISAPPEAR, to help us forget their BOUNDARY.

This motive is clear enough in the splendid Tapestries of early date, probably the first and finest Wall Coverings ever used The subjects and colorings of these Tapestries show that they were designed to carry the imagination beyond the prison-like stone walls into the freedom, light and color of the great outdoors.

THE DESIGNS, COLORINGS and quality of our papers carry a guarantee of work that is backed by reputable experance and present efficiency that keeps our papers ALWAYS IN THE LEAD for decorative salability.

David McConnell Must Answer Very Serious Charge.

David McConnell, the young man who was arrested at Trenton yesterday afternoon and brought down to the city, was this morning taken to Yarker, near Napanee, by County Constable Curl. The charge against McConnell reads that he did, on the 5th day of August, obtain by false pretences a horse from Ernest L. Amey. It is alleged that the accused disposed of the horse in this vicinity. It is also alleged that McConnell procured, by some unfair means, a buggy, and a set of harness. Through the efforts of the police here McConnell was apprehended in Trenton. The accused lived near this city, and is well known in this vicinity.

Former Bellevillian Gets Good Position.

The appointment of Mr. George A. Kingston, Barrister, of Toronto, to the position of Assistant Manager of the Union Trust Company, is another instance of the inroad upon the ranks of the legal profession by the Trust Companies of the Province in their outlook for men. This is a new appointment made necessary owing to the rapid expansion of the Company's business.

Mr. Kingston's eighteen years experience since being called to the bar in 1892 first in general practice with the late Judge Lount's firm, and in more recent years in commission with the Claims and Legal Department of the Employers Liability Assurance Corporation, specially fit him for this new position.

Mr. Kingston will be remembered in Belleville as a student with the old firm of Clute & Williams during the years 1888 and 1889. He spent his early life on the farm in Rawdon Township, where he was born. He is a son of Mr. Charles Kingston, now retired, living in the Village of Stirling.

As a boy he attended the public school at West Huntingdon, and later the high schools at Belleville and Campbellford His many friends in this city and county will be pleased to learn of his success.

Inquests to be Held In Deloro and Madoc

County Attorney Anderson left the city to-day for Deloro and Madoc Township, where he will represent the Crown in two inquests which will be held this evening and to-morrow.

At Deloro last week an Assyrian, whose name we were unable to ascertain, was killed at the Deloro mines by an electric shock. It is alleged that the unfortunate man was doing something at an electric switch that he had no right to do, when he was killed.

The second inquest is that upon the body of E. Eggleton, who lost his life by the collapsing of a bridge over a stream in Madoc township. Eggleton was going across the bridge upon a traction engine when the accident occurred. He was, it is said, crushed to death between the tender and engine when the bridge went down. Dr. Harper, of Madoc, is the coroner, who is conducting the enquiries.

Serious Accident to Shannonville Lady.

Mrs. Wm. Doxtator, of Shannonville, drove in to the city last Friday with her husband and little daughter. While attempting to step into the rig, to go home, in some way Mrs. Doxtator missed her footing and fell to the sidewalk with her baby in her arms. On being picked up and medical aid summoned she was found to be suffering with a bad fracture of the ankle. She was taken home and is now doing as well as can be expected.

In Memory Of Late King Edward V11.

SIR ERNEST CASSEL'S PROJECT TO HONOR HIS FRIEND, HIS LATE MAJESTY.

Berlin, August 16—Sir Ernest Cassel the English financier, has arranged according to an announcement made here to-day, to establish a foundation of $1,000,000, the income from which is to be used for the benefit of poor Germans seeking employment in England, and poor British subjects seeking work in Germany, who are without money for their support.

The new foundation will be in memory of the late King Edward of Great Britain, who was a friend of Sir Ernest, and with whom the financier had been closely associated for many years.

Sir Ernest Cassel, though a British subject, has retained his interest in his native land, Germany. He was born in Cologne, the son of a German banker, in 1852, and, in addition to his English knighthood, he wears the Order of the Crown of Prussia, first class, one of the highest German decorations.

Belleville's City Fathers in Picton.

Picton Gazette: Mayor Marsh of Belleville, accompanied by the following gentlemen of his council: Aldermen Ackerman, Adams, Chown, Carlaw, Canning, Knox, Lott, Robinson, Sills, Wallace,; Messrs. Wm. Black, Bert Black, W. C. Mikel, City Clerk, and Mr. Lindsay, city engineer came to Picton on Friday to inspect our new street building process. They are up against the same problem as ourselves with regard to street building, and are watching all the new processes for permanent street making with a view of adopting something that is good and not too expensive. The Mayor expressed himself as quite pleased with the process but said he would like to see the street a year hence, before passing judgment.

Got in Wrong Stall

Maspeth, L. I., Aug. 16. — Dan Friedman's baby cried for milk earlier than usual this morning, so the kind father went to the stable in the dark to milk the gentle cow. He was very sleepy as he placed his three-legged stool in position, put his pail down and groped for the animal.

"Get over there, Bossy!" he exclaimed, angrily, administering a slap on the animal's flank.

At the German hospital, a kind nurse explained to Friedman that he had gotten into the stall of the mule instead of the cow, and as soon as his four ribs mended he would be able to return to his pastoral home.

MINISTER SHOVELLED COAL TO EARN MONEY.

TO PAY FUNERAL EXPENSES OF HIS SON—HAD TO RESIGN PASTORATE OWING TO SMALL SALARY.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 16.—A pitiful example of the overworked and underpaid Methodist clergy in the Michigan diocese has just been brought to the attention of the Church authorities. Because he was unable to support his family on $400 a year, Rev Enos S. Dutcher was compelled to resign his pastorate at Stittsville, Missaukee county, two weeks ago. In expectation of being able to earn more money he brought his wife and children to Grand Rapids, but ill-fortune still pursued him, and a few days ago his 14-year-old son died Without money Rev. Mr. Dutcher too proud to ask assistance, secured work for two days shovelling coal in order to get sufficient funds to bury his child. When the case became known and help poured in, it was found that the minister's total assets were $1.50 in cash.

OTTAWA MAN NURSED BY FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE.

Ottawa, August 16.—Henry Beckingham, aged 82, of Ottawa, was through the Crimean War, and when taken ill, at Scutari, was nursed back to life by Miss Nightingale. He is the only Ottawan alive to-day who was nursed by her, and probably the only man in Canada.

Beckingham was one of the firing party of five at the funeral of the Duke of Wellington in 1852. Beckingham's career has been a remarkable one. In 1850 he was serving at Tete de Pont Barracks Kingston, with the British regulars when as he graphically described it, the Colonel ordered them "to form fours and march for England." And they went back there and fought through the Crimea, at Balaclava, Alma, Inkerman, and Sebastopol. Then he came back to Canada, served through the Fenian raids and lived, at various times, at Toronto, Kingston, London and finally at Ottawa.

GOOD WORK AT O.R.A.

Marksmen Start Off With Some Record Shooting.

The New "Peep Sights" Work Wonders and Possibles Are Scored on Several Occasions—Three Men Tie at 800 Yards With Eight Bull's-eyes Each—Last Year's Scores Are All Shattered in Matches.

Long Branch Rifle Ranges, Aug. 17.—Wonders have been accomplished by the "peep" or rear-aperture sight, which is being used at the Ontario Rifle Association matches this season, and Canadian militiamen are to become sharp-shooters indeed. Despite unfavorable weather for high scoring, last year's standard for the first day's shooting was remarkably eclipsed on these ranges yesterday. "Possibles" were ripped off in large quantities in the afternoon over the 500, 600 and 800 yard ranges.

Particularly was this noted in the "extra series" strings. Sergt. G. Mortimer, C.A.S.C., (Ottawa), the Ross Rifle demonstrator; Sergt. W. A. Smith of the Foot Guards (Ottawa), and Sergt. Blackburn of Winnipeg, tied in the extra series at 800 yards, with eight successive bull's-eyes each, being a possible at five shots, and the same with the extra three shots necessary in case of a tie.

Last year's records were shattered in all three matches fired in, namely, The City of Hamilton, Canadian Club and City of Toronto.

Chief executive officer, Major M. S. Mercer, Q.O.R., declared: "Ordinary men are shooting pretty well on a par with the Bisley marksmen. Although there was a strong left variable wind, at times gusty, and with a hazy light throughout the day, the shooting has been high—much higher than in former years—owing to the introduction of the rear aperture sights. A good many men who had practically given up shooting with open sights, have taken it up again and many of them are making 10 points better than they formerly did."

The force of this statement will be noted in a comparison of results in the Canadian Club match between this year and last.

Yesterday three possibles (35 in 7 shots) were scored; last year there were none. Yesterday, eight men made 34's; last year the highest were 34's, and there were only three of these. Yesterday, 68 men got over 31, and anything less than this was counted out of the money; last year, only 47 men scored over 31, 27 scores of 30 were accepted and 10 scores of 29 as well. The three scoring possibles were: Pte. J. M. Jones, 13th (Hamilton), Pte. E. S. McCoy, 13th (Hamilton), and Lance-Corpl. H. Whitehorn, 10th Royal Grenadiers.

The Canadian Club Jubilee Challenge Trophy, valued at $250, was captured by the Governor-General5s Foot Guards of Ottawa. The same team won it last year. Pte. Jones and Lance-Corpl. Whitehorn will divide $25 for making the highest individual scores in team competition.

The 43rd Regiment, D.C.O.R. (Ottawa), won the City of Toronto team match, carrying with it the Ladies' Challenge Cup, valued at $150.

Cadets are making a splendid showing. Three of them figured prominently in the Canadian Club match and 14 in the City of Hamilton match.

Forms International Bond.

Berlin, Aug. 17.—Sir Ernest Cassel, the English financier, has arranged to establish a foundation of $1,000,000, the income from which is to be used for the benefit of poor Germans seeking employment in England, and poor British subjects seeking work in Germany, who are without money for their support. The new foundation will be in memory of the late King Edward of Great Britain, with whom the financier had been closely associated for many years.

Sir Ernest Cassel, though a British subject, has retained his interest in his native land, Germany. He was born in Cologne, the son of a German banker, in 1852, and, in addition to his English knighthood, he wears the Order of the Crown of Prussia, first-class, one of the highest German decorations.

Germany's Navy Plans.

Berlin, Aug. 17.—The Governmental naval bill, to be laid before the Reichstag this autumn, will ask for an application to build three battleships and one battleship cruiser. Included with these four super-Dreadnoughts will be applications to replace two old battleships just sold to Turkey.

The naval budget for the year will also authorize the construction of two small cruisers and six torpedo boats, and an application for $3,750,000 for submarines.

As a result of the fight between the German shipbuilders and their employes, all the shipyards of Germany, except the Government works, are now idle so far as new construction is concerned. Ship owners are in many cases sending their ships to England for the necessary repairs.

Double Drownings.

Athabaska Landing, Aug. 17.—Word was brought here from North Bay by Col. Sanders, R.N.W.M.P., of the drowning in Smoky River on July 1 of August Welch, a German, and Joseph Nicolas, a Frenchman, Brothers of the Catholic mission at Lesser Slave Lake.

Cobalt, Aug. 17.—Thomas and Patrick Dogoure of Hull, father and son, aged respectively 38 and 17 years, employes of Gillis Bros., lumbermen, were drowned in Bay Lake, near Latchford. The canoe capsized when the men were attempting to change places.

Miss Nettie A. Lang is said to be the only woman in America who owns and manages an automobile station. The garage is known as the Lake Shore auto station and is in Chicago. She has been in the business more than two years and personally inspects each car before it is allowed to leave the garage.

A Return to Nature.

"I'm sick of this bony style of beauty," a man was heard to remark a few days ago. "This walking skeleton, bisected, hollow cheeked, meager creature that the modern woman has made herself into does not suit me. I like it when I see a plump, comfortable, round faced, laughing eyed woman with a waist which does not suggest torture and indigestion."

Whether this is a sign of a "return to nature" in the body of woman one cannot tell. This may be but "the one sane wail from the one sane man," but it is set down as a possible straw which may indicate a change in the wind.

A wealthy New York woman went to her physician recently. She was "feeling bad" in a good many different ways. He asked her all sorts of questions and discovered that she was engaged in the same mad hunt that nine-tenths of our women are carrying on for slenderness and the invisible waist.

"Madam," he said sternly, "you need no medicine. All you need are three square meals each day, with perhaps three or four hours of good hard housework and plenty of fresh air."

You can imagine how mad she was.

TEDDY GETS SETBACK

Roosevelt Defeated For Head of Republican Convention.

He Is Beaten by New York Politicians When He Is Nominated for Chairmanship of the Party Executive In New York State—Griscom In Conference With President Taft—Senator Crane Is Silent on Matter.

New York, Aug. 17—Theodore Roosevelt matched strength with the old guard of the Republican party in New York State yesterday, and met decisive defeat. The Republican state committee, in session here, by a vote of 20 to 15, refused to recommend him for temporary chairman of the state convention which meets at Saratoga on Sept. 27. Instead, Vice-President James S. Sherman was selected.

This is Roosevelt's second defeat at the hands of the old guard, the first having been the Legislature's refusal to pass the Cobb direct primary bill, although Mr. Roosevelt especially endorsed it. With his defeat yesterday, plans for harmony within the party in the state received a severe set-back; and as soon as Mr. Roosevelt heard the news he issued a statement in which he enrolled himself as a progressive, so far as the New York State situation goes. It was his most pointed political statement since his return, and those who saw him were convinced that he had determined to begin an open fight on the old guard. The statement follows:

"To the various persons who asked me whether I would accept the position of temporary chairman of the state convention, I said that I would do so only if they were sure, after knowing my attitude, that they desired me, because my speech would be of such a character that it might help if the convention nominated the right kind of a man, on a clearcut progressive platform; but that it would hurt, if neither the right kind of a man were nominated, nor the right kind of a platform adopted."

Although repudiated yesterday it does not necessarily mean that Roosevelt will not be temporary chairman. The convention delegates themselves will decide who is to open the meeting, and deliver the keynote speech, but the state committee's recommendation of Mr. Sherman for the place served notice on the ex-president and his supporters that the old guard would give him a fight to the end.

In the interval between now and Sept. 27, it is expected that the struggle between the organization and the Roosevelt-Hughes forces will be carried into every corner of the state, and that the chief issue will at the primaries for the election of Roosevelt or anti-Roosevelt delegates to the convention.

Beverley, Mass., Aug. 17.—Beverley was completely upset last night when news came of the defeat of Theodore Roosevelt for temporary chairman of the New York Republican State Convention. The fact that Lloyd C. Griscom had been in conference with President Taft as late as Saturday night and Sunday, added to the sensation that the despatches created.

Senator Crane of Massachusetts, the central figure in the organization plans, was here late yesterday afternoon and spent two hours with the President. He would not discuss his visit, but it is known that he submitted a verbal report to the President of his observations in the west, and what he had learned more recently in New Hampshire and Vermont.

Men Weep When Chief Dies.

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 17.—A cable from Carlsbad, Austria, announces the death of James Hurley, general manager of the Santa Fe Railway.

Mr. Hurley was 70 year sold, and entered the service of the Santa Fe Railroad Co., as a brakeman 30 years ago.

His death caused much sorrow at the general offices of the company here. Men gathered in groups and wept like children. He was exceedingly popular with the employes of the company.

He never forgot the men who had labored with him.

Heiress Weds Violinist.

Kingston, Aug. 17.—In 1903 Miss Lola Baldwin, Atlantic City, met in Berlin George Roquboy, Russian violinist. The parents stopped the lovemaking. Then Miss Baldwin became a rich heiress and searched for the violinist, who had gone to America after making a name in Russia. He two years ago, became leader of the orchestra at the Hotel Frontenac, Round Island Park, among the Thousand Islands. Last Thursday, Miss Baldwin arrived and accidentally met the violinist and on Friday Miss Baldwin insisted on marriage.

Amateur Sleuth Meets Death.

Quincy, Mass., Aug. 17.—"Griffin found dead this morning; throat cut," was the text of a message received yesterday by Chief of Police Burrell of Quincy, and bearing the signature of Chief of Police McEachren of North Sydney, C.B. Griffin, who is believed to belong to Lynn, conducted on his own account a search for Luigi Restelli, the Italian stone worker who killed two persons and wounded three others in this city nearly three weeks ago.

Meaford Gets a Promise Too.

Meaford, Aug. 17.—The Government steamer Speedy arrived from Owen Sound about three o'clock yesterday afternoon, with Hon. Wm. Pugsley, Minister of Public Works, and other officials on board.

Mr. Pugsley promised that a dredging outfit would be sent to Meaford at once.

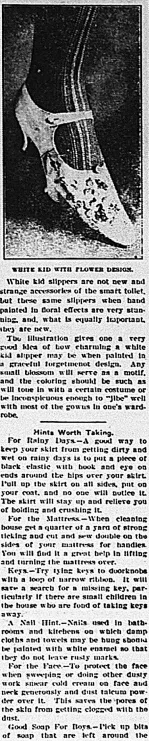
Inherits Great Fortune.

St. Catharines, Aug. 17.—A Smithville resident, Thomas W. Shipman, has received word that by the death of his uncle, Sir Waverley Smythe, of Deepdene Abbey, near Wycombe, Buckinghamshire, England, he has fallen heir to the estate, together with a legacy of £75,000.

If a petcock be placed close to the cylinders in an under-water exhaust pipe of a motor boat and opened when the engine is shut down it will prevent water being drawn into the cylinders as they cool.

WILL YOU WEAR THEM?

The Painted Slippers That Are Smart This Season.



WHITE KID WITH FLOWER DESIGN.

White kid slippers are not new and strange accessories of the smart toilet, but these same slippers when hand painted in floral effects are very stunning, and, what is equally important, they are new.

The illustration gives one a very good idea of how charming a white kid slipper may be when painted in a graceful forgetmenot design. Any small blossom will serve as a motif, and the coloring should be such as will tone in with a certain costume or be inconspicuous enough to "jibe" well with most of the gowns in one's wardrobe.

Hints Worth Taking.

For Rainy Days.—A good way to keep your skirt from getting dirty and wet on rainy days is to put a piece of black elastic with hook and eye on ends around the hips over your skirt. Pull up the skirt on all sides, put on your coat, and no one will notice it. The skirt will stay up and relieve you of holding and crushing it.

For the Mattress.—When cleaning house get a quarter of a yard of strong ticking and cut and sew double on the sides of your mattress for handles. You will find it a great help in lifting and turning the mattress over.

Keys.—Try tying keys to doorknobs with a loop of narrow ribbon. It will save a search for a missing key, particularly if there are small children in the house who are fond of taking keys away.

A Nail Hint.—Nails used in bathrooms and kitchens on which damp cloths and towels may be hung should be painted with white enamel so that they do not leave rusty marks.

For the Face.—To protect the face when sweeping or doing other dusty work smear cold cream on face and neck generously and dust talcum powder over it. This saves the pores of the skin from getting clogged with the dust.

Good Soap For Boys.—Pick up bits of soap that are left around the house, melt, stir in cornmeal to thicken and make cakes of the mass. When cold this makes excellent soap for the small boys to get dirt out of their knuckles.

Try Them For Dinner.

For strawberry patties take one and a half heaping tablespoonfuls of powdered gelatin, half a cupful of boiling water, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, four tablespoonfuls of sugar, one pound of strawberries and three-quarters of a pint of whipped cream. Pick the strawberries and rub sufficient of them through a sieve to make half a pint of puree. Warm this puree slightly, then add gelatin dissolved in the boiling water, sugar and lemon juice. Allow to cool slightly and fold in whipped cream. Divide the mixture into fresh patty cases and set away in a cool place. Decorate with whipped cream and ripe strawberries.

STRAWBERRY PATTIES.

The German Girl's Hope Chest.

Every German girl has a hope chest. This is much different from the dowry chest which the American girl on becoming engaged begins to fill in advance of her wedding day. The German maiden begins to stock her hope chest even before she meets the man to whom she is to be married. She begins to save for her wedding day long before she is engaged. She is imbued with a sense of thrift and also with an ambition to have a larger dowry than her mother had. Often the German girl begins to collect things when she enters her teens. Silently she saves her money to use in buying articles for her chest. With skill she embroiders her initials on each article of linen. Thus by the time she is engaged to be married she is thoroughly equipped with hundreds of little articles that are useful in housekeeping.

(Intelligencer Special.)

London, August 18. — Moissant, the aviator on the Paris to London flight has arrived at Upchurch, twenty-two miles away, and cannot proceed further till he gets new parts for his wrecked engine.

Although he has not yet concluded his journey to London, Moissant is being lauded enthusiastically as the greatest yet of aviators.

The fact that he is the first man to carry a passenger across the English channel is in itself an achievement worth while.

It was a fracture of the driving rod which brought him down into gardens some distance from London.

Advices from Paris are that special haste will be made to send the new parts for the engine so that the journey can be completed to-morrow, in time for the Daily Mail's prize.

Moissant was born in Chicago, of Spanish parents, but he has not lived in the States for twenty years. His mechanician is French.

Murder and Suicide In Montreal To-day

Intelligencer Special.

Montreal, August 18 — On being summoned by children, the police rushed to 135 Logan street this morning and found John O'Keefe, a Dominion Cotton Mills foreman, dead in the kitchen, and his wife dead in bed. He had shot her, then himself.

After killing his wife he woke up his six children, called them all around them and said: "I have killed your mother and I am going to kill myself.""

The younger children, frightened, went back to bed, but Winnifred, the eldest, ran to the police station and gave the alarm.

The police found their bodies as stated.

O'Keefe had used his revolver with fatal effect upon both his wife and himself.

The neighbors declare that he was madly jealous of his wife, and they frequently quarrelled.

At the inquest this morning, the jury returned a verdict of "murder and suicide," after hearing the pathetic story of the children.

AQUATICS.

Arnst Beat Barry for World's Championship.

(Intelligencer Special)

Capetown, August 18 — On the Zambesi river, to-day, Dick Arnst, of New Zealand, beat Ernest Barry of England, in a race for the sculling championship of the world.

The course was three miles and a half; Arnst was favorite at 6 to 4.

The river Zambesi, where Arnst beat Barry, is an ideal sculling course It was selected as a compromise course because Barry wouldn't go all the way to Australia and Arnst wouldn't go to England.

Ten years ago the river ran through an African jungle, with crocodiles and hippopotamus along its banks. But Cecil Rhodes' railroad opened up the country, and there were lots of human spectators at the big race today.

Ned Hanlan and Jake Gaudaur were Canadians who formerly held this championship.

SCORING PHENOMENAL

Marksmen at O.R.A. Matches Go on Breaking Records.

Many Bull's-eyes Are Scored and Possibles Seem to Be the Order of the Day as a Result of the New Peep Sight—Dundas High School Wins Pellatt Trophy—Sergt. Russell Is In Lead For Grand Aggregate.

Long Branch Rifle Ranges, Aug. 18.—Riddled with 280 bullets in a minute and a quarter! What chance would a man with shoulders 20 inches wide have in a fusilade of that kind? Yet that is just what would have happened to a man if he were exposed to eight fellows who were shooting here to-day.

In the Macdonald match, which is a quick-firing contest, in which the 20-inch bull's-eye is exposed for 75 seconds at 500 yards, eight tied for first place with "possibles," seven straight bull's-eyes. And they weren't pumping from magazines either, for each cartridge was put in separately by hand. There were six others who scored six "bulls," and an "inner," and seventeen others who were only one point behind these.

The day was distinguished throughout by record-breaking scores, and, at that, conditions were not ideal. It is still very hazy out here and the dull light is keenly felt where the shooting is at the new "figure" targets. The light did improve some in the afternoon, though, and the wind dropped to a light steady left breeze.

Better still than the Macdonald match was the shooting in the "Mackenzie" match at 800 yards. Twelve men tied for first place with perfect scores—35 for 7 shots. Twenty-four others followed up with 6 bulls and an "inner." Thirty-three others were just one point behind these again and there were 24 scores of 32 counted out of the money. Last year all the 32's, 31's and a considerable quota of 30's were within the awards. And last year there were only five perfect scores.

In the Macdonald match last year only two scored possibles, against eight this year; and only four made 34's against seven yesterday. Twenty-nines and thirties were counted last year, and this time only one thirty got in the winnings.

Sergt.-Major Utton of the R.C.R., and Lieut. E. L. Forester of the Canadian Engineers were the only men to make perfect scores on the "figure" targets. They each got five straight bulls and each put on three extra bulls. In the extra series matches there were scores and scores of possibles at all ranges.

Dundas High School will be the first holder of the new Pellatt trophy for cadets. They won the former trophy three times, and now possess it for good.

In the Bankers' Match yesterday three men scored 69 out of a possible 70 at 500 and 600 yards. Last year the highest score was 68, and there was only one of these, only one of 67 and three of 66. Yesterday there were seven of 68, five of 67 and sixteen of 66. Last year 59's got inside the prize money; yesterday there were ten 63's counted out for being too small. The "tyros" this year had to get 59 or over to receive cash.

Sergt. G. W. Russell of the Foot Guards, Ottawa, is in the lead for the grand aggregate, with Lieut. Forster, C.A.E., Ottawa, Sergt. E. A. Eastwood, 90th, Winnipeg, Lieut. Morris, 18th, Lieut. Blackburn, 90th, Winnipeg, Sergt.-Major Dymond, R.C.R., Sergt.-Major Utton, R.C.R., Staff-Sergt. H. Kerr, 48th, Toronto, and Blair Mitchell, 48th, Toronto, close up for second place.

Guards' Band Won't Play Ragtime.

London, Aug. 18.—Bandmaster Williams of the Grenadiers Band, who are to play at the Toronto Exhibition, says the full strength of the band is 66, but only 40 are going to Canada. Only good music will be performed, and the programs will include no more numbers than are absolutely necessary of what are commonly called "popular airs."

"The Canadian bands themselves will be able to supply an abundance of 'ragtime' and similar music if the people require it," he said. "At the same time I will not be too austere in the character of the music I shall give them."

The Guards' band will play in Toronto daily from 11 to 1, from 4 till 6 p.m., and from 8 till 10 p.m.

Only Four Hundred Went Back.

Ottawa, Aug. 18.—W. I. White, inspector of United States immigration agencies of the Canadian Government, who has just returned from a trip to the west, says that the report sent broadcast to the effect that fifteen thousand immigrant Americans have gone back to the United States from Canada is wholly inaccurate.

"The actual number," declared Mr. White, "will not exceed four hundred and a number of these have gone back to get their families."

Ontario Harvester Killed.

Gladstone, Man., Aug. 18.—The body of a man found on the track near Ogilvie is believed to be that of an Ontario harvester who fell from a special excursion train. The only identifying mark is that the end of the little finger and the index finger of the right hand are cut off.

CURRENT EVENTS.

When is a picnic not a picnic? Easy. In damp weather like we've had lately.

Well, if the railroaders and True Blues have anything to say about it, old Jupiter Pluvius will never be elected Mayor of the solar system

No one can complain that weather reports these days make dry reading.

Pretty hard to expect the back-taxers to pay up these days when many of them have to invest in new umbrellas.

Ottawa Citizen: Evidently this country needs a prison for insane criminals.

Evidently some of the "insane criminals" needed a rope.

It is said that a petition is in circulation to ask the City Council to amend the Grocers' early closing by-law, which has been in force for some time.

Rev. J. A. Macdonald is to leave the Globe. Possibly the Liberal party with the assistance of Hon. Charles Murphy, will be able to struggle along, but what we'd like to know is —who is going to scrape the barnacles off the ship of state now?

Dr. Alitz says 'there's no such thing as "normal" temperature, pulse and respiration, as it differs with every different person. All right, in this iconoclastic age we'll forget it. It's like a doctor to want to cut something out, any way.—N. Y. Telegram.

An amusing court incident of recent days says Tid Bits, "was when a tall lawyer named Short was reading a 6,000 word document he called a "brief."

Complaints continue to come from British immigrants that the questions put to them on their arrival in Canada are based on the idea that because they are immigrants they must be of an undesirable class. When the immigrants are here a while and begin to comprehend our politics they will understand what now seems dark to them. They will see from observation that what annoys decent newcomers is of political import, pleasing some windbags and giving Government jobs and pay to some that otherwise could not be provided for by the party they serve.

British trade returns for the past year and for the half-year just closed are of a satisfactory character. The volume of imports and of exports is growing; and Canada's share is growing also, as a whole, though there are declines in the case of certain articles Among them, cattle and sheep, bacon, butter and eggs are most prominent There are probably several causes working to produce such a situation which analysis may disclose. What is plain on the surface, however, is that the multiplication of laws, inspection, officials, etc., does not of itself improve the business with which they deal. The cattle, meat and produce trades of Canada during the past dozen years have been regulated and restricted in some new way at almost every session of Parliament; but they do not grow.

One of the great problems of civilization is the production of some form of liquid refreshment that will have the same effect as alcoholic liquor without any evil after-effects. There are many temperance drinks on the market, all more or less attractive, but the complaint is constantly heard from the man who has been accustomed to something stronger that they do not reach the spot Some progress has been made towards solving the problem, according to recent reports. A new beverage is now claiming popular favor in England, which is said to have all the physical properties of beer without being intoxicating. It is brewed from malt and hops, it tastes like beer, it satisfies like beer, and it does not intoxicate. It contains less alcohol than the average temperance drink. The people of England are said to think so well of it that the brewers are pushing its manufacture and sale. Whether a beverage which does not intoxicate will suit some men remains to be seen but—

The West is apparently accepting the Liberal leaders at their true, not face, value. At Calgary Hon. Frank Oliver ran into a fusilade of laughter when addressing the Laurier meeting He had been dinning into the audience for a quarter of an hour the benefit of Liberal rule with an eulogy of Sir Wilfrid.

"We do not come here," he then went on, "to talk politics."

He waited for applause, but in its place came a roar of laughter, in which even those on the platform joined. The minister of the interior subsequently explained that he came to talk not politics, but the business policy of the Laurier Government, but his slip had already seriously broken the effect of his careful argument.

LET THE BUSY BEE GATHER HONEY RIGHT IN THE PARLOR

FLAT DWELLERS' APIARY AND A WINDOW BOX ALL THAT IS NEEDED, SAYS PRESS AGENT.

A collapsible metal bathtub which folds up in accordeon plaits and can be carried in a trunk will be shown at the National Household Show, which opens at Madison Square Garden, New York, on Monday, August 22. Another space saving device is a folding gas range for use in hotel rooms and in travelling. A whole section will be devoted to space saving household comforts adapted to tiny flats and hall rooms. One manufacturer offers a whole establishment so small in compass that, he says, it can be packed in an ordinary trunk.

A boom to householders will be the glass apiary for the home, the idea being that the busy bee can have his honey plant in your household and provide the family with fresh sweets garnered from the flowers in the window box. Receipts of how to cure stings, with each apiary. Ten hives for the home will be shown, with bees working overtime.

Bachelors are invited to see the automatic stocking darner, while the dustless feather duster will appeal to all parlor maids. For kitchen comfort is the electric bug killer, by which insects are electrocuted when they step upon a charged plate.

Saw the Lift Lock

Peterboro Review: Peterboro was again the source of attraction to-day for a large number of visitors, about six hundred arriving here about 10.40 this morning.

The excursion on which they came was under the auspices of the Holloway Street Sunday school of Belleville. Many people, however, from Napanee, Stirling and other places along the route took advantage of the opportunity of coming to Peterboro, so that the nine coaches of the train were filled to their limit on arriving at Peterboro.

The visitors were given an opportunity of experiencing the sensation of going over the lift lock, the steamer Water Lily carrying quite a number of the curious.

BASEBALL

Most Wonderful Feat This Season

Chester Carmichael, pitching for Buffalo the other day, let Jersey City down without a single player reaching first base. This means that each Skeeter took his stand in the batter's box but three times, with the exception of those who had pinch hitters bat for them, and not an Insect reached first base. There were no errors behind or in front of the pitching marvel and he passed no one and hit no one.

This magnificent feat was witnessed by a multitude of about 100 Jersey City inhabitants, which only enhances the glory of the slabman. It was on a foreign field and in front of a handful of spectators. He was not inspired by the presence of a vast throng of sympathetic rooters on his own diamond, Conditions were all against him, yet he went in and twirled dazzling ball.

The more one thinks of the feat the more wonderful it seems, especially when one has in mind the ease with which the visiting players in Toronto seem to reach first base or any other base, for that matter. No wonder Cincinnati has recalled this pitcher, to report at the end of the Eastern season, and meantime Buffalo will reap much profit from having him on its roster.

Fancy Buffalo possessing a no-hit flinger. In the dim and musty past they had a team, but time has played sad havoc in their ranks. If Carmichael had been pitching for Newark or Rochester we could understand it better, but Buffalo! It is too much!

Some fans say Carmichael's exploit was due largely to luck and a little judgment, yet he goes right ahead season after season rapping the ball with refreshing consistency. Can't tell me luck would cling to a batter with such tenacity as that.

Look at the facts: Carmichael, when he found he had the Jerseys on the hip, tried for no strike-out records, but pitched with care and judgment throughout, and his reward was a no-hit game. He deserved it, and all the credit that goes with it, in my opinion, for the reasons already enumerated.

S. M. A. Beat Trenton T. A. C.

A happy bunch went to Trenton yesterday afternoon to see the S. M. A. win the fourth game from the T. A. C., of Trenton, by a score of 8 to 5. Jack Smith was first up to the bat and he made a three-bagger. Joe Kelliher was next, and he made a nice single and got Smith home. Dan Doran, the lad who got his little finger hurt in the last game, was able to make a two-bagger. Gerald Manahan was next, he was caught out on a fly. Willie Callahan was next and he fanned. Tom Barrett came to the bat and made a home run, scoring two runs. Tom Holland came to the bat and he was caught out on a fly, counting three men.

The T. A. C. went to the bat and went one, two, three. From the 5th to the 7th innings the S. M. A. didn't score a run. In the last of the 9th Bill Holland made a three-bagger. Then our short stop Frank Goyer, came to the bat and made a nice single hit, but was put out and the game was over.

Mr. Jack Kelliher was umpire, and his decisions were very, very good.—Com.

CANADIAN WRITERS AND WRITERS ON CANADIAN SUBJECTS

The announcement made recently by Toronto Saturday night that that journal had arranged for the publication of a series of articles by Dr. Stephen Leacock and Dr. Andrew Macphail, once more serves to remind us that Canadian writers are now receiving deserved recognition at home as well as abroad. Dr. Macphail's published volumes, such as "Essays in Fallacy," and "Essays in Puritanism," to name only two of the many, have now a circle of readers both in Canada and in England which the most optimistic would hardly have predicted at the time of publication. The work of Dr. Leacock, who is the author of "Literary Lapses," a volume which has set the world smiling, is of a less serious character than that of Dr. Macphail. His optimistic humor sounds the note, and the reader laughs in spite of himself.

The articles, as arranged for by Toronto Saturday Night, are twelve in number, and will alternate from week to week. For instance, on August 6th appeared an article by Dr. Macphail, entitled "Canada's Loyalty," and on the following week Dr. Leacock's first humorous sketch, "How to Make a Million Dollars," appeared. The third article of the series, appearing in the week of August 20th, is by Dr. Macphail, and is entitled "Nation or Empire." The second of Dr. Leacock's is entitled "Men Who Have Shaved Me," and will be printed in Toronto Saturday Night on August 27th.

Through such journals as Toronto Saturday Night, Canadian writers on Canadian subjects are finding a home market for their work, and are no longer obliged from necessity to patronize British and American publishers.

Baldheads Will be Scarce When Parisian Sage is Better Known

It Keeps Women's Hair Soft and Glossy Says Elizabeth House

No man likes to look older than he is. Every woman on earth absolutely abhors such a condition.

You may be 30 in years, but if you are bald headed or grey, people will surely take you to be many years older, and you will be helpless to prevent.

Dandruff is the root of all hair evils. If it were not for the little destructive germs working with a persistency worthy of a better cause, there would be no baldness.

Parisian Sage, America's greatest hair restorer, will keep you looking young and attractive.

It is guaranteed by J. V. Doyle to make hair grow and stop falling hair; to cure dandruff in two weeks; to stop itching of the scalp almost instantly.

Parisian Sage is the most invigorating, satisfying and pleasant hair dressing made; it makes the hair soft, luxuriant and handsome; it is especially praised by women who have beautiful hair. Parisian Sage is for sale by J. V. Doyle, at 50 cents a large bottle, or makers, Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, charges prepaid, from the Canadian Ont. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle.

"I have only used one bottle of Parisian Sage, and, of course, I cannot praise it as much as if I had used more, but I find it a good tonic for the hair.

"It keeps the hair soft and glossy, the scalp clean, and makes the hair grow long, and stops falling hair.

"I recommend it to any one as a good tonic."—Elizabeth House, Manchester, Conn.

Stowaways Leap From Boat's Deck in Fog

STOWAWAYS TOOK CHANCE IN GULF ON GANGWAY FOR RAFT.

A blinding mist and heavy rain aided two young stowaways aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Monmouth to make their escape from the ship in which they had crossed the Atlantic.

When but a few hours out from port, bound for Montreal, the officers of the Monmouth discovered there were two stowaways on the ship, who under cover of the confusion of the last few moments in port, had come aboard and by some means had managed to remain unnoticed until the lines had been cast off and the ship was under way.

To turn back was out of the question, to punish the men in any manner other than by keeping them in confinement was not wise, after locking them up until the ship was past the last part of Great Britain the boys, for they were but about twenty years of age, were taken out and made to work, and work hard about the ship.

Until the Gulf of St. Lawrence was reached all went well. Then the spirit of liberty rose in the boys' hearts and a desire to see this new country for which they had risked so much began to get a stronger hold upon them.

On Thursday morning, while the rain came down in torrents and the fog lay about so thick that the bow of the ship could not be seen from the stern, and while the crew and officers were all at breakfast, these daring fellows lifted a gang plank, raised it to the side and trusting to the noise of the rain falling on the steel ship, let the gangway go and immediately followed it overboard.

For a while it looked as though they would escape into the dense fog but soon the eye of the pilot on the bridge noticed the floating object, and making out its lines, alarmed the ship, and in a few minutes, as promptly as a well trained crew could accomplish it, a boat was over the side and three stout British sailors were pulling towards the fast disappearing float.

In the meantime the gangway, borne down by the outgoing tide, aided slightly by the paddles was fast being separated from the big ship.

When the boys were overtaken they were thankful that instead of being allowed to drift out into the trackless Gulf on a float, one corner of which persisted in going under water, they were about to be taken back, drenched and cold, to where they would get at least some little attention.

"They never knew the perils of that trip," one of the officers of the Monmouth said when telling the story to a Montreal Herald reporter. "It would only have been one chance in a thousand that they would ever have got from the ship course to land down there. They would probably have run foul of some passing ship, or if they did not, they were miles away from land. They did not know what a fog on the water means. They had heard that they were in the river and they thought it was like an English river. They are bad young beggars," he added, "But they're the sort who keep the British Bull Dog on his legs."

But the adventures of these two men, who give their names as Ramsden and Wilson, did not terminate when they were put back aboard the Monmouth. They were taken to a cabin and securely locked in it. At the same time their feet were fettered with the ship's irons. No one dreamed of escape, but when the watch made his first regular visit to the prisoners to his astonishment the men were walking about. They were again locked up, and on the arrival of the ship at Montreal they were turned over to the immigration authorities to await the return sailing of the Monmouth.

Busy Scene at a Thames Dockyard.

The deafening noise of hundreds of hammers at work on the huge steel plates directs the visitor to the "slips" where the Thunderer, the Admiralty's newest Dreadnought, is in making at the Thames Company's works at Tidal Basin.

Towering above the surrounding buildings a huge forest of scaffolds, derricks, and cranes, from the tallest of which floats the Union Jack, one may see the huge shape of the ship in construction. The visitor has to carefully pick his way over stacks of long iron girders across wide spaces of sheets of steel, through a mass of wooden supports as thick as the trunk of an oak, past workshops and sheds where the engines are at work cutting like so many straws the lengths of iron and steel to their required sizes and shapes. Then underneath the keel of the huge ship itself, and one comes out upon the little town of shipmakers, busy with weird instruments putting together the parts which make the Dreadnought.

Each of the two thousand men has his particular part to play. For the twelve hours each day.

INCREDIBLE SPEED

"That is the engine-room," remarks the guide, pointing to a wide space enclosed by towering steel walls. Three thousand tons of steel lie on the blocks; the stems are in position right up to the forecastle deck; huge frames are going up for the reception of the armour plates. Down towards the stern mechanics have put into place the spectacle frames for the seven propelling shaftings and 80 feet above the slips the bow's head towers. It appears incredible that only three months ago the first keel plate was laid. But it is expected that the Thunderer will be launched at the end of the present year.

Then before she goes to her berth at Dekenham, every watertight compartment will be tested, filled with water to the depth of 40 feet. At Dakenham the main machinery and boilers and major portion of the armour will be fitted in. Huge cranes will lift the gun mountings all complete, on to her decks, and by March, 1912, she will be ready for commission.

Sir Wilfrid and The Race Cry.

There is scarcely a speech made by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, whether he is in the East or West, that he does not introduce the race and creed cry. Why? Is it not to leave an impression upon the minds of his hearers that he is persecuted because he is a French Roman Catholic. If this is not the reason, why is he constantly harping upon the subject? No one attacks him upon that ground. The favorite cry of his party, when Sir John A. Macdonald was in power, was that Sir John and the Conservative party were under the heel of the French Catholics of Quebec, and that Canada was the victim of French domination.

In 1896, the race and creed cry carried Laurier and his party into power, and it is that cry that keeps the Province of Quebec now in line for Laurier, hence he constantly keeps the flame alive by insinuating that which is not correct; and boasting of his desire to rule without appealing to prejudices.

In a speech delivered by Sir Wilfrid at Moose Jaw, in Manitoba, a few days ago, he declared, while discussing the Manitoba School question that he was denounced in Quebec as a traitor by extreme Catholics. Yet strange to say, he received an almost unanimous support from the electors of that Province, there being but five out of sixty-five members for the House of Commons returned in opposition to him. Results speak more convincingly than words.

In the same speech at Moose Jaw he declared that "Prejudices are not "always a contemptible sentiment "Very often prejudices are only the "outcome, the over-growth of a laudable sentiment in itself. Well, sir, I appeal to no prejudice of any kind."

The best answer that can be given in refutation of that statement, is to quote the declaration of one of his own party. In a pamphlet published not long since by Oliver A. Asselin, an active Liberal French-Canadian, will be found the following which is a crushing reply to Sir Wilfrid's constant declaration that he "appeals to no prejudice of any kind."

"At the Federal elections of 1908 the barefaced racial appeals of Laurierite papers and Laurierite politicians throughout French Canada had become a matter of shame for all self-respecting French-Canadians. All the more as those loot-seeking wreckers of National Unity were posing as the champions of mutual forbearance before the country."

True Blue Grand Lodge at Kingston

GRAND MASTER HARTT UTTERS SOME LOYAL SENTIMENTS.

Kingston, Ont., Aug. 17 — At today's session of the Supreme Grand Lodge of the True Blues Association of British America, Grand Master J. I. Hartt, of Orillia, in his address urged that the work of upbuilding "our glorious principles" be the desire of all members. He concluded thus—

"I hope all attempts made to weaken British influence or British power will be met with a strong and unflinching resistance by all our membership, and that our watchword will ever be "One flag, the Union Jack; one school, the Public school; one throne, and that the throne of Great Britain."

CROP CONDITIONS ON THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

The latest reports from the Grand Trunk Pacific headquarters in Montreal are very encouraging as to the crop prospects.

Rivers—Expects whet to yield 12 to 15 bushels, oats 25, barley 20.

About Ingelow crops have been greatly revived by recent rains.

Lazare—Reports that wheat will average 30 bushels per acre, oats 60, barley 40.

Portage La Prairie—Farmers expect 18 bushels of wheat per acre.

Uno—Looks for 20 bushels.

Gays—25 bushels to the acre.

Ituna—Reports say that the harvest in that section will be as good as last year.

Canora—Is looking for 20 bushels of oats to the acre, despite the dry season.

Coblez—Reports wheat probably 15 bushels to 20 bushels per acre.

Kingley—Because of the drought will not reap more than 12 bushels per acre.

Kelliher—Is most fortunate. In that district there is every indication of 25 bushels of wheat to the acre.

Biggar—Reports that in this district about 25 bushels per acre.

Balgarres—Looks for 30 bushels.

Regina—18 to 20.

Melville—23.

Yorkton—25.

Punnichy—20.

Landis—Half a crop.

Chamberlain—12 bushels.

Scott—16. And this is about the way the report averages except in Wainwright and also about Tramping Lake. In the latter district the yield will be from 25 to 30 bushels per acre.

THE FASHIONABLE DOG.

Samoyede Canine Pets Are "It" This Summer.

THE LATEST FAVORITE OF FASHION.

The Samoyede dog is the latest comer in canine pets for fashionable favor. This dog is a sort of four footed Admirable Crichton. He can do anything you ask of him—that is, anything within canine powers—and he can do it very well. He comes from the northeast of Russia, and, although new as a smart pet, he is the oldest domesticated dog in the world.

He is an ideal dog for children—intelligent, quick to learn tricks, good tempered and gentle, intensely affectionate, faithful and invariably well behaved. In short, he is a perfect four footed gentleman.

The Samoyede does splendidly harnessed singly or in pairs to a child's gocart. He takes to harness naturally, is untiring and strong and, to use a horsy expression, "quite without vice."

Apart from these excellent traits of character, the Samoyede dog's appearance is distinctly "fetching." In the puppy stage he is a fascinating little creature with a soft, fluffy white coat, for all the world like a Teddy bear. As he grows older he passes through the usual leggy state and at about a year old develops into a most aristocratic looking animal, very handsome and attractive, with long white fur standing straight out from the body, each hair having the icelike glisten peculiar to the breed.

Standing nearly as tall as a collie, ears pricked, eyes expressive, tail a spreading plume—not coiled tightly, like a chow—the striking appearance and elegant carriage of the Samoyede attract attention wherever he goes.

A Vacation Pest.

The most delightfully planned outing in the woods may be ruined by that vacation pest—the mosquito.

Some persons poison so dreadfully life is a torment, and there is always danger of malaria from the bites.

If you are especially poisoned by mosquitoes, arrange to go where they are not. Don't go in for camping or frequent resorts that are subject to them.

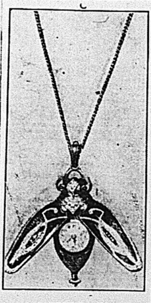
If you will go, take with you preventives in the form of mosquito nets, lump camphor and citronella.

In extreme cases there are head nets that can be bought for a dollar. They are made of fine black bobbinet that will stand rain and washing. There is a circular cloth piece above the net over hat and a yoke shaped piece at bottom fitted to the shoulders and tied under the arm.

For night use it is possible to buy frames and mosquito bars to fit folding camp cots.

The Beetle Watch.

Oddities in jewelry are constantly to be found, and the latest fad is the beetle watch that is worn on the end of a neck chain or a long piece of half inch black moire ribbon.



OF EGYPTIAN DESIGN.

A slight pressure on the end of the wings and the wings open and show the face of the watch.

An Outing Precaution.

Never go into the woods or out of the way places without being supplied with remedies in case of an emergency. Always take a hot water bottle and a medicine kit, stocked with such simple home remedies as you are accustomed to use.

In addition, there should be whisky, bandages, absorbent cotton, adhesive plasters, quinine, mustard and belladonna plasters and some colic tablets. An ointment to allay stings or itching is also good.

A new machine separates the whites and yolks of opened eggs by allowing the former to pass through a sieve and automatically ejects bad eggs, which will not separate, their weight tripping a tray.

CALGARY IS CHOSEN

It Will Be Site of New Methodist College in West.

Presbyterian Message In Favor of Church Union Is Received by the Methodist Conference In Session at Victoria, B.C.—Committee Will Report In Favor of an Eight-Year Term for Pastors, Instead of Three.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 18.—At the morning session of the Methodist General Conference there was a hot time in the educational committee when the rival claims of Calgary and Lethbridge to the proposed new perparatory college were discussed. Both sides put up a stiff battle and the discussion threatened to become personal on several occasions. At noon, however, the committee finally decided on Calgary as the location.

The committee on itinerary discussed the question of a longer term for pastors than at present. At adjournment the majority were in favor of a term of eight years, instead of four, as at present. The arguments in favor of this were that the longer term would give a pastor greater opportunity to accomplish effective work, and would admit his taking a more active part in civic affairs. The committee will report favorably on an eight-year term.

Dr. F. C. Stephenson, secretary of the Young People's Missions, has arranged a big exhibit and will conduct a series of mission meetings during the conference, which will be addressed daily by returned missionaries from foreign fields, of whom there are a number present.

The lengthy reference to pantheist tendencies in the old land by Rev. Dr. Haigh, the fraternal delegate from England, in his address Tuesday evening, met with severe criticism informally yesterday morning, on the ground that he had emphasized the matter too much.

The question of church union loomed up in the afternoon. A delegation acting on behalf of the Presbyterian General Assembly waited on conference to extend greetings. Rev. J. Campbell of Victoria, as spokesman, expressed the hope that church union would be duly consummated as a result of the conference now in session. Rev. Dr. Carman said he regarded the movement as the most important of modern ages.

Miss McElhinney, superintendent of the training school for deaconesses in Toronto, reported for her order. Her work she characterized as the youngest branch of the Methodist Church in Canada. It had for its purpose the mothering of the congregations. Dr. Carman made a strong appeal for the broadening of the deaconess movement until it became universal.

A strong appeal for more men and money to be utilized in the mission fields of Japan was made by the Rev. C. J. L. Bates, a Methodist missionary on his way to reside in college at Kobe. The Japanese, he said, were fully the equals in intellectual liberty and devout consecration of any other Christian body.

Horrors of Cholera.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 18.—The horrors of the cholera scourge in Russia, according to Prof. Rein of the Red Cross, are steadily increasing. Children are starving in many instances because their parents and adult relatives have been swept away by the disease.

The apple was always a great temptation—green apples have their little victims yet.

The safest and surest remedy we know of is

Nyal's

Wild Strawberry Compound

Its direct antiseptic action on the bowels overcomes the "green apple poison"—soothes irriated parts and checks dysentery gently. It contains no harmful opiates and being NYAL'S we can heartily recommend it.

Anything you buy with the name Nyal's will give you entire satisfaction.

American Exchanges Steady to Firm—Hogs Higher at Buffalo.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Aug. 17.—(Special.)—Altho prices in the leading foreign markets for Canadian ranch cattle have been steadily tending downward during the past month, the increased movement of the latter, which set in in the early part of July, continues, and, as the quality of the stock going forward is not up to former years, it is having a depressing influence on the markets, and the decline in prices in the Liverpool market for ranchers since the first of July has been 1½c to 2c per lb. All the ocean freight space for the balance of this month is well booked up, and the demand has now set in for the offerings of September, and the bulk of the Liverpool freight has been closed out at 27s 6d per head, and for what is left agents are asking 30s. There has been no demand for space to other ports as yet for September shipment, but agents are asking 25s to 30s for London, 27s 6d for Manchester and 30s for Glasgow for the first half.

At the Canadian Pacific live stock market this morning offerings were 850 cattle, 550 sheep and lambs, 700 hogs and 300 calves. There was no actual change in the condition of the market for cattle since Monday, prices being well maintained at the advance, on account of the fact that the supplies are not in excess of requirements, and the quality of the stock was rather better. In addition to this, the weather was more favorable for butchers, and the demand in consequence was larger, which resulted in more active trade being done. Choice steers sold at 6¼c, good at 5¾c to 6c, fairly good at 5¼c to 5½c, fair at 4¾c to 5c, and common at 4¼c to 4½c per pound. There were a number of cows on the market, which met with a better trade at prices ranging from 3½c to 5c, and common bulls brought 3c to 3½c per pound.

There was a fair supply of small meats on the market, for which the demand was good, and an active trade was done, but prices were lower than on Monday. Sheep sold at 3½c to 4c, and lambs at 3¾c to 5½c per pound. The demand for calves was good at prices ranging from $3 to $11 each. The tone of the market for hogs was firm under a good demand, and sales of selected lots were made at $9.25 to $9.50 per cwt., weighed off cars.

At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market there were 400 cattle, 800 sheep and lambs, 600 hogs and 250 calves. A fair trade was done in all lines, and the prices realized were much the same as those quoted above.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Aug. 17.—Cattle—Receipts light, steady; prices unchanged.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Beeves—Receipts, 1717; market irregular; steers, $4.50 to $7.35; bulls, $3.50 to $4.75; cows, $2 to $5; dressed beef steady; exports, 20 cattle, 30 sheep and 1750 quarters of beef.

Calves—Receipts, 1974; market higher; veals, $8 to $10.50; culls and throw-outs, $6 to $7.50; buttermilks, $5.50; dressed calves strong; city dressed veals, 13½c to 16c; country dressed calves, 9c to 13½c.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 12,533; sheep dull, steady; lambs moderately active; good to choice steady to strong; medium to common steady to a shade lower; about all sold. Sheep, $3 to $4.50; few, $4.75; culls, $2.50 to $2.75; lambs, $5.60 to $7.50.

Funeral of Florence Nightingale.

London, Aug. 18.—Florence Nightingale will be buried with simple ceremony Saturday afternoon at Wellow, Hampshire, where here parents are buried. A memorial service will be held at noon in St. Paul's Cathedral, at which the King will be represented.

Some of the newspapers have suggested that the body be borne through London on a gun carriage.

After a long series of tests German scientists seem to have disproved an old theory that resin is a beneficial ingredient in soaps, their decision being that the washing power of a soap decreases as the resin content increases.

Points For Mothers

What becomes of precocious children when they grow up? Nobody knows. It is a good thing that average gets hold of them or we would be a land overflowing with geniuses. There would be so many of them that common people would not be missed from the directory, says an exchange.

As a matter of fact, the men and women who are doing things when they are fifty years old are not the ones who were pointed out on children's day. Very often precocity is a flower that blooms early and withers early. Even the big men and women who stand out in history were commonplace children, while their precocious companions sleep in obscure graves. The most precocious thing George Washington did was to lay low the historic cherry tree, and this is more than duplicated each day by boys who never rise to dizzier pinnacles than school directors.

Too often the boy who stood at the head of the spelling class comes when he is forty years old to the boy who stood next to the end for a job. Congress has within its halls today men who didn't learn to read until twelve years of age. Life is not a dash and sprint, with the prize to the child who gets away from the starting line first, but is a day in day out Marathon, with the laurel to the one who keeps plugging along. More life meets are won by plugging than by sprinting.

So let the mother of the ordinary child up and clear her looks. Do not envy the precocious child of your neighbor. Rest secure in the knowledge that the precocious child across the street may be only a morning glory to dazzle for an hour, while your own child, with its glories yet unrevealed, may be a lily of the valley to gladden hearts for many days.

Overattention to Children.

Few mothers realize the risk of overcaution and overattention to their children after they are old enough to play and romp about. A child is happier with few and simple playthings than with a multitude of complicated toys. There is no such good fun or good training as making oneself useful in doing little things like work, and it is cruelty to deprive the child of this pleasure and stimulus. Let the brain and body be trained through hand, foot and eye. Give the boy a carpenter's bench; encourage the girls to do housework. Where possible let both boy and girl have a little garden patch, if only a few feet square, and the care of a few plants. A woman in her home, a man in his garden—this seems to be a fundamental type from which we cannot entirely depart without risk to body and mind. Cheerfulness, sincerity, industry, perseverance and unselfishness may be acquired by practice and constant repetition as much as the art of correct speaking or of playing the piano and are far more necessary to health.

In the Nursery.

Better than chairs are low, broad seats built in all around the wall of the room. The seat should be eight or nine inches high and from one to two feet broad and may be put up by a carpenter at slight expense. The children may slide all along these and draw their toys up beside them, and there will be less danger of bumped noses and bruised elbows from tipping over of the chairs. Little pillows with durable covers may be strewn about for small, sleepy heads or to make the seat less hard. Such a seat is best made of hard wood if the floor is hard wood; if not it should be made very smooth and varnished, so that there may be no danger of splinters.

The Value of Laughter.

A famous doctor once said: "Encourage your child to be merry and to laugh aloud. A good, hearty laugh expands the chest and makes the blood bound merrily along. Commend me to a good laugh—not to a little, snigging laugh, but to one that will sound right through the house. It will not only do your child good, but will be a benefit to all who hear and be an important means of driving the blues away from a dwelling. Merriment is very catching and spreads in a remarkable manner, few being able to resist the contagion. A hearty laugh is delightful harmony—indeed, it is the best of all music."

Here's Good Advice.

Never give medicine to a baby without a doctor's orders.

Do not use devices for keeping baby's food warm.

Keep the food on ice until feeding time, then warm it and give immediately.

If any food is left in the bottle throw it away.

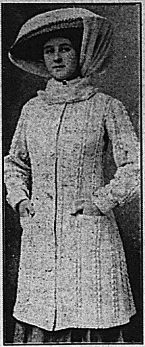
When the Baby Sleeps.

Do not permit a baby to sleep with its head under the bedclothes. Trained nurses who are supposed to know better are often responsible for this habit. They keep the head of an infant so carefully wrapped for fear of draft that the child becomes accustomed to muffling.

Contrary to the general belief that hard woods give more heat in burning than soft, Government experts have found by tests that linden, a very soft wood, has the greatest heating power, with fir, another soft wood, next.

A NEW WEAVE OF SWEATER

The Long Effect In These Coats Is Smartest.



FOR THE GOLFING GIRL.

If any girl can go through the summer without a sweater she is a rare specimen of femininity. Its uses are infinite and too many to enumerate. Each year the type of sweater varies. Last season we had the long style, and this summer the longer lengths are still modish, but the difference in this year's sweater is in the weave. The illustration shows one of the newest and smartest of the season's weaves, a broad fancy stripe, which is very becoming to the figure.

Charge It to the Woman.

That cheerful farce known to the public as an "inquiry into the causes of the cost of living" assumes more amazing proportions day by day. Somebody or something is to blame for the prohibitive prices which mock our indigence, and under no circumstances may the sensitive feelings of the protectionists be hurt. Consequently political economists who are not calm enough to share the frank indifference of congress offer us strange and artless solutions of a problem which has grown too formidable for play, says Agnes Repplier.

The most original of all these suggestions comes from an instructor in economics in the Wharton School of Finance at the University of Pennsylvania, who holds that food is dear because women buy it and women "have no basis for estimating the value of what they spend." Money to a man represents so many hours or days of labor. Money to a woman stands for no economic effort. The price of all commodities is unreasonably dear because of the "extravagant willingness of women to pay for them."

If this be true all that is needed to reduce the cost of living is that men shall shop and market. The poulterer will not venture to ask $2.50 for a pair of chickens; the dairyman will blush at the mere thought of demanding 50 cents a dozen for eggs when confronted by the wage earner of the family. Hogs were quoted recently at a figure calculated to make these lordly animals swagger in their sties, but they will soon be reduced to humility and moderation if the father of the family buys the morning sausage. Even the cook will cheerfully accept $4 a week instead of $7 when her master pays her wages, especially if she can be brought to understand that he is philosophically indifferent to his food and that it was only the "extravagant willingness" of her mistress to pay her $7 which made her ask so much.

The Charm of Enthusiasm.

Have you ever realized what a charm there is in enthusiasm? Life is so often monotonous that we like occasionally to be wakened up with interest, and the person who is radiant over small things is always a delight.

The girl who carries enthusiasm into her work as well as into her play will find that she holds a winning card. Work that is done for the "joy of working" is likely to be well done. Lack of interest makes for dull routine, remarks a writer. It brings discontent and often failure. The men who succeed are the ones who can inspire both themselves and others by their magnetic personality, and there is nothing so magnetic as enthusiasm. People will follow us, like us and admire us if we have it. It is worth cultivating if it is not natural endowment.

Pleasantness a Tonic.

Don't be afraid of being pleasant. It cannot hurt you and will be as good as a tonic for all you meet.

What though you do think yourself superior to most of your acquaintances, is it good taste to placard your belief by a freezing countenance?

There is nothing like affability to conceal one's family skeletons. A haughty manner is a direct bid for the rest of the world to rake up ancestral secrets that you thought buried.

A glass bottle may be cut off easily by ated in kerosene, lighting the string and tying around it a piece of string saturallowing it to burn until the bottle is heated, then plunging the bottle into cold water.

JOB FOR MACDONALD.

Rev. J. A. of Globe Becomes Advocate of International Peace.

Toronto, Aug. 18.—Rev. Dr. J. A. Macdonald, editor of The Globe, is to surrender the details of management of that newspaper to Stewart Lyon, the associate editor, and devote himself to the cause of international peace.

The change in office work will relieve him of the routine and give him greater opportunity for editorial writing and public speaking.

"As to the peace movement, understand that there is no society or particular organization in connection with what I am going to do," said Dr. Macdonald yesterday. "Mr. Andrew Carnegie is not behind it as you suggest. Some time ago David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford University, California, who has been on the fisheries arbitration at The Hague, called on me and asked me to give my whole attention to the task of improving international relations—stimulating good-will among the nations of the world.

"I shall use all the opportunities to do so that present themselves. For instance in September I will deliver an address in Mexico at the Centennial celebration of independence, and on Founders' Day next March, I promised Mr. Jordan to speak at Leland Stanford."

Mr. Ginn, head of the well-known publishing firm of Ginn & Co., Boston, is one of those chiefly interested in the international movement, and the president of Leland Stanford will, like Dr. Macdonald, devote considerable time to its propagation. It is understood that the offer which Dr. Macdonald refused exceeded $10,000.

Back From the Dead.

London, Aug. 18.—Mrs. Galpin, wife of License Inspector Galpin, got a big surprise Tuesday night when her brother, John Orr, whom she believed to be dead, and whom she had not seen nor heard of for thirty-five years, walked into her home. Mr. Orr has been living all the time in Fort Worth, Texas, where he has become wealthy in the carriage building business. He is now 73 years old and served through the civil war with the Confederate forces.

Your Grocer Knows

EVERY good grocer is willing and anxious to please his customers. Sometimes, if he happens to be out of the goods you ask for, he may recommend a different brand rather than keep you waiting. But when it comes to flour, he knows that Ogilvie's is one of the things for which there is no substitute. No other flour is "just as good." Ogilvie's "Royal Household" is in a class distinctly by itself. To offer a substitute for "Royal Household" would be like offering oleomargarine to a customer who wanted prime dairy butter. No good grocer would do it. When you tell him you want Ogilvie's Royal Household Flour, he will send that and nothing else.

Royal Household Flour

"Ogilvie's Book for a Cook," with 125 pages of recipes that have been tried and tested, will be sent free if you will send us your address and mention the name of your dealer. 16

THE OGILVIE FLOUR MILLS CO., LIMITED. - - MONTREAL.

For the Children

A Busy English Boy and His Motorcar.

The little boy running the motor lives in England. He is the Hon. Maynard Greville, son of the Countess of Warwick. Besides getting his lessons, having a good time at sports and running motorcars, he has been a page at 100 society weddings.

The Secretary.

This is a variation of the old game of "consequences," but it is more personal and therefore more interesting.

The players may be seated around a table, provided with pencils and paper and directed by the leader, or secretary, as he is called, each one to write his or her own name at the top of the sheet and fold it over so as to conceal it.

The secretary then collects the papers and redistributes them, with the order to "write a character." The players set to work to write a description of an imaginary character, good or bad, or they may take any one of their companions as a model. The more extravagant the details the more fun.

Again the papers are taken up and distributed, all being changed around, and the writers are told to describe the past life of the unknown person whose name is hidden at the top of the page. Then follows the order to describe the person's present, future, fate or fortune or any particulars the secretary may think to ask for. At last the papers are collected and read aloud, and great is the amusement as each one present is described.

Name Characteristics.

This game will please those who like to tax their wits and who enjoy a problem, especially when competition furnishes a spur. It consists in writing a descriptive account of well known persons, authors or others, using only words beginning with the letters composing their names and using these letters in the order in which they come in the names.

An example is given: W-hose i-mmortal l-ines l-ive i-n a-ll m-emories. S-overeign h-onor a-bove k-ingly e-state. S-hakespeare's p-oetry e-nchants a-ll r-eaders e-verywhere.

It would be even more amusing to take the names of some of the company present. A name might be secretly allotted to each player.

Guessing Game.

In preparation for this cover four spaces on the walls of the room with pictures representing (1) famous men and women in history or times past, (2) famous buildings, (3) authors of today and (4) well known men and women of the present time.

Cards, with pencil attached, should be given to each player. Every picture is numbered, and opposite the corresponding number on the card the name of the person or building represented is written.

The person correctly guessing the largest number is the winner. Prizes may be given.

About Cats.

We all know the story of Dick Whittington's cat and the fortune which it brought to its master. It was valuable because it was the only cat in the country to which Dick carried it.

Our domestic cat is the descendant of a very ancient family, which was held sacred in ancient Egypt as far back as 1300 B. C. It is even said that our word "puss" comes from an Egyptian name for the cat. If, therefore, ancient lineage counts for anything, pussy is certainly entitled to respect.

Why the Sun Sets.

Little Jack asked his mother one night why the sun set so often. She told him so that it might rise in the morning. This seemed a useless reason, and Jack hunted for another. At last he said:

"Oh, I know, mother. The sun sets so that she can hatch all the days."

International Salutations.

The British and the French have always had the greatest contempt for each other, and this contempt has even gone into proverbs. An Englishman speaks of "taking French leave" and a Frenchman "going away in the English fashion."

Conundrums.

Why are house builders like novelists? Both construct stories.

When is a wheel like a fly? When it is a flywheel.

What ships are more common on land than on water? Court-ships.

Two Cats and a Dog.

Two cattails started in to fight
One pleasant summer day.
A sun dog jumped down from the sky
And scared them both away.

It is not the insurrection of ignorance that is dangerous, but the revolts of intelligence.—Lowell.

Parson a Mossback on Suffrage.

There's a clergyman in England who does not want women to get their rights. He says so frankly and vows that if women ever get them he will leave the country. He is the Rev. A. J. Waldron, vicar of Brixton. "Women want their rights," said he. "When they get them I will emigrate." He does not see why women should wish to enter politics or even want to vote. His contention is that women should remain at home, should not work for a living unless absolutely compelled to and should give up women's clubs. He says women are destined for the home and should not be permitted to vote.

When Genius Burns.

When she is writing, Mrs. Wilson Woodrow says, she wants to bite something hard. So she keeps near her a box of brittle candy. One day she found that she had eaten a whole pound of it during her work upon a single chapter of "The Beauty." Another time she was working with a glass penholder and bit it clear in two.

To Make Pineapple Jelly.

One of the problems frequent with young housewives is why pineapple is so hard to make into jelly even with gelatin. Old housewives know that the pineapple should be cooked before it goes into the jelly. A glance at the gelatin box will probably reveal the same advice.

And They'll All Praise Your Bread, Madam

When you use FIVE ROSES, you get something worth while for all your mixing, and your kneading, and your baking.

You get that glow of pride, that satisfied feeling both before and after the meal.

Without which all labor is vain, and cooking a drudgery instead of a joy and pleasure.

FIVE ROSES flour, Madam, lightens labor—since it needs less kneading.

So fine, granular, strong, that it absorbs the liquid faster, going together quickly, smoothly.

Nutlike flavor, crisp golden crust, and porous crumb.

Ask the best, the prideful breadmakers what flour they use.

Ask them what makes their folks so strong and sturdy, what brings the roses of health to childish cheeks.

They are the good breadmakers, enthusiastic FIVE ROSES users.

If you were to try it, Madam!

Points For Mothers

The mother with a nursery wants to get those linen picture books that are to be embroidered.

Sheets of linen are folded in such a way that they need only to be stitched on one side. The ends are turned back and stitched down, or the book may be bound with white or colored linen tape.

The cover is stamped with the title "Nursery Rhymes" or "Illustrated Alphabet," and on the different pages are appropriate figures and letters to be worked in outline stitch in mercerized cottons.

Use a heavy cotton and the gayest possible colors that will wash. The larger figures can be done in long and short stitch.

Such a book will not tear, may be made vivid enough to catch a child's fancy and will launder well.

The girl who can draw may originate designs on linen for it. Cut into strips eight or ten inches long and fold like a fan into five inch folds. Stitch at back through all these folds after the outlining is worked. The embroidery is done on both sides. This does away with hemming each separate sheet of book.

Good Form

The woman who intends to have week end visitors or house visitors of any sort needs to consider one thing before inviting the outsider into her home—is the prospective guest worthy of the honor? Is she to be trusted with one's life, ergo one's reputation? If not madam must not issue her invitation, and if she sees fit so to do once the stranger is within her gates all must be given her—full confidence in her integrity and entire liberty in every move that concerns her health and happiness.

As the hostess' captiousness sometimes comes from feeling that the visitor of a week or more is outstaying her welcome, the English custom of arranging a visit within a prescribed period is an excellent one. If you ask Miss Guest to come on the 15th and stay until the 20th you have no reason to complain unless she prolongs her stay. This arrangement for the coming of the guest and her going puts the whole visit on a pleasant and easy basis, and the hostess and guest of good sense abide by all the requirements of politeness and kindly feeling as long as the visit lasts.

An Engagement Tea.

One of the newest ways of announcing an engagement is for the prospective bride to give a tea and invite all her friends and the friends of her parents. You either invite them by note telling of the engagement, or you may send visiting cards on which are written a day, date and hour, and on their arrival tell them the news. When invited by visiting cards, as suggested, tea and cakes should be served, following the procedure precisely of any other afternoon tea. Even when an engagement is announced in this way it is the custom to write notes to one's intimate friends, telling the news before they can hear it from outsiders. Such a note may read:

My Dear Aline—I want you to be among the first to know of my engagement to Jackson Frothingham, which we shall announce at a tea on Wednesday afternoon. I hope you will come in then, for mother and I will be at home at 5 o'clock. I know you will congratulate me when you know how happy I am, and I want you to take Jackson into the friendship which you and I have enjoyed for so long.

MARTHA.

An announcement note of this kind should be acknowledged by the recipient.

Care of Linens.

As linen forms a large percentage of spring and summer dresses it is advisable to study a method for preserving the beauty of this fabric. No linen should be starched. True, linen has a crisp, clean finish when starched and ironed, but it rumples easily, and one wearing makes a garment unfit for a second appearance. Instead dampen the goods considerably and iron until perfectly dry. Iron as much of a garment as possible on the wrong side to raise the thread.

In washing blue linen add vinegar to the last rinsing water. Place a teaspoonful of soda in a gallon of water when dipping a lavender. Use no bluing in tans, but supply it plentifully in the rinsing water for white, blue and pink. Green should not be dipped into indigo water. When the green begins to fade dip it into a sour solution of water and vinegar and hang it in the shade to dry. Dress linens are not unlike table linens as to laundry work, as hard pressing on damp material furnishes a certain amount of stiffness sufficient for such fabrics. Use a very large iron for pressing large pieces.

Shopping Etiquette.

If you have waited until this eleventh hour to do your summer shopping there are some little decencies you must not fail to remember. Most of them center about your obligations to the store people, though the comfort of mommer and hubby and the children is also concerned.

Among my woman friends there are two sorts of shoppers whose methods I have taken pains to observe with the desire, however, to learn rather than to teach. The correct form of shopping is a wonderful gift, implying as great a saving of body and soul as of money, and I am one of the unfortunate ones who come out of these gladiatorial contests the worse for wear in every way.

The saints in my shopping calendar are the women who get through their buying without breaking any of the hearts behind the counter—the dear women who have always a gracious word for the tired salesgirls, who know what they want before they go to the shop and buy it without haggling, dawdling or bad temper.

How to Register at Hotels.

When registering at a hotel a married woman writes her name in full, as "Mrs. George Mills Brown," with her town and state following. An unmarried woman writes hers "Miss Jane Blank," with her city and state. Street addresses are not given. That the full name be given is very important in case of accident, as the use of initials renders identification more difficult. People often have similar initials that represent names quite different. An unmarried woman should never omit the prefix "Miss."

Though the earth is adding 100 tons of extraneous matter, such as meteoric particles and cosmic dust, a day, it will take 1,000,000,000 years for it to accumulate a layer an inch thick all over.

Cobourg Horse Show

RECORD ATTENDANCE SAW SECOND DAY'S EVENTS.

Cobourg, Ont., Aug. 17.—The second day of Cobourg's Summer Horse Show opened with a record crowd in attendance. The grandstands, seating between 2,000 and 3,000 people, were crowded, the boxes were well filled, prominent in the social element being many Torontonians while the large ring was surrounded by thousands of people. The regular trains and boats today brought in many excursionists, who viewed with much interest the twenty events run off. The district saddle class and single roadsters made a fine showing.

In the pony high jumping contest Miss Wilmot, of Belleville, riding Bathgate Swell, Mrs. Chas. Wilmot's entry, won the first award, and cleared the hurdles in fine style.

These were some of the awards made:

An Allowance.

"I do not see why a parent should not say to a girl, 'Here is so much a year; you have to pay your school bills, your dress, your laundry, your traveling expenses and the cost of your games and your sweets out of it,'" was the startling suggestion advanced by a public speaker in a lecture on "Woman and Her Money" given to a large gathering of women recently in London.

In his capacity as a lawyer the speaker has seen much misery and unhappiness for which extravagant wives and daughters, reared in total ignorance of the value of money, have been responsible, and, in his opinion, many disasters could be avoided if women were more wisely educated in the handling and investing of money.

"The ideal father and mother give their children an allowance," he went on to say, "even if it is only a penny a week. This allowance should be increased as time goes on, and a girl should gradually be allowed to pay all her own bills and expenses."

The Mother and the Boy.

A boy's heart is full and overflowing. He needs some one who will listen to his confidences. If he is repelled and finds himself alone he becomes fretful, indolent or worse. His affairs are not "nonsense." A good mother never says, "Run away; I am busy." She listens, encourages.

Important discoveries may be made in these outpourings. She gives sympathy, enters into his feelings, sees things from his point of view. If he tells her of something which proves that he is at fault she does not reprimand at the time, because this will check further confidences. She gives her attention quietly, tells him she is glad he has confided in her and that she will talk of it again with him.

If a mother has insight she can solve many problems. She is interested in her boy's sports, collections, his school and companions. The choice of his companions should not be left to chance. It is well if they are from families known to his parents.

Cure For Nosebleed.

Young children frequently develop the habit of nosebleed, strange as this may seem. In such cases, without regard to the frequency, length or severity of the attack, a positive cure has been found in ammonium carbonate. Two grains every ten minutes will stop the flow quickly during an attack. To overcome the habit two grains should be given from three to six times each day, when in a short time the tendency will stop. In older children and in adults it can safely be increased to six grains.

SKILFUL TRACKERS.

Arabs Have Reduced the Practice to a Science.

The Arabs of the desert in some ways resemble the Indian. A traveler who has observed these desert men and their characteristics writes: "The Sherrarat are all very good shots and their skill in tracking is very great, for these nomads, like the Indians or the Hottentots, have reduced the practice of tracking to a science. Half the life of a Bedouin is spent among the camels; from early childhood, when he is sent out to guard the herds, until he is too old to ride out on raiding expeditions, camels form the chief concern of his existence. They are herdsmen by profession. Without the camel life would be impossible in the deserts of Arabia. Small wonder, then, that camel talk is as interesting to the Arab as the camel itself. It is his only means of information, and, by constant practice, the true Bedouin can read the footprints like a book; they are science and gossip to him. This art is called Athar.

"On several occasions when traveling by night my hunter stopped his camel, and, after a short examination of some camel tracks, exclaimed that it was a raiding party of such a number and of such a tribe, and on each occasion I proved him correct. In daylight he could determine the exact number of camels from a mass of tracks all going in one direction, and could also say how long ago they passed and to what tribe they belonged. Marauding bands always leave a long, straight, compact line of footprints, as of men traveling fast, close together and with an object. Even on hard, stony ground, where the camels leave little or no impression, they could tell exactly the time at which the owners passed that way, and deduce the extent of their wanderings."

After He Saw Them.

Mr. Blank, with his four-year-old son Booth, on his way to visit friends who kept a large farm, was asked by the boy if there were pigs there. Being told there were, the delighted tot said he would take three of them home with him. Soon after their arrival at the farm nothing would satisfy the boy but an immediate inspection of the pigpen. It was his first sight of the uncleanly species, and he gazed abstractedly at the porkers.

"Well," asked his parent, "which three do you want to take home, Booth?"

"Daddy," the little fellow replied very earnestly, "one will be enough, and will you please carry it?"

He Doubted Her Sincerity.

"I cannot give you a favorable answer until you have talked with my father."

The young man seized his hat.

"What's your hurry?" the fair girl asked.

"I take no chances," replied the youth. "I am going to see your father before you can get to him."

And he hustled from the room.—

Motive In Decorations.

The primary motive in Wall Covering is not merely to "ornament" the room as pictures would but to MAKE THE WALLS DISAPPEAR, to help us forget their BOUNDARY.

This motive is clear enough in the splendid Tapestries of early date, probably the first and finest Wall Coverings ever used. The subjects and colorings of these Tapestries show that they were designed to carry the imagination beyond the prison-like stone walls into the freedom, light and color of the great outdoors.

THE DESIGNS, COLORINGS and quality of our papers carry a guarantee of work that is backed by reputable experiance and present efficiency that keeps our papers ALWAYS IN THE LEAD for decorative salability.

Grand Trunk Picnic Was Very Successful in Everything But Numbers-Those Who Won Prizes

Under the auspices of the local branch of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, a picnic was held yesterday at Massassaga Park. Owing to the inclement weather in the early part of the day it was noon before it was decided to hold the annual event. During the afternoon the steamers Brockville and Dack made trips to the Park, and whilst the attendance was by no means equal to that of previous years, there was a good crowd present and all apparently enjoyed themselves. The members of the Committee did all in their power for the entertainment of their patrons and in this respect they were eminently successful. During the afternoon an excellent programme of sports was carried out on the grounds aquatic events on a course off the bay, and dancing in the pavilion. The I. O. O. F. orchestra provided suitable music for the latter. Owing to the late hour in commencing the games the last event was not completed until the shades of evening were falling, after which supper was partaken of. Two Children Had A Narrow Escape.

Smith's Falls, August 17.—Two little children of Mrs. James McGregor had a narrow escape from being burned in their beds last evening. Smoke was seen issuing from an upstairs window of their home about 7 o'clock, and a neighbor, on rushing in to learn the cause, discovered the window curtains and the coverlids on a cradle in which a baby was sleeping, to be on fire. In a bed in the same room a small girl lay blissfully unconscious of the danger all were in. The children were soon carried to a place of safety and firemen extinguished the flames. It is supposed that the little girl after being put to bed by her mother, had got up and procuring some matches had ignited them and set fire to the window draperies. The cradle was close by, and a spark had evidently dropped into it. A moment more and the little one would without doubt have met a cruel death. The mother was in the kitchen at the time, and did not know of the danger which threatened her little ones until the neighbor rushed in.

In Old Quebec.

The Toronto Telegram's special correspondent with the Queen's Own writes thus from Quebec:

"Lest Torontonians should imagine that the musty old, dusty old, rusty old Quebec is excited over this visit of the Q. O. R., let it be stated that of ten people met casually and asked the question, only one had heard there was such a regiment. Quebec people may be good church-goers, but they're blamed poor admirers of the military. Only a handful of men met our trains on Sunday night—a handful of Britishers—mostly Englishmen who have to live here or are here for some equally good reason, and thirst for things British. Church bells and black-robed priests and Christian Brothers are poor diet for those who don't like that sort of thing. Anyway, let the dear old bells clang and the incense burn—anything to keep men decent.

"Those who dissee the Q. O. R. boys are unstinted with their praise.

"A fine body of men!" is heard on every side. "A lot of men with fine bodies" would describe it better.

NO USE FOR ASIATICS.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Discusses Immigration Questions at Vancouver.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 18.—Before an audience numbering from 8,000 to 10,000 persons, Sir Wilfrid Laurier discussed the problem of Asiatic immigration Tuesday night. The Premier spoke for over an hour and his speech can properly be said to be his greatest oratorical effort of the present tour.

The Premier began by declaring that a great deal of misapprehension existed in the province over the Government's policy in relation to oriental labor. It had been claimed that the result of voting for the Liberal administration would be that the Grand Trunk Pacific would be built, not by white labor, but by Asiatic labor, that British Columbia would not remain a white man's country.

"But to-day we can look our opponents in the face and tell them with some pride that the G.T.P. Railway was built last summer, and that not one Asiatic laborer has been imported for it," he said.

"This is a question which affects not only British Columbia, but the whole of Canada; it affects England, it affects the whole British Empire. It has always been my purpose to discuss it, not from the point of view of British Columbia only, but from the point of view of British Columbia, of Canada, of England, and of the whole Empire. My policy has been built all the time upon two different conceptions. If possible, the relations between Great Britain and the Government of Asiatic nations should be of a friendly character. My second proposition is that if we do not admit immigration from the Orient, from China, Japan and India, the good relations which ought to exist between Great Britain and Asiatic nations could not be maintained. This is the policy I have endeavored to maintain. (Applause.)

"You have looked at the question simply from the point of view of the labor man. I have looked at it from the point of view of the whole Empire. The end is the same, but the methods different, and I ask you which is the most conducive to the peace and to the integrity of the Empire?"

Referring to the arrangement with the Japanese Government, he thought this had been honorably maintained.

Hon. George P. Graham dealt with the question of transportation. In time the Grand Trunk Pacific would have to come to Vancouver, he said.

Deliberate Murder of Politician.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Daniel Cummings, said to be one of Senator Lorimer's lieutenants, was shot and killed yesterday by Thomas J. Bent, alleged to be allied with a faction opposed to Lorimer.

Bent calmly awaited arrest and refused to talk until he had consulted a lawyer. Neighbors told the police that Bent waited for an hour in front of Cummings' home and began firing when Cummings appeared.

Col. W. D. Gordon Is Retired.

Montreal, Aug. 18.—The curt announcement in the militia Gazette, issued in Ottawa, that Col. W. D. Gordon, officer commanding the Quebec command, is retired, Aug. 1, 1910, has set military circles in Montreal wondering. Both in Ottawa and Montreal official circles there is complete reserve as to the reason.

Ask Laurier to Intercede.

Vancouver, Aug. 18.—Conductor Kemp, who was in charge of the freight train which collided with Sir Wilfrid Laurier's special, between Moose Jaw and Regina, and who was discharged by the C.P.R. in consequence, called at the Vancouver Hotel yesterday morning to ask the Premier's intercession in his behalf.

NEW CHANNEL RECORD

Young Chicagoan Does It In a Fierce Storm With Passenger.

Architect Named Moissant In Aeroplane For the Sixth Time and Burly French Mechanic, Taking His First Trip, Go From France to England Without Mishap—Making Voyage From Paris to London.

Deal, Eng., Aug. 18.—John B. Moissant of Chicago yesterday flew across the English Channel from Calais to Tilfanstone with a passenger.

The two-man flight was the more astonishing as it was only a month ago that Moissant learned to fly, and he made so few flights and was so little known among airmen that even his nationality was not disclosed. He was reputed to be a Spaniard, and only when he landed in England was it revealed that he was a young architect from Chicago.

To make the feat still more surprising, Moissant was totally ignorant of the geography of his course. He had never been in England, and was obliged to rely entirely on the compass while crossing the channel was accomplished in the teeth of a strong westerly wind.

The channel flight was an incident in the aerial voyage from Paris to London. Moissant left Issy, France, Tuesday in company with Herbert Latham, and reached Amiens in two hours. Latham's aeroplane was wrecked and yesterday morning Moissant, leaving Amiens at an early hour, headed for Calais. His mechanician, Albert Fileux, who had accompanied him across the country, took his place in the machine when the motor was set in motion for the dash across the channel. Thousands who had gathered to watch the daring aviator were amazed, and urged him not to make the attempt in the face of the half gale that was blowing.

Moissant, disregarding their warnings and even the fact that there was no torpedo boat to follow in his wake, did not deter him. He made the trip in 37 minutes. When he descended his eyes were bloodshot and greatly inflamed, as a result of the heavy rainstorm into which they drove on approaching the English coast. The high wind beat the rain into the faces of the men like hail, almost blinding them.

An average height of about 300 feet was maintained over the water. The aviator expected to land at Dover, but was forced by the wind a few miles north, and made the coast near Deal. The cold was intense, and both Moissant and his mechanician were benumbed.

Moissant, who is 35 years old, first visited Paris some months ago and became interested in the study of aviation. He had two machines built after his own designs, and found the subject so fascinating that he determined to become a practical airman. His flight yesterday was made in a Bleriot machine, which weighs about 800 pounds. He himself weighs about 150 pounds, so that the total weight amounted to nearly 1,150 pounds.

Fileux, a burly Parisian, clad in overalls, did not know where he was going when he started, but says he felt quite at home, as he had the greatest confidence in the pilot.

Balfour Soon to Be Premier.

Montreal, Aug. 18.—At a luncheon given here yesterday by Major Stephens, president of the Board of Harbor Commissioners, in honor of Lord Brassey, the guest of honor, in rising to reply to the toast to his health, in a bright, cleverly thought out and worded speech, predicted that there would be a change of Government in the old country very shortly, and that Mr. Balfour would gather around him in his new Parliament representatives from the states beyond the seas.

The aged peer also predicted that the present tariff difficulties would eventually be settled by true British common sense, settled favorably for the old country and the Empire without any particular regard to the political platform of any party.

Resigns His Seat.

Winnipeg, Aug. 18.—A. L. Bonnycastle, Conservative, who was declared elected for Russell in the provincial election after a recount, has resigned his seat.

Bonnycastle's opponent was first declared by thirteen, but the recount gave the seat to Bonnycastle, owing to a number of ballots having extraneous pencil marks. The Liberals claimed these ballots were spoiled while in possession of the returning officer after the election, but this is denied in the statement of resignation.

Japanese Flood Losses.

Tokio, Aug. 18.—The extremity of suffering and destitution among more than half a million people here is indescribable.

More than 1,000 are either killed or missing, nearly 4,000 houses are destroyed and more than 150,000 houses damaged as a result of the Japanese floods, which have been worse in Tokio and its suburbs, where the city is supporting 100,000 refugees.

The damage to the rice crop is estimated at 4,500,000 bushels.

Borden In Cape Breton.

St. Peters, C.B., Aug. 18.—R. L. Borden's meeting here yesterday was very successful. A fair estimate of the number present is one thousand. The day was favorable. After Mr. Borden, ex-Judge Doherty spoke, confining himself principally to the navy question. The meeting lasted four hours. The large portion of young men present was particularly noticeable.

Accidentally Shot.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 18.—Frank Eastbrooks, aged 24, of Centreville, near Sackville, was probably fatally shot yesterday morning by the accidental discharge of a revolver in the hands of Andrew Macdonald of Amherst, who was cleaning the weapon.

The argument advanced in favor of a new phonograph which has its records in the form of endless belts is that it is possible to provide much longer selections than by the older methods.

Milady's Mirror

To prevent stringiness and the showing of ugly cords in the neck massage the throat every night with a cream made from two gills of spermaceti, two ounces of white wax, ten ounces of almond oil, forty grains of borax powdered and ten drops each of oil essences of bergamot and rosemary. A pinch of powdered camphor should be put with the cream while it is melting, or half a teaspoonful of tincture of benzoin may be added.

Before this or any other cream is applied the throat must be carefully washed at night and the cream rubbed from chin to chest with a rotary motion. This work should last for five minutes at least. At the expiration of that time the cream may be lightly wiped off and a lotion made from a pint of high proof alcohol to an ounce of tincture of benzoin applied.

Following this, the head is to be bent back as far as it will go, which should be enough to stretch the throat cords, and alternating with the backward tilt the head must droop forward until the chin rests upon the chest. Afterward the head must be twisted first to one side and then to the other, the object of these movements being to keep cords and muscles strong and elastic and prevent their sagging and so destroying the throat contour.

The cream described above may also be rubbed into hollows of the chest to fill them out.

A woman who carries her head well—that is, the chin up—is less apt to lose the beauty of her throat than one who permits her head to droop forward. As a matter of fact, the head held up, the chin in place, is a beauty not common, but adds enormously to the effect of presence and distinction. A mistake not unusual to those trying to cultivate the habit is to thrust out the chin.

The Feet and Success.

The condition of the feet has a direct influence over one's success in life. Pain and discomfort make one irritable, and people are apt to attribute the irritability to a naturally bad temper. Moreover, pain and discomfort distract one's attention from business, be this social or commercial. On every account it is of great importance to have the feet as easy as possible. These remarks are merely passing touches of a subject whose full treatment would fill a volume. And in regard to considering ways and means you must be equally concise. One rule is to have the feet sufficiently warm and pleasantly cool. Another is to keep the feet dry, not merely on account of possible chills, but because moisture tends to make soft corns and to so soften the skin that friction may cause tenderness. Footgear, including socks and their substitutes, should be neither tight nor loose, but should fit easily. Tight boots cause pain by pressure. Loose boots occasion blisters and corns by friction. The uppers must be soft and pliable to accommodate themselves to the altered shape of the feet when standing, sitting, etc. The soles should be pliable. When they are stiff the feet are either lifted off the ground without the foot soles being bent, which is tiring and makes the walk hideous, or the feet are wearied by the effort at each step to bend the boot soles.

What's What In Hairdressing.

The matter of hairdressing this summer, says an authority, as regards the big shade hat or the motor hat resolves itself into the simple proposition of trimming the face. The woman who is able to trim her face with best results will have achieved the greatest triumph in hairdressing. As for the top of the head, it doesn't show much, and a simple bun surrounded with an appropriate design in puffs or coils or braids will do.

Hairdressing for the hat is divided into three parts—the utility part, when the hair is fastened where it ought to be so that there is something to build upon; the artistic part, which is after the hat is put on and the hair is draped to meet the knot at the back of the head and secured firmly, and the gay or picturesque part, when the little pin curls are tucked in and the final fancy pins are fixed in place.

Hairdressing as it should be done takes time. You do it slowly and you take infinite pains with it, but when once it is done it is done for all day. You don't have to keep repairing it.

To Prevent Tartar.

Tartar being an enemy to sound teeth and healthy gums, care should be taken to prevent tartar from forming. Use frequently a solution of tincture of myrrh, enough in a glassful to make it milky in color. The mouth should be carefully rinsed with an antiseptic wash immediately upon arising and before going to sleep. A good wash is made by adding one or two teaspoonfuls of listerine to a glassful of tepid water, but this must not be used too constantly. Another good mouth wash is thymol, seven and a half grains; borax, fifteen grains; distilled water, one pint.

A machine on the principle of an aeroplane, yet which runs on the ground, has been built by a French instructor of aviators so his pupils may run no risks in their preliminary lessons.

For the Children

Boy Horsemen Who Took a Long Ride.

Louis and Temple Abernathy, aged nine and six respectively, recently completed a horseback trip that extended most of the way across the continent. The boys are sons of Jack Abernathy of Oklahoma, noted wolf catcher and friend of former President Roosevelt. They made the trip from Oklahoma to New York to greet Mr. Roosevelt on his return to this country. They covered about 2,000 miles and arrived at New York in good health and fine spirits. On their way they stopped at Washington and were received by President Taft.

The youngsters are expert horsemen and made the trip without a mishap. When it is remembered that Temple Abernathy is only six years old, hardly more than a baby, the feat seems truly a remarkable one.

The Menagerie Man.

Each of the players except two takes the name of an animal, such as lion, leopard, panther, monkey, etc. One of the two remaining is called the buyer and the other the seller. The seller is supposed to own a menagerie, so he traces an imaginary cage upon the ground and puts his beasts into it. The buyer then comes to the menagerie and pretends to knock at the door.

The seller asks, "Who knocks?" The buyer replies, "A merchant." The seller asks, "What do you want?" The buyer says, "To buy an animal." The seller then asks, "How much will you pay for it?" The buyer then mentions some price, say $10.

The seller then invites the buyer to enter, asking him at the same time what kind of an animal he wishes to buy. If an animal is mentioned that the showman has he tells it to run out, at which it runs away from the cage. Before the buyer may run after it he has to pay the price agreed upon, and this he does by giving as many taps on the hand of the seller as he has mentioned dollars. He then pursues the animal he has bought. If it can get back to the cage without being caught it takes a new name. If it is caught the buyer pretends to cut off its ears, after which it is considered to be a dog. The dogs have to help catch the other animals. The game ends when all the players have been caught and become dogs.

It is hardly necessary to say that this is a boys' game and should be played out of doors.

DOCTOR IS MURDERED

Physician of Vars, Near Ottawa, Shot by Laborer.

Alfred Blondin Declares That He Shot Dr. W. A. Empey by Accident, But the Victim Just Before His Death Said That the Shot Was Fired Deliberately and Without Provocation —No Motive Known.

Ottawa, Aug. 19.—The people of the Village of Vars, eighteen miles south of Ottawa, are mystified over a fatal shooting which occurred there yesterday, the victim being Dr. W. A. Empey, for the past six years a physician practicing at Vars.

Alfred Blondin, a French-Canadian laborer, who did the shooting, declares that it was accidental, but the doctor, before he died, declared that Blondin had shot him deliberately, and without provocation.

The shooting occurred at 12.45 p.m., and at 4.20 Empey died at the home of L. Fetterely, a neighbor. Two hours later, Blondin, who had remained in the house after the shooting, and whom the people of the village were afraid to molest, was placed under arrest by Constable Alex. McDonald and Sheriff Hall. He will be taken to the county jail at L'Original to-day.

Just before he died, Dr. Empey made the following statement:

"Blondin sent for me as a medical man. When I got there, Blondin's son-in-law told me to go upstairs. As I approached the top of the stairs, Blondin drew a gun and fired. He shot me without any provocation, cause or appearance of accident."

"Did Blondin know the gun was loaded?" the dying man was asked.

"I don't know," were the doctor's last words.

Blondin, subsequent to his arrest, said: "The shooting was an accident. I was cleaning the gun, and it went off. I am sorry the doctor is dead."

Mrs. Blondin, who was not at home when the shooting occurred, said: "Alfred had been a little ill with a lame back and cold. I had been away from home all day, and when I saw my husband, he said the shooting was an accident. I cannot understand the reason, because he and the doctor were friends."

Blondin, Dr. Empey, Larry Groslouis, Blondin's son-in-law, his wife and an 11-year-old daughter of Blondin's who went for the doctor, were present when the fatal shot was fired from a breach-loading shot gun in Blondin's hands. The discharge from the gun struck Dr. Empey in the stomach. He was able to walk out of the house and one hundred yards down the road to the house of a neighbor.

Blondin, who is a veteran of the Franco-Prussian war, remained indoors, and as he was known to possess a couple of guns, and to be a dead shot, no one would undertake to approach him. About 6 o'clock he came out to wash his hands, and when the officers summoned him to accompany them, and produced handcuffs, he said: "Don't put them on. I will come with you. I am sorry I shot the doctor."

A little further on it was learned that the doctor was dead, and Blondin again repeated that it was all an accident.

Dr. Empey, who was 47 years old, was born at Williamsburg, Dundas County. He was a graduate of Queen's College. He had practiced for six years at Vars, and previous to that had a practice at Spencerville, Ont.

Empey and Blondin were well known to one another. Only yesterday morning, the physician had entered into an arrangement with Blondin to clean his wheel. Among the villagers, the belief is that if Blondin pulled the gun on Empey deliberately, it must have been in a moment of mental abberation, as no motive for the murder can be discovered.

An inquest will be opened to-day.

There's one form of torture in this civilized age, that the average man really enjoys. Did you ever go away on a little vacation and deliberately sit out in the hot sun in an uncomfortable stern-seat of a row boat, and fish and fish and fish until bared neck and arms were scorched and blistered and grew fairly livid? Of course you have; and you were proud of it. Then you put cold cream and glycerine and every other conceivable lotion on the blisters and went about like a wet hen drying her feathers in the sun, didn't you? And you showed your glistening epidemical troubles to everyone who would pay attention, didn't you? Of course you did. You were proud of it. And you'd do it again, wouldn't you?

Found His Runaway Wife in Kingston.

Kingston, Aug. 18.—"A Runaway Wife and How She Was Spotted." If given under the Nick Carter series, this would form a proper title for the story. An interesting part of the affair occurred in Kingston, on Wednesday afternoon and is quite entertaining.

Some few weeks ago, so the story goes, the wife of a well-known farmer of middle age, living near Brockville, deserted her husband and three children. Every effort was put forth to trace the woman, and the husband himself went out as a Sherlock Holmes on the trail. It was claimed that she eloped with a man, known in Brockville, and the husband wanted to satisfy himself of this fact. He does not want her to come back, as she has been false to him but it is understood that he followed up the case so as to get evidence to assist him in a suit which it is claimed, he will put forth to secure a divorce.

Wednesday afternoon, the husband arrived in the city, and set out on his detective work. He did not have long to wait for developments. He walked up and down Princess street a couple of times, when he spotted his runaway wife. She was walking along with another man, the one with whom she is alleged to have eloped. The husband was surprised but the couple was more than surprised.

Just as soon as the husband got his eyes on his wife and her companion something happened. Her male companion took to his heels. The husband felt like making a run after him, and giving him a good trouncing, but he being a man of rather retired disposition, he did not like to make a scene on the street, especially on the main thoroughfare of the city. The man was able to make good his escape, and, no doubt, he was very glad to secure an avenue of escape from his embarrasing position. What the husband said to his wife is not known, but it is understood that he gave her a good piece of his mind." However, as stated before, he does not want her to come back and live with him. His object was to find out just where his wife was and what she was doing. He was able to do this, and he is now, apparently, satisfied.

The affair on Princess street did not cause much stir, even though the street was crowded at the time, but there were a few, who took in the situation and were able to size up things.

The husband notified the police about the whole affair, but as he did not care to make any charges, the police had nothing to act upon, and the matter, no doubt, will be allowed to drop. It is understood that the runaway couple have been in the city for several days, and that they have been staying at a boarding house on Brock street.

It was reported to-day that they had left Kingston. The man who is figuring in the case had been offered a position in the city.

The Crippen Inquest.

(London Times)

The inquest was opened on Monday, the jury being sworn to investigate the cause of the death of "some human bones now lying dead." The jury viewed the remains through a glass screen.

The principal witness was Chief Inspector Dew, of Scotland Yard, who described the discovery of the remains in the cellar. After taking up four shovels full of earth he came upon a piece of human flesh and had to cease his work for awhile on account of the its decomposition. He sent for the divisional surgeon and police constables and had the whole cellar dug out, finding a large quantity of human flesh but no head, hands or feet. Among the things which they dug out was a "Hinde's curler" with a small piece of hair adhering to it. There was also a small piece of hair in a portion of a man's handkerchief, two of the corners of which had been tied in a sort of reef knot. There were no bones, simply one mass of human flesh, the largest piece of which was not bigger than the handbag on the table in court (about 12 in. by 4 in. by 5 in.) Some one had carved the flesh off the bones and buried in quick-lime. The bones might have been burnt or dropped into the river. He also found a part of a female's undervest, encrusted with hard cement-like material, and there was a piece of coarse string 15 in. long, another piece 11 in. long, two pieces of cloth and a sheet of brown paper with bloodstains on it and another piece of string. One of the pieces of string had some cement attached to it. The details were, he said, horrible.

Dr. Marshall, Divisional Surgeon of Police, said that he was not prepared to swear whether the remains were those of a male or female. They were not only pieces of flesh, but the thorax and abdomen and internal organs were present, but no part of the pelvis or the external parts thereof. He thought they were female remains, but he could not at present say so on scientific grounds. The perpetrator of the outrage had tried not only to obliterate all evidence of identity but all traces of sex. Some of the organs were wonderfully preserved, the heart, for instance, being in excellent condition. There was one part of the remains as to which they had quite an argument during the examination, and he could not say whether or not it was part of a female breast. If the person who buried the remains had desired to leave no evidence of sex he made a blunder if he left a breast there. The muscles of the buttock and the thigh very much pointed to a female. He thought that the work of dissection was done in the cellar, and whoever did it must have taken his time about it for it was a most deliberate and long process.

The inquest was adjourned until August 15.

THREE FINE PONIES.

Port Hope Guide: Mr. Charles Wilmot, of Belleville, formerly of this town, is still an admirer of a fine horse and yesterday he exhibited three beautiful ponies. They were entered in the high jump and had no trouble in carrying off the three prizes. Mr. Wilmot's son and two daughters rode the horses and the manner in which they handled them brought forth rounds of applause from the spectators. Miss Wilmot with Bathgate Swell, won the first prize, clearing a hurdle 4 feet 7 3-4 inches high. After the red ribbon had been fastened to her pony the hurdle was raised to 5 feet and this was cleared with the greatest of ease.

Tucked Fish Under His Arm and Swam Ashore

Talk about good fishing stories, the following one from Lindsay, which is said to be true in every respect is the best one of the season.

One of the finest catches of the week was made by Mr. Arthur Rathmell, of Toronto, who is summering along with other Torontonians at Pleasant Point. It appears that Mr. Rathmell was out in a canoe alone and all at once he felt a strong jerk or nibble at the other end of his line, and he began to haul in his victim. In some manner the canoe suddenly capsized and Rathmell was precipitated into the waters of the Scugog. His companion on shore noticed the mishap and became anxious when Rathmell failed to make an appearance after several minutes. They were about to go to his rescue, when they heard a joyous whoop a considerable distance away and on looking around they were delighted to see their friend walking out of the water to shore with a large maskinonge under his arm.

It appears that after being upset from his canoe Rathmell, who is an excellent swimmer—a regular "water dog"—kept winding up the fish line and hauling his finny victim towards him. He reached the piscatorial monster, who was making extraordinary efforts to get away, and calmly tucking it under his arm he calmly walked out to terra firma.

MADOC NOTES

Mr. Herbert Eggleton's funeral took place Sunday afternoon and was a very large one. The bridge that gave way and caused his death had been condemned by the county but the notices had not been put up. The deceased had carried an insurance of $3,000 on his life, but had allowed it to lapse.

Mr. Wm. Volume, one of Madoc's former merchants, but now of Winnipeg, is renewing old acquaintances. He likes the West and prefers it to Ontario.

Good Apple Market

A letter received at the office of the Ontario Minister of Agriculture from Wardell & Co., Liverpool, giving the comparative figures of the apple crop in the United Kingdom this year, and the past three or four years, indicates that the crop is the worst known for many years.

The prospects for the coming season for the Canadian export trade therefore, are very promising. The markets there are ready, say these dealers, to receive American and Canadian fruit when obtainable, and early varieties landing in good condition should find an exceptionally good market.

Seven Years Romance Ends in Marriage.

AMERICAN HEIRESS AND VIOLINIST MARRIED AT T. I. PARK —LOST TO EACH OTHER SINCE CHILDHOOD — MET AGAIN AS HE PLAYED IN FRONTENAC ORCHESTRA AND THE WOMAN POPPED THE QUESTION.

Thousand Island Park, Aug. 15.—A romance of two continents, covering a period of seven years, with the principals of a dashing and determined brunette of 21 summers, said to be an heiress to millions, and a talented though struggling violinist, whose mastery of his instrument caused crowned heads of Europe to lavish upon him jewelled tribute and valued favors, had its culmination Saturday in the wedding at the Methodist Episcopal parsonage of Miss Lolo Baldwin, of Atlantic City, and George Rogoboy, of Russia. Rogoboy is 26 years old.

The story which led heiress and musician to the altar had its beginning in Berlin, in 1903. An American girl, then but 14 years old, and touring the continent with her parents, was taken by the latter to hear a youthful violinist who had completely captivated the music lovers of the German capital. The child was fascinated. She insisted on being introduced to the musician. Where his talent had attracted the girl, her beauty, grace and lingual accomplishments served to weave a spell about him. They became infatuated.

Stern Parents Intervene.

Then stern parents intervened. The turn matters had taken resulted in Miss Baldwin's folks making a hasty departure with her from Berlin for a remote part of the continent, and when this failed to efface the violinist from their daughter's memory, they cut short their stay in Europe and brought her home. All sorts of expedients were resorted to at the Baldwin home and during tours she was taken on to make her forget the fascinating artist. That all were of no avail was evidenced three years later, when afafirs of the family having assumed a shape which gave her practically her independence, Miss Lola set sail with all possible haste for Germany, and spent several months in search of the youthful violinist. She found he had gone to America, but her efforts to locate him were fruitless.

Rogoboy's story fills in the gap of the seven lost years. The loss of Miss Baldwin caused him to devote himself more assidiously to his violin. Fame and money came to him in good measure. Two years after the parting he became the favorite musician of the court of the Czar of Russia. The monarch decorated him as the first artist of the country, presented him with a diamond studded badge bearing the imperial coat of arms.

Calls from Royalty.

Rogoboy's talent brought him calls from the royalty of other countries Queen Wilhelmina of Holland presented him with a costly gold watch set with diamonds and King Alfonso with two jewelled pins. He was absent from his country several months returning to Russia just two years after he had met Miss Baldwin.

Rogoboy had barely gotten home when he learned that with his fame he had made dangerous enemies. Friends warned him constantly that other musicians, jealous of the favors showered on him by the Czar, were envious to the point of taking his life. Soon there came tidings of a plot to murder him. There was no disputing the authenticity of the news and in disguise he fled to America. He had a hard struggle to get a foothold here. But his talent gradually brought him to the front, and the last year of the Roosevelt administration found Rogoboy a member of the White House Orchestra.

Two years ago Rogoboy was engaged as leader of the Frontenac orchestra. He resumed the engagement this season. While in the middle of a selection on Thursday evening, Rogoboy, said last night, some mysterious force impelled him to cast his glance at the guests. A strikingly handsome woman's face of recognition and in a few minutes Miss Baldwin and the musician had met again.

She "Pops the Question."

They met by appointment on Friday. Mis Baldwin declared to a reporter that it was she who "popped the question."

"Should we not wait until my engagement here is ended?" Rogoboy asked.

"You marry me now or never," was Miss Baldwin's response.

So the reunited lovers hurried here on the next steamer and confronted Rev. Mr. Lavis. He asked for their license. There were disappointed exclamations, and later a trip to Lafargeville, where another day was lost by their inability to locate the license clerk. They returned to Lafargeville Saturday morning, however, and secured the indispesable bit of paper, then hurried back to Pastor Lavis, who quickly made them one.

Miss Baldwin said last night that she was a granddaughter of Major Herbricht, of Heidelberg, Germany, who died recently and left her sole heir to an estate reputed to be worth millions. An uncle is in Heidelberg looking after her interests. A few weeks ago Miss Baldwin is said to have received $40,000 from the estate of her mother.

The wedding is the sensation of the islands. Nobody questions that Mrs. Rogoboy is immensely wealthy, nor that her husband is other than he claims to be. The jewels, medals and papers the musicians had conferred on him by Europe's crowned heads were willingly shown to the reporter when he asked for a glimpse of them.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogoboy declared that he would not break his contract with the Frontenac Hotel Company At the close of the season the young couple will go throad.

Good Samaritan Was Missing Here

Emo, Ont., Aug. 18.—Strange reports are in crculation with regard to the circumstances surrounding the death of a tramp here a few days ago. The man's name is unknown, but he was stealing a ride from Fort Frances on a C.N.R. freight. He was under the influence of liquor, and fell from the car to the track, the train severing both legs and one arm.

It is asserted that a local clergyman was passing at the time and saw the man, but did not go to his assistance. He contented himself with informing a passing boy about it. The boy informed a doctor, but before the man was given any attention another train passed over him. He was still alive and a number of men carried him to the doctor's office. He was conscious, but died in two hours.

The authorities decided that an inquest was unnecessary. The deceased had come from the United States, and difficulty was experienced in making arrangements to bury him. The remains were finally interred in the Potter's field. No minister could be secured to take charge of the services.

Graft Stops When Conservatives Reach Office

One of the regular developments of Canadian politics has come to be the winning of the Provinces by the Conservatives, and the subsequent good results experienced by the said provinces.

Manitoba shook off the Greenway Government and has done well under Mr. Roblin.

Ontario thanks Heaven three times a day that it dropped the Ross Government and took up with Sir James Whitney.

Mr. McBride obtained power in British Columbia and rescued the Province from a desperate financial bog.

The latest of the list is New Brunswick and in that Province people are beginning to see what the old Tweedie-Pugsley rule meant. For example: In the Crown Lands Department the revenue is steadily increasing. This year it is $480,000; last year, $395,000; in 1908 $343,000; while the best the Liberal administration could do was $321,000. To quote from the St. John Standard:—

"The remarkable feature of the case is the fact that while the revenue of the surveyor general's department has increased by $160,000 or fifty per cent., it is well understood that the lumber cut on Crown Lands has not increased. There is no increased export of wood to correspond with the gain in Crown Land revenue. No trade returns and no increased milling activities can be found to show that more timber was cut last year than in the previous seasons. On the contrary it is a matter of common knowledge that the lumber operations were reduced.

"The plain fact is that the increased stumpage revenue, and much more than this increase, has been added to the income of the province by honest and fair collection. The other plain fact is that for many years before the change of government the revenue was robbed, or rather surrendered, to the extent of $100,000 to $150,000 a year. The provincial revenue must have suffered to the extent of at least $2,000,000.

"Territorial revenue includes other items besides stumpage. These have not all shown so large a gain in three years. Stumpage revenue alone in 1907 was $180,000. This year it will be $332,000, a gain in stumpage alone of $152,000 or eighty-five per cent.

"Here is the official statement of the Crown Lands lumber cut for the past five seasons. To any person in the least acquainted with the lumber business the statement itself is proof that the cut reported by the late government was only a fraction of the actual quantity taken from the government forests:

Year	Feet
1905-6	107,000,000
1906-7	119,000,000
1907-8	151,000,000
1908-9	925,000,000
1909-10	280,000,000

"The Lumbermen did not get the full benefit of these immunities. They were compelled to pay handsomely for their exemptions. Some of them are glad of the change. They know now that they get fair play, and that they are all treated alike. The political collector no longer follows or precedes the scaler, and lumbermen once more venture to own their own souls. That is worth something."

Thus from the Atlantic to the Pacific there is an unbroken record of Conservatives turning Liberals out of office and giving enormously better administration. It will be the same at Ottawa.

Much Pump Water In Toronto Milk.

Toronto, August 18.—What is the cause of the poor quality of Toronto's milk? That it is not what it should be is evidenced by the results of the analyses made for the Medical Health Department.

"It is quite true," said Dr. Sheard, Medical Health Officer, this morning, "that certain herds of cattle at times produce a milk with less than three per cent. of butter fat, notably the Holsteins which are large-framed cattle bred for slaughter or cheese-making. Their milk is rich in casein and low in butter fat. It is also true, to a limited degree, that cattle out on grass with an abundant supply of water may produce a milk below the average in solids and butter fat; but, while these conditions may produce some dilution, the fact that milk of low standard is the constant condition in Toronto makes me think that the cow with an iron tail is a factor."

Runaway Beauty.

HAPPY ENDING OF A ROMANCE AT TANGIER.

Tangier, August 16.—The romance of the beautiful runaway daughter of the doctor at the Spanish legation here is to end, as all romances rightly and properly should, with wedding bells and the prospect of "happiness ever after."

It will be remembered that the girl's father objected to her intimacy with two British friends, Mr. and Mrs. Levison of Tangier. If she persisted in visiting them, he said he would shut her up in a convent. The girl thereupon fled from home and was received at the Levisons'.

The irate father sent the Spanish police to recover her. Mr. Levison armed his household and threatened, with his wife and the runaway girl, to shoot anyone who entered the estate. The affair appeared about to develop into an "international incident." There were conferences between the Spanish minister and the British minister, and the British minister and Mr. Levison Then the girl disappeared.

Her escape was not the least romantic part of the story for she was smuggled to Gibraltar in a trunk which was carried from Mr. Levison's house to the quay at Tangier a distance of some three miles, by a stalwart Moor. She is still at Gibraltar.

An arrangement, however, has now been made between the doctor and his daughter. The father proposed that if she would consent to be married to a bridegroom of his choice she might return to Tangier, and he would forgive and forget. But if she fled to Spain he would have her arrested for threatening the Spanish police with a revolver. The girl has consented to the marriage.

The bridegroom, a young Madrid man, arrived here with documents from the papal authorities granting permission for the wedding. He left for Gibraltar where the ceremony will take place.

Right of Attire.

GIRL CHALLENGES BRITISH LAW THAT IS A PUZZLE.

London, Aug 17.—Is it a punishable offence for a man to wear woman's clothes in the street or for a woman to walk the streets in trousers? It has always been held to be punishable in this country; but is it?

When it was reported that "Dr." Crippen's companion, Miss Leneve, had been arrested on board the Montrose on the technical offence of masquerading as a boy, for want of any other pretext, it was questioned by some legal authorities whether, if the rumor which reached England at the time the fugitives were reported to have been identified were true the captain of the vessel had the power to do any such thing.

Another case in point has cropped up, which, trifling as it may seem, has begun to create a good deal of interest. A girl has challenged a North London magistrate to prove that the law has any right to declare what a woman may wear, and the magistrate has adjourned her case for inquiry.

The Law Times, referring to the incident, observes: "There are now no sumptuary laws, and fashion alone rules the dress of the sexes but it has been usual to treat as idle and disorderly persons those who go about in the garb of the other sex. There is said to have existed at common law the offence of 'traversity'—i. e., the wearing by one sex the garb of the other—but we can find no authority or case which states that the wearing of the attire of the opposite sex can of itself be treated as a criminal offence, though the disguise may afford some indication that the wearer is up to no good."

At Sign of the Scales.

DRUNK AND VAGRANCY

George Hunter, a stranger, was charged with the above offences. Two days ago Hunter paid a fine of $2 for being drunk and promised to leave the city, but evidently did not do so. A fine of $10 and costs was imposed, or in default 30 days in jail. Hunter went up on the hill.

DRUNK

Wm. Kimmerley acknowledged he was drunk. A fine of $5 and costs or fifteen days in jail was imposed. Not having the change Kimmerly went to jail.

Back and Forth.

"There's one thing about you suburbanites that I never could understand," said the city chap.

"What is that?" queried the commuter.

"I've noticed time and again," continued the c. c., "that when you fellows reach town in the morning and again when you start for home in the evening you have a happy look. Now, why is it?"

"Oh, that's easily explained," replied the other. "After the day's work in the city we are always glad to get out of it, and after a night in the country we are always glad to get back."—Chicago News.

A GAMBLER'S RING.

When Its Owner Deals the Cards Are an Open Book.

A curious ring seen recently is one that belongs to a gambler, one of the most famous card players in the United States. It is a heavy gold band affair and is exactly five-eighths of an inch wide. Running around the band in such a way as to completely circle it is a row of five small signets. Each one of these is worked in gold in the form of a shield. These shields are polished on their surface and bear no marking of any sort.

Inside the ring and grooved into its outer circle is another gold circle. When the ring is put on the operator's finger by a slight movement it is possible to slide the outside band around on the inner one. The instant this is done from under one of the small shields appears a minute mirror. This mirror is a scant quarter inch in diameter.

When the operator sits in at a game of cards he wears the ring on the little finger of his right hand.

When he slides the cards off the pack as he deals this little mirror comes directly under the card that is being dealt. The dealer, looking down at his hands as he deals, sees each card as it comes off the pack. He knows each card that he has dealt and exactly who has the card.

As the dealer puts the pack down by a movement either slow or fast it is a perfectly simple matter to give the ring a slight rub, sliding it back into its original position. The mirror, even when it is exposed, is always on the inside of the hand and concealed from every one. After long practice it is possible to pull every card off the pack in such a manner that it will reflect in the exact center of the mirror.—Boston Post.

Servant Problem 3,000 Years Old.

It is rather comforting for distraught housewives who have difficulties with their domestics to know the servant problem is nothing modern and not, as has been surmised, an effect of a perpetual war between capital and labor. Mistress and maid, man and master, have always been in antagonism to each other. Reverse the situation and it would be the same, as it has been ever since the world began. A Philadelphia authority rejoices because at Fordham university it has come to light that nearly 3,000 years B. C. the Egyptians were having as poor a time with servants as some people in the United States are experiencing this very day. It was not all rapture and roses in the best families of Egypt owing to this branch of domestic life not bearing proper fruit. From some ancient papyri which have recently been unearthed in a tomb near Memphis maxims have been deciphered that are eye openers. The Egyptians must have had a terrible time in their households when such sentiments as these survive the centuries: "In sooth thou shalt find it hard to satisfy thy servants despite thy earnest desires, for if thou be harsh with them they shall say: 'He is a cruel master. Lo, we shall go!'" Solomon knew what he was talking about when he said there is nothing new under the sun, for it made no difference to Pharaoh's servant, "even though thou give princely gifts of gold [tips, of course] and precious stones to thy higher servants, content is not in them, for they shall say: 'Lo, the master is suddenly grown gracious! We shall go.'" If any more of these manuscripts dealing with this subject are found it is hoped they may be deciphered for the consolation of the world. Misery always loves company, and even these musty maxims of 3,000 years ago are as fresh as daisies.

Fortune Telling

Does not take into consideration the one essential to woman's happiness—womanly health.

The woman who neglects her health is neglecting the very foundation of all good fortune. For without health love loses its lustre and gold is but dross.

Womanly health when lost or impaired may generally be regained by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

CHAPTER I.

"There's the train whistle! Seaton will be over soon!" murmured Captain Vinton Maxwell, Cadet Officer of the Day, as he watched the natty corporal posting the cadet relief guard in barracks.

Silvery moonbeams transfigured the gray quarters at West Point, on the night of June 15th, 1868. The brooking silence was broken, only by the faint, uncertain rustle of the forest fringing deserted Fort Putnam, and the dreamy strains of tender passionate music, wafted from the hall where the graduating class were running the gauntlet of bright-eyed beauties for the last time!—Handsome Maxwell, pacing the lonely area of barracks, could hear the musical clang of the ship bells on the three United States frigates, anchored on the Hudson, under the shadowed crags of West Point. The Naval Academy, on its practice fleet of old battered cruisers, was, for the first time, visiting the National Military Academy at West Point. The weather-beaten war-vessels Macedonian, Dale and Savannah swung idly at anchor on the river, whose waters mirrored a thousand glittering stars.

In high carnival, future Admirals and Generals proudly mingled the navy blue and cadet gray with the resplendent robes of the prettiest daughters of "Uncle Sam!"

The "Point" was en fete. For the day of days, for the class of 1868, was closing. The Great Captain (Lee's magnanimous conqueror), heroic Grant, had, before a mighty throng, handed the coveted diplomas to the young soldiers whose four years' ordeal would finish at midnight.

Official dignitaries — laurel-decked veterans—proud and happy relatives, and watching young beauties watched these last impressive ceremonies. As the sunset gun woke the echoes of the grand mountain fastnesses, and the star flag slowly fluttered down into the keeping of reverent hands, many a "68" man felt a sudden pang to think—even in this hour of joy—it was his "Last Parade!"

When the thrilling music of the "beat off" gave way to simple "Home Sweet Home!" there were manly eyes dimmed with sudden moisture. Fleeting moments brought the parade to its close with "Auld Lang Syne," and the "Dashing White Sergeant." In a ringing voice the lithe Adjutant gave that welcome order, which a cadet hears only once in his life: "First Class! Fall out!"

Sweeping up to the front, the fifty-five keen-eyed soldierly young "Children of the Flag" marched in an unbroken line, while the superb band rattled out: "The Bold Soldier Boy," in time-honored custom of this "Last March to the Front." The class halted as if by magic; instantly fifty-five right hands saluted the manly presence of handsome "Harry Black," the beloved commandant. The Colonel, in grave affection, uncovered his stately head, and the long rank of young knights, plumed and golden-chevroned, broke up forever! The class of 1868 had passed into manhood at a bound. Cadets till midnight, and officers thereafter, by the grace of their foster-mother Columbia! Knots of delighted friends gathered around these fortunate graduates. Soon, various pretty piratical feminine craft swooped down on these beaming new "Lieutenants to be," bearing them away to the dim nooks of Flirtation Walk, or the dangerous porticos of "Roe's Hotel."

Under the starlight Maxwell walked the quadrangle. He was the last "Officer of the Day" of his class. Vinton Maxwell would be "on duty" till he had "marched off the guard," and given up his trust to a successor. He was Dictator of the "Corps of Cadets" for a day!

As the tall cadet captain of "D" Company strode along in the moonlight, he was proud and happy. A son of Ohio, he had striven hard for rank and place. He rejoiced as he loudly clanked his sword, in friendly warning, that Lieutenant Vinton Maxwell, of the Corps of Engineer, United States Army, had reached the goal of his West Point ambition.

In happiest mood he gazed at the winding path to the South Wharf. His own relatives were far away. The pleasures of the last grand hop, ("The Graduating Hop,") were denied only to the officers and members of the Cadet guard; the unfortunate neophyte candidates (reporting daily), and the few bright-eyed middies, idly tramping the white decks of the old war-vessels, in wrath, as "watch officers." These nautical heroes were graduated some days before, and now pinned, alas! to their "quarter-deck" duty, the bell told of wasted hours of this glorious night. Far up the crested bank in the "Cadet Mess Hall," in varying circles of tempting loveliness, the tender-eyed battalion of Beauty was driving other susceptible swains wild with delight.

Happy, even if lonely, Maxwell awaited his civilian friend, Beverly Seaton, whose companionship would cheer the loneliness of this last night in barracks. The late "Hop" kept Maxwell on duty till one o'clock. For his chosen cadet comrade, Jack Gordon, "of Kentucky," was a pronounced "ladies' man." Though separated by first-class promotion, which took Gordon to "A" Company, from the left wing, (as First Lieutenant of the First Company), these classmates, (loving room-mates for three years), were nearer than ever, in heart, at the end of the fourth and final twelvemonth.

Half an hour previous, Maxwell left Jack Gordon in his room, adjusting his rich sash, donning his "demmy" dancing pumps, and inserting his "blue-grass" anatomy in a treasured cadet suit of resplendent glory. Handsome Jack, true to the spirit of "game Kentucky," was named for the cavalry. His ardent soul scorned "the bookish theorie" and longed only for the wild sweep of a rattling charge, over the plains, at the yelling Comanches, or the grim painted Sioux. Jack was of the equestrian order!

While Maxwell waited for Seaton, Gordon came bounding over the area. It was el ultimo sospiro del Moro. The last service aupres les dames, on the dear old Point.

'Hello, Vinton!" cheerily cried Jack. "Seaton here yet?" His kindly voice was ringing in the soft inflections he learned from his dusky foster-brethren of childhood.

"No, Jack!" Maxwell replied, "but there goes the boat's whistle."

"Tell Seaton I want you both to spend the rest of the night with me; I always like to meet a Southern man," rejoined Gordon.

"All right, old fellow! Go ahead and gather in your trophies. Take one turn of a waltz for me," cried the disconsolate Officer of the Day.

"Once round the room with the Baltimore beauty," merrily rejoined Jack. "I'll think of her on the plains. See what glory is! I prefer 'two bare arms,' while you stalk up and down in harness, a grim spectre, or inspector, of the night."

"Another pun and I'll put you under arrest!" sternly retorted Maxwell. "Go ahead! give away your sash, chevrons, buttons, class-ring; everything except your heart. A true cavalryman never marries."

"I'll bring you Miss Nellie's fan to dream on," was the last sally of the departing Jack.

"Hold on! Gordon!" cried Maxwell, "ask her to walk a dance with me in the long hall of the Academic."

Gordon was away like the wind. His heart was pigeon-holed a la Brigham Young, for a brighter lad never knelt before golden-haired lass than this spirited son of the "Dark and Bloody Ground."

Maxwell dreamed of all the stern struggle of his cadet life, till the sergeant of the guard room reported "Gentleman to see you, sir—Mr. Seaton, in the guard room."

"Ah! my Confederate friend. How strange our first meeting," thought Maxwell, as he hastened to the guard headquarters. "Seaton has kept his word; I'll have him home with me for a month." Though mindful of his dignity, entering the room crowded with the cadet guard, Maxwell's heart leaped up to greet his visitor. His spirit sank within him as Beverly Seaton grasped his hands. The visitor's face was ghastly pale. "Something wrong," ruminated Maxwell. In an instant he called; "Orderly! Light up the Officer in Charge's room.—Come upstairs, Seaton!" he cheerily said grasping the silent stranger warmly by the arm.

The two friends mounted to the eyrie, whence the Army Officer in Charge (an Official Gorgon) glares at the helpless cadets under his armed heel. As Maxwell ascended, his brain was working quickly. 'Seaton looks all broken up. His telegram gave no sign of any trouble; but he did not come for the Hop and the graduation!—What can have happened?"

Entering the room, Maxwell keenly eyed the young Virginian and closed the door. "Make yourself at home Seaton," he said with affected indifference. "You can smoke and take it easy; I'm on duty till eight to-morrow but at once to-night we can go over to Gordon's rooms; he wants to meet you." In answer, Seaton dropped his head on the table and sobbed like a child. Maxwell sprang up and closed the window, through which the strain of the 'Guards' Waltz" were borne by the soft night breeze, mingled with the rippling murmur of the singing river.

"For God's sake, Beverly! what has happened? Tell me all!" Vinton Maxwell grasped his friend's hands. "This is not like the lad who bore Virginia's cadet colors at Newmarket, when your battalion 'stood off' a whole brigade of our men! You can surely trust me."

"To the death, Maxwell! and that's why I am here!—I came to tell you all! I am broken-hearted. I must tell some one or die!"—Seaton raised his tear-blurred eyes, wolfish in their intensity.

"Go ahead, Seaton! I have nothing to do till the Hop closes; we are alone! Let me help you!" the warm-hearted "Northerner" cried.

"I fear God alone can," said the Virginian. "Listen! Till I bid you speak let Honor seal your lips forever."

Maxwell bowed his head.

Care of Children's Teeth.

You cannot begin too early in life to care for your children's teeth, and mothers are often negligent in watching the condition of their children in this particular. Many believe it entirely unnecessary to give any attention to the temporary or milk teeth. As a matter of fact, these teeth aid in the growth and development of the second or permanent ones, which absorb the milk teeth as they push their way forward. Children should be taught as soon as they are capable of understanding that the toilet of the mouth is an essential part of the daily regime and be provided with their own set of dental preparations, including a baby toothbrush of camel's hair. If left to themselves children will go at the cleansing process too vehemently and bruise the delicate tissues of the mouth. They should be taught how to hold the brush, how to lay the powder or paste upon it and how to apply it in gentle strokes, which should not be across the teeth or in circular movements, but in the direction of their growth, so that the spaces between the teeth are well cleansed.

HE WILL STAND ALOOF

Roosevelt Refuses to Enter Into New York State Mix-Up.

Ex-President Holds a Conference With His Nearest Friends to Talk Over Strained Relations With Taft and the Old Line Republicans—He Will Let New Yorkers Settle Their Political Troubles as Best They Can.

Oyster Bay, Aug. 19.—Theodore Roosevelt spent yesterday in what was probably the most important political conference he has held since he left the White House. He gathered about him a group of his close friends, and talked over with them the situation which is best expressed in the reports that relations between President Taft and himself are strained to the breaking point.

Wm. Loeb, jr., collector of the port of New York; Lloyd C. Grimcom, chairman of the New York Republican committee; Representative William H. Calder of Brooklyn; Fred J. H. Kracke of Brooklyn, and Representative W. W. Cocks of Mr. Roosevelt's home district took part in the conference.

From what was said by some of the visitors it was learned that the ex-President and his friends have agreed on a plan of action which will hold until the situation shapes itself more clearly. Briefly stated, it is this:

Roosevelt is to stand aside in the New York State campaign, and let the old guard fight its own fight, and thus shoulder all the responsibility for the conduct and result of the campaign. He is neither to endorse nor criticize the Taft administration. He is to keep out of all around if he can.

Congress Expensive.

Montreal, Aug. 19.—It has become evident to the committee in charge of the preparations for the Eucharistic Congress that the $100,000 placed at their disposal will be wholly inadequate.

The cost of the repository at the foot of Mount Royal will alone be $10,000. The work of street decoration carried on by the committee will cost $40,000, while it is estimated that nearly $100,000 will be spent by private citizens and commercial houses in decorating their buildings.

At St. Patrick's Church the work of preparing for the congress has been going on for months. The mural decorations have all been renovated, and the grounds surrounding the church have been newly-laid out. The work in St. Patrick's parish will cost in the neighborhood of $30,000.

Throughout all the city churches the same story prevails. In each and everyone improvements have been effected in view of the congress.

Man Killed by Lightning.

Fort William, Aug. 19.—One man was instantly killed, one rendered mentally incompetent for the remainder of his life, and five others were more or less seriously injured when a bolt of lightning struck the camp house of O'Brien, Fowler and McDougall, on the Transcontinental Railway near Lake Superior Junction.

The seven men were at a table eating their noon meal when the bolt came.

Seulon Olivo, 534 McIntosh street, Fort William, toppled over dead and Nevar Gallagher, address unknown, sustained a mental shock from which he is not expected to recover.

Village Nearly Wiped Out.

Ottawa, Aug. 19.—But for timely assistance from the Ottawa fire department, the little Village of Osgoode, 12 miles south of the city, would have been wiped out by a fire which started in the early hours of yesterday. The losses are: J. H. Nixon, stables and contents, $4,000; P. S. Richardson, furniture store, $4,000; Boyd Bros., contents of general store, $7,000; A. P. Wilson, loss on store building, $4,000; W. Taylor, residence, $3,500; Union Bank building, $700. Smaller losses aggregate another thousand. The total is about half covered by insurance.

Will Visit Canada.

Berlin, Aug. 19.—Langrave Alexander Friedrich of Hesse, a descendant of the Landgrave who furnished the Hessian troops, which fought on the British side in America during the revolutionary war, has decided to visit Canada and the United States incognito, this summer.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Aug. 18.—The railways reported receipts of live stock at the City Market for Wednesday and Thursday of 105 carloads, consisting of 1470 cattle, 1576 hogs, 2087 sheep, 234 calves and 2 horses.

There were none on sale, unless it was a few bulls, which sold at $4.75 to $5.

Butchers.

The best price quoted for choice cattle was $5.75; good, $5.25 to $5.50; medium, $4.90 to $5.15; common, $4.50 to $4.80; cows, $3.00 to $5.00, with a few of export quality at $5.25.

Stockers and Feeders.

Murby & Wilson report a fair demand for stockers and feeders at following prices: Steers, 900 to 1000 lbs. each, $4.85 to $5.40; steers, 800 to 900 lbs. each, $4.60 to $5.12 1-2; good stockers, $4 to $4.50; common stockers, $3 to $4.

But we deem it fair to say that should hogs come forward in liberal numbers, prices, we believe, would go lower at once, as the above prices were paid for local use.

Williamson, head of the emigration committee of the Central Unemployed Body, now in Australia, states that Australia offers better inducements to immigrants. Satisfactory reports by emigrants have brought that commonwealth into great prominence.

Naval Cadet Exams.

Halifax, Aug. 19.—The local agent of the Marine and Fisheries Department, Mr. C. H. Harvey, announces that he has received word from the Department at Ottawa that the first examination for naval cadets will take place in November. The fees for the two years' course will be about $650. The examination is similar to the high schools.

Designed to withstand earthquakes, the foundations of Mexico's $6,000,000 national theatre, building at Mexico City, have shown themselves proof against several severe shocks.

For the Children

W. E. D. Stokes, Jr., the Boy Inventor.

William E. D. Stokes of New York, though only twelve years old, has made a name among wireless experts by an invention. He designed what is called a "receiving box." This contrivance not only catches dispatches sent in the ordinary code used by the Marconi and De Forest systems, but reproduces the words and sounds of wireless telephony in volume deep enough to be heard at a distance of several feet from the apparatus. Working alone on the roof of his father's hotel in New York, the youngster made his important discovery. Recently he attracted attention at Washington, where he appeared before a senate committee in opposition to a measure to prevent any but authorized companies from taking wireless messages from the air.

Fox, an Outdoor Game.

This is suitable for a boys' game and is better played out of doors.

A space is marked out for the fox's den, and the fox and the rest of the players use their handkerchiefs—knotted at the end if they prefer—in attacking each other. Fox, to show he is ready to begin, shouts out, "Twice five are ten." The others call, "Fox, fox, come out of your den." Fox comes out hopping on one foot and trying to hit any of the players on the back with his handkerchief, they hitting him if they can. If fox while hopping succeeds in striking any player the one hit becomes fox and is driven to his den by the handkerchiefs of the others. After reaching the den he may give warning and hop out as the other one did.

Should fox in his efforts to hit his enemies lose his balance and use both feet he is driven home under the blows of the handkerchiefs.

The Game of Post Town.

This is an interesting game for children of nine or ten who know something of geography and are familiar with the names of places. One is chosen postmaster. Each child takes the name of any town she prefers. If there are too many for the postmaster to remember he writes down the names and holds the list in his hand. He then calls out, "I am going to send a letter from Richmond to Boston," for instance. The children bearing the names of the towns mentioned exchange seats. If they fail to do so the one who does not respond pays a forfeit. Occasionally he exclaims, "General post!" Then every one must exchange places. If any one does not secure a seat she must pay a forfeit, and these are redeemed when the game is over. Excitement is added if long postal routes, including many cities, are named.

Forbidden Letter.

The idea of this game is to try how many sentences can be spoken without containing a certain letter which has been agreed upon. Supposing, for instance, the letter "f" is not to be introduced, the first player might ask, "Is this a new game to you?" The second player could answer: "Oh, no! I played it years ago, when quite a youngster."

He would perhaps turn to the third player and ask, "You remember it, do you not?" The third player might answer, "Yes, but we used to play it differently." This player, having used a word with an "f" in it, must pay a forfeit and remain out.

The answers must be given at once without hesitation, and the player who avoids for the greatest length of time using a word containing the forbidden letter wins the game.

The Little Purchaser.

A pound of jumps!
  And I looked in surprise
At little black Rose
  With her shiny eyes.

A pound of jumps!
  My mamma said.
A pound of jumps!
  And she nodded her head.

But, my dear,
  We've flour and sugar in lumps
And peanuts,
  But never a pound of jumps.

We've walnuts and chestnuts
  And corn that pops.
Oh, oh, I forgot!
  It's a pound of hops!

Water may be heated in a wooden barrel out of doors by inserting the ends of a pipe coil through one side of the barrel from the outside and maintaining a fire under the coil.

Woman's World

The Prettiest Woman In Japan, Princess Fushima.

PRINCESS FUSHIMA.

The prettiest princess of the mikado's realm, Princess Fushima, and her husband, Prince Fushima, a second cousin of the emperor of Japan, are visiting in this country. The princess is a fascinating little specimen of femininity of the oriental grande dame type, with olive tinted complexion and the dark, lustrous eyes and hair peculiar to her countrywomen. Like most of the high caste Japanese, she speaks very good English, and while in Washington, where the Japanese royalties were recently entertained by President Taft and the official set, the princess won all hearts.

Her shy, appealing little manner was in marked contrast to the confidence and assertiveness of the smart American woman. Paris was writ in large letters all over the costumes of the princess, and she wore them with a charming grace. But how commonplace seems even a French creation compared with her own Japanese robes!

Princess Fushima, like the empress of Japan, is in sympathy with the higher education movement for women which in Japan has lately made such wonderful strides. While in New York city the princess bought a number of American toys which she said would delight her three small sons.

The royal Japanese visitors are making a tour of the world by way of Europe and the United States.

A Plea For the Collar.

Technically there can be no objection to it. The rounding neck, the Dutch collar or whatever you want to call it is perfectly correct. There is no reason known to Mme. Grundy why it shouldn't be worn for business.

As a matter of fact, however, it does not look businesslike. You know the girl who affects low cut collars in the office.

She is dressed well enough, is neat and trim, only you find yourself wishing she looked a little more businesslike.

It's the collar.

"If only that girl would come to work just once," you say, "with a good stiff uncompromising linen collar around her neck or a high straight stock that looked as if it meant business, how rejoiced I should be!"

And that long expanse of uncovered neck—you cannot think of anything else when you are near the girl. It exercises some horrid fascination over you. You forget her perhaps charming face, her trim frock, her most attractive manner. All that enters your consciousness is that neck.

Does not this impression on the average observer seem rather a big price to pay for a comfort which is, after all, largely imaginary?

Housewife Hints.

Shrink and set color of children's garments before making up. They soil so quickly that it is not worth while to run risks by waiting until afterward.

A good mixture to set color in cotton materials is one tablespoonful of turpentine, a handful of salt and a pail of cold water. Put goods in overnight.

When icing runs put it back on stove on top of asbestus mat and stir until proper consistency. This can be done after sirup is added to white of egg.

Spreading a little flour on top of a cake will sometimes prevent icing from running.

Feathers that have grown grimy can be given a bath in alcohol, after which they are shaken until dry.

Vegetables for salad must be dry or the dressing does not amalgamate and loses its flavor.

Summer Comfort.

Is there a woman living who does not dislike an oily, shiny face, especially the nose, chin and forehead?

Those who do their own work are often annoyed by this. No matter how often they wash, it seems of no avail.

Here is a simple, harmless and effectual remedy any one may safely try: Cooling lotion for face, neck and hands.

Dissolve in a pint of camphor water quarter of an ounce of pure glycerin, an eighth of an ounce of pulverized borax, quarter of an ounce of boracic acid. Put all in a bottle, shake well and it is ready for use.

Apply whenever warm, as this is cooling and very refreshing.

A transformer built to test high voltage insulators in a German electric plant develops the enormous pressure of half a million volts across its terminals, the sound of the discharge being almost deafening.

Why not paint your house this fall?

You know it should be painted now.

Don't wait until spring.

SHOWS IN LONDON

Crowds That Gather to Secure Seats In the Pit.

A LONG WAIT FOR TICKETS.

The Line, Orderly and Well Dressed, Begins to Form as Early as 5 o'Clock In the Afternoon and In Case of a Popular Play Even Earlier.

In the better London theaters it costs 2s. 6d. to go into the pit, which, relatively speaking, is a good sum to pay, for a half dollar in New York isn't much better than a shilling in London when it comes to purchasing value.

The pit crowd begins to assemble as early as 5 o'clock in the afternoon and in cases of a great success even earlier than that. My first experience as a pittite occurred in London one summer night two years ago, when, after vain efforts to buy, borrow, beg or steal stalls for a popular play, writes Adolph Klauber in the Green Book, I finally decided to see it from the pit. When I arrived at the theater, about 5 o'clock one Saturday afternoon, I found there was already a long line of men and boys and women, the foremost with face glued to the pit door and the line extending far beyond the narrow passageway to the street in front of the theater. Now, with every desire in the world to send my New York constituency some news of this great reigning success and not without some curiosity of my own I was still far from willing to cool my heels for the best part of three hours until the doors should open.

I turned and found a newsboy at my elbow.

"I'll 'old your place for you, sir," he repeated. "What time 'll you be back?"

It was then that I discovered for the first time this London institution, the place holder at the door of the pit, one of the many means by which one of the struggling unemployed or of the poorly paid seeks to add a few shillings to his meager, frugal income. There was no risk involved. The boy was quick to note the foreigner.

"It'll be all roight, sir," he said in his cheerful cockney way. "Is the lady coming too? Me and me friend 'll stand in line, and all you'll have to do will be to change places with us when you come around tonight. Only a shillin' apiece. It's worth it, sir, not to have to wait."

At 7 o'clock we were back in the narrow court, but long before I had been able to disentangle my boy from the dozen or so others, all looking very much alike, his cheerful tones greeted me with "'Ere you are, sir, 'ere you are, and you and the lady 'll get in the first row if you look sharp when you pass the door."

"Jerusalem," I muttered as we dropped into the interstices left by the departing boys, "a good half hour to wait—or more."

But, after all, I found the waiting far from tedious.

Hawkers of fruit and chocolate passed along the line, finding ready buyers among the waiting patrons of the pit, and every few minutes some new vaudeville faker out of work would come along to entertain the crowd with tumbling, dancing, singing or imitations. First a juggler appeared, and when a bobby sent him spinning faster than his plates and balls a contortionist took his place, spread a ragged carpet mat and began to turn himself inside out while the newsboys and shop girls going home from work shouted encouragement and appreciation. Finally the bobby ordered him to "move on," but not until a generous shower of pennies had fallen on the mat. The next man to appear carried a valise from which he produced wigs, crimpled hair and several false noses. His entertainment consisted of imitations of composers, "famous," he called them, but "infamous" they really were. He was not encouraged, either, for the pit line knew good from bad and wasn't to be parted from its pennies without proper value in return.

The crowd was genial, orderly, well dressed, and when the doors were opened finally I expected a headlong rush. But there was not the slightest suggestion of a scramble—a little congestion naturally at the narrow entrance, where a smiling, good natured bobby remarked quite pleasantly:

"Now, then, go easy—just the same as you went into church last Sunday—if you did go."

Then a short passage up a flight of narrow stairs, past a little cubbyhole where the tickets are handed out after you have duly deposited your two-and-six, into the theater and ready for the play.

Cookery Points

Nothing is more refreshing than a cup of good tea when one is traveling, and nothing is harder to find when one is en route. One way to be sure of it is to provide one's favorite brand and tie it up by teaspoonfuls in squares of loosely woven cheesecloth. When a cup of tea is wanted ice water or hot water is never difficult to obtain, and one's own bag may provide the beverage. The bag is easier to throw away than the loose dregs. The little bags should be kept in a tin box or the flavor will be lost if the trip is to be of any length. A tea making spoon or a tea ball answers the same purpose, but it leaves the dregs to be disposed of and is more messy.

Cucumber Jelly.

Pare two cucumbers and cut in slices. Add a slice of onion, a stalk of celery, half a tablespoonful of nasturtium seeds, a piece of green pepper pod and half a teaspoonful of sweet herbs, with water to cover. Let simmer until the cucumber is tender, then press through a very fine sieve. Season with salt, pepper and a tablespoonful of lemon juice. Then add for each pint of liquid one-third of a package of gelatin softened in one-third of a cupful of cold water and dissolve over hot water. Tint delicately with green vegetable color paste and turn into molds to harden. Serve with any salad dressing in the same way that tomato jelly is used.

Although over a thousand plows and probably twenty thousand teams have for the past several months been steadily at work for 12 to 16 hours daily, breaking prairie and back setting in Alberta, Provincial Government reports show that only one per cent. of the total area of the province is now under cultivation.

Bad Wine Year.

NO CHABLIS AND HALF A VINTAGE OF BORDEAUX.

Paris, Aug. 17—These are critical days for the French vintage. The wet summer has caused devastation in the vineyards amounting to a national disaster. In the Paris wineshops and in certain restaurants prices are being raised. All, however, is not yet lost, and a few days of bright weather would modify the situation favorably.

M. Georges Proust, a former president of the Paris wholesale wine merchants' syndicate, makes the following observations in the Matin:

"Lamentable news comes from Burgundy. There will not be a barrel of wine in the Yonne; notably, there will be no such thing as 1910 Chablis In Touraine the white vines alone will yield a small harvest.

"In the south the vintage will be fairly good in the Pyrenees-Orientales mediocre in the Herault and the Gard and insignificant in the Aude. The maritime climate of Bordeaux has not protected the district. Vine diseases have raged there, and only half an average vintage is expected."

Giant Kills Two.

CHOKES ONE MAN WITH HANDS AND THE OTHER WITH LEGS.

Alton, Ill., August 16.—John Burton an Alton wrestler, son of George Burton, Acting Mayor of Alton, killed two men at Marine by strangling them in a fight. Burton says that Leo Wentz and an unidentified farm hand robbed him of $20 and led him to a vacant house to spend the night. He discovered his loss, and in the dark house demanded his money. When they quarrelled Burton says Wentz attacked him, and the farm hand caught Burton's leg. The three men rolled about the floor. Burton caught Wentz by the throat with his hands and the other man's head he caught between his legs. He choked both to death and then gave himself up.

Burton's father has been pleading almost constantly since the young man was arrested to prevent townspeople from attempting a lynching.

Burton can bend 20-pound nails and iron pipes with his hands. He weighs 250 pounds and stands 6 feet 2 inches in height. Both his victims were large powerful men.

ITALY GROWS ANXIOUS.

Cholera Epidemic Spreading — King May Go to Nurse Sick.

Barik, Italy, Aug. 19.—The gravity of the situation in the Province of Bari Delle Puglie, where Asiatic cholera has broken out, is thoroughly appreciated by the Italian Government. The town of Trant is badly infected, and in 44 deaths reported, 20 have occurred in that place.

Dr. Ruetti, who had been sent from Rome to direct the work of sanitation, has been appointed a royal commissioner with full powers. Decrees have been issued, forbidding fairs, processions, feasts and public meetings.

The authorities express confidence that the physicians now in charge of the infected districts will be able to stay the disease, but so far the death rate has been very high, those attacked in many cases dying within a few hours.

The present epidemic, therefore, is of a virulent type and as it has secured a strong foothold, the general fear is held that it will be difficult to check. In various quarters lazarettos have been opened, and several of them already are filled with patients suspected of having the disease.

Royalty Is Greatly Worried.

Turin, Italy, Aug. 19.—King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena, are displaying great anxiety over the outbreak of cholera in the south, and the King has given orders that he be kept constantly informed on conditions in the infected regions.

The Queen is especially touched by the stories of distress among the people of the Province of Bari Delle Puglie, and has made enquiries regarding their needs, ordering that assistance be rendered them, for which she will pay from her private purse.

The King has already intimated his intention of imitating his father, who in 1885, fearless of danger, proceeded to Naples and remained among the cholera patients, who were dying at the rate of a thousand daily. King Victor Emmanuel is reported to have said: "If the scourge increases, instead of going to Montenegro to take part in the festivities, I shall go where my people are dying."

KILLS WIFE AND SELF.

Jealous Montreal Man Kisses His Children Good-Bye.

Montreal, Aug. 19.—Urged on by jealousy, John O'Keefe, laborer, 1,350 Logan street, shot his wife, Rosa Anne de Lima Boulquist, dead, and then killed himself at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. There were two families in the house, and, it is said, that the attention paid to his wife by the other man, led to the deed.

There is a certain amount of mystery, as there had been no quarreling, and the first intimation that there was anything wrong was the ringing shot which ended the wife's life. This was followed in a minute by another, and when the neighbors rushed in the wife lay dead in the bed, having been shot in her sleep. The body of the husband, with the head blown off by a shot upwards through the mouth, lay across that of his wife.

Barnard, aged 14, and Winne, aged 12; the two oldest of six children, said that they were awakened by the first shot, and rushed into their mother's room. The mother was lying on the bed, and the father was standing beside with smoking revolver.

"Good-bye, children," he said, and kissed them. "I have killed your mother, and if I do not kill myself I will be hanged."

Then he fell down on the bed beside his wife and lay there for several minutes; then he got up and said: "I must not let the police get me."

He shook the woman to see if she were really dead, and then ran out into the hall, where he fired again and fell dead. The only quarrel which the children knew of was over a sister of the mother, who was refused admittance to the house by the father, and there was a quarrel.

O'Keefe had been a foreman in the cotton mills for years, and was not drinking. He had bought two revolvers previously, and both had been thrown away by his wife.

Shots Fired In Strike.

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 19.—The strike of 1,000 or more building laborers in this city reached an exciting stage yesterday when a detail of 15 policemen, under command of Chief Mason, drew their revolvers and fired several shots into the air to intimidate the strikers. The police were guarding a gang of strike-breakers.

Subterranean Caves That Are Lined With Crystalline Ice.

There are deep cavities and tunneled recesses in the earth far away from sunlight and held in the tight embrace of rocky strata where secret hoards of glittering ice find habitation all the year round. Yet down in these queer places the ice is as clear and chrystalline as any that nature maintains in the open air. Moreover, it occurs on a truly grand and massive scale.

Imagine thick underground ice walls and floors and craftily fissured columns beautiful in shape and color streaming from roof to floor of lofty rock chambers! And under the slow drip, drip, drip of percolating water this same ice learns to fashion itself into cave adornments—frozen water drops, curling slopes, stalactites and stalagmites of fantastic shape and rainbow hues.

Subterranean cold waves, or "glaciers," as they are frequently called, crop up in some 300 scattered localities in Europe, Asia and America, but all, with rare exceptions, whether true ice caverns or grottoes and deep hollows, are confined to the north temperate regions of these continents—that is, to places where there is a sufficiently low temperature at some portion of the year to reach freezing point and render snowfall possible.—Pearson's Magazine.

Her Sad Fate.

"What a beautiful little girl she is!"

"Yes, and, just think, she'll have to marry a mere American, unless her father chirks up and exhibits more ability as a financier than he has ever shown thus far."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Motive In Decorations

The primary motive in Wall Covering is not merely to "ornament" the room as pictures would but to MAKE THE WALLS DISAPPEAR, to help us forget their BOUNDARY.

This motive is clear enough in the splendid Tapestries of early date, probably the first and finest Wall Coverings ever used. The subjects and colorings of these Tapestries show that they were designed to carry the imagination beyond the prison-like stone walls into the freedom, light and color of the great outdoors.

Kingston Man Has A Flying Machine.

The Kingston Whig tells of a safety airship, invented by F. W. Lake, 318 Queen street, Kingston, and which promises to revolutionize aerial navigation.

The machine is constructed on scientific principles and will go directly up from land or water without any forward motion, and has the power of the humming bird to stand still in the air, to go up or down, or turn to right or left without any forward motion. It will go backward or forward, but cannot be made to capsize or turn turtle while in the air, owing to the position of engines and occupants, both being directly under the lifting part of the wing and centre of plane.

The principle feature of the machine is two rotary wings operated and lifting without the aid of the on one shaft which do the propelling plane. The large monoplane is carried to be used only in case of an accident to or stopping of engine when it would safely carry the machine and occupants to a landing. The plane is arranged to tilt, so as to carry forward or backward during such descent.

Each wing is fitted with four sails of net with strips fastened by one edge on under side so as to open and close as valves. The sails travelling in a circular part, but not revolving, cause the strips to open or close according to movement of the sails, when moving upward, allowing the air to pass through, but when down closing strip on net so making solid resistance to the air. These sails, when set horizontally will lift directly up, but when tilted by lever can be made to carry either forward or back at the will of the operator. The sails of the two wings can be tilted in opposite directions, so as to make the machine turn when in the air, as if on a pivot, so allowing machine to be steered either by wings or rudder vane.

The centre of the plane is formed of open material with hinged strips similar to those used in the sails, to allow free passage of air through when ascending, but which close when machine starts to descend.

The lower part of machine is formed of three pontoons for alighting on the water, the rear one being arranged as a balanced rudder and fitted with tiller for steering while on the water. The machine is also fitted with a stiff buffer or alighting stern, which can be tripped so as to drop a number of feet lower than other parts of machine, and is held down by springs and having a flat foot at the bottom which comes first in contact with land or water, on which it would act equally well, relieving all jar.

Tests, which have been made with the model before a number of witnesses, have demonstrated the lifting and carrying power of the wings.

The manufacture of machines will be started as soon as the necessary financial backing is secured for an interest in the invention, for which a patent has been granted for the Dominion of Canada, and other letters patent are pending.

A Wild Story.

About the time the report was sent out from St. Paul that Americans were returning from the Canadian West there went out from Chicago a wild story to the effect that the Grand Trunk would build or acquire a line from Winnipeg to Chicago for the purpose of diverting the traffic from the National Transcontinental line. The report said "there is good authority for the statement."

Enquiry at the Grand Trunk headquarters brings the answer that no such move is contemplated or even dreamed of. It was, however, hinted that this was only a follow-up by those who tried to construe the extension of the Central Vermont to mean the abandonment of Halifax. The Grand Trunk, it was stated, is eager, and will be ready to operate the Transcontinental the moment it is completed.

NeW Equipment Tested

The Madoc Review says:—Two large transformers, weighing about six tons each, recently installed at the sub-station here were tested this week by electricians of the Seymour Power Co., and an expert from the firm that manufactured them. When the switches were thrown in, the machines "burned out," and the one formerly in use was connected up. One of the gentlemen of the party got in close proximity to live wires and though they were well insulated, he received a very severe shock, which burned a hole in his clothing and knocked him off his feet.

Broke His Leg

Last evening Mr. Wm. Penny, an elderly man who resides on the Canifton Road, met with a painful accident, and one which will lay him up for some time. He was walking on the sidewalk at the corner of Church and Mill streets when he slipped and fell, fracturing the shin bone of his left foot. The unfortunate man was conveyed to his home and medical aid summoned, when the fracture was reduced. Upon examination of the place where the accident occurred there was no obstruction or anything to show why Mr. Penny should sustain the injury he did.

Caught Big Fish.

Kingston, August 18 — The biggest catch of the season in local waters was made this morning by Joseph Knot, a caretaker of Queen's University, who captured a 45 pound maskinonge while trolling off Macdonald Park.

The fish gave Mr. Knot a hard fight before it was finally landed, and towed his boat quite a distance in its attempt to escape. Mr. Knot has good reason to be proud of his capture, and will have the fish mounted.

Coroner's Jury Wants 'More Rigid Inspection

Before Coroner Dr. Harper, of Madoc, yesterday, an inquest was held to enquire into the circumstance of the death of J. Eggleton, who, a few days ago, lost his life by the collapsing of a bridge over a stream in Madoc Township. Considerable evidence was submitted as to the condition of the bridge, which is quite an old structure, and how the deplorable accident occurred.

After deliberating upon the case the jury returned a verdict to the effect that the bridge in question was by no means in first class condition for the carrying of a traction engine. The jury also impressed upon the County officials the necessity of a more rigid inspection of the bridges within the County. Mr. Anderson County Attorney, was present on behalf of the Crown, and Mr. Masson looked after the County's interest.

Hunk Charged With Pilfering Pants.

As the defendant did not appear the case was laid over until to-morrow. The accused was allowed his liberty by entering into a bond and depositing $35 for his appearance.

Alfalfa in Hastings County

Alfalfa has been grown for many years in Hastings County. It is becoming wide spread; and its habits and characteristics are becoming much better understood. One great boon to the farmers here is the fact that limestone is so abundant as to make inoculation of the seed unnecessary in most cases. It has been remarked by the older growers of alfalfa that the plant is "Right at home."

Not a few are endeavoring to grow seed. The prospects for seed this year are only fair owing to the drought right after the first cutting.

A weed graining machine invented by two Pennsylvanians consists of an endless rubber band, on which is a raised design, held in contact with a roller fed from a paint or varnish fountain.

Because native trees are too slow of growth to meet the demand for lumber, trees from America and Europe are being introduced into New Zealand.

PURIFIED HIS BLOOD

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Healed Mr. Wilson's Sores

When the sewers of the body—bowels, kidneys and skin ducts—get clogged up, the blood quickly becomes impure and frequently sores break out over the body. The way to heal them, as Mr. Richard Wilson, who lives near London, Ont., found, is to purify the blood. He writes:

"For some time I had been in a low, depressed condition. My appetite left me and I soon began to suffer from indigestion. Quite a number of small sores and blotches formed all over my skin. I tried medicine for the blood and used many kinds of ointments, but without satisfactory results. What was wanted was a thorough cleansing of the blood, and I looked about in vain for some medicine that would accomplish this.

At last Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills were brought to my notice, and they are one of the most wonderful medicines I have ever known. My blood was purified in a very short time, sores healed up, my indigestion vanished. They always have a place in my home and are looked upon as the family remedy."

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cleanse the system thoroughly. Sold by all dealers at 25c a box. 6

HIS LUCK DIDN'T LAST

Aviator Moissant Comes to Grief Flying to London.

He Breaks His Monoplane and Is Forced to Glide Into a Garden Where He Completes Wreck of His Machine—Declares With Pride That He Is Not a Spaniard, But a Descendant of French-Canadians.

Chatham, Eng., Aug. 19.—The good fortune which accompanied the young aviator, Moissant, in the earlier stages of his flight from Paris, and in his record-breaking journey across the channel with a passenger, deserted him with his arrival upon English shores. Defects in the aeroplane forced him to make two landings when about half way in the course between London and Tilmanstone, where he ascended at 4.55 yesterday morning.

The first descent, about 35 miles from London, was due to the displacement of a small pin in the mechanism, entailing an immediate descent. In the landing he just missed the mouth of a deep chalk pit, a fall into which would have meant death for the aviator and his mechanician. Repairs detained him nearly three hours. He then made a second start, but had scarcely covered ten miles towards his goal when a second accident brought him down at Rainham, Kent. A rod connecting up the driving gear of the aeroplane was fractured, stopping the engine and forcing the Chicagoan to plane down immediately to the ground. He landed in a field occupied by small allotment gardens, but only skillful handling of the aeroplane prevented its plunging into a clump of trees which barred the way. Moissant made an abrupt turn to escape these and the machine came down heavily in the garden, breaking the chassais and smashing a blade of the propellor.

Moissant protests against the reports that he is of Spanish descent, and insists proudly to-day to the visitors who conversed with him: "My parents were French-Canadians. There is no Spanish blood in me."

The London papers print columns of descriptive matter concerning his flight and interviews while many of them have editorials on the unique feat, which, it is held, will bring aeroplaning into practical everyday life. It is argued that if a passenger can be carried across the channel in a strong wind, there is no reason why the air should not be utilized to carry mails and passengers in the near future.

May Lock Out All Men.

Winnipeg, Aug. 19.—All the building trades in Winnipeg threaten to be tied up with serious trouble between the masters and men.

At a midnight meeting of the Builders' Exchange an ultimatum was issued to the masons and bricklayers that if the strike on the Lyall-Mitchell Co. works was not called off by 7 a.m. Friday, all union bricklayers in the city will be locked out.

A strike was declared Monday of men working for Mitchell-Lyall, owing to the declaration of an open shop by Peter Lyall & Sons, Montreal.

The bricklayers declare that the Winnipeg firm is a branch, but the Builders' Exchange claim they are distinct and independent.

From 500 to 1,000 men will be affected and if a lockout is declared, it will practically tie up all building.

Prisoner Breaks Jail.

Milton, Aug. 19.—Fred Gibson escaped from jail here Wednesday night. He had been committed for trial on a serious charge. Governor McGibbon himself had locked him up for the night. Gibson unlocked his cell door and three other doors before reaching the yard. It is supposed that he had been given skeleton keys by some outsider. He took two benches from his cell out to the jail yard, set them in the septic tank against the 20-foot stone wall, and climbed over. His age is 22, height, 5 feet 4 or 5 inches; weight, 140 pounds; full face, clean-shaved rosy cheeks, brown hair. He wore a tweed suit, grey peak cap, and dark shirt. A reward of $50 is offered for his capture.

'Twas Nipped In the Bud.

San Jose, Costa Rica, Aug. 19.—Quick work on the part of President Madriz of Nicaragua prevented the overthrow of the Government, according to unquestionable information. Mme. Zelaya, wife of the deposed president of Nicaragua, organized a conspiracy to overthrow Madriz and install Dr. Irias.

One of the trusted followers of Mme. Zelaya got drunk and gave the plot away. Mme. Zelaya was placed on the steamer San Jose, bound from Corinto to Panama, with a through ticket to Europe. Dr. Irias, who held a place in the Madriz Cabinet, was invited to resign, and the lesser figures were thrown into prison.

Strike May Involve 3,000,000.

Copenhagen, Aug. 19.—A general strike of all European marine firemen and sailors, 3,000,000 in all, was ordered on July 26, according to a statement made yesterday by the head of the union here.

The decision was kept secret and the strike will not be enforced unless it is ratified by the international convention to meet here shortly.

Cost Ottawa Two Millions.

Ottawa, Aug. 19.—The cost of the scheme to get Ottawa's water supply from McGregor's Lake, in the Gatineau district, some twelve miles north of the city, is placed at approximately $2,000,000. The city has had a New York water expert reporting on the scheme.

Bishop Smith Coming.

London, Aug. 19.—The chaplain of the general forces, Rt. Rev. Bishop John Taylor Smith, C.V.O., D.D., sails on the Virginian for the celebration of the bi-centenary of the Anglican Church in Canada.

Beneficial results are said to have attended experiments in a London hospital by which asthma, bronchitis and even tuberculosis patients were required to breathe compressed air for a few hours at a time.

M'BRIDE AS HOST.

Premier of B. C. Gives Sir Wilfrid a Royal Welcome.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 19.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's tour across the continent reached a brilliant culmination last night in a great popular function. In picturesque effect, cosmopolitan character, unprecedented attendance and cordial enthusiasm, it partook in a peculiar sense of a national tribute. Unique it is to find a political knight such as Premier McBride surpassing himself in courteous homage and hospitality to a chieftain of the Opposition party.

Sir Wilfrid was much moved, in replying to the civic welcome by the mayor on the arrival of the steamer in the early evening, as he expressed appreciation of the honor done him. In all his long public life he had experienced nothing like it, and he wished to hasten the acknowledgment from a full heart of the more than courtesy received. Premier McBride had taken the lead. "I cannot find words to adequately express my sentiments. He has furnished a striking illustration of the amenities of public life, as understood in the cradle of party politics in the old land. I shall carry home and ever retain happy memories of this unprecedented and happiest experience of a long public life," was Sir Wilfrid's tribute.

Victoria's greeting was on a big and enthusiastic scale. As the steamer entered the picturesque, sunbathed harbor whistles screamed a welcome and the throngs lining the shores broke into cheers. For half a mile in every direction humanity was massed. The city turned out to greet the great Canadian. Over his own signature in the public press the provincial Premier had called on the province to give him welcome. The people had responded en masse. At the head of the great assemblage the mayor and civic officers and officers of the Liberal Association greeted the Premier. His worship presented the civic address. Responding, the Premier expressed his appreciation and paid a tribute to "Victoria the beautiful." A parade of the densely-packed streets was terminated by the inspection of the boy scouts, who were complimented on their appearance.

Prior to the Premier's departure for Victoria he received several deputations at Vancouver. A deputation from the Trades and Labor Council of Vancouver held a spirited discussion with the Premier. They made a specific request that the head tax of $500 be increased to $1,000, and be made to apply to Chinese and Hindus, which virtually means exclusion.

Sir Wilfrid pointed out that, as far as the Chinese were concerned, the increase of the head tax was worthy of consideration. The Japanese were different and the head tax would never be imposed upon these people so long as he was Premier, and he would go down to defeat rather than have the tax imposed. Sir Wilfrid agreed that as a matter of material policy immigration must be controlled, but believed it was not necessary to adopt absolute exclusion, as in that event all trade with the orient would cease.

A deputation of lumber men asked that a duty of $1.25 per thousand feet be placed upon rough lumber imported from the United States, which is the same duty levied on Canadian lumber going into the republic. They claimed this request had been made for 14 years, but the matter had remained in statu quo.

Representatives of the Hindus and Japanese then discussed immigration matters with the Premier.

May Buy Columbus' Birthplace.

Genoa, Italy, Aug. 19.—A party of Knights of Columbus, which recently visited the monument of Columbus here and placed a wreath of laurel and palm at the foot of the monument, has started a movement to purchase the house where Columbus was born, which is nearby, and plan its transformation into a kind of shrine of international interest.

Robbed of $45,000.

St. Moritz, Switerland, Aug. 19.—Mrs. Daniel Bacon of New York, who is touring in Switzerland with her sister, Lady Gilbert Parker and Sir Gilbert Parker, was robbed here yesterday of $45,000 worth of jewelry.

The theft was carried out in a most daring and skillful manner and no clue has been obtained of the robbers.

No Grog on the Rainbow.

Portsmouth, Eng., Aug. 19.—The cruiser Rainbow, one of the ships purchased by Canada to form the nucleus of a navy, sailed yesterday from Portsmouth for Esquimalt. The Rainbow carries a full staff of instructors loaned by the British navy.

She is the first war vessel to sail for a long time without a grog tub. Practically all the crew are teetotalers. Liberal messing arrangements have been made, and Lord Strathcona presented the officers with plate.

The argument advanced in favor of a new phonograph which has its records in the form of endless belts is that it is possible to provide much longer selections than by the older methods.

WANDERLUST.

I hear insistent singing in a corner of my brain.
It must
Be the gust
Of the waking wanderlust.
What glimpses it is bringing of the orient—and Spain!
I scan
Quaint Japan
And bejeweled Hindustan.
I sway to rhythmic measures of a melody unknown.
"Why thrall,"
Is its call,
"To one land, O lord of all?
You, who yet are straight and strong,
Foot the highway! Life's not long!
Throw away your shriveled crust!
Waken!" sings the wanderlust.

"See where waters lap the sky,
Slave of poisoned city dust?
Far beyond is bright romance
Where the languid houris sigh.
Spurn the job and lose the chance!
Would you rot?
Would you rust?
Chained and cobwebbed would you die?
Waken!" sings the wanderlust.

"Oh, the breakers now are pounding on a Polynesian shore
To the rip
Of a ship
Throttled in the tempest's grip,
And the booming conch is sounding in the temples of Labore,
And the lead
Bloody red
Stretches desert bandits dead.
And the slender palms are sighing by a sea of rippled gold
Where guitars
Lift the bars
Of a love song to the stars.
Out—oh, you yet are hale!
Out—to battle with the gale!
Out—to parry foeman's thrust!
Waken!" sings the wanderlust.

See where scarlet sinks the sun,
Slave of poisoned city dust?
Far beyond is where there's life,
Where the reckless deeds are done.
Stolen kiss and gleaming knife—
(Would you rot?
Would you rust?)
Ha, the glint along the gun!
"Waken!" growls the wanderlust.
—Thomas R. Ybarra in New York Times.

Frightened Off.

A Washington car conductor born in London and still a cockney has succeeded in extracting thrills from the alphabet—imparting excitement to the names of the national capital's streets. On a recent Sunday morning he was calling the streets thus:

"Haitch!"
"High!"
"Jay!"
"Kay!"
"Hell!"

At this point three prim ladies picked up their prayer books and left the car.—Lippincott's.

He Didn't Know Her.

CAUGHT CRESTED EAGLETS.

Winnipeg Men Capture Rare Birds After Hard Fight.

The crested eagle, the finest bird of prey in North America, which has practically disappeared from the most inaccessible recesses of isolated sections of the remote Northwest, supplied incidents the other day of a thrilling story in which two Winnipeg men figured. In a wild spot along the National Transcontinental Railway, some miles east of Winnipeg, Wm. Carter and Fred Logan, while hunting, discovered two great birds circling overhead. They followed them, and observed a nest high in the top of a great tree. When they approached the location the birds swooped down upon them. The ferocity of the attack convinced the hunters that they had to deal with eagles of the crested variety, and that there were eaglets in the nest.

The hunters carried rifles and prepared to rob the nest. While one took up a position where he could command the nest with his gun, the other climbed a tree. Twenty shots were fired at the birds as they swooped and screamed around the tree. Logan got near enough to the nest to see that it contained the young birds, but because of the ferocity of the parent birds they gave up the attempt, determined to make another trip. The male eagle followed them for a mile, threatening every moment to come to close quarters with the hunters in spite of their repeated efforts to shoot him.

A week later, equipped with ropes and tools, they returned to the spot, and were again met with a fierce assault. In spite of many shots the eagles fought fiercely, but the eaglets were finally secured. Then the hunters began their retreat, alternately dodging and firing at the two great parent birds. For five miles the eagles continued their attack, and at times came to very close quarters with the hunters. Only when the inhabited sections were approached did the eagles give up the fight. The eaglets are now in care of St. Boniface College. They are rare specimens, and though only a few weeks old, display the ferocity of their species.

Why Americans Flock to Canada.

As a result of speculation, land values have increased from 100 to 1,000 per cent. in different parts of the United States. Acreage that was unsalable ten or twelve years ago at $2 an acre is now commanding $10 to $15, and improved farm land has gone from $50 to $100 an acre to $200 and $350. Fruit lands are commanding as high as $3,000 and $4,000 an acre. The direct effect of land speculation and inflated values of land is emigration. This has assumed serious proportions in the Northwest. Pioneers and settlers of five and ten years ago have been driven across the border into Canada to land still reasonable in price and soil virgin in richness. Last year 60,000 people went over the line. They took an average of $1,000 with them. This sum of $60,000,000 subtracted from the wealth of the United States in one twelve months' period is significant. Now emigration is even heavier than in 1909. It is so great, in fact, that it demands the services of special trains to accommodate it. It is estimated that 150,000 American farmers will, this year, abandon the high-priced lands of the middle west and northwest for the reasonable-priced acres of the Dominion. With production of American staple products not much in excess of home consumption, and the margin decreasing, the loss of this number of producers is of great consequence to the United States.—Moody's Magazine.

Canadian Sculptor's Work.

A few months ago at the annual exhibition of the Canadian Art Club in Toronto and Montreal were seen two working models of tigers by Mr A. Phimister Proctor, the noted sculptor, who although a resident of New York, is a Canadian by birth and sentiment. He was born at Bosanquet in Lambton County, and his lively sentiment as a Canadian is shown by his interest in the club in question. According to The New York Herald, Mr. Proctor has completed six bronze tigers. Two of these will go to Princeton University, of which the tiger is the symbol, and the other four to the city of Washington. The work has just been finished at Mr. Proctor's atelier, 97 Sixth avenue, New York, and the casting by the Gorham Company is about to commence.

Mr. Proctor has been a sculptor of animals of all kinds for many years. The bronze panther which Col. Roosevelt's tennis cabinet presented to him just prior to his departure for Africa was his work, and a picture shows him at work on a head for the elephant house in the New York Zoological Gardens. It is to be hoped that some day some of his remarkable work will adorn his native land.

Bank Clerks Inadequately Paid.

There's a shortage of bank clerks, and a Montreal bank is adopting the expedient of employing women for minor positions. Within the past few years some of the banks have brought out young Scotchmen to fill the gap.

But the trouble seems to be the inadequate salaries paid to young men to adopt banking as their vocation. There has been an improvement in this direction, but the increases have not kept pace with the cost of living.

Hundreds of young men are resigning from employment in banks to go into farming, and they are adopting other pursuits offering greater advantages in the way of salary.

After ten years' service in a bank and reaching the responsible position of teller, a young man may be rewarded with a salary of $1,000 a year.

Surely this is inadequate. Many of the tellers are required to handle millions of dollars a day for $1,200 a year and even less money. The "honorarium" of a bricklayer or a plumber is even more princely.

Considering the heavy responsibilities of a teller's position he is entitled to a fair share of the dividends of a banking business.—Toronto World.

Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve Set Sail on Magantic This Morning.

(Intelligencer Special)

Quebec, August 20 — Dr. Crippen and Miss Ethel Leneve were taken from the Quebec prison this morning by Inspector Dew, and other detectives and two wardresses. They were rushed across the St. Lawrence and boarded the steamer Megantic for England.

Only a small crowd was present about the jail when Inspector Dew took the prisoners away, and there was no disorder.

The Megantic is a very slow liner, carrying few passengers, and Dew selected it because he could secure more privacy for his prisoners. The vessel hove to off Sillery this morning for the Scotland Yard man and his prisoners.

Thinks Dr. Crippen May Escape Hanging.

Intelligencer Special.

London, England, August 20—When Dr. Crippen comes to trial he may benefit by the recent hanging of John Alexander Dickman for the murder of John Innes Nisbet on a train near Newcastle. Dickman was found guilty on purely circumstantial evidence. Since his death certain things that would have worked strongly in his favor have come to light. Public opinion now is against convictions on circumstantial evidence, and even the prosecution admits that the case against Dr. Crippen is largely circumstantial.

Few lawyers doubt, however, that the prosecution will be able to make out a case assuring long imprisonment for him.

Chicago Aviator's Bad Luck Continues

Upchurch. England, August 20 — After flying a mile early this morning, on resuming his Paris to London aeroplane trip, Moissant, the Chicago aviator, was forced to descend.

Moissant began what he hoped would be the last stage of his flight at 6.15, but his motor balked. A high wind was against him, too. He may resume the flight later in the day.

ALLEGED TRAITOR MAY GET DEATH PENALTY.

Intelligencer Special.

St. Petersburg, August 20 — Baron von Ungern Steerberg is to be tried before a military court, instead of a civil one, on a charge of selling Russian military secrets to Austria. The reason assigned for the change is that a civil court cannot punish with death, while a court martial can.

SENSATIONAL STORY OF HAMILTON ESCAPE

Intelligencer Special.

London, Ont., August 20.—Chief Constable Williams, home from his holidays, says he offered to bet Dr. English three weeks ago that Gunner Moir would escape from the Hamilton asylum in less than three months.

According to Williams, Moir wrote to a London friend asking him to get him a present for an attendant, and to include in the parcel some small files.

Moir said he intended to escape, that the Hamilton asylum was too small for him.

Williams says he got the letter and sent it to Dr. English, who sent it to the Government.

"It was a miscarriage of justice to commit Moir to an asylum," said Williams. "Moir is no crazier than you or I." The auto story is a fabrication.

MAYOR WINS MATCH

McLean of Hamilton Carries Off the Osler Trophy.

Chief Executive of the Ambitious City Makes 49 Out of 50 at 600 Yards In O.R.A. Event—Sergt. J. Guthaus Successfully Shoots Off Two Ties With Perfect Scores—Pte. Jones Wins the Canadian Club Prize.

Long Branch Rifle Ranges, Aug. 20.—Hamilton's mayor was one of the heroes of the final day's shoot of the O.R.A., and he divided honors for congratulation with President E. B. Osler and two others, who demonstrated superior skill and nerve in shooting off ties and winning them. President Osler was congratulated on the success of the most successful meet the association has ever held; the hand of Mayor McLaren of Hamilton was roundly shaken for his winning of the Osler match, firing ten rounds at 600 yards and scoring 49 points out of a possible 50. He gets, thereby, a cash contribution of $20. Sergt. J. Guthaus of the 43rd D.C.O.R., was the real star performer of the day as far as spectacular shooting was concerned. He had to shoot off in two ties at 200 and 800 yards, and he won both of them, with perfect scores, and bull's-eyes for sighters. It was a very remarkable display of nerve.

Calmly picking up his paraphanelia, Guthaus walked over to the 800-yard range, and dropped to shoot off another tie in the "Great West" tobacco match. This time he was up against Lieut. A. M. Blackburn of the 90th Winnipeg, and Lieut. Meiklejohn of the 43rd D.C.O.R. Meiklejohn's target appeared first and he plumped in an "inner" (4) for a sighter. Blackburn followed up with a 4. Guthaus still lay there and everybody held his breath when the rifle cracked, lest the excitement of his previous stunt had taken his nerve. But a white disc came up, "Sergt. Guthaus, sighting shot, bull's-eye, fire"; announced the register keeper. Then came the announcement of a bull's eye on all three targets and the three broke away even. The next volley was almost simultaneous. Guthaus scored a bull's-eye, and the others got "magpies." It was all over. Blackburn got two more bulls and fell down to an inner on his last shot. Meiklejohn scored another "magpie," and two inners. Guthaus kept on making bulls. He gets a cup valued at $20 for 200-yard extra series; Sergt. Wright gets $15, and Sergt.-Maj. Utton $12. In the "Great West" match Guthaus gets the value of $20 in tobacco. Lieut. Blackburn gets $15 cash, and Lieut. Meiklejohn gets $12.

Pte. J. M. Jones of the 13th Royals (Hamilton) won the shoot off in the 300-yards tie for the "Canadian Club" individual prize against Corpl. H. Whitehorn, 10th Royal Grenadiers. The scores were 23 to 22. Both finished and started with three bull's-eyes, and started out with inners.

Another very keen match for breaking a tie was between Lieut. W. A. Morris of the 18th Mounted Rifles, Winnipeg, and Sergt. D. Spence of the 19th Alberta Mounted Rifles, in the Duke of Cornwall and York match at 800 yards. Spence missed the target altogether in his first shot on score after getting an "inner" for a sighter. Morris made a bull for a sighter and followed it with five more. The cheer that went up was spontaneous and hearty. President Osler and Lt.-Col. Macdonald rushed forward and grasped Morris' hand.

The team of the Governor-General's Foot Guards, Ottawa, won the Gzowski Cup for skirmishing with 409 points out of a possible 1,250.

The revised list of the "all comers' aggregate" shows Lt. Forster of Ottawa the winner, with 264 points out of 280. Lieut. Forster of Ottawa also won the Tait-Brassey match with 102 out of 105 and the extra series at 500 yards. The former gets him $20 cash and the latter $25.

TWO YOUTHS DROWNED

Toronto Young Men Are Upset in Canoe in Lake Simcoe.

James Grange, Aged 19, and Ivan Clarke, Aged 21, Are Victims of a Capsized Canoe Off Jackson's Point — Grange Attempts to Save His Companion and Perishes In the Attempt—Both Fine Swimmers.

Jackson's Point, Aug. 20.—James Grange, aged 19 years, son of Dr. E. A. A. Grange, V.S., principal Ontario Veterinary College, living with his parents at 644 Huron street, Toronto, and Ivan Clarke, aged 21, son of Fred Clarke, 635 Huron street, both of Toronto, were drowned in the chilling water of Lake Simcoe, about 150 yards from shore, at 6.30 last night.

The young men were intimate friends and were out canoeing at the time the accident happened, and as far as known there were only two eye-witnesses, Mrs. De Gruchy and her little son, the tragedy happening at a time when most of the cottagers were at their evening lunch.

All day a cold wind had blown over the lake, and the waters were regarded as dangerous for canoeing, and few boats were out during the afternoon, but Grange and Clarke, especially the former, were strong swimmers, and adepts in the handling of a canoe.

The young men were at either end of the canoe, and in their efforts to steady it, the frail craft upset, throwing both in the water. Clarke at once sank, and Grange, in attempting to rescue him, was dragged under, and did not again come to the surface.

At the place where the accident happened the water is about 35 feet deep. An alarm was at once raised, and attempts made by diving to reach the bodies, but these were unsuccessful, and finally Gordon Cameron and F. G. Kritzer, two local men, attempted, with the aid of drag nets, to recover the bodies, but the rough condition of the water rendered work extremely difficult. At 9 o'clock the men engaged in grappling ceased work, but later, with a better outfit, it was resumed.

Word was immediately sent to the families of the two young men. This is the first fatality at Jackson's Point so far this season, and the cottagers have been congratulating themselves on their immunity from drowning accidents. The young men were extremely popular among their immediate friends in the city and likewise at the "Point," where they, with the other members of the family, had been summering, Grange and Clarke remaining behind for a few days after the other members had left for the city.

Mait Aykroyd of Toronto may go up to-day to assist in recovering the bodies.

Was Ship Sunk by Whale?

Philadelphia, Aug. 20.—A seven years' mystery of the sea may be solved through a mishap to the German steamship Pallanza, which struck a whale at sea, nearly cutting the mammal in two and disclosing a harpoon believed to have been used by the little whaler James T. Duncan, which was lost in 1903, having sailed from Halifax, N.S., with a crew of seven men.

"I think it is perfectly safe to say that the Duncan drove this weapon into the whale and in the struggle which followed was sunk by a blow from the infuriated monster's tail," says Capt. Fendt. "You'd think so, too, if you had seen that whale die."

Spanish Government Insulted.

Madrid, Aug. 20.—The Spanish Government has instructed Marquis De Gonzales, secretary of the Spanish embassy to the Vatican, who has been in charge of the embassy since the recall of the Spanish Ambassador, to call attention of the Holy See to the violent sermons being delivered by Roman Catholic priests in Spain.

The sermons, according to the note of instruction to Marquis De Gonzales are "insulting to the Spanish Ministers and inflaming the passions of the people."

Big Thefts of Pearls.

London, Aug. 20.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Bearing letters of recommendation, purporting to have been written by T. Ellis, Toronto, a man visited the city office of a dealer in pearls, and after the departure of the visitor, 750 undrilled pearls were missed.

The city police offer $250 for information concerning the theft.

CURRENT EVENTS.

Front street at present ought to be good for the dentists. Drivers and cyclists have the filling in their teeth rapidly shaken loose.

Permanent paving may be a long way off, but surely there is no reason for the big holes and 4-inch high crossings which "adorn" our main aisle. The top of the "man hole" near Campbell street could easily break the axle of a buggy at night. Public safety demands that something should be done.

What this dear old city seems to need too, is a weed inspector. Some of the weeds are phenomenally high just now.

Why don't they try wireless telegraphy to try and catch those escaped Hamilton insane murderers? It worked fine in Crippen's case.

Cheer up, youngsters— or parents, whichever you like — in less than two weeks the schools will open again.

Which reminds us that the Boarders are surely having their troubles getting a site for the new public school. They may have to build the school on Zwick's Island yet.

The Owen Sound Herald has started on a crusade against street walking and kindred habits of young girls in the northern town. The O. S. Herald's intention is to publish the names of all girls seen on the streets after ten o'clock at night without guardians. The Owen Sound Herald's intentions may be gilt-edged, but if the editor carries them out he may also carry a hand-painted eye in the near future.

Florence Nightingale's executors do not approve of the proposal that she should be buried in Westminster Abbey along with the past worthies of the Empire. The Abbey will thus be made somewhat poorer than it might have been. It never opened its doors to receive for sepulture one more worthy of all the honor a people could pay to worth and work and goodness.

A correspondent of the Toronto Globe has been unearthing some rather astonishing facts about church extravagance in the west. In sixteen towns of stationary population — for there are such even in the growing west — and all under 1000 souls this traveller has discovered two cases of five churches to a town, and seven of three churches. The list, of course is of Protestant churches alone. The three omnipresent churches are the Presbyterian, Methodist and Anglican, with varying denominations providing the fourth and fifth.

The St. Mary's Journal makes a pertinent query as to why the rural schools open three weeks before the city schools—and right in the middle of harvest, too, at that. Why this should be is hard to say except that the level headed farmer thinks that by the 15th of August his children have had quite enough holiday, and wants them at their books again before the winter sets in. Possibly, also, there is something in the answer that the rural schools start earlier than the city schools simply because it is a custom—and nothing more.

March of Telephone

MAY SPEAK TO HOME FROM MOVING TRAIN—HENRY VON KRAMER MAKES SUCCESSFUL TRIAL — LINES CAN BE LAID AT LESS THAN $50 A MILE.

London, August 18.—An interesting description is published by a representative of the Daily Mail who witnessed some eminently successful experiments that were carried out on a train running at about 40 miles an hour. The experiment was arranged fir the purpose of testing a new system whereby it is possible to telephone with ease from a train moving at considerable speed. The inventor is Henry Von Kramer, and the success which crowned the trials proved that it would be quite easy for a man to telephone to his office or his home while travelling in a train between the two.

Mr. Von Kramer has been experimenting with this system for the last four years. A double line of wire was laid along the sleepers over about four miles of the railway, and a telephone apparatus was placed in the break van of the train, the other instrument being in a signal box. The conversation carried on is reported to have been clear and distinct as if the train had been stationary and connected with the signal box by the ordinary telephone system.

It appears that the great difficulty Mr. Von Kramer had experienced was to get rid of the induction of the telegraph wires along the side of the railway; he has, however, now succeeded in cutting out all interference by placing a band of wire completely round the carriage. The inventor claims that the system can now be extended to any length of line regardless of the number of wires in the neighborhood, at a cost of less than $50 a mile. The main difference between the system referrd to above and other systems with which experiments have previously been carried out is that there is no "brush" contact between the moving train and the stationary wires.

It is understood that one of the trains running on the Brighton line will shortly be fitted with one of these instruments, so that passengers travelling between London and Brighton will be able to send and receive messages. Mr. Kramer is in the meantime busily occupied in endeavoring to perfect a system whereby it will be possible to telephone without wires from room to room in a house, the instrument being moved about at will.

JUST AS LONG AS YOU HAVE DANDRUFF YOUR HEAD WILL ITCH.

It's the little microbes that are gnawing down into the hair roots. It may take a long time for these persistent pests to get down to the vital part, but when they do they will destroy the life of the hair in a very short time.

"I write in short that my head was almost running me crazy, and I saw your ad in the Times-Union. I bought a bottle of Parisian Sage at once and tried it, and in a week I could see that my head was almost well, and my hair was growing wonderful, and I continued using Parisian Sage and now my hair is beautiful and everybody admires it. My scalp is always clean." Mrs. S. Dingle, Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 15, 1909.

Parisian Sage, the most wonderful hair restorer, is guaranteed by J. V. Doyle to stop falling hair, to cure dandruff and all diseases of the scalp, or money back. It is the most refreshing hair dressing in the world. Ladies use it extensively because it makes the hair beautiful, soft and luxuriant. 50 cents a bottle at J. V. Little Twins Buried.

The remains of Frank and Bertrand Ray, twin children of Mrs. Frederick Ray, who died at Vancouver, B. C. a few days ago, arrived here last night and were interred this afternoon. Much sympathy is expressed towards Mrs. Ray, as about three months ago she had a similar sad journey to this city with the remains of her, late husband. The late Mr. Ray was a nephew of Mr. A. Ray, of this city.

Oldest Monastery In Christendom.

The monastery of Etchmiadzin, in Russian Armenia, is the oldest establishment of its kind in the world, writes Curtis in the Boston Globe, for it is the religious centre of the first Christian nation. Here at the foot of Mt. Ararat, was the residence of Gregory the Enlightener, who converted King Tiredates and his people a generation before Constantine established Christianity in Rome.

Within the massive walls, which have repelled frequent attacks from Turks Tartars, Persians, and Saracens are a chapel, a seminary, hospices for visiting clergy, and the apartments of the patriarch and the several archbishops bishops, and clerks who assist him in his duties.

The architectural attractions are great —the buildings are not imposing—and the chapel, a portion of which dates back to the fourth and the rest to the seventh century, is a small, dark, cruciform building without beauty of design or decoration. Still it is interesting because it is undoubtedly one of the oldest houses of worship in all the world.

These two patriarchal thrones, one on each side of the apsal. That on the left is occupied on occasions of ceremony of the patriarch. That on the right is reserved for the use of the Saviour in case the second advent should occur without warning.

There are no portraits or paintings of interest, but one is struck by the simple, primitive, earnest dignity of the place, and the unostentatious manner in which the patients live and conduct their affairs.

One of the hospices is always open to visitors, and lodgings are afforded to all comers in the old monastic style, with a cordial welcome without money, and without price, although a guest is expected to drop a contribution in a poor box, which is conveniently placed for that purpose.

About fifty students attend the theological seminary, and considered themselves as priviliged as Roman Catholic youths who are admitted to the schools at Rome. Though the people are almost too poor to support aneducated clergy many brilliant thelogians have gone from this college to the American congregations in four continents.

The Alcohol Bath.

LONDON PHYSICIANS LAUGH AT NEW FAD OF ROCKEFELLER.

London, Aug. 16.—The whisky bath is something new to London physicians, and the report that it has been so beneficial in restoring Mr. John D. Rockefeller to vigor came to them as a surprise. They use spirits of various kinds in the form of lotions. Milk is sometimes used for a bath, but whisky—! On the other hand, eau de Cologne baths are sometimes taken by women who find them stimulating and refreshing. But the alcohol c bath is a thing which British physicians appear to have no faith in.

In Harley street, which is the centre of all the leading physicians, the whisky bath story was received with something like scorn. One doctor, well known for his knowledge of the virtues and vices of alcohol, said, in commenting on the story: "There is something lacking in it. Alcohol applied to the skin can have no more effect in supplying the system with nutrition than would oil, the value of which in its right place, Mr. Rockefeller knows better than I do. Applied to a black eye, alcohol, gently administered, has a soothing effect. It allays pain and prevents swelling, and as an absorbent and solvent under certain conditions is invaluable. Taken internally, say when you are physically sunk it is a capital stimulant, but from one end of Harley street to the other you will not get a physician to tell you that either internally or externally it can add vitality to the tissues.

"An old man needs nutritive food in sparing quantities, but with all respect to Dr. Biggar he is only, it seems to me, exciting his patient and falsifying instead of increasing the vitality."

Asked whether a whisky bath was likely to have any particular efficacy, another medical authority said, he could conceive of none. "The patient," he explained, humorously, "could not even have the debatable privilege of getting drunk that way, because the effect of alcohol is to harden the skin."

It is, perhaps, worth remembering, however, that when Hannibal's army captured Capua they bathed their horses in the richest wines with the idea of restoring their exhausted vigor.

Cork the Hat Pins.

NEW YORK JUDGE SAYS THEY LOOK LIKE STILLETTOS.

New York, Aug. 19 — Magistrate Moses Herrman, in Yorkville Police Court, placed himself on record as heartily in favor of some device that will cover the sharp ends of women's hatpins, whether it be ornamental or otherwise.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lesser, 213 East Fifteenth street, charged that Mrs. Annie Ryan, 429 East Seventeenth street had stolen two hatpins.

The two pins were on the magistrate's desk.

"Are those stillettos, madam?" asked the court.

"No your Honor; they are my hat pins. This woman took them from my house yesterday."

"Well, they look more like weapons Must you wear such long ones?"

That is the style, and I must keep up with the style."

"And so must every other woman. You do it because she does, and vice versa. Don't you know that the sharp points of these pins protrude far enough to scratch the face or put out the eye of any one coming too near them?"

"It is incumbent on some one now to devise something that can be fitted over the ends of the pins and a bit of cork would suit the purpose well."

ALLAN BRANT, AN INDIAN, SEEMS TO HAVE A POOR CHANCE FOR LIFE.

Allan Brant, a young man aged 23 years, yesterday afternoon met with an accident at the Lehigh Cement Works which may result fatally.

A car left the track near the works and a steel rail was being used to assist in getting the car upon the track when it slipped from the hands of those who were operating it and struck Brant upon the head, fracturing his skull and inflicting four ugly wounds. The unfortunate man was removed to the hospital where his injuries were attended to. Brant's home is at the Mohawk Reserve.

Mrs. Clara Foltz, First Woman to Be Assistant District Attorney.

MRS. CLARA SHORTLEDGE FOLTZ.

Mrs. Clara Shortledge Foltz is the first woman in the United States to be appointed to the office of assistant district attorney. Mrs. Foltz has her home in Los Angeles, Cal., where she was made assistant district attorney several months ago. She is the sister of Samuel L. Shortledge, who is the law partner of Delmas, the man who defended Harry Thaw. Up to the time of the earthquake her home was in San Francisco, but when the conflagration which followed the quake destroyed it she moved to Los Angeles and took up the practice of law there. She rapidly made a name for herself and proved so able in arguing cases that the district attorney finally asked her to join his staff.

Mrs. Foltz has a commanding presence and an eloquent and pleasant voice. Her eyes flash as she speaks, and she puts strength into every sentence, while her language evidences wide reading and original thinking. She is not masculine in any sense and is a stanch antisuffragist. When asked to give her views recently on the suffragist question she declared that there was little likelihood that the suffrage would be extended to women and gave as her reason that the women of the country generally were opposed to entering a field peculiarly masculine.

"Nature itself has decided the suffrage question by making man stronger than woman," she said. "Woman was intended for the home and man for the battle of life. Woman has her own sphere, and it is bounded by the boundaries of family life. Take away from woman the power to look up to man, to regard him as her protector and guardian, and you take away her dearest privilege."

Mrs. Foltz has the following to say about the power of the district attorney's office: "The district attorney is not and should not be a prosecutor pure and simple, because his position and peculiar relation to the people make him an officer of justice and not a mere avenger of crime.

"It should be his duty and privilege to see that the scales of justice do not incline any more to severity than to condonement, and his aim should be not to achieve a record number of convictions, but rather to bring about the attainment of absolute fairness in the trials in which he takes part."

Daily Intelligencer.

Thinks Mackenzie King Has Little to Crow Over.

When the Ontario Liberal press made the assertion that Hon. Mackenzie King, the "Boy Minister" of the Laurier Cabinet, was entitled to all the credit for the settlement of the Grand Trunk strike, they also imposed upon Mr. King the full responsibility, for the terms of that settlement. That, it must be admitted, is fair.

In the Maritime provinces, a slightly different view of Hon. Mr King's action is taken to that expressed by rapidly partisan sheets in this province.

The St. John Globe, which may be described as an independent Liberal journal, discusses the matter as follows:

"The condition or situation in which the striking Grand Trunk employees are left in regard to their pensions is much discussed in the papers in Ontario.

There is a pretty general belief that under the terms upon which the pension fund was created the men by their strike have forfeited their rights to it, and that if these rights are restored to them this can only be done by the company as an act of grace and clemency.

Of course this is an affair which may have to be finally settled by the courts.

"It is somewhat singular that in the settlement of the dispute between the men and the management of the road the pension matter was ignored by both parties to the dispute. Yet it must have been in their minds.

There is now a strong feeling among the men in favor of creating a fund of their own to be entirely under their control, but in the meantime this will be hard upon the older employees who must soon be retired by reason of age, and who will be entitled to very little from the new fund and will be deprived of what they would have been entitled to in the old fund.

The Grand Trunk company was, it is understood, liberal contributor to the pension fund, which it could very well be as, seemingly, it largely controlled that fund. And a purpose of its formation was to keep the men in control, though this was not, it may be presumed, the entire purpose.'

If Hon. Mackenzie King made the settlement, as the Laurier papers say, then he seems to have made it very badly.

His lack of forethought and carelessness is as conspicuous in the terms of the settlement as his lack of sound judgment was manifest in his refusal to co-operate and assist when President Hays suggested arbitration for had it not been for that absurd and ill-advised refusal, it is now indisputable that there would have been no strike.

If the Grand Trunk men lose their pensions, Mr. King will thus be doubly responsible, both for his indisputable part in bringing about the strike and for his alleged part in effecting the settlement.

Of what public benefit is a Minister of Labor who helps only to get Labor into trouble and leaves it there?

Laurier Loses Prestige

A Western paper sizes up the result of Sir Wilfrid's Western tour as a great lost of prestige for the Prime Minister.

The Edmonton Journal says:

"Taking it all in all, the farmers have found Sir Wilfrid a smooth sophist who, when confronted with the evidence that he has not kept a promise, undertakes to placate his accusers by making more promises.

It is plain as anything can be that Sir Wilfrid on this tour, in which he has met the representatives of the great agricultural interests face to face, has lost prestige as no Premier of Canada ever did before.

The farmers of the West can scarcely retatin confidence in a man who has no more to say to a direct accusation than that he has violated his pledged word.'

A man whose word is in question, can scarcely justify himself by more words of the same sort.

There was a time when Sir Wilfrid's word was current coin; it is so no longer; it has been proved counterfeit.

Chance Says the Cubs will win Again

(By Frank L. Chance.)

In fighting for a pennant you have to give quite as much thought to what the other fellow is doing as you do to what you plan.

I watched a poker game not very long ago. One of the players stood pat. Another drew three cards. After the draw the fellow who drew the three cards began to bet as if he had fours. He made the other chap call and it developed that the man who stood pat held a flush, while the fellow who drew had three aces.

"Why didn't you notice that I stood pat?" queried the man, who stood pat. Did you suppose I was bluffing?"

"I wasn't playing your hand. I was watching my own and I had three aces."

That's what always happens when you don't watch the other fellow. You always get licked But I do not think the Cubs will be licked.

We should win the pennant. I won't say that we will, for the reason that many things happen in baseball.

Our pitching staff may go bad.

The outfielders may be broken up by some ill-luck.

I'll just content myself with telling why we should win the pennant in the National League.

Now, looking out for the other fellow, I have an idea that when it comes right down to the last ditch we will have to defeat the Pirates to win the pennant.

In my opinion Giants have been travelling faster than they should Manager McGraw has a habit of carrying his men along at a pace a bit faster than they should travel.

But there isn't a lot of strength to that club when you remove Mathewson.

True, they have some excellent baseball players. But I do not believe that the Giants possess the class of the Cubs, and if we have as good luck as they do I can't for the life of me see why they should give us an argument.

It's different with the Pirates. When Wagner, Clarke and Leach are going right it's a mighty hard team to beat Then the Pirates have a disconcerting habit of playing their very best ball against us. It wouldn't be at all surprising if we had a hard tussle to take their honors away from them.

But on "dope" we should. We are strong where they are weak, and we are also strong where they are strong

Now it would be difficult to find a man other than a rabid Pirate fan who would argue that the pitching staff of the Cubs does not outclass the twirling squad of the Pirates. With Brown, Ruelbach, Overall, McIntyre, Richie Pfeister and Cole going well, our staff is much stronger than the men upon whom Clarke must depend

I cannot see where they have a stronger infield than we have.

They are hitting no better. Then where have they the advantage over us?"

With an even break in the luck we should be able to more than hold our own.

What is left? Philadelphia and Cincinnati? Clark Griffith has accomplished much with his Reds, but they are scarcely strong enough to grab the league honors this year.

Griffith has gathered a strong array of batters, fielders and base runners but he has not the pitching staff and that is necessary to defeat us.

So after watching the draw of the other fellows, I am convinced that we should win that pennant.

I do not believe that we will lose any of our present advantage on the trip, and expect to come back leading by six or seven games.

The Ball that Hammy Hit

After its report of the great game between Bloomfield and Wellington (won by the former 14-9) the Picton Gazette had these soul-stirring lines

A feature of the game was the batting of Hamilton for Bloomfield Twice during the game he made a two base hit, and the following bit of poetry is dedicated to his memory:

A deathlike hush had fallen
Though excitement grew intense
On the crowd within the ball yard
And the boys upon the fence.

Two out, Ham at the bat,
The score stood three to three,
The pitcher smiled, spit on his hands
And proudly bent his knee.

A whirl, a thrust a cloud of dust,
And forth the leather sped,
It shot right into Wilder's mit,
"One strike." McCullough said.

The crowd showed signs of anger
But with features firm yet mild
Hamilton full of confidence
Turned towards them all and smiled.

Again the pitcher grasped the ball,
Again his frame he bent
And through the agitated air
With lightning speed it went.

This time the ball went faster still
But McCullough said, "strike two,"
The angry crowd surged to its feet,
And the atmosphere was blue.

You could almost cut the quiet
It had grown so dense and thick,
As Hammy faced the pitcher
And slowly grasped his stick.

One mighty swing, one fearful swat
And Ham had hit it fair,
And far above the fielders heads
The ball sailed through the air.

Out into space it flew apace.
A speck in Heaven's dome,
While the crowd rushed madly to the plate
To meet base runners coming home.

Hip! Hip! for H. A. Hamilton,
Long may he live and thrive,
The greatest batter in the world,
The greatest one alive.

He saved the game for Bloomfield,
When on that outshoot he lit
But the fielders never found the ball
The ball that Hammy hit.

On a farm up near Wellington
Owned by Haight Bros. miles away
With the hand of death upon her
A Holstein heifer lay.

And grouped around in sorrow
With red and tearful eyes
Were a group of men commenting
On the heifer's strange demise.

A frightful wound was in her side
And when they probed they found
A lump of something in her
All blood stained hard and round.

The Wellington veterinary
Gave up the case because,
He really wasn't satisfied
Just what the darn thing was

He knew that something killed her
And he knew that that was it,
But he never knew until this day.
'Twas the ball that Hammy hit.

LAWN BOWLING

Three Interesting Matches

Yesterday afternoon on the Belleville Bowling Lawn three interesting games of double bowls were played. The games were witnessed by a number of interested spectators.

The first game was between Messrs. A. Gillen and W. J. Diamond. The latter won by a score of 16 to 9.

The second game was between Messrs. C. N. Sulman and V. L. Hyman, the former winning by a score of 17 to 6.

The third game was between Dr. M. Day and Mr. Halloway. Dr. Day won by 14 to 10.

WRESTLING

A Hindoo Wonder

Gama, the Hindoo wrestler who took London by storm when he threw Dr. Roller, the American grappler, who was once spoken of by Frank Gotch himself as the likely world's champion, seems to be a rastler of the Fred Beel type, with more weight and strength than the Wisconsin wonder ever carried. The Hindoo stands but 5 feet 7 -4 inches, but has chest measurement of 47 inches, with a waist line of 35, and other measurements to match. But for all his chunky build the Indian appears to be able to move around

He threw Roller twice in ten minutes and the Yankee did not appear to have a dead man's chance.

BOXING

London, August 19.—Hugh D. MacIntosh, the Australian sporting promoter, is some hustler. He just beats them all out by getting into a stride where the opposition cannot reach him. Mac has given the old country a shakeup that they haven't realized the full significance of yet. He arrived in London on Monday, August 1, and by Tuesday he had made all the arrangements for one of the biggest boxing campaigns that this land has ever witnessed. Before coming to London Mac had signed up Tommy Burns and Sam Langford to fight twenty rounds under his management for the light heavyweight championship of the world, and the go will take place in London during next September.

MacIntosh secured the Holland Park Skating rink for the affair and will erect an arena to seat over 8,000 people. He has taken a lease on the rink and will run monthly shows, all of which he says will be of world-wide interest. Burns and Langford will fight for a percentage of the receipts, MacIntosh giving them a guarantee. Eugene Corri has been retained to referee all the battles. The next big one to follow the Burns-Langford fight will be Jack Johnson against the winner, MacIntosh having the black champion under contract for three battles. MacIntosh gives Johnson $75,000 for a nine months' tour during which Johnson is to fight the best three men that Mac can put up against him.

This is not all that MacIntosh did during his whirlwind trip. He has taken a big abandoned skating rink in Birmingham and will put on fight between heavyweights there on September 10. He is after Bombadier Wells, the new English heavyweight, and will offer him a sum for four fights that Wells could not get from any other source. If he secures Wells MacIntosh will have a corner in the best heavyweights in the world. He already has Lang of Australia; Johnson and Burns of America, and with Wells, of England, under his thumb he will be able to do just about what he pleases. Such a condition has never before been known in ring history. However, any time he matches his men they will have "to go out for it." as MacIntosh would be the last man in the world to kill the goose by allowing any frame-ups to be perpetrated. He knows how important it is to keep the game from suspicion.

This man, who was hardly known a couple of years ago, has already made over $750,000 out of boxing. He absolutely controls the sport in Australia, one of the best fields in the world, having big stadiums in Sydney and Melbourne, and Brisbane, where big fights are pulled off each month with an average attendance of 15,000. His staff is perfectly organized, so that the sport is conducted as well in his absence as if he were present. Now that he is breaking into England intending to establish clubs in London, Birmingham, Manchester and Glasgow, it will not be long ere the boxer will have to look to this quiet, little man for remunerative work.

WATCH PICKPOCKETS.

MANY GOING TO MONTREAL FOR GREAT CONFERENCE.

Montreal, Aug. 17—The prevalence of gamblers at the county fairs in Quebec province was the subject of consideration by Premier Gouin today. Facts were laid before him which will mean attention on the part of the provincial police, and it is understood that Chief McCaskill will take immediate action.

The presence in Montreal of expert gambers and pickpockets was assured a week ago by the announcement of the details of the vast crowds that will attend the eucharistic congress, and it is now evident that many of the light-fingered fraternity are already here and operating in the neighborhood.

Chief Carpenter will assign every man available for duty to watch the crooks.

Chief McCaskill of the provincial force said to-day that he would leave nothing undone to protect the people. Mr. MacNamara of the Pinkerton service and the Thiel detective service will also have a large number of men at watch.

The food for all folks

For old and young, in any season, in any clime, Shredded Wheat is the one perfect food. It contains all the rich, body-building nutriment of the whole wheat, made digestible by steam-cooking, shredding and baking. In the summer is a healthful and satisfying substitute for heavy meats and soggy pastries. It costs much less, tastes good, and is far more nourishing. Its continued daily use keeps the system in perfect trim and the brain clear and active.

SHREDDED WHEAT BISCUIT

Because of its porous shreds and its biscuit form, Shredded Wheat makes delicious combinations with berries, grated pineapple, sliced peaches, bananas, baked apples or other fruit, fresh or preserved. For breakfast heat the biscuit in the oven to restore crispness and serve with milk or cream, adding salt or sugar to taste. It is far better than mushy porridges or ordinary breakfast foods.

CHAPTER I.

"There's the train whistle! Seaton will be over soon!" murmured Captain Vinton Maxwell, Cadet Officer of the Day, as he watched the natty corporal posting the cadet relief guard in barracks.

Silvery moonbeams transfigured the gray quarters at West Point, on the night of June 15th, 1868. The brooking silence was broken, only by the faint, uncertain rustle of the forest fringing deserted Fort Putnam, and the dreamy strains of tender passionate music, wafted from the hall where the graduating class were running the gauntlet of bright-eyed beauties for the last time!—Handsome Maxwell, pacing the lonely area of barracks, could hear the musical clang of the ship bells on the three United States frigates, anchored on the Hudson, under the shadowed crags of West Point. The Naval Academy, on its practice fleet of old battered cruisers, was, for the first time, visiting the National Military Academy at West Point. The weather-beaten war-vessels Macedonian, Dale and Savannah swung idly at anchor on the river, whose waters mirrored a thousand glittering stars.

In high carnival, future Admirals and Generals proudly mingled the navy blue and cadet gray with the resplendent robes of the prettiest daughters of "Uncle Sam!"

The "Point" was en fete. For the day of days, for the class of 1868, was closing. The Great Captain (Lee's magnanimous conqueror), heroic Grant, had, before a mighty throng, handed the coveted diplomas to the young soldiers whose four years' ordeal would finish at midnight.

Official dignitaries — laurel-decked veterans—proud and happy relatives, and witching young beauties watched these last impressive ceremonies. As the sunset gun woke the echoes of the grand mountain fastnesses, and the star flag slowly fluttered down into the keeping of reverent hands, many a "68" man felt a sudden pang to think—even in this hour of joy—it was his "Last Parade!"

When the thrilling music of the "beat off" gave way to simple "Home Sweet Home!" there were manly eyes dimmed with sudden moisture. Fleeting moments brought the parade to its close with "Auld Lang Syne," and the "Dashing White Sergeant." In a ringing voice the lithe Adjutant gave that welcome order, which a cadet hears only once in his life: "First Class! Fall out!"

Sweeping up to the front, the fifty-five keen-eyed soldierly young "Children of the Flag" marched in an unbroken line, while the superb band rattled out: "The Bold Soldier Boy," in time-honored custom of this "Last March to the Front." The class halted as if by magic; instantly fifty-five right hands saluted the manly presence of handsome "Harry Black," the beloved commandant. The Colonel, in grave affection, uncovered his stately head, and the long rank of young knights, plumed and golden-chevroned, broke up forever! The class of 1868 had passed into manhood at a bound. Cadets till midnight, and officers thereafter, by the grace of their foster-mother Columbia! Knots of delighted friends gathered around these fortunate graduates. Soon, various pretty piratical feminine craft swooped down on these beaming new "Lieutenants to be," bearing them away to the dim nooks of Flirtation Walk, or the dangerous portico of "Roe's Hotel."

Under the starlight Maxwell walked the quadrangle. He was the last "Officer of the Day" of his class. Vinton Maxwell would be "on duty" till he had "marched off the guard," and given up his trust to a successor. He was Dictator of the "Corps of Cadets" for a day!

As the tall cadet captain of "D" Company strode along in the moonlight, he was proud and happy. A son of Ohio, he had striven hard for rank and place. He rejoiced as he loudly clanked his sword, in friendly warning, that Lieutenant Vinton Maxwell, of the Corps of Engineer, United States Army, had reached the goal of his West Point ambition.

In happiest mood he gazed at the winding path to the South Wharf. His own relatives were far away. The pleasures of the last grand hop, ("The Graduating Hop,") were denied only to the officers and members of the Cadet guard; the unfortunate neophyte candidates (reporting daily), and the few bright-eyed middies, idly tramping the white decks of the old war-vessels, in wrath, as "watch officers." These nautical heroes were graduated some days before, and now pinned, alas! to their "quarter-deck" duty, the bell told of wasted hours of this glorious night. Far up the crested bank in the "Cadet Mess Hall," in varying circles of tempting loveliness, the tender-eyed battalion of Beauty was driving other susceptible swains wild with delight.

Happy, even if lonely, Maxwell awaited his civilian friend, Beverly Seaton, whose companionship would cheer the loneliness of this last night in barracks. The late "Hop" kept Maxwell on duty till one o'clock. For his chosen cadet comrade, Jack Gordon, "of Kentucky," was a pronounced "ladies' man." Though separated by first-class promotion which took Gordon to "A" Company, from the left wing, (as First Lieutenant of the First Company), these classmates, (loving room-mates for three years), were nearer than ever, in heart, at the end of the fourth and final twelve-month.

Half an hour previous, Maxwell left Jack Gordon in his room, adjusting his rich sash, donning his "demmy" dancing pumps, and inserting his "blue-grass" anatomy in a treasured cadet suit of resplendent glory. Handsome Jack, true to the spirit of "game Kentucky," was named for the cavalry. His ardent soul scorned "the bookish theorie" and longed only for the wild sweep of a rattling charge, over the plains, at the yelling Comanches, or the grim painted Sioux. Jack was of the equestrian order!

While Maxwell waited for Seaton, Gordon came bounding over the area. It was el ultimo sospiro del Moro. The last service aupres les dames, on the dear old Point.

'Hello, Vinton!" cheerily cried Jack. "Seaton here yet?" His kindly voice was ringing in the soft inflections he learned from his dusky foster-brethren of childhood.

"No, Jack!" Maxwell replied, "but there goes the boat's whistle."

"Tell Seaton I want you both to spend the rest of the night with me; I always like to meet a Southern man," rejoined Gordon.

"All right, old fellow! Go ahead and gather in your trophies. Take one turn of a waltz for me," cried the disconsolate Officer of the Day.

"Once round the room with the Baltimore beauty," merrily rejoined Jack. "I'll think of her on the plains. See what glory is! I prefer 'two bare arms,' while you stalk up and down in harness, a grim spectre, or inspector, of the night."

"Another pun and I'll put you under arrest!" sternly retorted Maxwell. "Go ahead! give away your sash, chevrons, buttons, class-ring; everything except your heart. A true cavalryman never marries."

"I'll bring you Miss Nellie's fan to dream on," was the last sally of the departing Jack.

"Hold on! Gordon!" cried Maxwell, "ask her to walk a dance with me in the long hall of the Academic."

Gordon was away like the wind. His heart was pigeon-holed a la Brigham Young, for a brighter lad never knelt before golden-haired lass than this spirited son of the "Dark and Bloody Ground."

Maxwell dreamed of all the stern struggle of his cadet life, till the sergeant of the guard room reported: "Gentleman to see you, sir—Mr. Seaton, in the guard room."

"Ah! my Confederate friend. How strange our first meeting," thought Maxwell, as he hastened to the guard headquarters. "Seaton has kept his word; I'll have him home with me for a month." Though mindful of his dignity, entering the room crowded with the cadet guard, Maxwell's heart leaped up to greet his visitor. His spirit sank within him as Beverly Seaton grasped his hands. The visitor's face was ghastly pale. "Something wrong," ruminated Maxwell. In an instant he called: "Orderly! Light up the Officer in Charge's room.—Come upstairs, Seaton!" he cheerily said grasping the silent stranger warmly by the arm.

The two friends mounted to the eyrie, whence the Army Officer in Charge (an Official Gorgon) glares at the helpless cadets under his armed heel. As Maxwell ascended, his brain was working quickly. "Seaton looks all broken up. His telegram gave no sign of any trouble; but he did not come for the Hop and the graduation!—What can have happened?"

Entering the room, Maxwell keenly eyed the young Virginian and closed the door. "Make yourself at home Seaton," he said with affected indifference. "You can smoke and take it easy; I'm on duty till eight to-morrow but at once to-night we can go over to Gordon's rooms; he wants to meet you." In answer, Seaton dropped his head on the table and sobbed like a child. Maxwell sprang up and closed the window, through which the strains of the 'Guards' Waltz" were borne by the soft night breeze, mingled with the rippling murmur of the singing river.

"For God's sake, Beverly! what has happened? Tell me all!" Vinton Maxwell grasped his friend's hands. "This is not like the lad who bore Virginia's cadet colors at Newmarket, when your battalion 'stood off' a whole brigade of our men! You can surely trust me."

"To the death, Maxwell! and that's why I am here!—I came to tell you all! I am broken-hearted. I must tell some one or die!"—Seaton raised his tear-blurred eyes, wolfish in their intensity.

"Go ahead, Seaton! I have nothing to do till the Hop closes; we are alone! Let me help you!" the warm-hearted "Northerner" cried.

"I fear God alone can," said the Virginian. "Listen! Till I bid you speak let Honor seal your lips forever."

Maxwell bowed his head.

Seaton struggled long for words as his anxious friend watched his every movement. Beverly Seaton's twenty-five years were accentuated by his hardships as a Virginia Light Infantry soldier in the two last years of the desperate war of Disunion. Slight and gray-eyed, he had the delicate features of a Virginia patrician. His firm lips and manly air marked him as a gallant son of the South, fit to rise above all the every-day trials of life. Maxwell, sturdy and frank-faced, had gone out as a boy Union volunteer from Ohio. He won his cadetship by dashing valor in the first years of the war, missing only the last. Recovering from a severe flesh-wound, he was sent to West Point to serve his country in future years. Brown-eyed, well knit, with curly chestnut locks, Maxwell's merry face gave little indication of the steady purpose which dragged the lad from the "Western Reserve" far towards the head of his class. The good humor, resolution and sound sense of this son of the people stood by him in the four years' cadet race for the "Engineer castle." With his thin, nervous hands clenched, Seaton began finally to speak in a hollow voice. His head was bowed on the table.

"When you met me as a half-dead rebel prisoner at Elmira in '64, I was mourning my father's death, which I only knew of from fellow prisoners. I'll never forget your kindness. I was even then sad enough. I felt that our cause was lost. Sorrow and wounded pride killed my dear old father, after Sheridan's troopers carried fire and sword through the Shenandoah! Monroe Seaton never rallied from the death of my sainted mother, two years before the war. While I was dragged out, a helpless captive, from the blazing hell of Spottsylvania, he died, almost alone. My aunt, Mrs. Goodenough, of Baltimore, was the only one free to send me the tidings. She knew not that I was lying in a northern prison stockage. I only met her after the amnesty. To-day, Maxwell,"—his voice broke into sobs—"Seaton Hall is empty. I am the last of the fated race!"

"Your sister!" Maxwell cried eagerly.

"Is lost to me forever," groaned Seaton, dropping his head upon his crossed and nerveless arms. The old guard clock ticked away, like the tapping of coffin nails, while Maxwell in infinite pity gazed upon his stricken friend. "Sorrow, poverty, the South's downfall, I could stand, but a life-long agony of shame—never!" brokenly faltered Seaton.

"Tell me all, Beverly," gravely rejoined Maxwell, his voice quivering with emotion.

Seaton's eyes shone with gratitude as he slowly proceeded to reveal his heart's miseries.

"My father was a jurist, a leader in his State, and a man of highest attainments. The whole world had been his theatre of thought and action. Refined by foreign travel, with a loving wife, he led an ideal life at our beautiful old home, Seaton Hall, ten miles from Woodstock. Everything that art and taste could devise was around him. His home was the rallying point for the leaders of the old families. To-day! Maxwell," the gaunt Southerner bitterly said, "silence and ruin reign at the deserted home. The plantation is idle, the home vacant, and only a few wretched negroes cling to the old place from sheer helplessness. Sheridan's work was thoroughly done. All the treasures of library, galleries and the collections of five generations have vanished. At the outbreak of the war, I was seventeen, and was crazed with the southern-rights madness. Our home was thronged with would-be statesmen; I shared their delirium. My venerable father sent me to Lexington as a cadet of the State Military Institute to keep me from the ranks. 'I fear you'll see plenty of fighting yet, my son,' he said, as he solemnly laid his hand on my head, at parting. Repining at inaction, I heedlessly drove away. I longed to be a man. Maxwell I can see him now, his silver hair fluttering in the breeze, as he stood on the portico of the princely home I left. My sister's last embrace was thrilling my heart. The pretty darling clung to my old father, as if her thirteen years could aid his silent sorrows. I never saw him again; and Beatrice—Great God!—where does she wander?"

Seaton paused, while his frame shook with repressed agony. "It was easy to provide for me," the ex-Confederate resumed, "but Beatrice! She was a motherless girl. Governesses and tutors had brought her far along, until my mother's death left her the one bright angel of the house. When not busied with guiding and aiding 'the great movement,' my father, in his library, (stored with the treasures of the ages), guided Beatrice out over the breakers into the wide sea of human lore!—Our northern instructors had been sent away; we feared their presence. Our only relative, Mrs. Goodenough, of Baltimore, was a dashing widow, a desperate conspirator, and a social leader. Stately Monroe Seaton dared not trust Beatrice with that brilliant worldling. It was impossible to send her abroad. So—surrounded with his blacks—my father, too old for war, lingered on the threshold of the great theatre of conflict. I toiled at Lexington to fit myself for the field. The red flames of war soon lit up the South. My letters from home told me of the exciting scenes of the various fights. The fair Shenandoah was one battle-ground; and in alternate joy and sorrow, my father watched our flag rise and fall. His child's education was his daily task; and his favorite walk was the shadowed grove where his fair-faced wife rested, unmoved by the storms of civil discord.

"I could not return! As a State cadet, I was liable to capture. My father became feebler, and his letters fewer. Beatrice wrote me of all her home life. Thus two years dragged away. Boy as I was, I could note the influence of unrestrained 'book devouring' on an ardent growing girl. I question, Maxwell, the wisdom of my father in allowing her to pluck the fruits of the Tree of Universal Knowledge. His great library was stored with all the masterpieces of the human mind, as well as the varied fiction and belles-lettres of Europe. A polished linguist himself, he materially aided Beatrice in her easy mastery of French and German. What could they do? Guerillas and raiders soon thronged the highways. Pent up on the old plantation, father and daughter revelled in the treasures gleaned by the world's great thinkers; wise and witty, wicked and profound, gay and glistening, all the sparkling brain fretwork of literature was open, at will, to my lonely sister, blooming into womanhood and marvellous beauty.

"At last the call came. After the fall of Vicksburg, after the fatal day of seGittyurbg shrdlu cmtwyp mfwyp and break up." His eye flashed—he paused, and slowly resumed: "Unable to reach my home,—even my letters cut off,—I hailed with mad joy the day when our slender cadet battalion was rushed 'to the front' at Newmarket; where I first heard the whistle of bullets, and where our Virginia boy soldiers held their shot-torn lines like men,—I was wild with grim enthusiasm! I was marching home to Woodstock! I would meet my beloved father and fight my way to the darling sister I worshipped."

"And you never saw them?" Maxwell queried.

"No; the tide of war swept me far away," Seaton sharply answered. "I was a boy no longer. I had the battle fever raging in my veins. I joined 'Mahone's Division,' as we could not get to Woodstock. In the accidents of the campaign years I lost my baggage and even my dear one's letters. All I left at Lexington was de-

CORN FLAKES

Oyster Shell Scale And Codling Moth

BOTH THESE PESTS INFEST HASTINGS COUNTY—HOW A REMEDY CAN BE OBTAINED.

While looking over several young orchards in the southern districts of Hastings, Mr. A. D. McIntosh, district representative at Stirling says he finds a great many dead and dying trees. Many of them are badly affected with oyster shell scales and the egg masses of the apple tent are very abundant, and unless something is done before next summer the trees will no doubt suffer severely. The green apple aphis is a serious pest this summer. The growth of young wood this year, in most cases is excessive and it will be well for the trees if they are headed back some for next year. Early spring is probably the best time to do the pruning of young trees.

It is while trees are young that they get their shape to the growers liking, and those who are buying trees will do well to get two year old trees, and then see that they get a good start.

The Codling Worm is getting in its work this year in the old orchards, with the result that very many wormy apples may be seen in most of the old orchards. If the only losses were the wormy apples, it would not be so bad, but the extra expense of picking and sorting to get a few good ones very materially affects the price the buyers can afford to pay for apples.

Demonstration orchards such as are conducted in every county ought to prove very beneficial in the fruits districts of Hastings county, and if the fruit growers make the best use of the branch department of agriculture in Stirling there is no reason why a number of demonstration orchards cannot be carried on in this county.

Fruit growers who have orchard problems to solve will consult their own interests by dropping a card to the Department of Agriculture at Stirling, asking Mr. McIntosh to look over their orchards and see what insect pests or fungus diseases may be there. No doubt he will also suggest a remedy.

Bishop of New Westminster.

Rev. A. U. De Pencier, who has been chosen Bishop of the Anglican diocese of New Westminster, B.C., is an Eastern Ontario man and only went West three years ago. The Bishop-elect was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Depencier, of Burritt's Rapids, Ontario. He was born in 1866 and received his early training in Kemptville High School, and afterwards attended Trinity College, Toronto. After graduating he was stationed at Navan on the Ottawa River, between Montreal and Ottawa; later was curate of St. Alban's Cathedral, Toronto, rector at Uxbridge, curate of St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, rector at Brandon, and more recently rector of St. Paul's Church, Vancouver.

His new diocese is an extensive one and his episcopal work will necessitate much traveling by trail and stream.

Lack of Pure Blood.

THE CAUSE OF MOST ILLNESS—THE CURE, ENRICH THE BLOOD SUPPLY.

An illness caused by lack of blood will be benefitted and cured by a course of treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills increase the red matter in the blood and enable it to carry to every organ and tissue an increased supply of oxygen, the great supporter of all organic life. This has been proved by cures in thousands of cases not only in Canada but in all parts of the world. More people today owe health and happiness to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills than any other medicine. One of these is Mr. James Starr, of Galahad, Alta., who says:

"A few years ago I became ill and very weak. Some days I would have a hot dry fever and on others would be bathed in a cold sweat. I grew weaker and weaker until I could do no kind of work and was finally confined to my bed. I tried several doctors, who cost me considerable money, but did me no good, as I was still getting weaker and weaker. I asked the last doctor who attended me to tell me frankly if he could cure me, and he told me my case was so complicated that he did not think he could help me. I told him I had heard a great deal about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and asked if he thought they would help me. His reply was: "Well, they won't do you any harm and they may help you." I sent for half a dozen boxes at once and began taking them. After taking three boxes there was no doubt they were helping me, and I continued using them for some time longer. With the result that I am now as strong and hearty and can do as good a day's work as any man in my neighborhood."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at fifty cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

And It's Such A Strong Flour, Madam

Unless you have used FIVE ROSES, you don't appreciate what flour strength can mean to you.

You simply can't, because you don't know the defects of poor floor till you use good floor.

If you've been baking with weak flour made from that softish wheat, then FIVE ROSES will save you a cupful in every five.

One-fifth less, Madam.

And when we say one-fifth less, we mean one-fifth—not half a cupful or a spoonful, but one full level cup-ful. Two in ten, 3 in 15.

Don't you see the money you lose by not using FIVE ROSES—a lot at the end of the year.

It's the concentrated strength of the ripe, red Manitoba Spring Wheat, the meat of the kernel—no other wheat has the vitality, the force, the breadlife.

You will never go without it again when you know how much you miss.

Don't wait any longer, Madam.

A Plea For the Collar.

Technically there can be no objection to it. The rounding neck, the Dutch collar or whatever you want to call it is perfectly correct. There is no reason known to Mme. Grundy why it shouldn't be worn for business.

As a matter of fact, however, it does not look businesslike. You know the girl who affects low cut collars in the office.

She is dressed well enough, is neat and trim, only you find yourself wishing she looked a little more businesslike.

It's the collar.

"If only that girl would come to work just once," you say, "with a good stiff uncompromising linen collar around her neck or a high straight stock that looked as if it meant business, how rejoiced I should be!"

And that long expanse of uncovered neck—you cannot think of anything else when you are near the girl. It exercises some horrid fascination over you. You forget her perhaps charming face, her trim frock, her most attractive manner. All that enters your consciousness is that neck.

Does not this impression on the average observer seem rather a big price to pay for a comfort which is, after all, largely imaginary?

Housewife Hints.

Shrink and set color of children's garments before making up. They soil so quickly that it is not worth while to run risks by waiting until afterward.

A good mixture to set color in cotton materials is one tablespoonful of turpentine, a handful of salt and a pail of cold water. Put goods in overnight.

When icing runs put it back on stove on top of asbestus mat and stir until proper consistency. This can be done after sirup is added to white of egg.

Spreading a little flour on top of a cake will sometimes prevent icing from running.

Feathers that have grown grimy can be given a bath in alcohol, after which they are shaken until dry.

Vegetables for salad must be dry or the dressing does not amalgamate and loses its flavor.

The flies that are now in your kitchen and dining room were probably feasting on some indescribable nastiness less than an hour ago, and as a single fly often carries many thousands of disease germs attached to its hairy body, it is the duty of every housekeeper to assist in exterminating this worst enemy of the human race.

SWORDS OF JAPAN

Old Samurai Blades Are Looked Upon as Sacred.

HANDLED WITH REVERENCE.

A Curious Formula of Etiquette Follows When "the Steel Bible of Bushido" Is Drawn From Its Sheath by a Hand Which Grasps It In Peace.

If one were in a friend's house in Japan and should ask to examine one of the old samurai swords that rest in the lacquered sword rack in a place of honor there a curious formula of etiquette would be followed by the host.

He would go to a closet and return with a little square of silk in his hand. This he would wrap about the sharkskin handle of the sheathed sword before touching his bare hand to the sheath. Then, with his right hand grasping the silk covered handle and the fingers of his left gingerly raising the lacquered hilt from the rack, the Japanese host would lift the sword to the level of his forehead and bow to it.

All this in reverential spirit and with utmost gravity. The square of silk, preserved for no purpose but this and having its own name in the Japanese vocabulary, is to prevent the defilement of the handle by a hand which grasps it in peace. The bow is meant for the spirit of the swordsmith who forged this weapon. The reverence is for the sword itself, "soul of the samurai," in the Japanese poetical conception and aptly called by foreigners "the steel Bible of Bushido."

But this is only the beginning of the formality. When the Japanese host unsheaths the blade he does it with the edge toward his own body and the point directed away from his guest. When the guest receives the sword in his own hands he must be careful to keep the outer edge always away from the direction of his friend the host. If he wishes to examine both sides of the blade he must even turn his back so that never will the menace of the sharpened edge be directed toward his friend.

After the examination is completed the sword is returned to its scabbard, and the owner receives it with another bow and places it once more on its rack.

The etiquette of the sword is no empty thing. With the high spirited Japanese, who have not forgotten the many centuries of chivalry and of hand fighting behind them, the delicately curved and curiously welded sword of the samurai has a significance almost sacred. There is a philosophy of the sworn no less stern than the use of the weapon.

In the old days when the Japanese fighters wore the war masks and the steel armor seen nowadays in the curiosity shops the boy was taught that as the shining blade must be kept free from spot and corruption, so must his soul be ever clean. Neglect of the blade brings rust; neglect of the soul an impure character.

Then the sharp edge was held not only as a constant guardian of personal safety and honor, but as a sacred disciplinarian to punish whenever its possessor stepped from the narrow path of the Yamato spirit of chivalry. Again, the sword was emblematical of true gentility, which is never overbearing or vulgar in deportment, but sternly self repressive.

No man knows when first the forge for fighting weapons was set up in the dawn of Japanese history nor who was the man who first replaced the rude bronze blades of a primitive folk by the tempered steel of the Yamato blade. There is in the imperial collection of swords at the castle of Nara the weapon worn by the Crown Prince Shotoku, who compiled the constitution of seventeen articles in A. D. 603, the oldest sword known in Japan. From that weapon, which was straight and not curved as all other swords of Nippon are, down to the fall of the Tokugawa shogunate in the middle of the last century there is an unbroken history of the art of the swordsmith. Twelve centuries of recorded art in swordmaking and the names of over 10,000 makes constitute the history of the sword in Japan.

The Japanese blade, placed almost on a par with the Damascus product in art and utility, differs from the Arabian weapon in one material detail of manufacture. Instead of having a uniform high temper, which gives the remarkable flexibility possessed by the Damascus blade, the Japanese sword has two tempers, a hard and a mild steel.

The edge of the blade is hard with the finest temper, the body and back of a milder temper, sufficient to give some elasticity. A Japanese sword cannot be bent half double with the pressure of a hand; it is nearly rigid.

Though sword manufacture has ceased to be in Japan today outside of the government arsenals, which turn out only the accepted military blade of the modern army, the country is filled with prized relics of the past art, and these are relics which the Japanese will not sell. A possessor of one of the old swords, keen and blue white in luster as the day it was forged, would sell his house, even himself maybe, before he would part with his iron Bible of Bushido for money.—Japan Magazine.

THE BARGAIN CHASE.

American Women and the Shopping Game Mania.

More money is wasted every year by women buying needless things under the excitement of the bargain hunt than is spent in all the gambling houses and race tracks put together, says Mary Heaton Vorse in Success Magazine. When you say that I have no statistics to prove this I answer that I have common sense and have spent much time in city shops. I know, too, what I am capable of, and I am but a half hearted hunter. I know what my friends do. It isn't for nothing that I have seen earnest young students of economics succumb to this hunting instinct and fare forth to buy ninety-eight cent undergarments.

It is not only in the stores frequented by poor or uneducated women that I have seen the more brutal instincts of the human race come to the surface. I have seen a charming looking elderly woman in a high class store snatch a dress length of gray voile from the hands of another elderly woman, and the reason I happened to see these sights was because I myself was at the sale looking at garments I didn't want and didn't need and buying them.

The bargain chase, the shopping game passion or sport, life work or recreation—for it may be any one of these, according to the temperament of the woman—has American women well in its grip. Hardly one of us escapes some one of the psychological deviations from the normal which I have mentioned.

The Parsees.

The Parsees are sun worshippers, and it is an interesting sight to see throngs of them on the shore of the bay as the sun rises, apparently from the sea, performing the simple rites of their religion, the fluttering robes showing their fine figures to the best advantage as the day begins. Their religious practices are simple in the extreme, consisting mainly in strict dietary rules and personal cleanliness. The rigid observance of sanitary laws produces the natural result of perfect health among the adults—large families of active, healthy children and immense numbers of old men, gray-bearded, white haired, but erect and princely in their gait and attitude despite the naturally enervating character of the tropical climate.

A Boon for Wives.

One of the first and most courageous advocates of "women's rights" is Lady McLaren, who has drawn up the Woman's Charter, one of the objects of which is to provide that a small share of the husband's property should be regarded as belonging to his wife, the amount to be calculated on the scale of a housekeeper's salary, in her own station of life. Thus it would be impossible for a husband to will everything away from his wife. Lady McLaren is part author of no fewer than eight Bills affecting her sex which her husband, Sir Charles McLaren, M.P., is introducing into

The primary motive in Wall Covering is not merely to "ornament" the room as pictures would but to MAKE THE WALLS DISAPPEAR, to help us forget their BOUNDARY.

This motive is clear enough in the splendid Tapestries of early date, probably the first and finest Wall Coverings ever used. The subjects and colorings of these Tapestries show that they were designed to carry the imagination beyond the prison-like stone walls into the freedom, light and color of the great outdoors.

Attempted Suicide of Ex-Officer Malboeuf.

UNFORTUNATE MAN, WHILE UNDER THE INFLUENCE OF LIQUOR, LAID DOWN ON PINNACLE ST. TRACKS AND WANTED PILOT ENGINE TO RUN OVER HIM

There was a bit of melodrama, which might have been tragedy, in this city last night. Here is the story:

Last evening, George E. Malboeuf, an ex-member of the local police force, was placed under arrest, and the charge preferred against him is that of attempting to commit suicide.

Malboeuf, who resides at the north end of Pinnacle street, whilst under the influence of liquor, laid down on the Grand Junction track, near his home, and refused to move. He said he was waiting for the pilot engine to come down and run over him and it would then soon be all over.

Sergt. Naphin and Officer Corrigan responded to the call and had considerable difficulty in removing their ex-comrade from the track and locking him up.

He seemed determined to have done with the cares and worries of this weary world.

This morning Malboeuf was arraigned and three charges preferred against him, namely, attempted suicide, assaulting the police officers in the discharge of their duties and being intoxicated. The accused was remanded to jail for a week. Mr. Anderson represented the Crown and Mr. Carnew appeared for the accused.

Board of Education Still Has no Site For a Public School

MR. F. R. LINGHAM WANTS TO RESERVE A PORTION OF HIS PROPERTY — MATTER DEFERRED TILL MONDAY EVENING—HIGH SCHOOL TEACHER WANTS AN INCREASE.

At an adjourned meeting of the Board of Education, held last evening the members present were Messrs. W. S. Morden, chairman; J. H. Anderson, J. Rabbitts, C. M. Reid, G. A. Bennett, J. F. Wills, E. T. Ketcheson, W. S. Smith, S. S. Moore, B. Mallory, F. S. Deacon, P. Harrison and J. Wallace.

The object of the meeting was to consider the purchasing of a site for the erection of a public school, but nothing definite was accomplished. The site the Board desires is that owned by Mr. F. R. Lingham, on Ann street, but that gentleman desires to retain a portion of the land which the Board wants. A conference will be held on Monday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Lingham, when an effort will be made to make a satisfactory arrangement in reference to the site.

WANTS AN INCREASE OR HIS RELEASE.

The chairman of the Board stated that he had received a telegram from Mr. P. C. McLaurin, science teacher in the High School, stating that he had been offered the position of Principal of a school at Point Fortune at a salary of $1800. He asked to be relieved, or granted an increase of $100 per annum in his salary.

A motion prevailed that the request of Mr. McLaurin be not granted, but that he be requested to continue his services here.

A communication was read from Mr. McLaurin detailing a list of supplies necessary for the science room in the High School.

The matter was referred to the Printing and Supplies Committee, to look into and report to the Board.

An account of the Pringle Co., amounting to $593.65, was ordered to be paid.

The Sites, Buildings and Repairs Committee recommended the purchasing of 2 19/100 acres of land from Mr F. R. Lingham for a school site.

MR. LINGHAM IS EMPHATIC.

Mr. F. R. Lingham who was present asked that 180 feet at the north end of the proposed property be reserved. He claimed it was absolutely necessary for him to have that strip and he would have it.

Mr. C. M. Reid said if it was not possible to get a square out of the proposed site, then the committee should look for another site.

Mr. Lingham stated that if the Board made an effort to get all the land proposed by the report he would certainly oppose it and would make a determined legal fight for it.

Mr. Wills said there was a responsibility placed upon the Board, namely the improvements of the schools which was a necessity. The site proposed by the committee was vacant land, and it was desirable that it be procured without any trouble. It was a desirable site, and he hoped that Mr. Lingham would assist the Board in securing the same.

Mr. Bennett said he was sorry Mr. Lingham had taken the stand he had in this matter. As far as he (the speaker) was concerned, he was prepared to stand by the report.

Mr. Morden suggested that every possible means be taken to secure the property in question without resorting to law. He did not believe it would be necessary to do so. Perhaps a conference with Mr. and Mrs. Lingham would have the desired effect.

A motion prevailed that the Board meet Mr. and Mrs. Lingham on Monday afternoon on the site and see if it was not possible to secure the grounds suggested in the Committee's report.

The committee rose and reported. The report was adopted.

SCHOOL INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

Mr. H. J. Clarke, School Inspector, presented a lengthy report re the schools, which was referred to the School Management Committee, with the exception of one clause, re certain text books, which was referred to the Principals of the schools.

Board adjourned until Monday evening next.

To Train Farm Hands.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA MAY FOLLOW LEAD OF OTHERS.

Adelaide, N. S. W., Aug. 17.—The minister of Education (the Hon. F. W. Coneybeer) was greatly impressed during his visit to New South Wales last week with the value of its preparatory school to the agricultural college, and has come back with the conviction that South Australia must offer increased facilities for training lads for agricultural occupations. He told the teachers' conference that the Hurlston Agricultural continuation school meant much to the northern state, and a similar institution would mean more to South Australia. This preliminary school took boys at the age of 14 who had passed the compulsory standard, and for $5 quarter—which charge it was hoped would soon be discontinued—they were given a good general training in effecting repairs and meeting the difficulties which daily cropped up on the farm. This training fitted them for and filled in time until they were eligible to enter the higher college, where for $30 a quarter they could become boarders. Hundreds of boys had been sent out from the college, and were now successfully working farms and even running places of their own. The Roseworthy college was doing good work and a school like that at Hulston would be a useful stepping stone for many a school boy to a life on the land.

Mr. Wilson, a Melbourne expert, has gone to Port Darwin, in the northern territory of South Australia, on his way to the new mineral field at Bedman. Should the immense outcrops indicate the existence of true lodes, and these lodes maintain the values indicated by the surface assays, there can be no doubt the field is likely to prove most valuable, but so far this question is purely conjectural. Under present conditions access to the field is difficult, and this will be one of the first problems to be considered if the field is to be properly developed. Glyde's Inlet, containing deep water and with good shelter for vessels, is situated 120 miles north, while the Roper River Landing is about 20 miles south.

Last Night at Griffin's

Packed houses have been greeting the bill at Griffin's Opera House nightly. The vaudeville attraction, Chas. Chestre & Co. have undoubtedly well earned their title "America's Premier Acrobats." As equilibrists they are without a peer.

The feature picture "In the Great Northwest" portrays life as it is around the trading posts in the Canadian woods and even in these isolated parts woman's fickleness and perfidy play a strong part.

The comedy reel "Seven Days" should be a warning to all husbands inclined to pleasure when wifey is away. The antics of the three friends kept the house in an uproar.

Lunacy or What?

(Picton Gazette)

Mr. J. L. Tickell, of Belleville, sends us the following for publication:

"Can it be possible that some respectable farmer in your county is harboring a lunatic and not aware of the asylums in the province for such people. Will it be necessary to report such to the department and ask that they send down an inspector in your county to look up the should be inmates.

While passing along the road yesterday in an automobile with ladies and children, en route to Sandbanks some evidently insane person threw a rotten tomato which hurt no one but made considerable mess of clothing. Might we ask your attention through your columns to such punishable conduct."

August 16th, 1910.

Ed. Note.—Such conduct as noted by Mr. Tickell, is truly most aggravating. They are not lunatics, however, that do this sort of thing. Every community has a certain class of citizens whose disposition is to be develish, and a menace to society. We believe Prince Edward is as free from these objectionables as is any other county, yet we have them, and the difficulty is to get at them and make them pay the penalty of the law.

A Narrow Escape.

Picton, August 19.—Mrs. Emery Ferguson who resides on the East Lake Road, just above the gravel pit, accompanied by her fourteen year old daughter, started with their horse and buggy to come into town. The girl was driving, and coming out of the yard, turned too short, upsetting the vehicle, throwing both her and her mother violently to the ground. The girl escaped unhurt, but the mother fell on her head and shoulders injuring her seriously. She was unconscious for some time and badly bruised about the head and shoulders, but no bones were broken. Mr. Ferguson, who is employed at Dunnville, Ont., was sent for and came down for a few days. The little girl, for one of her years, displayed great courage and presence of mind. She clung to the horse until assistance came, and then came to town for the doctor and telephoned her father to come home.

SAVED FROM THE KNIFE

Appendicitis Cured By "Fruit-a-tives"

NEWBURGH ONT., Feb. 12th. 1910.

"Just about a year ago, our daughter Ella (fourteen years), was taken with terrible pains in the right side The pain was so severe that we had to carry her to bed. We at once put her under the care of a first-class doctor, who pronounced it a case of Appendicitis and advised an operation.

We took her to a hospital in Kingston where she was again examined by an eminent specialist He said she had Appendicitis and must be operated on at once if we wanted to save her life As we had taken her to Kingston to have this done we were ready but our daughter was afraid and cried and begged so pitifully, that we postponed it for that day. Luckily for us and for her an uncle came in with some 'Fruit-a-tives' and insisted on Ella taking them Good results were apparent almost from the first dose, and the continuous treatment cured her.

'Fruit-a-tives' saved our daughter from the surgeon's knife and to-day she is enjoying the best of health."

J. W. FOX, (Father).
LILLIAN FOX, (Mother).

Words cannot express the gratitude of Mr and Mrs. Fox. ARE WITH ROOSEVELT.

Negro Business Men's League Pledges Itself to Support Him.

New York, Aug. 20.—The support of the negro electorate of the United States for a possible third term was pledged to Col. Roosevelt yesterday by the 1,100 delegates to the National Negro Business Men's League, in convention here.

The endorsement of the former President came after he had addressed the delegates on the opportunities for advancement open to the colored race in this country, and as the climax of an earnest and eloquent eulogy of his conduct in office by Bishop Clinton of this city.

Recalling the words of the former executive, that he would not be one "to close the door of hope in the face of a man because his skin happened to be black," Bishop Clinton expressed the gratitude of all negroes for the encouragement which this attitude of the then President had given to his race, and closed by assuring Col. Roosevelt that whatever "promotion" in public life he might seek, he would always find the negro element solidly allied in his support.

The cheering which greeted this declaration had hardly abated when Booker T. Washington, chairman of the meeting, advanced to the front of the platform and urged that all in sympathy with the sentiment expressed by Bishop Clinton rise to their feet.

The entire assembly rose amid renewed cheering.

Cattle Starved 65 Hours.

Toronto, Aug. 20.—Mr. Marshall H. Brown, general freight agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway Co., was charged before Magistrate Denison yesterday with violating the law as to the transportation of cattle.

On July 21st last, P. C. Craig, who was stationed at the Western Cattle Market, noticed twenty-five head of cattle arriving in a shocking condition. Making enquiries, he found they belonged to Mr. W. H. Smith, of Holstein, and were in transit from Winnipeg to the purchaser's farm Probing further, he found that the unfortunate animals had been last fed and watered at White River, on the morning of July 18th, and had therefore, been without food or water for sixty-five hours.

Mr. Smith was called as a witness and testified that he had attempted to feed them en route, but had been prevented by the company's officials.

The case was adjourned, to allow the proper official to be charged. Magistrate Denison suggesting that if no one else could be found, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy might be summoned.

Employes Swindled Company.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 20.—Half a dozen conductors and one train agent have been discharged by the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad as the result of an investigation which reveals the fact that the company has been defrauded out of many thousands of dollars. The ticket agent, it is said, would sell a ticket for a certain train, give the number of the ticket to the conductor of that train, who, instead of punching the pasteboard, would return it to the ticket agent without making a report to the company. The agent would put the ticket on sale again.

Boston, Aug. 20.—Two more arrests were made yesterday in connection with the alleged wholesale thefts of wool from the Boston & Maine Railroad and various Massachusetts woollen mills. It is alleged that the wool thefts will aggregate $50,000.

Must Vaccinate Carefully.

Brantford, Aug. 20.—Dr. McCullough of the Provincial Board of Health, notified Mayor Wood here yesterday that the vaccination order would have to be more rigidly enforced, otherwise the provincial board would take drastic action. A quarantine for the city was suggested.

Local authorities deny the urgency of any such step, as only two cases have been reported in the last two weeks, and the outbreak seems to be well in hand. Dr. Bell of the provincial board will visit this city.

Amateur Acrobat Breaks Back.

Montreal, Aug. 20.—A curious accident happened last night at a small amusement place on St. Lawrence street, called New Park, Thomas Michaud, a spectator, after watching a trapeze performance, was unwise enough to try to imitate the performers He was permitted to climb up the apparatus and, after making several awkward attempts, fell 20 feet to the ground, breaking his back. He is not expected to recover.

Not In Demand.

Ottawa, Aug. 20.—The fund for the abolition of level crossings appropriated by Parliament is not being utilized as yet to any great extent. It amounts to a million of dollars, extending over a period of ten years. So far this year about $25,000 of it has been used and about the same amount last year.

Welland's New Industry.

Welland, Ont., Aug. 20.—Deere & Co., with head works at Moline, Ill., and branch factories at a number of points in the United States, will erect a million-dollar plant at Welland, to employ 1,500 hands. They manufacture farm machinery.

No bonus is granted to the firm.

A Jewelled Bible.

London, Aug. 20.—The King's Bible for the church at Annapolis Royal will be despatched on Monday. It is bound in red Niger morocco, is gold tooled, and set with amethysts. The King's and Canada's arms appear on the book, which is 19 inches by 12.

Want to See the Boys.

London, Aug. 20.—A demand is being made that the Q.O.R. should march through the city, or at least be reviewed by royalty or Lord Roberts in Hyde Park. It is hoped in Canadian circles that something of the like will be arranged.

Will Visit Canada.

London, Aug. 20.—Sir W. Parratt, the King's master of music, sailed on Thursday for Canada.

The argument advanced in favor of a new phonograph which has its records in the form of endless belts is that it is possible to provide much longer selections than by the older methods.

THEY WILL NOT STRIKE

Toronto Street Car Men Will Accept Report of Board.

Report of Conciliation Board Gives an Increase of a Cent an Hour Where From Four to Six Was Asked—Recognition of the Union Is Refused by the Company—Working Schedules Are Modified Considerably.

Toronto, Aug. 20.—The threatened street car strike, which it was feared would tie up Toronto's traction lines during the Exhibition was averted early this morning after a four-hour session of the Union in the Star Theatre. At 4.15 a standing vote was taken and the men unanimously decided to accept the award of the conciliation board, which was issued late last night. Although the award is scarcely to the liking of the younger men it was decided not to attempt to tie up the city at so inopportune a time. To-day Toronto breathes easily again.

"The strike is averted," declared Judge Barron, when the conciliation board emerged from its deliberation last night. "It has been a hard battle, but an agreement has been reached between the representatives of the company and the men."

He then handed out for publication the report of the board which favors a general increase of wages, but much less than the men had demanded. The ultimatum of the union was for an increase of from four to six cents an hour, recognition of the union, rearrangement of working hours and several minor points. The report gives an increase of a cent an hour all around except in the case of third year employes, where a cent and a half is granted. Recognition of the union is denied and the working hours are modified considerably to meet the demands.

Mackenzie Basin Fine Land.

Ottawa, Aug. 20.—"At every point we touched at from Edmonton north, as far as Fort Good Hope, which is within sixteen miles of the Arctic circle, vegetables were grown, and grown successfully," said Hon. Frank Oliver, in the course of an interview as to his overland trip to Dawson City. "There is a good crop every year I am told.

"Spruce of a splendid size grows on the Mackenzie Delta, suitable for sawing, and not at all of the stunted growth one might expect to find in the north. The Mackenzie is a beautiful river, two miles wide, with gravel banks, and the country all along it looks well.

"A large area of the north country will have to be reclaimed and cleared, but in so far as climatic conditions are concerned, it is worthy of the closest attention as a field for settlement."

Cadets For Navy.

Ottawa, Aug. 20.—Parents must be British subjects, Candidates must have lived in Canada two years. They must be between 14 and 16. They must bind themselves to serve in the Canadian navy, and not decide to use the Naval College as a step to other professions.

These are the chief stipulations as to naval cadets, examinations for which will be held by the civil service commissioners in October. The first thirty boys on the list will be given cadetships if they can pass the physical examination. The course at the Naval College will cover two years and will cost $700. Thereafter the boys will be midshipmen and draw pay.

Three Injured In Wreck.

Buffalo, N.Y., Aug. 20.—Passenger train No. 52 on the New York Central, from Suspension Bridge to Buffalo, was wrecked early yesterday when it collided with a light engine at the approach to the international bridge. Three persons were injured including Alfred Thomas, aged 24, conductor, St. Thomas, Ont., serious, and Simon Putney, aged 25, fireman Bridgeburg, Ont. Failing to observe signals is said to have caused the wreck.

St. Lawrence Getting Low.

Montreal, Aug. 20.—The depth of the water in the channel is beginning to cause some uneasiness amongst the shipping men. It has been steadily falling for the past two months, and if it goes on falling at the same rate for the next few weeks, it is possible that none of the bigger vessels will attempt the trip up the river, but will stop at Quebec.

Millionaire's Son In Custody.

New York, Aug. 20.—The police took into custody yesterday E. T. Bosenheimer, son of the millionaire needle manufacturer, to tell what he may know concerning the death of Miss Grace Hough, who was hurled from a carriage which was struck by an automobile going fifty miles an hour.

Dancing Prohibited.

Kingston, Aug. 20.—Dancing is prohibited at all gatherings held under Loyal True Blue auspices. The order discussed the matter at its convention here, some delegates urging that the amusement be allowed, but the voice of the convention was against it.

Fatally Burned.

Sherbrooke, Que., Aug. 20.—A fatal burning accident occurred here, when a young girl named Stock died from the effects of burns. She with other children was in the hayloft of their grandfather, playing with matches, when the hay was set on fire.

A machine on the principle of an aeroplane, yet which runs on the ground, has been built by a French instructor of aviators so his pupils may run no risks in their preliminary lessons.

STRENGTH OF METHODISM.

Members and Ministers Increase, But Class Leaders Are Fewer.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 20.—A report presented to the General Methodist Conference gave the following figures about the Church in Canada:

Total church membership......	340,000
Number of ministers..........	2,580
Local preachers	589
Class leaders	664
Preaching appointments	5,348
Sunday schools	3,590

The increase in the Church membership for the quadrennium totals 22,374. There are 381 more ministers, but there is a serious decrease in the number of class leaders and local preachers.

No session of the Methodist Conference since Monday has been so breezy as when the itinerancy committee reported yesterday. They recommend practically an eight-year term for any pastorate, provided there is a two-thirds' vote of the quarterly board from year to year. A dozen men were on their feet for amendments and speeches. The conference went decidedly for the four-year term. Dr. Speer, Rev. John Locke and Dr. Burns pleaded for lengthening the term. Mr. Forther held that the arrangement at prsent made was for the peace of the church and that there was no general demand for a change. Dr. Burns held that better work could be done on a longer term, that large churches demanded it, and that much of the opposition to the change came from men who themselves were occupying offices of unlimited tenure.

No Faith In Arbitration.

Sydney, Australia, Aug. 20.—The Minister of Defence and Peace passed the second reading of the defence bill in the Senate. It has fully adopted Lord Kitchener's scheme, and when fully operative will provide 127,000 men, at a cost of $10,000,000.

Hon. Mr. Pearce attacked those who placed faith in arbitration, and said Australia would refuse to arbitrate about the Asiatic exclusion matter. It must be prepared to maintain its own laws against attack.

He said: "If anyone asked why the labor party is especially keen on military matters, the answer is that that party's proposed social and industrial reforms require freedom from disturbance, which they must effectively secure. To do this all means that defence must be the very best. "There must be no makeshifts, but the margin must be on the side of safety."

Eaten by Dogs.

Halifax, N.S., Aug. 20.—The officers and crew of the steam yacht Surf, which was in North Sydney on Wednesday, and was lately cruising on the Labrador coast, report that the dogs in that country have become very wild and some of them are very dangerous.

Dr. Mulligan of the Surf tells of a case where a little child was eaten alive by dogs before any assistance could be given to the child.

The cause of the dogs being so cross is said to be on account of lack of food on the coast.

Duelist Ends His Life.

Venice, Aug. 20.—Count Ferrucio Macola, victor in the most sensational duel of fifty years in Italy, killed himself with a revolver yesterday. His friends say he was hounded to death by the adherents of Felice Cavallotti, poet, dramatist, publicist and radical leader. Eighteen British Sailors Are Killed

Intelligencer Special

London, England, August 22.—Eighteen sailors of the British cruiser Bedford, lost their lives in the grounding of the cruiser on Quelport Island, Corea, according to Exchange telegraph despatches. The Bedford was en route from Wei-Hai-Wei to Nagasaki, under command of Capt. Fitzhubert, and had a crew of 687. Her position is so perilous that the survivors have been taken off. The vessel was built in 1903 and cost three and a half millions.

The hole torn in the Bedford when she struck was so large that the engine room in which the deaths occurred, filled so rapidly that victims had no chance to escape.

The Bedford was at Quebec several years ago, when Prince Louis of Battenburg visited the Toronto Exhibition. The Bedford was one of his squadron.

MORE MISFORTUNES FOR MOISSANT, AVIATOR

Intelligencer Special.

London, England, August 22.—Further misfortune attended John Moissant today, when, for the second time he tried to fly from Upchurch to London, to complete his Paris to London flight began last Tuesday. Accompanied by his mechanic and a kitten Moissant ascended at Upchurch at 4.39 this morning, in a forty mile gale. He flew for an hour but could not pursue his course owing to the wind.

He alighted at Seven Oaks, as far from London as when he started. His descent was made at terrific speed. The propeller rudder and wire works of the aeroplane were broken, and the wheels were buckled. Moissant has sent for repairs. He may try again tomorrow. He showed wonderful skill to-day in a terrific wind, despite his inexperience.

Thresher Killed.

Essex, Ont., Aug. 22.—John Powell, a resident of North Ridge, was almost instantly killed Saturday while working as a thresher at the farm of John Austin. He was feeding, when he became caught in the belt, and his body was carried into the machine. His head was almost completely severed.

Forestry in Australia.

Much attention has been paid to forestry in Australia recently. The Victorian Government this winter will plant nearly a million young pines, spruces, and hardwoods, and will sow 125,000 immediately. Probably four million seedlings will be available in 1911. The New South Wales Government now inserts re-afforestation clauses in its leases. It is taking this step to prevent undue destruction of the valuable pine and iron-bark belts when the Pilliga scrub is thrown open.

SIX MEN DIE IN WRECK

Disastrous Smash-Up Occurs on Central Vermont Railway.

Freight Trains Crash Together at Northfield Falls—Six Men Are Dead, One Fatally Injured, and Seven Others Seriously Hurt—Only One Name of Those Dead Can Be Ascertained.

Northfield, Vt., Aug. 22.—Six men were killed, one was probably fatally injured, and seven others were badly hurt, as the result of a head-on collision between two freight trains on the Central Vermont Railroad at Northfield Falls, two miles north of here yesterday. All the dead and injured belonged to the train crews of the two trains, but only one of the names could be learned, William Brooklyn, conductor of the southbound train. The bodies of two others were taken from the wreck, but were so badly burned by the fire, which started after the two engines piled up, that they could not be identified. The other bodies, it is believed, were incinerated.

The list of injured includes V.D.S. Albert, St. Albans, brakeman on the southbound train, injured about head and breast, probably fatally; Joseph Smith, Haverhill, brakeman on southbound train, skull fractured and hip broken. Taken to Heaton Hospital in Montpelier; B. Wynn, engineer on northbound train, shoulder and hip dislocated; Leon Labuque, St. Albans, fireman on northbound train, skull fractured and ribs broken. Three others are known to have been injured, but their names could not be learned

The accident occurred on the main line of the Central Vermont Railroad shortly after 8 o'clock yesterday morning. One of the trains, consisting of an engine, tender and caboose, was bound south from St. Albans, and it is claimed, had the right-of-way on the single track. The other train, a heavy freight of 35 or 40 cars, was proceeding from White River Junction to Montpelier and St. Albans.

Engineers Wynn of the northbound train ran by a signal a short distance past the Northfield station, it is alleged, and a few moments later the collision took place. The engine and eight cars of the heavier train were piled up on top of the smaller train. Immediately the wreckage caught fire and fury was added to the flames by the explosion of several tank cars containing oil.

There were several cars of live stock on the northbound train, but these were all left standing on the rails, although several valuable trotting horses were killed by the shock.

Portugal Complains of Nuncio.

Lisbon, Portugal, Aug. 22.—The Government of Portugal has protested to the Vatican against what it considers the objectionable attitude of the papal nuncio at Lisbon, Mgr. Dr. J. Tonti, during the present period of tension between Lisbon and the Vatican.

One difficulty arose over the action of the Roman Catholic archbishop of Braganza, suppressing a Franciscan newspaper published in Portugal without submitting the order to the Portuguese Government, for approval, for which he was censured by the Government and his action nullified.

A bill drafted by the Minister of Justice providing that the civil authorities instead of the clergy shall keep the registers of births, deaths and marriages, which threatens a considerable source of income of the clergy, is also causing friction.

Sweden Comes Down.

New York, Aug. 22.—The Swedish Government has, it is announced, modified the taxation of wood pulp in Sweden to meet the requirements of the Aldrich-Payne tariff act, which imposes a countervailing duty on wood pulp and print paper imported from countries in which an export duty on wood pulp is levied.

By a royal ordinance, the tax, previously paid only upon exported wood pulp the proceeds of which were used for the support of the Swedish Department of Forestry, has been extended to apply to all wood pulp produced in the country.

D.R.A. Opened This Morning.

GREAT NURSE BURIED

Florence Nightingale Is Laid Quietly to Rest.

So Quiet Are Her Obsequies That Only Casual Observers See Hearse Carried to the Grave—Great Tribute Is Paid However to the Soldier's Friend In St. Paul's Cathedral—Wreaths From All Over the World.

London, Aug. 22.—It was a great disappointment to her countless admirers that the executors of the will of the late Florence Nightingale, the Crimean War heroine, felt obliged to decline for her that last tribute which England can pay to her illustrious dead—burial in Westminster Abbey. Indeed, so strictly were her wishes for a quiet private funeral respected that only a few casual passers-by saw the coffin placed in the hearse in front of her residence in South street, Park lane, shortly before 10 o'clock yesterday morning.

The hour set for the departure of the funeral had been kept secret, but the wireless telegrahy of the street soon spread the word and here and there on the route to Waterloo station crowds gathered and bared their heads as the body of the beloved "Lady of the Lamp" passed through the streets of London on the way to be buried in the little west country churchyard at East Wellow, in Hampshire, with her kith and kin.

Miss Nightingale's love for the soldier and the soldier's love for her were recognized as the hearse passed Buckingham Palace and the Wellington barracks. At these places the sentries presented arms and the guards turned out. At Waterloo station, too, from which the public were excluded, the bearer party of the Grenadier Guards was drawn up and carried the coffin to the train. The men accompanied the funeral to East Wellow, where they acted again as bearers at the burial.

Numberless wreaths and crosses were sent to the Nightingale home by individuals and societies. A cross of orchids from Queen Alexandra bore the inscription: "To Miss Nightingale, in grateful memory of the greatest benefactress to suffering humanity, who founded the military nursing service in the year 1855 by her own individual exertions and heroism, from Alexandra."

Wreaths were also sent by King George and Queen Mary, Ambassador and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid and the survivors of the charge of the Light Brigade at Balaclava.

Every hospital in London and many in the provinces sent tributes. There was a chaplet of roses and laurels from the International Council of Nurses in the name of 25,000 members of the National Councils of Nurses of Great Britain, Canada, the United States, Germany, Denmark, Holland and Finland. There were floral tributes also from the American Federation of Nurses, from various regiments and from the Masonic lodges and nursing institutions all over the world.

A national tribute to Miss Nightingale was paid at St. Paul's Cathedral, where there was a memorial service of impressive simplicity similar to those held in the same cathedral for Queen Victoria and King Edward. Seldom has a more remarkable congregation assembled even in St. Paul's, though John Burns was the only Cabinet Minister present. Fully a thousand nurses in uniform represented nursing establishments in all parts of the kingdom. King George and Queen Mary and all the members of the Cabinet sent representatives. Mr. and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid and many Americans were present.

Foolhardy Swimmer Drowns.

Goderich, Aug. 22.—Yesterday afternoon about three o'clock William Offord, a carpenter, was drowned in the harbor. He was bathing, together with companions, at the bathing beach where the water is quite shallow, when it was proposed that they go into the harbor. Offord could not swim, and for a while contented himself in watching his companions from the pier. When he informed them that he was going to jump in from the top of the pier, they endeavored to dissuade him. There is about 20 feet of water. He came up about six feet away from the pier, but did not succeed in getting his head above the water.

Estrada's Progress.

Washington, Aug. 22.—Estrada's army has succeeded in crossing the Hipitaps River in Nicaragua, after 24 hours fighting with the Government troops, and is now encamped before Granada, ready to advance upon the capital, Managua, less than 50 miles away, according to cable advices received from Bluefields by Senor Castrillor, Estrada's representative in Washington.

Went 25 Feet In the Air.

Montreal, Aug. 22.—Blown into the air 25 feet, but lucky enough to come down on the quay at Lachine, was the experience which befell yesterday a man named McCartney. It was while mending a leak in his gasoline tank on a launch that the accident occurred.

McCartney, though unconscious for a while, was not seriously hurt.

CURRENT EVENTS.

There will be no Toronto street car men's strike, which will be glad news to the thousands of rural Ontario people who will blow in their hard-earned money in Toronto at "fair time."

When the Toronto Telegram starts out to tell the truth it generally hits the mark. As witness this: The World imagines that it is "a sad wag," instead of which it has more solemnity and less dignity than a cross-road graveyard by moonlight The World should concentrate its energies upon "O, Canada," and various treasons to the parties and principles of its choice, and leave civic affairs to the journals which make some attempt to understand the questions they attempt to discuss.

A drunken man is always more or less dangerous but in Ottawa they gathered one in the other night of a specially dangerous brand. He was loaded with dynamite as well as drink. He carried enough of the deadly explosive to have blown up the city and when the policeman found it out he handled the prisoner with great care.—Brockville Times.

Those "thousands of ex-Americans" farmers returning disappointed from Canada to their native land to live turns out to be just one hundred and eighty-four. Which reminds us of the nursery story of the ten thousand crows on the roof which ultimately proved to number just three.

Two hundred and sixty years last week the battle of Blenheim was fought and won by Britain's greatest warrior, after Wellington. Next to Waterloo, Blenheim probably stands as the greatest victory in the long annals of England's song and story And the great castle and estate, the gift of the nation, in which the Dukes of Marlborough live to this day, tell better than words how Britain rewards the men who have brought her fame.

Moissant, the first man to cross the British channel in an airship, carrying a passenger, is a French-Canadian. Moissant has broken two of the world's records this last week, thus placing a Canadian in the forefront of the men who are achieving a conquest over the air. And it is worth noticing that Moissant only ascended in an airship five times before performing his hitherto unequalled feat. Evidently flying permits its votaries to achieve a more rapid fame than the mere commonplace earthly pursuits allow.

A New York contemporary lately contained some reflections, for the most part complimentary, on the martial qualities of Canadians. But there appear to have been some things in the article which aroused the ire of one of our expatriots, who "came back with the following to prove that Canadians saved the situation for the North in the war of the rebellion; Your editorial allusion to the fighting qualities of the Canadian could be made a bit stronger if you had told of their aid in helping Uncle Sam keep a flag over his land from 1861 to 1865. The records of the rebellion show that 68,000 natives of British America, now Canada, were enlisted in the northern army, of whom 18,885 were in New York regiments. The 14,000 of them at Gettysburg were fresh enough to keep Lee off Round Top. Without this 68,000 where would Sherman's army have come from? I was one of that 68,000 and know what I am talking about. New Steamboat Company Formed.

THE STEAMERS BROCKVILLE ALETHA AND VARUNA GO INTO THE ONTARIO AND QUEBEC NAVIGATION CO.

For some time negotiations have been going on between the company owning the Strs. Brockville, Aletha, and Varuna, with a view of amalgamating the company with the Hepburn fleet of Picton. That the new company has been formed there is now no longer any doubt, and the charter will likely be out in a few days. The new company will comprise all the Hepburn fleet, store houses wharfs, dry docks, etc., in addition to the three steamers above mentioned and properties held by that company. It is the intention of the new company to build, as soon as possible, a new steamer at a cost of $130,000 or more and run in conjunction with the Alexandria in the Montreal route. The new boat leaving the Eastern end of the route the same hour the Alexandria leaves the Western end.

The new company will endeavor to own all their own wharves and landings along the route. It is rumored the company are already considering the building of a new landing in this city on the site of the old Grand Junction property. This could be made a most desirable landing and would add much to the appearance of the harbor.

Died at Deseronto, on Saturday August 20, Albert E. Frost, of Oshawa son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Frost, Deseronto, aged 23 years, 8 months and 8 days.

Albert E. Frost, of Oshawa, was in the employ of the McLaughlin Motor Car Co., as bookkeeper who showed him every kindness in his late illness. Taken ill with typhoid fever, he went to his home in Deseronto three weeks ago. All that kind friends could do for him was done Two physicians and two trained nurses were in attendance, but all of no avail. He was loved by all who knew him. He was a member of the Presbyterian church, Deseronto; at one time President of the Christian Endeavor Society, and always took an active part in church work while in Deseronto. He was born in Madoc December 12, 1886.

Besides his father and mother there are left to mourn his loss three brothers; Harry, of Regina, Sask.; Fred, of Durham, and Charles at home. He attended O. B. C. two years ago and graduated with honors. He was buried in Belleville cemetery on Monday.

DESERONTO DOINGS.

The engine and some of the machinery of the Deseronto Iron Works broke down on Friday, and it will be 2 or 3 weeks before it can be repaired again.

Mr. Dudley Hill, of Napanee, took the service in St. Mark's church Deseronto Sunday, as the rector is away on his holidays.

There have been no less than five deaths in Deseronto this last two days, Mrs. Maxwell, Mr. Frost, Mr. Sager, a child named Penny, and another man unknown.

TO STOP HINDOOS.

WASHINGTON AUTHORITIES HAVE ALL THEY WANT.

Washington, Aug. 17—The announcement of Assistant Secretary Benjamin S. Cable, speaking for the department of commerce and labor, that a policy of increased restrictions as regards the immigration of Hindos would be adopted, will undoubtedly be good news to the Pacific Coast.

So emphatic was Cable's attitude that he seemed to regret that he had not the power to enact an absolute exclusion law forthwith.

Cable feels himself on safe ground so far as international relations are concerned, for he needs but point to the attitude of the Canadian Government toward the fellow subjects of the British Empire.

The department can but enforce laws on the statute books and cannot stop immigration. It can, however apply a measure of restriction with a broader construction of the law than generally obtains, and if a Hindoo flood comes it will in a large part be halted.

MORE SAIL.

Calcutta, Aug. 17 — Fifteen hundred Hindoos have sailed, the majority for the United States. The Consul-general of the United States says they will probably be refused admission to land at San Francisco.

The practice of such emigrants was to enter the States via Canada. The consul-general expressed his opinion that the United States government would make representations on the subject to the British government.

Lad's Arm Broken.

While working at Queen Victoria school this morning, a young lad named Lewie Howe, employed by the John Lewis Co., met with a painful accident. It seems that the lad was assisting a plumber, named Mr. Duff. They were working on a trestle, which spread, and both man and boy fell to the floor beneath. Mr. Duff escaped serious injury, but it was found that the lad's arm was broken. Some of the school seats were broken too.

HAD REAL RACE.

PILOT WAS PINCHED FOR EXCEEDING SPEED LIMIT.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 20. "Goodness gracious! The pilot is pinched." Such was the general exclamation when the tourists, now engaged in traversing several eastern states, saw that the E.M.F. "30," carrying Pilot Ward, and his confetti had been exceeding the speed limit on the grounds of the West Point Military Academy, and had been caught redhanded. The tour carried a reserve pilot car, the crew of which found its duties merely perfunctory. In an effort to start something the reserve car went up to the regular pilot and issued a formal challenge. In a moment a real race was on. The reserve car hoped for an accident, which would make it necessary for Pilot Ward to leave the E. M. F., and took all sorts of chances, but the regular pilot was ahead and gaining when the cars reached the West Point grounds, where the pinch occurred, the soldiers who made the arrest stating that the car was then travelling at a rate faster than sixty miles an hour, sweating confetti over the landscape in its mad career. Driver Lee Oldfield, Pilot Ward and the entire crew of the car, spent the night in the West Point guardhouse while the other tourists listened to the cadet band that evening. The possibility of a pilotless tour was averted next morning, however, by friendly intervention of several army men of sportive inclinations.

JOINING THE NAVY.

IT WILL COST $700 FOR THREE YEARS' COURSE.

Ottawa, Aug. 20. Parents must be British subjects. Candidates must have lived in Canada two years. They must be between fourteen and sixteen. They must bind themselves to serve in the Canadian navy, and not decide to use the college as a step to other professions.

These are the chief stipulations as to naval cadets, examinations for which will be held by the civil service commissioners in October. The first thirty boys on the list will be given cadetships if they can pass the physical examination. The course at the naval college will cover two years and will cost $700. Thereafter the boys will be midshipmen and draw pay.

KEPT ON PRAYING.

The House Chaplain Responded to the Journal Clerk's Appeal.

After a rather lengthy prayer by the chaplain of the house of representatives a veteran member said:

"The chaplain's prayer reminded me of the most amusing incident I ever saw during my entire service in the house of representatives. The incident occurred many years ago, so I have forgotten the names of the actors.

"One day the journal clerk rushed into the house while the chaplain was praying. He looked through the drawers of his desk in a hasty manner and then hustled to the side of the chaplain.

"'Keep on praying,' he urged earnestly. 'We can't find the journal.'

"Mr. Chaplain was so startled that he faltered in his prayer, but after a moment he seemed to grasp the situation. He bowed his head still lower and continued to pray. The usual time devoted to prayer in the house is about a minute. Members began to shift uneasily on their feet, to look at their watches, and, instead of bowing their heads in reverence, they looked at the speaker pleadingly. The speaker evidently had been informed of the difficulty, and, realizing that the business of the house could not proceed without the journal, he was willing the members should get plenty of prayer. After ten minutes' solid praying the preacher showed signs of getting nervous. He knew the members were getting restive, and he looked down to one of the clerks.

"'Don't stop,' pleaded the clerk. 'We haven't found it yet.'

"The preacher did not stop until he had been praying for fifteen minutes, at the end of which time the journal clerk rushed into the house bearing the precious book under his arm.

"'Amen,' said the chaplain, with a sigh of relief, and the speaker promptly ordered the clerk to read the journal of the preceding day's business."—Washington Times.

RAILROAD TRACKS.

If You Must Follow Them, Walk Outside, Not Between Them.

Two men, one young and the other grizzled with middle age, were walking beside the railroad track in a Boston suburb on their way to the nearest station. The younger stepped between the rails. "Better walk here," he advised. "It's better walking."

"No," replied the older man. "I never walk on the railroad track." "But we're facing the direction from which trains come," persisted the other. "It's safe." "My son," said the middle aged man, "I was a railroad engineer for more than twenty years, and if I learned one thing from the poor chaps I've seen picked up it was not to walk on a railroad track when there is a possibility of walking anywhere else. If the law stopped all trains running on Sunday and this was Sunday I wouldn't do it. It's the fellow that's sure he's taking all the precautions that gets killed."

Here was a man who knew about railroads from intimate conection with them. His advice was the advice of a man who knew. Every railroad man of experience will say the same as he. In England the tracks are private property, and nobody is allowed to walk upon them, so accidents are rare. Here hardly a day passes that we do not read of men killed while making a thoroughfare of the railroad right of way. And usually it is noted that they were on the "safe" side of the track, became confused by the approach of two trains and stepped in front of one or the other.

Occasionally something is to be gained in distance by taking to the railroad instead of the public highway. The man who feels that he must do this will be wise always to walk beside the track and never on it. It may not be quite as good walking, but he is not likely to suffer regrets in a hospital.—Boston Traveler.

A SERIOUS DINER.

The Way the Great Emperor Charles V. Ate His Meals.

The diary of a German gentleman, Bartholomew Sastrow, who lived in the time of the Emperor Charles V., gives us a good idea of the gastronomic customs of those times. Sastrow's description of the table habits of the greatest ruler in his day is very interesting.

Young princes and counts served the repast. There were invariably four courses of six dishes. The emperor had no one to carve for him. He began by cutting his bread in pieces large enough for one mouthful, then attacked his plate. He often used his fingers while he held the plate under his chin with the other hand.

When he felt thirsty he made a sign to the "doctor" standing by the table; then they went to the sideboard for two silver flagons and filled a goblet which held about a measure and a half. The emperor drained it to the last drop, practically at one draft.

During the meal he never uttered a syllable, scarcely smiled at the most amusing sallies of the jesters behind his chair, finally picked his teeth with quills and, after washing his hands, retired to a window recess, where anybody could approach him with a petition.

SALT WATER.

Deep Seas Are More Saline Than Those That Are Shallow.

The density of sea water depends upon the quantity of saline matter it contains. The proportion is generally about 3 or 4 per cent, though it varies in different places. The ocean contains more salt in the southern than in the northern hemisphere, and the Atlantic contains more than the Pacific. The greatest proportion of salt in the Pacific is in the parallels of 22 degrees north latitude and 17 degrees south latitude. Near the equator it is less, and in the polar seas it is least, from the melting of the ice.

The saltness varies with the seasons in these regions, and the fresh water, being lighter, is uppermost. Rain makes the surface of the sea fresher than the interior parts, and the influx of rivers renders the ocean less salt at their estuaries.

Deep seas are more saline than those that are shallow, and inland seas communicating with the main are less salt, from the rivers that flow into them. To this, however, the Mediterranean is an exception, owing to great evaporation and the influx of salt currents from the Black sea and the Atlantic. The water in the strait of Gibraltar at the depth of 670 fathoms is four times as salt as that at the surface.—St. James' Gazette.

Lore of the Clover.

Any one who carries about a four leaved clover will be lucky and will have the power of discovering ghosts or evil spirits. With it under the pillow the lover may insure dreams of the beloved one. A fragment in the shoe of a traveler insures a safe journey. Of the five leaved clover it is declared that if it be worn on the left side of a maiden's dress or fastened behind the hall door the Christian name of the first man who enters will be the same as that of the future husband. The power of the four leaved shamrock for good is familiar to all from Lover's pretty and once popular song, the speaker in which pictures what she would do should she find the magic plant:

I would play the enchanter's part and scatter bliss around,
And not a tear or aching heart should in the world be found.

—London Globe.

The Nature of Friendship.

Friendship may be fostered, but cannot be forced. Two are as one, not because it is in the will of either, but because it is in the nature of both. When souls of similar fiber encounter each other the gods preside at the meeting. I may not cockily say, "I will make this man my friend." He either is or is not my friend without any decision of mine or his. The ages have been shaping the two of us, and if we fit into each other well and good; if not, we know it instinctively and are worlds apart though we toast our shins at the same fire and bandy words till doomsday.—Richard Wightman in Metropolitan Magazine.

Consolation.

There had been a little quarrel after the honeymoon.

"And just look at my pretty linen collar," sobbed the young wife; "the tears have trickled down and wilted it out of shape. You haven't a bit of feeling."

"Indeed I have," laughed the big husband; "I'm going to fix things up."

"H-how, George?"

"Why, the next time I go downtown I am going to buy you a waterproof collar."—Chicago News.

Is it a Free Trade Campaign Or Mere Mendacity?

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is either carrying on a Free Trade Campaign in the West, or he is not.

If he is not, then he is carrying on a campaign of mere mendacity, making Free Trade promises which he intends to break, as he broke all those he made before 1896.

If he really is carrying on a Free Trade campaign, as the Mackenzie Government did back in the seventies, then the country and the Conservative party are face to face with a situation similar to that existing before the general election of 1898.

The Conservative leaders and party still stand for moderate but adequate protection for Canadian industries, and at the general election of September, 1878, carried the country most triumphantly.

The Conservative leaders and party still stood by their policy of moderate but adequate protection, and should in like manner be able to carry the country against any Free Trade campaign that can be put up.

Especially must this be considered a reasonable view of the case since the Conservative policy of Protection has proved its great usefulness in Canada after a trial of thirty years and odd; especially must this be considered a reasonable outlook when the Free Trade campaign would be put up by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues, whose most solemn convention resolutions and platform pledges regarding a Free Trade tariff, have been proved by their practice of the past fourteen years to have been worth not one moment's consideration by the electors of this country.

It may be said that we have a new agricultural West which did not exist before 1878.

Yes, Canada has a great new agricultural West, thanks mainly to the wisdom and foresight of Conservative statesmen.

But the West is daily growing older, and must be doing something besides agriculture, and will soon want, like the East, a tariff policy for the protection of varied industry, including both agriculture and manufactures of many kinds.

The people of the West are too far sighted to regard their country as one to be merely agricultural for any length of time; the people of the West, instead of looking to the East, will soon be largely manufacturing for themselves; and they must see the wisdom of maintaining a policy which will conserve their future.

And even at the present time, all intelligent Canadians, from ocean to ocean, recognize that the tariff must have regard to the interests of the country as a whole, and from ocean to ocean, recognize that the tariff must have regard to the interests of the country as a whole and that from the point of view from all Canada, a protective policy is simply indispensable.

The Liberal-Conservatives must regard with no little pride and satisfaction their National Policy, which has been so woven into the history and making of the country as to have become an irremovable part of its very life and the abolition of which would be nothing short of National suicide.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

BASEBALL

PETERBORO BLANKED BELLEVILLE.

The two "Water-Wagon" teams have a battle royal in the Northern City.

The T. A. S. team of this city journeyed to Peterboro on Saturday and played an exhibition game with the T. A. S. team of that city. The game was played on Riverside Park, and a large crowd was present to see the two "water wagon" teams play the game.

The Peterboro team presented a strong line-up, having their best team in uniform, while "Prunes" Quinlan, who is fast gaining a national reputation as a mound artist, did the heaving for the home team, and he shot it in so fast at times that it looked like a pill. Quinlan will some day be heard of in fast company. The Belleville team only secured three safe hits during the game. They hit the ball but the fielders were always in the way. "Sis" Hopkins was the slant dispenser for the Belleville team and he showed his class as a pitcher the heavy hitting Peterboro team only securing seven safe hits off his delivery. He had lots of "stuff" on the ball and speed to burn. He pitched well enough to win any ordinary game.

Both teams were blanked in the initial innings. In the second Peterboro scored two runs on a two base hit by W. O'Brien and hits by Corkery and Sheehy. They also secured two in the third and fifth innings respectively by hitting the ball when hits meant runs. They also did some daring base running. Belleville being unable to hold them. Belleville had men on bases in nearly every inning but could not hit home the necessary runs. Their three safeties came when no men were on bases.

Two Belleville players missed the train leaving here and this weakened the team. "Cam" St. Charles had to put on a uniform and jump into the game himself. He also secured Minorgan of the West Ends, a Peterboro team, to complete his line-up.

Notes.

The Belleville team say that the Peterboro boys are all first-class sportsmen.

The Grand Trunk team will play Peterboro next Saturday in Peterboro. "Phil" Flagler wants to take his best talent along, for these boys can go some.

Jim Dorris and Frank O'Connor, both well known to Belleville people sat on the Belleville bench all through the piece and pulled hard for our boys. Dorris was at one time a great ball player, while O'Connor is probably the fastest Rugby player that Peterboro ever produced.

The umpire was a perfect "lady."

Rev. Father Meehan was unable to accompany his team to Peterboro owing to the parish being under his charge at the present time.

Park Nine Beat Ontarios in a Close Game.

The Park Nine and Ontarios battled at the Belleville ball yard on Saturday afternoon, and the former were victorious by an 8-7 score. The game was a good one to watch, and was played in an hour and three-quarters. The score would have been smaller on both sides but for the wretched condition of the field, which was muddy and slippery, and several easy outs at first base were lost because the infielders slipped and could not handle the ball properly. One thing Belleville should have before next season opens is a proper baseball field. The Coleman's Flats diamond is only fair in dry weather; after a heavy rain it is a joke — and a bad one at that.

The batteries on Saturday were Smith and Connolly for the Park Nine and McGie and Hagerman for the Ontarios. Both curve-dispensers did good work, and the teams were about as evenly matched as the score shows them to be. One noteworthy fact sticks out in the games seen nowadays — the local players have learned to bat, and can hit pretty nearly any kind of curves served up to them. In addition to being clever fielders, the Ontarios are noted as game finishers. At the end of the sixth inning the score was 8-3 against them, but in the 7th the boys in grey got to Smith for three runs, making the figures 8-6. Both sides were blanked in the 8th. In their half of the ninth, with two down, the Ontarios got a run in and had a man on third but the last man was out on a good pick-up and fine throw by Brennan. The Park Nine infield played their usual steady game, and the outfielders took care of several difficult flies Mr. Wm. Cochrane made a good umpire. The teams::

From Coal Mine to White Sox.

Deep in the depths of the coal mine, hidden far away under ground where the sun never shines and where the torch-lights flicker uncertainly in the damp semi-darkness worked a boy. And the boy had his dreams, his ambitions, and his hopes, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Out in the grand, pure air, where the sun was shining brightly on a summer's day, 30,000 people leaped to their feet, involuntary, from sheer enthusiasm and screamed and shouted and cheered one of the mightiest heroes of the great national game.

There is the contrast that marks the career of Ed. Walsh, the great pitcher of the White Sox.

On that wonderful right hand and arm that have made real baseball history there are great zig-zag scars that the years will never erase, and which were put there when he toiled with a torch in his cap far down in the murky pit of a Pennsylvania coal mine.

Across the chasm between these two lives, the miner boy and the star of the baseball diamond, there stretches the romance of a great struggle and the story of a fight against terrific odds and obstacles.

WALSH FOR THE DIAMOND

If you should meet Walsh off the diamond five or six things would go scampering through your mind so rapidly that you could hardly tell which one came first and which one came last. The one that would claim the most attention from you no doubt, would be the way he shakes hands for when that great right closes around your hand and those long fingers of steel grow tight there comes a lump in your throat and a mist to your eye, and you begin to wonder how you will look with a cork hand, for you do not expect to escape with anything less than amputation from the wrist down.

And you will notice a great under jaw that snaps up to the upper one like a steel trap and an eye of a peculiar brownish-green that sparkles with a keenness that you have seldom seen before. And there is a voice melodious and musical and deep, with a little, just a little, of the suggestion of the beautiful Green Isle and the Lakes of Killarney in it. But there is something else there too, which you will not see with an eye, nor feel with your poor, bruised hand nor hear with the ear. It is that indescribable something we often feel in the presence of those who have done big things; it is that radiation of self-confidence, that electric wave that flashes out of its wireless code and tells you that here is a man who knows himself and knows his strength and isn't afraid to tackle any situation that ever was created.

HE'S FULL OF CONFIDENCE

I sat with Walsh the other day and I asked him what his thoughts were when the great Lajoie came up to bat with the bases full. And this was the answer, simple and plain:

"I know I can strike you out."

Down in the stench and foul air of a dismal mine he looked about him in the half-light of the little torches and he said:

"I know I can get out of here. I know there is a better life for me."

Down in a little New England town where he was pitching for an unheard of minor league team and said:

"I know I will get away from here, I know I will get into the big league some day."

And out in the big league in the storm of the game surging about him he has faced it calm as a mountain and he has said:

"I know I'll get through with it."

There is the answer to the jaw that shuts like a steel trap and the hand that holds yours like a vise, and the sparkling eye and the voice calm and undisturbed.

It depends altogether on what your idea of conceit is whether Walsh is conceited or not. If it is believing that no pitcher ever lived that was as great as he; if it is making excuses for failures and overestimating victories; if it is being easy with the gab and a four-flush when it comes to delivering the article, Ed. Walsh is not conceited.

If it is knowing he has developed himself into a marvelous pitcher, whose great confidence is founded on a matchless physique and a carefully trained brain, and which is nurtured with an optimist's sunny warmth, then Ed. Walsh is conceited. There you are for that point. Pay your money and take your choice.

"There is no advertising season; it is all the time; it should be all the time."

Melvin Sheppard, of New York, established another odd-distance running record on Saturday, going two-thirds of a mile in 2.44 2-5. This clips a second from the record held by Lunghi, the Italian.

It looks more and more like the Chicago Cubs to oppose the Philadelphia Athletics in the world's series. The Cubs won on Friday, Saturday and twice yesterday. Their lead on Pittsburg is now 57 points. The others are out of the running.

An Eastern League record crowd, 18,552 paid admissions, saw Newark win a fifteen-inning game from Rochester Saturday by 4 to 3. Meyers, batting for McGinnity, drove in the winning run. The second game ended 4 and 4 after nine innings, the game being called on account of darkness. The crowd interfered with the playing in both games.

Afraid of Ghosts

Many people are afraid of ghosts. Few people are afraid of germs. Yet the ghost is a fancy and the germ is a fact. If the germ could be magnified to a size equal to its terrors it would appear more terrible than any fire-breathing dragon. Germs can't be avoided. They are in the air we breathe, the water we drink.

The germ can only prosper when the condition of the system gives it free scope to establish itself and develop. When there is a deficiency of vital force, languor, restlessness, a sallow cheek, a hollow eye, when the appetite is poor and the sleep is broken, it is time to guard against the germ. You can fortify the body against all germs by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the vital power, cleanses the system of clogging impurities, enriches the blood, puts the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition in working condition, so that the germ finds no weak or tainted spot in which to breed. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whisky or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients printed on its outside wrapper. It is not a secret nostrum but a medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION and with a record of 40 years of cures. Accept no substitute—there is nothing "just as good." Ask your neighbors.

The ...Veiled Lady...

stroyed!—I have only one or two fugitive letters, which reached me on the James. They told of my father's failing health. My sister was now nearly seventeen, and I (almost a stranger) worshipped the picture she sent me, and which was my only treasure. Royally beautiful she was—even in the simple garb of a Virginian rebel girl. Her dead mother's grace was heightened by my father's proud bearing. Her letters breathed an intensity of feeling which even then astonished me; and now,—Great God!—makes me shudder.

"Now, Maxwell, the awful hours of our downfall came! When you befriended me, finding me a lonely lad in a Union prison den, I waited in vain for replies to letters I had sent by 'exchanged men' to my Aunt Goodenough. At last I heard, by accident, of my father's death; only his prominence caused the sad news to reach me. My sister,—the darling of my heart,—was still silent. Only straggling prisoners enlightened me. I counted the weary miles when I was released and sent South, after Lee's surrender. At Baltimore,—free as only beggars are,—I entered Mrs. Goodenough's home, clad in my tattered Confederate uniform. The servants mechanically offered me food and alms. All our way-worn soldiers knew her as a trusted Confederate agent. My heart bounded with joy, straggler and waif as I was. Home! my sister's love and the beloved scenes of boyhood were awaiting me. At last, I should know my lovely Beatrice. I would dwell with her in peace,—and restore in brighter days the family fortunes.

"Calling for my only relative, I was welcomed with a frenzy of delight by the devoted woman, who mourned me as dead. Her letters had all miscarried; she deemed me dead! Blank amazement followed by question, for, in alarm, she cried: 'My God! don't you know where she is?' 'What of her?' I gasped, sinking into a chair. 'I know nothing, Beverly,' she faltered; 'I have not seen her since she was seven. I have had no letters from her since the childish ones before the war. Only by rumor did I hear of your father's death. I though you had sent her farther south for safety. I only know, from a refugee, she is not at Seaton Hall!'

"My heart was frozen with a sudden chill. I gazed vacantly around the room. Dead! Fled southward! Lost in the whirl of guerilla raid, or Yankee occupation!

"'Stay! I have a latter for you, Beverly,' my aunt cried; 'I am amazed!' My brain reeled! Beatrice gone! Hurrying away, she returned, handing me a letter four months old. It was now July. The envelope was postmarked 'Cincinnati, Ohio, March 25, 1865.' All I had left of my sister was two priceless letters, sewed in my coat lining. Her only picture was tossed aside by the stragglers who rifled my poor belongings while I lay helpless, a wounded captive. I only knew her as the fair child, clinging to my father, on the day we parted, and by the memory of her lost picture. Curse those fiends!". He paused and paced the room, and continued: "It was in her handwriting, and addressed to me at the well-known home of the Goodenoughs! I tore it open. I fell as if struck by a shell. Two months later, I woke in a darkened room. My dear hostess was bending over me. When my fluttering senses aided me, I motioned for a mirror. One glance was enough. Brain fever! And then, Maxwell, the horrible truth returned to goad me. 'That letter,' I muttered. I would not be denied! Its few words were burned into my brain. Traced in her firm handwriting were these words of dreadful burden:

"'I seek only vengeance! Forget me! Beatrice.'

"The paper fluttered from my wasted hand. In an hour, I knew all the sad story. I had hovered between life and death for weeks. A trusty friend, picking his way down to Woodstock, had returned. His report was brief. The Hall was silent and dismantled! The house servants were scattered. From a few lingering field hands, the fact was learned that Beatrice Seaton left her home, alone, early in February. Not a clue could be gained. Old 'Mammy Aggie,' the housekeeper, died just before the surrender. A few stragglers yet lived in the old Hall. It had been debatable ground since Sheridan's raids in the Valley. With their usual cunning, the frightened negroes related how clouds of Union cavalry had scoured the woods and fields. Marse' Moseby, with a powerful troop had turned the old Hall upside down, looking for Yankee officers and spies said to have been seen around! Miss Beatrice was at home then, but no violence had been offered her! They knew nothing of her reasons for her flight!

"There the story ended—In three weeks I nerved my soul to its torture. I entered the silent archway of my birthplace. Though welcomed as one from the dead, in the neighborhood I could learn nothing. I dared not talk. Oh! Maxwell! those nights, those lonely nights, wandering through the deserted rooms! I lingered for hours by the graves of my parents! The shadows deepened on my heart! Pillage prevented me from knowing what family relics she might have taken! A thousand times a day I repeated those fatal words—her last words! That hideous letter haunted me. Those who knew us best, were either dead, in harness, or scattered before the invading hosts. A stranger in my own ruined land, the helpless heir of a great estate, I mourned unnoticed. All our resources were paralyzed. My sister had utterly vanished!

"To linger there, was to go mad! Placing the plantation in charge of a few of the most sensible of our negroes, I soon found a wounded Virginia gentleman willing to live at the Hall, and attempt to restore order. I sought in silence the almost hopeless quest of the loved and the lost. The family property, even in its decay, had a great value. I sealed my lips. I searched the whole Shenandoah for one of the pictures of my beautiful sister in her womanhood. Alas! in vain! The battlefield marauders might better have taken my life! I knew her only in memory. A thousand love-tinted pictures thronged my brain. Of but one thing was I certain, that she was a free agent, alive on northern soil, in February, 1865. But where?—Where?

"Great God! Whom did she seek in her gloomy chase? I returned to Baltimore. Mrs. Goodenough has aided me for these three long years of maddening delay. Inquiry has been exhausted. Advertisements have been cautiously inserted in every leading journal of America. I have roved far and wide over the country. In vain! In vain! Now, Maxwell, I have in my letters to you made no mention of my sorrow. I came here to see you. You will be in the Corps of Engineers. You will travel; you might aid me. I wish your advice; your brotherly help. I am alone in the world with my sorrow."

"I promise it, Beverly! God keep you, my friend," cried Maxwell. "Now, Seaton, listen," he continued. "I wish you to come home with me. I have three months' leave. Forget your sorrows till I have time to reflect. I will aid you while I live."

The Virginian spoke. "I will not darken your happy home with my sorrows. The whole world is my home. I swear I will never leave this quest of love, till my sister's fate is known. If I cannot live to love her, I too will live for vengeance." Seaton paced the room like a tiger, while Maxwell pleaded with the heart brother led to him by strangest fates.

"Home, Sweet Home!" was ringing out on the still night air, before Maxwell's pleading conquered the sad Southerner. Bevies of happy girls, with trembling lips and mantling blushes, were softly saying "Good night," as the carriages bore these tired fairies back to "Roe's" or the more aristocratic "Cozzens'."

"Not a word to your friend Gordon," Seaton adjured Maxwell, as the Grand Ball broke up, and the cadet sentinels were dismissed. For the chimes of midnight caused the pretty Cinderellas and their stately attendant dowagers, to seek soft pillows, haunted by dreams of past or future conquest. The Ball was over!—The First Class were officers now! Delicate taper fingers were clasped in manly palms later to clutch in last agony, sword or pistol, in dying struggles with the merciless red devils of the West!—"Taps!" three resounding drum taps! Gay West Point relapsed into darkness and silence. The Ball Room was lonely,—haunted by the memories of the gracious fair ones, queens of a happy summer class" busied in lighted rooms, gathering up their slender baggage for the flitting at reveille!——

Jack Gordon came bounding into the guard room, now tenanted only by Maxwell and Seaton. "By Jove, Maxwell! I'm late 'reporting in,' but I had a few last words with Miss Nellie, as we peeped at the moonlit river from the back porch of 'Roe's.'" Gordon was in the seventh heaven. Happy Jack! "You 'cut' your dance, you old deceiver," he rattled on.

"I had important business to detain me," Maxwell soberly replied. "I'll Belle des Belles! Gordon! let me make you acquainted with my friend, Beverly Seaton,—my classmate, worthless Jack Gordon! Beverly."

Jack, with ready bonhomie, grasped Seaton's hand, and the three sauntered over to the Spartan abode of the lively Kentuckian. The subtle freemasonry of southern blood put the new friends at once en rapport. As handsome Gordon seated his visitors, he tossed off the cadet decorations for the last time. Tall, dark and superbly muscled as a young Pawnee, Jack Gordon was, at twenty-four, the very picture of his father, who died waving on his Kentuckians at Buena Vista where Hardin, Clay, Yell and McKee gained, at once, the laurel and the cypress. His gallant father he could not remember, but his gentle, graceful mother,—a scion of an old St. Louis French family—had given to him her delicate mind and impassioned vivacity. Nurtured in honor, bred in chivalry, Jack Gordon was chief of a clan in the unrivalled Blue Grass country of lovely women, brave men and matchless steeds! His splendid old home waited its young lord. Ah! only from the rare portrait in the grand drawing-room of Belvoir, or in his dreams would the sweet smile of the Lady of Belvoir bless the son she had nurtured. She had joined her lost husband in the Land of Shadows. Jack (espousing the Union cause,) had even crossed swords with a regiment commanded by his uncle; a dashing southern-rights man who died for Dixie! His cadetship was also a prize of valor in the field.

"See here, Seaton!" said the master of Belvoir, "I know that you are going to visit 'our friend Reliable!' I must have you down at my home. Where is your place in Virginia?"

"By Jove, old fellow!" cried Jack. "I will never forget it. I helped to dodge Mosby in and out of the Shenandoah haunts for a year! I stood in a line of prisoners one night, when old 'John S.' rode along, hat in hand and made ten men draw out black death ballots in reprisal. I was 'way on the left; a young Fauquier county man, I had met at school, was one of the guards! After Mosby rode back, the boy slipped a revolver in my hand and whispered, 'Cut it, Jack!' As I dashed away in the woods, I heard the firing party at their awful work!—One of your own negroes hid me two days, till I could get back into our lines. So that's your home! Noble old place."

CLIMAX OF THE TRIP.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Party Arrive at Prince Rupert.

Prince Rupert, B.C., Aug. 22.—Arriving at the western terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific at four o'clock Saturday afternoon, Sir Wilfrid Laurier reached the climax of his transcontinental tour.

Much more was demanded of the Premier than his physical strength permitted. The 50-mile sail from Victoria to Prince Rupert was accomplished under ideal weather conditions. Capt. Nicholson, formerly of Sarnia, took charge of the party on the "Prince George. A close watch was kept for the steamer, and as the "Prince George" approached the entrance to the harbor, the steamers Kestrel, Falcon and Bruno, with a large flotilla of launches, escorted her to dock, three blasts of giant powder whose detonations awakened the repose among the hills.

The town was gaily decorated, and an immense crowd lined the docks. The Premier, on his arrival at the Government building, received several addresses from the city, Daughters of Empire, French-Canadian citizens, who looked forward to receiving the ships of the Canadian navy, and various Indian tribes, one being engraved on a paddle.

In reply Sir Wilfrid said that Prince Rupert is the latest example of Canadian enterprise. He had learned from the present trip that the G.T.P. had not been built one moment too soon.

The Premier declared he was more than pleased with the sentiments of patriotism and loyalty contained in the addresses from all sections, and asserted that only under British institutions could such peace and happiness prevail.

A banquet was tendered to the visiting party Saturday evening at ten dollars a plate. The Premier spent yesterday resting.

OFF FOR ENGLAND.

Dr. Crippen and Micc Leneve Taken Home to Face Trial.

Quebec, Aug. 22.—Dr. Harvey Hawley Crippen, charged with the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore, in London, England, last January, and arrested on the steamship Montrose at Father Point three weeks ago yesterday, as well as Miss Ethel Clara Leneve, arrested with him, left for England on Saturday night on the White Star Line steamship Megantic.

The stay of the couple at the Quebec jail was brought to a sudden termination early Saturday morning, and, in charge of Inspector Dew, Detective Mitchell and two wardresses of Scotland Yard police headquarters, England, they are now on board the Megantic, which also took on board the Queen's Own Regiment of Toronto, and which sailed at 7 p.m.

Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve were rushed out of the jail to commence their trip to Europe at a few minutes before eight o'clock. Both the prisoners and the prison authorities were kept in absolute ignorance of the preparations for their removal until a little more than half an hour before the doctor and his companion were driven away.

It was shortly after seven o'clock that three closely-covered carriages drove up to the jail, and, in order to avoid unnecessary publicity, were taken into the courtyard to await the readiness of the prisoners. The preparations of the latter did not take long, for they had already breakfasted. They took time, however, before leaving the prison, to express their gratitude for the manner in which they had been treated there.

Plans Airship Line.

Pittsburg, Aug. 22.—Eight dirigible airships were contracted for here on Saturday when the United Airship Co. of Baltimore, through its manager, Jean Belgiano, signed a contract with Capt. R. C. Millman. The deal involves about $200,000. It is planned to operate the dirigibles between Baltimore and Washington.

Belgiano has organized a $1,000,000 corporation to operate his line. Millman was associated with Santos-Dumont and Jean Goudet of France, and has been working on air navigation projects for twenty-two years. The dirigibles are to cost $25,000, and a bonus of $2,500 is to be paid for each mile above thirty miles an hour and $1,500 for each miles above thirty-five miles that they may develop in speed. The airships will each carry sixteen passengeres and will be 220 feet long.

Bridge Tender Drowns.

Welland, Aug. 22—Hiram Young, aged 45, was drowned in the sight of his wife at the Michigan Central bridge, across the Welland Canal here, Saturday night at 7.30. Young was night watchman on the bridge, and was assisting to close it after the passing of a vessel. The end bound, and he was prying with a bar, which slipped, and he fell headlong into the river. He was unable to swim and his fellow workmen were all at the opposite side of the canal. His wife was at his side at the time. The body was not recovered until an hour later. He leaves two children.

Accident Mars Triumph.

Greenwich, Conn., Aug. 22.—Clifford B. Harmon of this place, business man and amateur aviator, late Saturday made the first flight across the Long Island Sound, in a heavier-than-air machine.

His machine when landing, ran some distance into a clump of tall grass and weeds and was considerably damaged, the chassis being broken.

Harmon started his flight from Garden City at 6.15, and landed in Greenwich at 7.05, covering a distance of about 28 miles.

Gauthier to Be Moved?

Kingston, Aug. 22.—Archbishop Gauthier will likely have to be transferred to Ottawa, so it is stated in Catholic circles here, to fill the vacant archbishopic. A recent regulation at Rome calls for the position of archbishop to be filled by either a bishop or archbishop. Mgr. Gauthier is the only one eligible for the vacancy besides Bruchesi of Montreal.

BIRTH OF A VOLCANO.

Nature's Process In Forming a Mountain of Lava.

THE FORCE OF AN ERUPTION.

Upheaval That Destroyed the East Indian Island of Krakatoa In 1883 Propelled an Air Wave Three and a Half Times Round the Earth.

Though volcanoes are often spoken of as burning mountains, they do not burn at all, nor, in the proper sense of the word, are they mountains at all. A volcano is really a flaw in the crust of the earth through which the fierce glowing heat lying below the crust has managed to burst a hole. Through this hole great floods of melted rock spout up. Some volcanoes work at intervals; some are in eruption all the time.

As the melted rock jets up into the air and falls it naturally builds itself into a mountain round the hole. The next eruption has to burst its way through the heart of that mountain. The chimney it spouts through is usually called "the pipe."

Sometimes an eruption is so fierce that when the lava (another name for melted rock) spouts out it is burst into bits. When it falls it is sometimes as fine as dust, sometimes the size of cinders. Most volcanoes, indeed, are simply gigantic cinder heaps.

When the force is not so great the lava in the pipe simply bubbles over and flows down the sides of the mountain, exactly as porridge boils over the edge of a pot. As lava is liquid, the slope of a lava volcano (or lava cone, as it is usually called) is always very gentle. Falling cinders, on the other hand, pile themselves up quite steeply. A lava cone, then, is always less steep than a cinder cone.

And a volcano never burns. What looks like flame is only the glow of the white hot lava on the clouds of steam. The more steam there is forcing its way up the pipe the more the lava bubbles, just as in the case of the porridge. If the pressure of steam is very great, then you have the lava blown to bits and falling as cinders, while the mighty clouds of steam rise high above the mountain. It is this steam that is mistaken for smoke.

Sometimes a cone sends out lava and cinders alternately, so that you have a great mountain of cinders bound together by layers and walls of lava.

These walls of lava are due to the fact that sometimes more lava wants to come up the pipe than the pipe will hold, so the lava bursts its way out through weak spots in the sides of the mountain. Etna has no fewer than 700 of these cones on its slopes. One of them, Monte Rossi, is a hill in itself, being 450 feet high. Indeed, a model of Etna looks as if it were covered with pimples.

When Etna is really roused it is far more dangerous than Vesuvius. In 1169 it nearly destroyed the city of Catania, killing 15,000 people. In 1669 it found its pipe so inconveniently small that it had to crack one of its sides. This crack was no less than twelve miles long. At the bottom white hot lava could dimly be seen through the clouds of steam. In 1755 millions of gallons of boiling water were shot out of the Val del Bove, which is a great circular pit on the slope of the mountain, four or five miles in diameter, its sides being cliffs nearly a mile high in places.

The greatest volcanic eruption ever known took place in the East Indies in 1883. The story makes almost incredible reading. The volcanic island of Krakatoa commenced proceedings by blowing half of itself into thin air. From the opening no less than a cubic mile of rock was shot out.

A column of steam and lava dust rose into the air to a height six times as great as that of Mount Everest. It spread and spread till for hundreds of miles around the air was black as midnight. Sounds as of distant cannonading were heard 2,000 miles off.

Sea waves fifty feet high killed 35,-000 people and were felt as far off as California. Instead of an island half a mile high there was now a hole a quarter of a mile deep. The shock of the eruption sent air waves three and a half times around the earth. The fine dust in the upper atmosphere added for months afterward a strange glow to the sunsets in England and did not vanish completely for three years.

The exact cause of the eruptions is not known for certain. A popular theory is that they are caused by water getting in to the white hot mass which is supposed to lie under the outer crust of the earth. And it is certainly a fact that practically all volcanoes are close to the edge of the sea.

Some lava flows slowly, some quickly. Vesuvius in 1805 sent out a lava stream that in four minutes had reached a spot four miles off. The size of a lava stream is sometimes gigantic. In 1783 Skaptar Jokull in Iceland emitted two streams at one time. One was forty miles long by seven miles broad, the other fifty miles by fifteen. The average depth of both was about a hundred feet.

Lava cools very, very slowly, except on the surface, which cools at once. It is an extremely bad conductor of heat. Twenty years after a stream of lava was sent out from Jorullo, in Mexico, tourists could light their cigars through chinks in the surface, and the surface had been cold for twenty years. In 1828 a layer of snow many feet thick was found under a layer of Vesuvian lava. It was still unmelted and 's probably there still.—Pearson's Weekly.

A new machine separates the whites and yolks of opened eggs by allowing the former to pass through a sieve and automatically ejects bad eggs, which will not separate, their weight tripping a tray.

Woman's World

Maxine Elliott's Protege—Newsboy Whom She Will Educate.

MAXINE ELLIOTT AND HER PROTOGE.

"Rusty" McGillan, a New York newsboy, is going to have all he wants to eat, wear good clothes and receive an expensive education, all because he worships Maxine Elliott.

When Miss Elliott was playing at her own theater in Thirty-ninth street, New York city, last season her carriage door was opened every night when she arrived at the theater by a well mannered little fellow, who doffed his ragged cap politely and tendered her all the evening papers, neatly folded. He refused persistently to take payment for the papers, and Miss Elliott would reward his gallantry with a nod and a smile.

The night Miss Elliott opened her theatrical season last fall she was met by the same boy with his armful of papers, who acted as though it was the most natural thing in the world that he should be at his post. Such quiet and dignified courtesy on the part of a ragged little newsboy touched Miss Elliott's heart, and she has made arrangements for his schooling at the Shattuck Military academy at Faribault, Minn. She picked this institution because of its excellence and for the further reason that the boy has an aunt living in St. Paul, near enough to Faribault so that she can look after him.

The favored lad is thirteen years of age and is called "Rusty" by his newsboy comrades because of his dark red locks. He was born in Boston and came to New York city two years ago upon the death of his mother.

Preventing Colds In Spring.

Many a severe cold could be avoided, says Margaret Mixture, at this season if on coming indoors a woman would drink a cup of hot milk.

The object in drinking this is to start the blood circulating after it has become sluggish from the cold. Warm food will draw the blood to the stomach and send it later through its proper channels if digestion is what it should be. Milk is nourishing and at the same time soothing to nerves which have been overstimulated by cold. If a little salt is added the drink may be less unpalatable for those who do not care for milk.

To think that any kind of food may be eaten when one is cold is a mistake, for the digestive organs are not in normal condition at such a time and will not do their work properly. Therefore discretion should be exercised, and if milk is not taken soup is an excellent substitute. The object is to take food that is easy to assimilate and warm.

Few persons realize that when the body is cold vitality is lowered and that only those who are very strong should rely wholly upon reaction for warmth. Any one who is not strong is weakened by such reaction, and it is to reduce this strain that immediate action should be taken to restore warmth.

Colds which make one feel ill are likely to be caught when a person is fatigued, as vitality is then too low to throw off the chill and illness may result. Indigestion is another cause of cold, and it is always well to resort to a good cathartic when the first symptoms of cold are noticed.

Such attacks as the ones mentioned are caused by germs, as a rule, and if the liver is made to perform its functions there is a good chance of the germs being thrown off. The dose should be taken at night, and if possible the patient should stay in bed on the following day. This is a luxury many cannot take, and to these extra precautions, such as eating simple food and protecting the feet from dampness and cold, should be taken.

Visiting Dressmaker.

When the visiting dressmaker comes to you remember that she is not a machine, capable of grinding out work with no wear upon her being. Insist upon the worker taking a rest two or three times a day. Take up to the sewing room a plate of fruit during a short intermission. Ask her to leave the scene of hostilities and walk with you to the end of the garden or street.

Make life worth living for this woman, whose lot is not the easiest. Why, the fact that you hire her to come implies that you cannot stand the pressure and strain of a sewing siege. The visiting dressmaker has feelings and is entitled to a respectable and civil consideration of them. It is an evidence of a lack of good breeding to disregard the rights of a woman who is giving you the full value of her monetary compensation. It is always gratifying to know that you have lightened a burden by a little kind thoughtfulness.

A refrigerating dish for dining tables invented by an Ohioan has a hollow lid, sufficiently large to hold two handfuls of broken ice.

Good Form

The woman who intends to have week end visitors or house visitors of any sort needs to consider one thing before inviting the outsider into her home—is the prospective guest worthy of the honor? Is she to be trusted with one's life, ergo one's reputation? If not madam must not issue her invitation, and if she sees fit so to do once the stranger is within her gates all must be given her—full confidence in her integrity and entire liberty in every move that concerns her health and happiness.

As the hostess' captiousness sometimes comes from feeling that the visitor of a week or more is outstaying her welcome, the English custom of arranging a visit within a prescribed period is an excellent one. If you ask Miss Guest to come on the 15th and stay until the 20th you have no reason to complain unless she prolongs her stay. This arrangement for the coming of the guest and her going puts the whole visit on a pleasant and easy basis, and the hostess and guest of good sense abide by all the requirements of politeness and kindly feeling as long as the visit lasts.

An Engagement Tea.

One of the newest ways of announcing an engagement is for the prospective bride to give a tea and invite all her friends and the friends of her parents. You either invite them by note telling of the engagement, or you may send visiting cards on which are written a day, date and hour, and on their arrival tell them the news. When invited by visiting cards, as suggested, tea and cakes should be served, following the procedure precisely of any other afternoon tea. Even when an engagement is announced in this way it is the custom to write notes to one's intimate friends, telling the news before they can hear it from outsiders. Such a note may read:

> My Dear Aline—I want you to be among the first to know of my engagement to Jackson Frothingham, which we shall announce at a tea on Wednesday afternoon. I hope you will come in then, for mother and I will be at home at 5 o'clock. I know you will congratulate me when you know how happy I am, and I want you to take Jackson into the friendship which you and I have enjoyed for so long.
>
> MARTHA.

An announcement note of this kind should be acknowledged by the recipient.

Care of Linens.

As linen forms a large percentage of spring and summer dresses it is advisable to study a method for preserving the beauty of this fabric. No linen should be starched. True, linen has a crisp, clean finish when starched and ironed, but it rumples easily, and one wearing makes a garment unfit for a second appearance. Instead dampen the goods considerably and iron until perfectly dry. Iron as much of a garment as possible on the wrong side to raise the thread.

In washing blue linen add vinegar to the last rinsing water. Place a teaspoonful of soda in a gallon of water when dipping a lavender. Use no bluing in tans, but supply it plentifully in the rinsing water for white, blue and pink. Green should not be dipped into indigo water. When the green begins to fade dip it into a sour solution of water and vinegar and hang it in the shade to dry. Dress linens are not unlike table linens as to laundry work, as hard pressing on damp material furnishes a certain amount of stiffness sufficient for such fabrics. Use a very large iron for pressing large pieces.

Shopping Etiquette.

If you have waited until this eleventh hour to do your summer shopping there are some little decencies you must not fail to remember. Most of them center about your obligations to the store people, though the comfort of mommer and hubby and the children is also concerned.

Among my woman friends there are two sorts of shoppers whose methods I have taken pains to observe with the desire, however, to learn rather than to teach. The correct form of shopping is a wonderful gift, implying as great a saving of body and soul as of money, and I am one of the unfortunate ones who come out of these gladiatorial contests the worse for wear in every way.

The saints in my shopping calendar are the women who get through their buying without breaking any of the hearts behind the counter—the dear women who have always a gracious word for the tired salesgirls, who know what they want before they go to the shop and buy it without haggling, dawdling or bad temper.

How to Register at Hotels.

When registering at a hotel a married woman writes her name in full, as "Mrs. George Mills Brown," with her town and state following. An unmarried woman writes hers "Miss Jane Blank," with her city and state. Street addresses are not given. That the full name be given is very important in case of accident, as the use of initials renders identification more difficult. People often have similar initials that represent names quite different. An unmarried woman should never omit the prefix "Miss."

Though the earth is adding 100 tons of extraneous matter, such as meteoric particles and cosmic dust, a day, it will take 1,000,000,000 years for it to accumulate a layer an inch thick all over.

THE FASHIONABLE DOG.

Samoyede Canine Pets Are "It" This Summer.

THE LATEST FAVORITE OF FASHION.

The Samoyede dog is the latest comer in canine pets for fashionable favor. This dog is a sort of four footed Admirable Crichton. He can do anything you ask of him—that is, anything within canine powers—and he can do it very well. He comes from the northeast of Russia, and, although new as a smart pet, he is the oldest domesticated dog in the world.

He is an ideal dog for children—intelligent, quick to learn tricks, good tempered and gentle, intensely affectionate, faithful and invariably well behaved. In short, he is a perfect four footed gentleman.

The Samoyede does splendidly harnessed singly or in pairs to a child's gocart. He takes to harness naturally, is untiring and strong and, to use a horsy expression, "quite without vice."

Apart from these excellent traits of character, the Samoyede dog's appearance is distinctly "fetching." In the puppy stage he is a fascinating little creature with a soft, fluffy white coat, for all the world like a Teddy bear. As he grows older he passes through the usual leggy state and at about a year old develops into a most aristocratic looking animal, very handsome and attractive, with long white fur standing straight out from the body, each hair having the icelike glisten peculiar to the breed.

Standing nearly as tall as a collie, ears pricked, eyes expressive, tail a spreading plume—not coiled tightly, like a chow—the striking appearance and elegant carriage of the Samoyede attract attention wherever he goes.

A Vacation Pest.

The most delightfully planned outing in the woods may be ruined by that vacation pest—the mosquito.

Some persons poison so dreadfully life is a torment, and there is always danger of malaria from the bites.

If you are especially poisoned by mosquitoes, arrange to go where they are not. Don't go in for camping or frequent resorts that are subject to them.

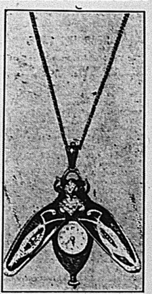
If you will go, take with you preventives in the form of mosquito nets, lump camphor and citronella.

In extreme cases there are head nets that can be bought for a dollar. They are made of fine black bobbinet that will stand rain and washing. There is a circular cloth piece above the net over hat and a yoke shaped piece at bottom fitted to the shoulders and tied under the arm.

For night use it is possible to buy frames and mosquito bars to fit folding camp cots.

The Beetle Watch.

Oddities in jewelry are constantly to be found, and the latest fad is the beetle watch that is worn on the end of a neck chain or a long piece of half inch black moire ribbon.



OF EGYPTIAN DESIGN.

A slight pressure on the end of the wings and the wings open and show the face of the watch.

An Outing Precaution.

Never go into the woods or out of the way places without being supplied with remedies in case of an emergency. Always take a hot water bottle and a medicine kit, stocked with such simple home remedies as you are accustomed to use.

In addition, there should be whisky, bandages, absorbent cotton, adhesive plasters, quinine, mustard and belladonna plasters and some colic tablets. An ointment to allay stings or itching is also good.

The damage and waste caused by smoke in the larger cities of the United States each year is estimated at $500,000,000 by an official of the Geological Survey, who says his figures are conservative.

READ HIS FACE.

The Youthful Amateurs Were Sure He Was a Philanthropist.

They were youthful enthusiasts in physiognomy. On the seat opposite in the train was a man of commanding figure, massive brow and serious expression. "Splendid face!" one of them explained. "What do you suppose his life work has been?"

"A lawyer?" suggested the other.

"No; there's too much benevolence in that face for a lawyer."

"Maybe a banker?"

"Oh, no! A man with an expression like that couldn't have spent his life in merely turning over money."

"He might be an editor."

"An editor! Cutting and slashing his enemies at every turn and even his friends occasionally for the sake of a smart paragraph? You can't read faces. That man's a philanthropist or engaged in some sort of public spirited work. Why, there isn't a line that doesn't indicate strength of purpose and nobility! Look at that curve there on the left!"

At the next station an old countryman took his seat beside the man with massive brow and soon entered into a conversation with him, in the course of which he asked the latter "what was his line."

The two opposite held their breath in the intensity of their interest.

"Oh, I've got a little tavern and butcher shop back in the country a bit!" was the proud reply. "My wife tends to the meals and I do my own killing."—Youth's Companion.

WOULD YOU BE STYLISH?

Then Carry a Raffia Parasol.

THE NEW SUNSHADE.

Raffia makes our porch cushions this summer and the newest of our parasols, and a pretty, dainty, light kind of sunshade it is, to be sure, one that will stand any amount of wetting. Indeed, the raffia parasols may be carried right into the surf without damaging their beauty or usefulness.

In the illustration the model is in natural colored raffia, and the long fringe is an attractive finish. The handle is of brown wood and elaborately carved. The handle is long, as is the case on all the best parasols of the summer.

To Save Alcott Home.

Efforts are being made to inaugurate a movement for the preservation of the old Alcott homestead in Concord, Mass., where Bronson Alcott lived and died and where Louisa Alcott created the immortal children that run through the pages of "Little Men" and "Little Women." The place at present is fast falling into hopeless decay, and action must be started soon if it is to be preserved at all. "Perhaps if Miss Alcott had been dead two centuries instead of only about thirty years her former home would not be in such a dangerous plight as it is in today," said a New York woman who is trying to interest others in its preservation. "But by and by Miss Alcott will have been dead 200 years, and if Orchard House is not saved now American soil in future generations will be the poorer for our neglect. We never shall raise a harvest of ancient association for our land unless we take care of the associations while they still are comparatively modern."

Useful Trifles.

A small brush, such as is used in a mucilage bottle, is just the thing to remove caked salt from shakers or to keep the lips of pepper shakers clean.

If you use glass jars for storage purposes and cannot insure careful handling it is well to protect the edge with pasted strips of adhesive plaster unless you do not object to chips of glass in your food.

Gardening For Nervousness.

Gardening as a curative pastime is the newest idea introduced by the head of a fashionable sanitarium for nervous women, and each patient has her particular plot to look after. She is even given the task of spading up the ground and is expected to spend a certain amount of time daily cultivating it regardless of the weather. On clear days after the garden hour, the entire force of fair women is supposed to turn to and rake and burn leaves and fagots and play they are amateur farmers. The benefit that the out of doors life and interest do to the nerves is incalculable, and the novelty of it makes it something to be looked forward to.

A Dainty Fragrance.

To impart the delicate fragrance of any flower to one's letters the oil of any desired flower can be added to the writing fluid. Scent the blotter and place it with the letter paper, but do not put flower oil or perfume upon the paper. Motive In Decorations

The primary motive in Wall Covering is not merely to "ornament" the room as pictures would but to MAKE THE WALLS DISAPPEAR, to help us forget their BOUNDARY.

This motive is clear enough in the splendid Tapestries of early date, probably the first and finest Wall Coverings ever used. The subjects and colorings of these Tapestries show that they were designed to carry the imagination beyond the prison-like stone walls into the freedom, light and color of the great outdoors.

THE DESIGNS, COLORINGS and quality of our papers carry a guarantee of work that is backed by reputable experance and present efficiency that keeps our papers ALWAYS IN THE LEAD for decorative salability.

The Bay of Quinte Gave up its Dead

BODY OF JONATHAN FERGUSON AN AGED MAN, FLOATING NEAR THE BAY BRIDGE THIS MORNING — IDENTIFIED AND TAKEN TO TICKELL'S.

While a young man named Clarke and another party were out boating near the bay bridge this morning they saw the body of a man floating in the water not far from the northeast corner of the bridge.

The police were notified about 10 o'clock, and Sergt. Naphin and Boatman Barnard went out and brought the body in. A morbid crowd viewed the gruesome incident.

The body was that of an aged man apparently, dressed in overalls, with coarse shoes. The hands were as white as chalk, apparently from long exposure to the water, and the dead man was quite bald.

Police Sergt. Harman drew a pocket book from the hip pocket of the dead man's overalls. In it were a few $1 bills and a $2; also a return ticket from Belleville to Hastings; also a receipt for a $1 fine, paid to the Chief of Police here on August 17.

The police records show that on April 5 last one Jonathan Ferguson was arrested for drunkenness. On the 6th of April he was discharged. He was classed as a Protestant, a laborer and 72 years of age.

The body was taken to Tickell's undertaking rooms.

It seems that the dead man, after being arrested for drunkenness on April 5, was let go without a fine. On Wednesday last, August 17, he came to the police station and insisted on paying $1 as a fine. He was told he had not been fined. "Never mind," he said, "the boys treated me so decent when I was locked up in April that I want to pay a $1 fine."

So he was accommodated. Hence the receipt. Deceased's home was in Hastings, but he is said to have a sister living in or near this city.

An inquest will be held in a day or two.

Police Notes.

A Hungarian with a name like a gypsy fiddler got juiced up on Saturday, and the police got a strangle hold on him. This morning he was let go after the Magistrate had told him to find out the Hungarian for water wagon and then climb aboard.

David Jones, a stranger, was singing in Welsh, when a policeman got his eagle eye on him. The songs of David were too much for the cop and he put Jonesie in cold storage. The 20 cents found on him were placed in the police vault. This morning the filthy lucre was returned to Jones and he was ordered to beat it for the city limits. If the police nail him again his address may be Central Prison.

A young fellow had to loosen up on $2. He was riding his bicycle on the sidewalk and was spotted. Riding on the walks is sometimes nearly as expensive as aviation.

Mr. George Bennett reported to the police that a disturbance was being created near his home on Saturday night. It was as quiet as a Quaker meeting when the officer got there.

It Was a Dog.

Some few days ago Mr. R. Greatrix, who lives near the market, had 30 hens killed one night. Some people said a weasel had done the wholesale slaughtering, but Mr. Greatrix had his doubts. He thought it was a dog. So he kept his weather eye open Last night he heard a commotion in his hen-coop, and upon investigation he found a big Collie in the coop. The canine was just getting busy, evidently intending to finish the rest of Mr. Greatrix's feathered family. The murdering animal was ejected in a hurry, and now his owner may have to pay damages.

A Watch Stolen.

Mrs. Geo. Gunn, of Bayside, reports to the police that, while she was on the Aletha, going to Napanee last Saturday afternoon, somebody stole her silver watch. She alleges that she knows the thief, and prosecution may follow.

One of the Good Old Stock Has Gone

WILLIAM BLEECKER, GRANDSON OF BELLEVILLE'S FIRST SETTLER, DIED AT AGE OF EIGHTY SEVEN.

One of the "good old stock" passed away on Saturday last, in the person of Mr. William Bleecker, who was a grandson of Mr. Captain Meyers, that sturdy old gentleman having been Belleville's first settler. Belleville's first name, as most people know, was "Meyers' Creek." The late Mr. Bleecker was also a grandson of Squire Bleecker, who was the first magistrate in Ontario, and who celebrated the first marriage between white people in Ontario, the event taking place in Port Hope.

Surely, in the death of William Bleecker, a link with the past has gone.

The late Mr. Bleecker was born in Belleville 87 years ago, and lived here all his life. He was twice married First to Miss Janet Sierichs, who went to her reward, next to Miss Sarah Stewart, who, with five sons and one daughter, survives.

The deceased genteman was one of the original Trustee Board of Bleecker Ave. Methodist church, and was for many years a member of the Trustee Board of Bridge st. church. The records show that he was a member of the Bridge st. Sunday school in 1831.

The late Mr. Bleecker came of a family of lumbermen. He owned timber limits and built Bleecker's mill which many will remember in this city.

Of late Mr. Bleecker had been deeply interested in Salvation Army work and was instrumental in having the S A. Barracks on Pinnacle street built.

He was a grand old man, whose name will long be remembered in this his native city.

The surviving relatives, besides the widow, are five sons, as follows: Henry, of Los Angeles; Tobias, of South Boston, Va.; Frederick, of Elzevir; Donald G., William and Benjamin, of this city and one daughter Miss Ella T., also of Belleville.

Alleged Assault.

Garnet Wilson and Charles Cress, two young men of this city, told the police that they were coming into this city, from the direction of Point Ann, when an autoist who was going about 40 miles an hour passed them They say that he passed them, turned round, came back and proceeded to assault them. They have bruises and other souvenirs to show as proof. It is likely that a police court case may arise out of the incident.

Fine Bass Catches.

Some fine catches of bass are reported these days. Up the bay it is said that they are being yanked out in large numbers. A party of U. S visitors collected 21 beauties recently, and sent the best of them to friends in Buffalo. All were fine fish and one was a "peach."

More Trouble for G. T. R. Strikers.

Toronto, August 20.—A new feature developed today between the Grand Trunk Railway officials and their old employees. All men applying for positions must pass a written examination regarding the rules of the road. In the past this only applied to new men who never had any railroad experience.

"When the settlement was made," said one of the men, "it was understood that all the old men would be taken back regardless of the rules applying to applicants for positions.

"It is not that the men object to writing the rules, but they feel it is only done to harass them in making their application, to find some excuse not to engage them. There are brakemen and yardmen in the service of the company who cannot write, but who know more about running trains than the best educated men in the service."

"It would be better," said one of those seeking reinstatement, "that they would come right out and say, 'We don't want you.' Then we might look for something else to do."

Straight Denial From Sir Henry.

NO TRUTH IN STORIES ABOUT QUEEN'S OWN.

Quebec, August 20.—Col. Sir Henry Fellatt yesterday issued an unqualified denial of the statements made in New York and Montreal papers to the effect that he had made a boast that when in England the Queen's Own would "knock the tar out of any regiment at Aldershot."

Another statement was that Sir Henry Pellatt had a bet placed of $250,000 that the Queen's Own Rifles would excel in every respect all the English regiments.

"There is not a word of truth in these reports," he said.

EXCITEMENT IN CHURCH.

WOMAN'S QUESTION TO CLERGYMAN CAUSED PAINFUL COMMOTION.

Sherbrooke, Que., Aug. 19.—Considerable excitement was caused at St. Peter's church Sunday morning. The clergyman, Rev. H. C. Burt, of Bishop's College, Lennoxville, was in the course of his sermon defining Christianity?" when a woman, evidently a stranger, sprang to her feet, and said, "Why don't you preach it?"

The cry was heard throughout the church, which was well filled. After crying out the same thing several times, she was removed from the church by several companions. Owing to the interruption created among the congregation it was impossible to proceed with the service, and the balance of the sermon had to be emitted. A hymn was announced and the service was brought to a close.

ANGLERS' FLIES.

The Earth Ransacked For Feathers and Hairs to Make Them.

There are trout and salmon fishers who pay several thousand dollars a year for the "flies" alone. Few persons can learn to tie artificial flies—knotting hairs that can hardly be seen—so the skilled fly maker commands high wages. The materials, too, are costly, for the earth is ransacked for feathers and hairs, and one hair wrong makes "all the difference."

The business done in mouse whiskers is considerable, for they are used in the making of a wonderful fly, the "gray knat," and they are expensive, costing nearly 2 cents a whisker. Trout rise much better at mouse whisker flies than at the same "gnat" dressed in junglecock hackles, which look much like them.

Bears' eyebrows, being stiff and exactly the right shade, are used in a fly that has killed quantities of salmon. These eyebrows come from the Himalayan brown bear and cost about $1.50 a set.

There are agents all over the world searching tropical forests for the right birds to supply fly hackles. One of the most sought after skins is that of the rare "green screamer," an African bird about the size of a hen, which has a tiny bunch of feathers on each shoulder that is worth $15 a bunch to the fly maker. One of these birds supplies only feathers enough to make rings for half a dozen flies.

There is no limit to the enthusiasm of an artistic fly tier, who will use hair from his own eyelashes to finish off an "extra special" fly. Babies' hair is much sought after if it is of the right shade—golden yellow—for all the lighter salmon flies, and one curl will make a dozen first class flies.

It takes an expert only fifteen minutes to turn out a fly which consists of a tiny hook with wings of Egyptian dove feather, legs of fox hair and a body of mease fur wound around with a thread of yellow silk.

THIRTEEN ARE DEAD.

Forest Fires Cause Huge Damage In Idaho and Montana.

Missoula, Mont., Aug. 22.—Thirteen lives were lost when forest fires spread to the Town of Wallace, Idaho, Saturday night. The property loss is placed at $1,000,000.

The east half of the town has been destroyed, but the flames are believed to be under control.

Elsewhere in the fire zone the situation has gone from bad to worse.

The most serious incident was reported late yesterday afternoon from St. Coe country, where 180 men engaged in the forestry service, are missing, and it is feared they have been burned to death.

When the fire approached the camp, where there were 200 men, two of the fighters took a horse, and riding the animal to death, reached another camp and organized a rescue party, which penetrated the fire at Brid Creek.

Eighteen of the men were found in the water, where they had gone for safety. They were unharmed. Of the remaining 180 no word has been received.

Merciless and relentlessly the forest fires in western Montana and Idaho are sweeping over a vast area, driving hundreds of fugitives before them, destroying small settlements and wiping out of existence millions of dollars' worth of property.

Communication with Wallace to the west has been possible at intervals to-day, but eastward it is entirely cut off. It is known that the entire east half of the town above Seventh street has been burned. West of that a hard fight is being made, and with an improvement in the water supply there is more chance that the flames may be driven back.

Early Saturday evening the mayor of Wallace ordered the chief of police to impress into service every able-bodied man in this city to fight forest fires. Some refused, and were either jailed or run out of town.

Union Basis Approved.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 22.—No session of the Methodist Conference was held Saturday. During the forenoon and evening the committees continued their work. Delegates took the afternoon for recreation and sight-seeing. Several rinks of members of the conference, under the direction of W. A. Briggs, Toronto, played with local bowlers on the club grounds. The committee on Church Union has given eight whole sessions to the consideration of the basis of union, and the opponents of the scheme have had every opportunity of stating their objections. When a vote was taken the basis was approved, only six members out of fifty opposing. When the report is presented to the conference it will doubtless be approved by a large majority.

MOIR IS RECAPTURED

Escaped Patient at Hamilton Asylum Working on Farm.

London Murderer Is Back In His Cell and Two Attendants Have Been Placed Under Arrest on a Charge of Assisting Him — Taggart Is Still at Liberty—Guards Are Accused of Furnishing Moir With Keys.

Hamilton, Aug. 22.—Moir, the insane murderer, who escaped from the Hamilton Asylum last Monday morning, is again in his little room in the east building.

Two attendants, Fred McCullough and Monteith Trapnell, have been placed under arrest and will be charged to-day with aiding and abetting in his escape.

Moir was brought from Niagara Falls, where he was caught Saturday. Even when securely manacled, with his hands behind his back, he still had the power to give his keepers a shock. Yesterday morning, he was found with his hands in front of him, and gave as an excuse for his contortionist stunt, the fact that he could not sleep the way he had been left.

Moir's room will be materially strengthened. The window will be bricked up to within eighteen inches of the ceiling, and the aperture will be covered by a thick wire net, so that no missives can be passed in or out. The iron bar of the transom, through which he crawled, will be set in solid lead.

Taggart is still at liberty, but Dr English is authority for the assertion that his capture is expected daily.

Moir told the detectives on the way up from the Falls that he received assistance from friends he met in the London jail. He denied that an auto had waited for him.

Though Moir refuses to incriminate anybody who helped him, the asylum authorities have conclusive evidence that an auto left the grounds of the institution on Monday morning last, about the time the two maniacs made their escape. Moir said that he had $5 when he recovered his liberty, half of which he gave to Taggart. He explains this friendship for Taggart by saying that he received letters through him when the asylum authorities forbade people writing to himself.

The arrest of McCullough and Trapnell was affected by the city police. Trapnell was suspected of complicity with the breakaway since Monday last by Provincial Detective Miller, and was being watched by the asylum authorities. Last week, the city police received work that McCullough was saying that it was through two master-keys that Moir obtained his liberty, and later a locksmith, it is said, informed them that a man answering to McCullough's description had two duplicate keys made. After McCullough had been arrested by Detectives Bleakley and Coulter, it is understood that be made admissions connecting Trapnell with the manufacture of the keys. On the strength of this, Trapnell was also taken into custody.

Detective Shot by Roughs.

Oyster Bay, N.Y., Aug. 22.—George Gostelli, a New York detective, who was well known for his great strength, was murdered early Saturday. He was killed in a fight with a crowd at the landing of the Seawanhaka Yacht Club's boat house here. Gostelli had been acting as keeper of the boat house during the summer, while he was recuperating from a bullet wound. An attempt was made to assassinate him in New York last spring.

Gostelli had had trouble all summer with a crowd of men who insisted on loitering about the boat house, and a week ago he fought several of them single handed, driving them away. Half a dozen of them went to the boat house Friday night and Gostelli drove them away. They returned, one of them carrying a shotgun. Three shots were fired, two from the detective's revolver and one from the shotgun. Gostelli fell dead.

Gostelli came to America several years ago from Denmark. He said little of his past life. He prized greatly a seal ring on which was a coat of arms. He was believed to have been a member of a noble family.

Boy Drowned at Windsor.

Windsor, Aug. 22.—While Achille Lesperance's attention was called to a large crowd which had gathered at the Walkerville ferry dock Saturday noon, where he was told that a small child had just been drowned, he did not realize that the unfortunate victim was that of his own six-year-old son, Alfred, until the body had been recovered from the water about a half-hour later. The little fellow, with his eight-year-old brother Philip, had been left alone at the family home, 54 Aylmer-avenue, Windsor, while the mother went to the market.

NEXT DOOR TO NEPTUNE.

Where There Are Workshops Under the Sea.

The Whitehaven coal-mine, in which the awful disaster recently occurred, and which runs out for three miles below the Irish Sea, is not by any means the only mine in which men work with thousands of tons of ocean directly over their heads, and within a few yards of them.

Workington, a near neighbor of Whitehaven, used to have one of these submarine mines. But one day the water burst through the roof, and filled the workings, drowning all the men who were unfortunate enough to be there—thirty-six.

The nearness of the sea, indeed, is the chief danger in these mines.

The most famous of all these submarine workshops is situated near Penzance, and is called the Bottallack Mine. The coast is rocky there, and shelves steeply down below the water. In this submerged hill ten galleries were driven at different levels, each stopping only within a few yards of the Atlantic. So thoroughly was the hill honeycombed that the sea began oozing in in all directions. One leak might have been stopped, but as there were hundreds, the mine simply had to be abandoned.

But there was another reason for its abandonment. So thin was the crust that in the storms of winter the stout-hearted miners had often to flee in terror from the thunder above them. Great boulders rolled along the sea-bed, grinding and crashing, and masses of gravel plunged to and fro. In fact, cases of deafness and hysteria were quite common among the men who earned their bread there.

The mine can still be explored by the daring visitor. The Queen Mother and the late King Edward went down some years ago. Even in the calmest weather, however, the ocean can be heard murmuring and rumbling within a few yards of one's head. The galleries run for a third of a mile under the sea.

Within a few miles of the Bottallack copper mine is the Levant Mine, one of the richest mines that have ever been opened in England. Tin and copper have been taken out of it to the value of two millions sterling. And most of this two millions has been taken from under the ocean, for of its forty miles of galleries the greater part lies directly below the sea. The lowest gallery but one runs straight out below the water for a mile.

It was to the Battallack Mine that a distinguished geologist paid a visit a few years ago. Leaving his friends, to whom an official was explaining things, he strolled away a few yards. Noticing something that looked like a plug, he began fingering it.

Suddenly the official rushed across to him, and caught his arm.

"You shouldn't do that, you know," he remarked politely.

"Oh, why not?"

"Well, you see, you were just going to let the Atlantic in!"

The face of the visitor as he withdrew his hand was a study.

At Bo'ness, a port on the south side of the Firth of Forth, coal mines run out below water till they almost meet those on the opposite coast.

Off the County of Durham, too, there are several great submarine coal-mines. There is, for instance, the famous Monk Wearmouth Colliery, whose workings are so vast and so intricate as almost to form a city under the sea. This mine has had the usual difficulty in keeping the water out. In fact, some years ago, the North Sea burst a way into it, and started pouring in at the rate of 3,000 gallons a minute.

A big 200-horse-power pumping engine had to be fixed up to keep the mine dry. Indeed, most submarine workshops find it a costly business to keep the ocean from coming through the roof.

India's New Viceroy.

There were heartburnings in diplomatic circles when, in 1904, Sir Chas. Hardinge — who has been appointed Viceroy of India, in succession to the Earl of Minto—was appointed British Ambassador to St. Petersburg. He was but forty-six years of age at the time. Older men had been passed over, and it was said that he was too young for the post. Just the same thing is being said to-day. Since he entered the Diplomatic Service in 1880, however, Sir Charles has proved his worth. He is the grandson of a former Viceroy, the first Lord Hardinge, who was thanked by Parliament for his services and granted a pension of $15,000 a year for his own life and the lives of two of his successors. In addition, the East India Company gave him a pension of $25,000. Sir Charles is one of the most decorated men in the world, and has had close upon twenty different orders bestowed upon him by British and foreign royalty.

The Mouths [illegible]

The botanist, the real investigator who has got down to making real explorations for himself, will talk to you about the thousands of minute stomates on the surface of a leaf. These invisible stomates are really the mouths through which the leaves take in carbonic acid. They are most abundant on the upper surface of leaves. Each is an oval opening guarded by a pair of lips which open and close according to requirements. They vary from less than 1,000 to more than 20,000 to the square inch of leaf surface.

A Boa of Snakes.

Mr. A. W. Gilbey writes to The Field: "My keeper, walking round the hedgerows lately, saw a hen pheasant sitting on her nest with two common snakes round her neck. He rattled his stick, when both the snakes scuttled off, and he killed them. The pheasant sat quite unconcerned, and never left the nest. The keeper thinks they may have got there for warmth. I have never heard of a similar case."

Kendall Gets Reward.

DECORATIVE HINT.

The Garden Hat Centerpiece Is the Latest.

If you are thinking of giving a luncheon party or a small porch tea and want something smart and new as a centerpiece, why not duplicate the garden hat effect seen in the illustration?

The large straw chapeau is caught up into a jaunty basket shape and tied about with gauze ribbon the shade of your color scheme. Poppies and grasses fill the hat in question.

Tea, chocolate or some kind of fruit punch is usually served at these porch parties, and often all three when the affair is a large one. When a small number of guests are being entertained it is easier to have the tea made in the kitchen and brought in with the tea things.

There are many varieties of sandwiches, but the secret of a delicious sandwich served recently was to be found in the cooking of the ham and in the abundance of the mayonnaise used in mixing. The ham had been boiled until it was brown and then ground very fine and mixed with mayonnaise. Sandwiches spread with quince jelly and sprinkled with minced nuts are very appetizing, and a filling of fig paste sprinkled with ground peanuts is also good.

The Summer Girl.

Checked gingham or linen makes up smartly in the frock illustrated. The double skirt is easily made, and nothing could be simpler than the all in one blouse. The frill about the round neck and down the front are dainty touches.

The Furniture's Summer Clothes.

If your parlor, living room or any of the most used rooms in the house are upholstered in heavy goods, be sure to make or have made summer slips, not only as a protection to the finer goods, but to give a lighter and more summery effect to the rooms.

There are many really pretty cretonnes and other materials which may be used and which will add to rather than detract from the beauty of the rooms. Time was when we thought only the plain linens should be used for this purpose, and the house looked as though it had gone into a sort of mummy-like slumber for the season. But this time is over. We may make the summer clothes of the furniture as bright and pretty as possible and still be in the vogue.

Of course the heavier rugs will be stored away, and if any rugs are used they will be of the cool fiber or "rag" materials, which are so pretty and light looking.

Then the draperies at the windows should be of the plain and cool materials, easily washable and not injured by the summer's dust.

If you have very valuable rugs or hangings it is well to place them in cold storage with some reliable firm during the season dangerous to their safety.

Household Helps.

One of the best things to remove grime from the bathtubs is a cloth moistened with paraffin. Then wash the tub with clear water.

Now that ants are "in season" the housewife should head them off by blowing cayenne pepper into the crevices by which they enter the house.

A good old writer says, "There is just one thing fixed and indispensable in bringing up a child—make him feel that be is loved."

To clean windows first wash well with a clean cloth, then polish with a newspaper which has been rubbed soft between the hands.

A familiar shaving paste own as cream of almonds is made by melting one part of caustic potash into three parts o lard with enough essence of almonds added to give it a flavor.

Probably not one smoker in a hundred who likes the "real American pipe"—the corncob—is aware of the fact that many acres in Ohio, Illinois, Missouri and Nebraska are devoted to raising corn for the especial purpose of producing cobs suitable for fashioning into pipe bowls. The grain itself is marketed, of course, but the cob on which it grows is the real harvest and is cut carefully into proper lengths, smoothed and polished, the soft inner pulp being gouged out by specially constructed machinery. The corncob pipe goes to every country in the world where men smoke and is especially in favor in Australia and New Zealand, where it is regarded as characteristically American, because it suggests the idea of Yankee ingenuity. The brier is the favorite with Englishmen, who are probably the greatest pipe smokers in the world.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Waiting For the Note.

An English churchman tells the following:

"At one of our cathedrals the minor canon was ill and could not sing. A suffragan bishop had a good voice and volunteered to sing the litany. 'Go,' he said to the verger, 'and tell the organist that I will sing the litany and ask him to give me the reciting note.' 'Please, sir,' said the verger to the organist, 'the bishop 'as sent me to you to say he will sing the litany.' 'All right,' said the organist. Seeing the verger remain, he said, 'You need not stay.' 'Please, sir, the bishop asked me to to ask you if you would give him a something—I didn't quite catch—note.' 'You mean the reciting note.' 'That's it, sir; that's it.' Seeing the verger still remaining, he said, 'You need not stay.' To which the verger said, 'Please, sir, shall I take it to his lordship?'"

Heroic Women Saved Elk City, Wash

Intelligencer Special

Spokane, Wash., August 23.—That Elk City is still on the map and out of reach of forest fires is due solely to heroism of the women, who, while the men were fighting the advance of the conflagration, guarded the homes and business houses and extinguished incipient blazes.

But for the women the town would be in ashes.

With the known dead at sixty, two hundred seriously injured and as many more missing, little progress against the forest fires raging throughout Eastern Washington, Idaho, and Western Montana was reported to-day by forest rangers and United States troops.

Besides Wallace and Taft, the towns of Bryson, De Borgia and Vaughan have been wiped out, but other places thought to be doomed may be saved.

The fire-fighters may be able to hold out until rain comes.

The wind is dying down at all points, a report says.

BRITISH MILITARIST WANTS COMPULSORY TRAINING

Intelligencer Special.

London, Eng., August 23.—A British militarist campaign in favor of compulsory training is taking definite shape. The Conservative press generally is pushing it. The London Express urges explicitly "That every male should undergo a minimum of one year's training, subject to physical fitness and conditions, prepared to be extended to two or three more years until a certain standard of efficiency be attained." But there is a proposition to allow exemption on payment of a tax.

GOVERNMENT INQUIRY

Hamilton Asylum Affair Will Be Investigated.

Officials of Another Provincial Institution Are Expected to Be Involved In Escape of Moir and Taggart—Supt. English Says Trapnell Should Not Have Been Arrested So Quickly—Is Taggart Near Brantford.

Hamilton, Aug. 23.—Startling developments, that may incriminate staff members of another provincial institution besides Hamilton asylum are expected to arise out of the investigation which Deputy Provincial Secretary Armstrong intends to prosecute in connection with the escape of murderers Moir and Taggart.

Love letters which Moir received from a woman in London will have an important bearing upon the case in point, and, the escapes from London jail made by "Texas" Birdall, Roberts and Steadman. It is thought that Trapnell, the chief attendant of the east wing of Hamilton Asylum knew of Moir's correspondence with this woman.

At any rate the ease with which Moir and Taggart delivered themselves from the asylum, bears a coincident aspect to the ease with which jail deliveries have been made in London, were Moir was for a time incarcerated, and it is felt that they too should be looked into.

Supt. English, of the asylum, declares that the local police were too hasty in arresting Trapnell, who, he says, would be of more service at this stage as a free man and apparently unsuspected of any knowledge of the inner workings of the Moir escape.

It seems that Trapnell was not under suspicion until McCullough was arrested and implicated his comrade. In the Police Court yesterday morning, McCullough pleaded guilty to abetting the escape. Trapnell pleaded not guilty. Both elected to be tried by the magistrate and will appear again next Monday. The maximum penalty is seven years.

Dr. English said yesterday that hereafter Moir would be treated as the criminal insane are treated in Matteawan, the New York asylum, in which Harry Thaw is incarcerated. This means that the murderer will be placed in a cell and will be virtually a prisoner. He is now locked in such a room, his hands handcuffed in front of him, and the only furniture is the mattress on which he lies when he tires of standing. Since his entry to the asylum two years ago Moir has shown no signs of insanity medical experts declared at London he had. However, if he is not insane now, it is likely he soon will be, for such restraint as he is now under will break the best of men.

It is said there has been no proper night watch in the asylum and that there should be a night watch in the east wing. The attendants appear to have been allowed to carry keys out otherwise duplicates could not have been made, and there is a rule absolutely prohibiting keys being carried out.

One who has been engaged on the investigation, avers that every effort was made in the past of certain attendants to throw the police off the track in giving the description of Moir. Instead of wearing a grey checked suit, as the description called for, Moir wore garments of an entirely different character. He was a taller man, too, than the description which was furnished to Dr. English, and heavier as well.

A despatch from Brantford says that High County Constable Kerr decided yesterday that Taggart spent part of last week in Brant County, and at present is not very far from that city. Constable Mounce, of Onondaga, saw a man corresponding in every detail to Taggart's description on Thursday last. The same man has subsequently been seen in the locality of Cainsville.

Great Welcome for Q.O.R.

London, Aug. 23.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Q.O.R. will get a civic welcome at Aldershot on Saturday. The battalion encamps at Russmoor near the station, where the chairman of the district council will hand an illuminated address to Col Pellatt. Fac similes will be presented to the battalion, and the streets will be decorated.

Shot Three Times.

Fernie, B.C., Aug. 23.—Martin Heller, a lumberjack, entered an hotel at Kragg, 30 miles south of here, with a rifle, looking for the bartender. An altercation arose between the proprietress, Mrs. Palmer, her son William, the bartender, and Hellar, who ended the argument by sending three bullets into Palmer's breast.

Firemen's Dangerous Task.

Essen, Germany, Aug. 23.—The laboratory of the proving grounds of Krupps' works here was blown up by an explosion yesterday.

The powder sheds nearby, containing a great quantity of explosives were barely saved by the quickness of the firemen.

FIRES RAGING IN WEST

Northwestern States Have Lost Fifty Lives Already.

A Hundred More Are Missing and Two Hundred Are Injured In Idaho, Washington and Montana—Three Villages Are Obliterated From the Map—Fire-Fighters Are Helpless to Cope With the Flames.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 23.—With more than 50 persons known to be dead, more than 100 missing, 200 injured, half of Wallace, Idaho, burned and two or three village obliterated, forest fires last night continue to threaten death and destruction over a large territory in Northern Idaho, Eastern Washington and Western Montana.

Half a dozen villages are seriously threatened and their inhabitants are hurrying to places of safety.

Relief trains are helpless in many cases, owing to burned bridges and fires that lap the tracks.

Wallace is now safe and no towns are burning.

The situation is most acute in Northern Idaho. Reports from other parts of the northwest are more encouraging than they were yesterday.

Some of the fires have been controlled, others are less threatening in the absence of wind, while in some places the fire-fighters have diverted the flames from towns that were threatened.

The new fires that have sprung up in the last 24 hours have not proved serious, thus far.

A report that the Colville fire in Eastern Washington had broken out with renewed energy is untrue.

In Eastern Oregon between Baker City and Ladrande are several fires which are doing damage to live timber. There are a few sporadic fires in Western Washington and Oregon, and in Northern California, but they are not yet serious.

Despite the efforts of 750 fire-fighters, among whom are 250 more regular soldiers from American Lake, Wash. who arrived yesterday, none of the fires has been put out. All the men obtained have been drafted into service.

The fires in Southern Oregon in many cases are said to be incendiary. This has been a matter of general gossip in Medford for several days, but it became officially known yesterday through despatches from Washington.

No hope of rain is yet given by the United States Weather Bureau. The prediction of the district forecaster for to-night, is for fair weather throughout Washington, Oregon and Idaho.

Pastor, Needing Money, Steals

Zanesville, Ohio, Aug. 23.—Rev. E. A. Hauberch, pastor of the Miltonsburg (Ohio) Lutheran Evangelical (Ohio) Lutheran Evangelical Church was arrested yesterday charged with the theft of 17 watches and other jewelry, valued at $300, from students of the Eden Theological Seminary at Clayton, Mo., where he was on probation. The pastor said he stole because he needed the money.

Eighteen Farmers Were Fined.

Kingston, Ont., Aug. 23.—G. G. Publow, chief dairy inspector for Eastern Ontario, has been getting after those farmers who tamper with their milk before they take it to the cheese factories. During the past two weeks he has been instrumental in having 18 farmers each fined $40. Three of the farmers live in the district west of Kingston and 15 in the district east of this city.

Borden Well Satisfied.

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 23.—"At Glace Bay, on Saturday evening, said Mr. Borden, "there was a gathering of between 5,000 and 6,000, and I never addressed a more attentive and enthusiastic audience. It was a notable gathering of Conservatives, not only of Glace Bay but from all parts of the County of Cape Breton."

Holsteins for Iowa.

Brockville, Aug. 23.—The fine herds of Holsteins in the Brockville district have been depleted by 61, which have just been purchased by a representative of the Iowana Stock Farm, at Davenport, Iowa, to which place the animals will be shipped to-day. Fancy prices were paid, aggregating it is said over $12,000.

Terribly Burned.

Brockville, Aug. 23.—Samuel Godfrey, a helper in the moulding shop of the James Smart Works, was operating a 1,000-pound ladle, when a spark alighted on his neck. In attempting to relieve himself he dumped the big ladle, the contents of which spilled over his body. He is terribly burned.

Mrs. Geo. H. Perley Dead.

Ottawa, Aug. 23.—A cablegram was received from London yesterday announcing the death there yesterday morning of Mrs. Geo. H. Perley, wife of the M.P. for Argenteuil, Que. Mr. and Mrs. Perley left for the old country six weeks ago. She had been in delicate health.

Sunday School Teacher (finishing the narration)—And that is the story of Jonah and the whale. Johnny—Isn't it strange they knew what a Jonah was that long ago?

CURRENT EVENTS.

In the United States, a person's status is decided on the following questions:

In New England— "What do you know."

In New York— "How much y' got."

In the South — "Who are you?"

In the West— "What can you do."

Ottawa has a new publicity agent from whom much is expected. The duty of a publicity agent for a town is to cry with a loud voice on all possible occasions that such a place exists. The arrangements sometimes attracts attention to the publicity agent

Asiatic cholera, which has been raging in Russia, for months, has broken out in Italy. Italy in these fast steamship days is not far from America. It may be well for the quarantine officials to make ready for possible contingencies. This continent has not yet reached the stage of development in the matter of caring for the public health that permits the adoption of the humane system of taking the sick foreigner ashore and curing him while his fellow voyagers go about their business.

L. R. Keough, of the Ottawa Colfrid Laurier met some lumbermen who wanted more tariff protection for their product, he promised that when the time came for the next revision the Government would try to harmonize all interests and obtain the best possible arrangement for the country. Those western farmers who wanted a free trade tariff and were told by the Prime Minister that he was a free trader have received their first personal lesson on the value of an opportunist's professions.

Mr. Cannon, speaker of the U. S House of Representatives, seems now to be getting into opposition to President Taft as well as into enmity with the insurgents of his party. Republican fortunes in the United States this year are hardly happy. The party house is divided against itself. No one seems capable of bringing harmony where it is much needed; and no one of weight seems to be trying to accomplish the task. The end of such a situation should be fairly sure In the United States, however, the Democrats have a way of undoing their own fortunes that has rarely been equalled in the history of political parties; and they may lose the game again

L. R. cough, of the Ottawa Collegiate Institute staff, has made a discovery of great scientific, and possibly, financial importance. After years of investigation he has succeeded in transmuting copper into iron. This, he claims, has never before been accomplished and demonstrates the fact that the transmutation of elements is possible. He further states that the new element obtained from his experiments with copper answers the tests usually applied to the identifications of iron. In support of his contentions he explains that he is willing at any time to allow competent judges to undertake the work of verifying his results.

At its very introduction into this country, the hobble skirt is attracting certain attention of the men. For instance, a New York observer writes to congratulate the women that they are about to cease their long continued efforts to make themselves appear younger than they really are and that they are going to strive for economy in dress. "Women clad in their new skirt," he says, "look their real age, or even a little past it," while "a garment that can be built with two seams and a puckering string is not to be despised," from the standpoint of family finance. Furthermore, he declares that, in scenic value, the skirt has "all the slow grace of undulation of a Turk's full dress trousers or the hind leg of an elephant."

This is, of course, high praise. Men will be most graceful if their wives are going to own up to their years and cease all effort to look as young as their daughters, they will find no difficulty in expressing their pleasure if the demand for money for gowns is to abate. The more esthetic among them may be somewhat peeved by the inverted clothes bag effect, but the dollars that are to be saved will cover a multitude of such peevish sensations, and all will be well. Bring on the skirt that costs less and does not make a man look like his wife's father. It is a real boon, the first that has come out of the Paris fashion factories for a generation.

Coleman's Flats Beat T. A. S.

Rather a small crowd saw the match between the above teams on the baseball park yesterday afternoon The ginger ale boys got the small end of a 17-4 score. Draycott pitched for the Flats, and when he is at his best no pitcher in this neck of the woods has much on him. The T. A. S. were blanked in every inning but the fifth when, after two men were down, a hot liner went through one of the Flats infielders' legs. For a minute or so the Flas appeared to do the aviation act. By the time they descended to earth four runs had been scored. The Flats team played a good fielding game, and showed that they must be reckoned with before the City league pennant is given out. The teams—

Some Rude Remarks.

Peterboro Examiner: The local T. A. S. had no trouble in disposing of the Belleville T. A. S. in the game at Riverside Park on Saturday the City League champions copping a hollow victory by a score of 9 to 0. Belleville, owing to unexpected complications, were not able to pick a team as expected, and the outfit they sent up looked as if an epidemic of charley horse had set in The fielders covered about as much ground as a five cent piece, and the infield was shaky and decidedly slow In addition, Quinlan was working right, and the cemeteryville clubswingers only landed three little hits getting two in the first and one in the second, after which Quinlan had them crawling on their hands and knees Sis Hopkins, who once upon a time played ball in Lindsay worked on the slab for Belleville and pitched a good game with nine strike outs to his credit, but his support was all to the bad.

The T. A. S. played the snappiest kind of ball. Their only error was a miss of a little roller by Giroux who made up for the slip by doing some of the prettiest fielding of the season. A double play, Giroux to O'Hearne to M. O'Brien killed any chance Belleville had of scoring in the first innings, after they had bunched two hits.

SPORTING NOTES.

Owing to the fact that the Grand Trunk pay car reaches Belleville tomorrow afternoon, August 24th, the game scheduled between Coleman's Flats and Grand Trunks will not be started before four o'clock.

There are still four games to be played in the City League schedule counting to-morrow's game.

At a public meeting held in the Council Chamber at Ottawa last evening, and presided over by Mayor Hopewell, it was unanimously decided to send the Ottawa rowing club eight to Henley next season. It was decided that the collection of $5000 would be necessary, and almost $1000 was raised on the spot, Mr. P. D. Ross, who was elected chairman of the committee, and the Aldermen and civic officials contributing the balance. President "Sandy' Cameron stated that about $4000 would be required to send twelve men including the eight.

Inasmuch as Hugh McIntosh, the Australian sport promoter, was one of the men who backed Johnson to win from Jeffries, it is interesting to note that he finds fault with the conditions and fight put up by the black even though he did finish in front in the Reno festivities. McIntosh thinks that Johnson could have been a great deal better. In the London Sporting Life he is quoted as follows:

Mr. McIntosh was brimful of interesting news when our man found him. He rattled off stories of the ring from Australia and America in a way that kept his interviewer completely absorbed.

"Johnson was not in good condition at Reno," said Mr. McIntosh. "I know Johnson and I know condition when I see it. The day I visited him I saw how hog fat he was and wondered what he had been doing. He was nothing like the man who fought Burns; if he had been the fight would not have lasted half the time. As it was, had Jeffries been anything like his former self, capable of putting up a strong show, Johnson would have lost his right to the title, as he never would have been able to go a distance. I won 500 from Burns on the result, but the bet was made before I saw Jack. Why, two days before the match he ran ten miles What kind of training is that? Jack said to me he wished he had Duke Mulins with him, as he wanted to be as good as he was in Sydney. As it turned, his job was a comparatively easy one and he wasn't breathed much.

Kept Him Singing.

Sergt. Naphin, of the local police force, is quite a wag, and, like every other Irishman, is quick-witted. He was telling a scribe this morning about the hard job he had arresting a Hungarian drunk the other night The Hunk had to be brought a long way, and he wobbled about a lot. To make matters better, he was singing in Hungarian. It was something fierce. The song had a broken-winded phonograph beaten a block. The officer quietly begged the pickled party to push in the stops. He had feelings of his own. Silence reigned, and then the cop made a discovery. When the Hunk quit warbling, he began to get weary in his legs. Unless he were allowed to make a row the officer might have to carry him. So Sergt. Naphin said::

"What was that song you were singing last? That's one of the prettiest things I've heard this side of Shannonville. Sing that again."

And the Hunk raised his voice in "Kosciusko's Lament," in the key of Z. It was torture, but it kept the pickled chap moving. He quit for breath and the foxy sergeant said:

"What was that song you were singing just before that?"

The Hunk drew a couple of long breaths and shattered the air with a few more shouts. Then they arrived at the station. One minute more and somebody would have sent in a riot call.

O, yes, the Sergeant certainly put one over on the guileless Hungarian vocalist.

my lord," said he, "I do not understand exactly how, but I'm sure the woman causes me more annoyance than pleasure. I beg of you relieve me of her."

But Twashtri cried, "Go your way and do your best!"

And the man cried, "I cannot live with her!"

"Neither can you live without her," replied Twashtri.

And the man went sorrowfully away, murmuring: "Woe is me. I can neither live with her nor without her."

The Tree Moved.

M. Thouar during his explorations in South Africa had occasion to apprehend an attack from hostile natives. He kept his men on the watch for six days, though they were worn out with fatigue.

"Once a sentinel slept leaning on his gun," he wrote. "I woke him and warned him that one of the least dangers of such a sleep was that a Toba spy would fall on him and kill him with his own gun. While we talked I observed that a little tree which I had noticed earlier now occupied a different position. I fixed my attention on it and saw that it moved almost perceptibly. I had seen such a phenomenon before. The sentinel and I pretended to sleep. The tree continued to approach. Suddenly I raised my gun and fired. We rushed forward. There lay a Toba wounded in the leg and grasping the branch with which he had disguised himself as a tree."

A Memorable Ride.

The most memorable ride in English history was that of Sir Arthur Owen, which placed the Hanoverian dynasty on the throne of Great Britain. The act of settlement by which in 1701 Parliament elected the house of Hanover to the British throne was passed by only one vote, and this casting vote was given by Sir Arthur Owen, the member of Parliament for Pembrokeshire. He arrived at Westminster,

Crippen's Defence

London, August 22.—From Solicitor Arthur Newton, Attorney for Dr. Crippen, was to-day secured the first outline of the defence. Emotional appeals to jury, such as figure in American Courts, Newton declared, will not be made. From this standpoint the case appears substantially as follows:

Fragments of a human body were dug up in the cellar of the house of Dr. Crippen. The police say the bricks under which these fragments were found had recently been disturbed, but expert evidence will be forthcoming that it is impossible for anyone to determine this point, assuming that bricks had been untouched for as much as a month.

Dr. Pepper, Government analyst, has stated that he has identified the remains as those of a woman, but Dr. Marshall, who conducted the postmortem testified before the coroner that he could not swear as to the question of sex, and it is doubtful if Dr. Pepper's belief can be substantiated under cross-examination.

At any rate it seems certain that the prosecution will fail to make good its claim that fragments were those of a woman who once underwent an operation, overwhelming weight of medical evidence being that it is sheer impossibility to find such traces in remains in the condition of those discovered in the Hill-drop Crescent residence.

The police expect to make much of the fact that Crippen is known to have pawned jewelry belonging to his wife after her disappearance, but the defence Newton says, will show that for years he was constantly pawning and redeeming this jewelry.

As to the significance of Crippen's flight with Miss Leneve, the defence will point out that it was perfectly natural for the doctor, in view of his wife's admitted mysterious disappearance to feel that he was under suspicion, and that it was by no means surprising for him to shrink from police inquiry.

The defence will make the most of the fact that the inspector failed to find enough evidence against Crippen in his first examination of the doctor to warrant an arrest. The finding of human remains and flight of the doctor are the only possible bits of evidence the prosecution has, Newton contends.

Consensus of legal opinion here is that unless the police have a far stronger chain of evidence than has yet been indicated, the court will actually order the release of Crippen. Some criminal lawyers are even betting five to one that Crippen will be acquitted.

Newton will not say who is furnishing the money for Crippen's defence, but he says he is liberally supplied with funds. Crippen is counted fortunate in his selection of Newton, who is generally considered the cleverest criminal lawyer in England.

Goat Ate Bank Note.

A FRENCH JUDGE HAS QUEER PROBLEM TO ANSWER.

Paris, August 19.—The judge of the Vaugirard quarter has been called upon to decide a very curious case.

A few days ago a rich lady living at Etampes, near Paris, came into the city to draw a sum of money from the bank. After she had received payment she walked to the Vaugirard quarter to visit her parents, and, on her way, thinking a mistake had been made, stopped to count the money, which she had placed in a small bag.

During the count she dropped a note for $200, which was carried by the wind. A goatherd, who was passing with a number of shegoats, picked up the note, and was about to give it to the lady who had run towards him, when one of the animals snatched the precious paper from his hand, and before the man could effectively interfere had eaten it.

The lady accused the goatherd of having given the note to the animal, and a policeman who was called took the four-footed thief and the goatherd before the commissary of police. The magistrate found himself in a difficulty, for as he pointed out he had no gaol in which to keep the animal.

To prove his honesty the goatherd offered to sacrifice the offending goat, and the animal was taken to the Vaugirard abattoir and killed. The banknote was found in bits, but as the number is still decipherable the lady will be able to recover the money.

The goatherd, having demonstrated his honesty, demanded that the lady should pay for the goat. This she refused to do, and the man has applied to the judge to settle the question.

Dentist Kissed Her.

YOUNG WIFE INDIGNANTLY DENIED THAT SHE WAS UNDER INFLUENCE OF GAS.

Baltimore, August 20.—"I went to his office to have my teeth fixed, Judge, and —would you believe it?—he hugged and kissed me!"

Mrs. Wilhelmina Loney, a pretty young woman, who lives at 155 Cleveland street stood before the rail of justice at the Western Police Station and filed the accusation against Dr. Walter R. Merriam, aged 34, a dentist residing at 665 Columbia avenue. At Mrs. Loney's side stood her husband, fully as indignant as she. At Dr. Merriam's side stood his wife, fully as indignant as he.

"It happened on July 26," said the indignant Mrs. Loney. "I went to have my teeth fixed. The doctor did some fixing and then he called me "sweetheart." Then he kissed me. I pushed him away, but he caught me about the waist and hugged and kissed me again. My hair got all mussed up and I started to scream, but he told me I would alarm the neighborhood and so I didn't for I didn't want to make a rumpus.

"He told me if my teeth hurt me to come back in two days. I wanted my mother to go with me but she was sick so I had to go back alone. On this visit he kissed me again. I told him that his wife would hear him, but he said his wife was down town.

"I told my husband about it and he got real mad. He wanted me to have the doctor arrested, but I didn't want the notoriety and be put to all the trouble. But my husband worried about it until I was afraid he would get sick. He said every time he passed that doctor's house he had a hard time to keep himself from doing something desperate. So at last to satisfy him and relieve his mind I got the warrant."

Ex-Congressman Wolf, counsel for Dr. Merriam, and who was as indignant as anybody else, attempted to make Mrs. Loney admit that she might have been mistaken about the kissing while she was laboring under the pain of having her teeth fixed, but the woman refused to concede that by any possible chance she was mistaken.

The West is Mutinous.

All accounts bear out the impression that Sir Wilfrid Laurier's reception in the West has been of a character to arouse in him lively apprehensions as to the future. It is not likely that the Premier cares very much about the actual exposure of his trickery on the tariff issue; he is a hardened sinner in the matter of promising anything to anybody and everything to everybody, and a little matter like being caught has ceased to embarrass him. What really matters is the fact that the electorate has ceased to treat him respectfully; that it has broken loose from control.

For a good many years Sir Wilfrid has been treated with positive adulation. His political opponents have treated him with a politeness which the Liberals never showed to Sir John Macdonald; his followers bowed to the earth before him. When he undertook the Western tour the most careful preparations were made to ensure him the clamorous reception to which he has grown accustomed. But the plans went wrong. The West, particularly the Western Liberals of the older school, refused to treat him with veneration and instead met him with a blunt charge of having betrayed his party's policy. Time and again he was informed in plain English and in the straightest way that he has broken his promises. He was openly told that the Westerners did not believe his promises about the Hudson Bay Railway because they had seen so many of his promises broken. The platform of 1893 was shaken under his nose by old Liberals—that was the part that hurt —and it was asked why he failed to carry it out?

One incident is typical. Let the Neepawa Register speak:

"Twelve farmers, all members of the party led by Laurier, spoke in turn, each dealing with a different topic and denouncing the Premier for betrayal of the promises upon which they had supported him and urged his return to power; they showed him where he failed in the greatest chance ever placed in the hands of a Canadian to make history that would redound to his credit. The event was the turning point in Canadian politics in more than one respect. It indicated that not even such means as held the West for Laurier heretofore can hold it again; perhaps it indicated even more—that the day of mealy-mouthed kow-towing to power unscrupulously obtained is past."

It all means that the West has turned against Laurier.

Were Forty Years Under a Glacier

London, Aug. 19.—Early next month the village of Chamonix, lying among the foothills of Mont Blanc, is expected to witness the final act in an Alpine tragedy, which forty years ago thrilled not only the old world, but the new.

Three tourists and eight guides were overcome by the cold and suffered a slow and agonizing death near the summit of Mont Blanc, on September 7, 1870.

One of the victims was Mr. John C. Randall, treasurer of a savings bank at Quincy, Massachusetts, whose life ambition was to climb Mont Blanc. He did it, and death was the price.

Mr. Randall's body has lain for forty years within the great Bossons glacier, a coffin of ice, progressing inch by inch downwords a few hundred feet every year. About him are the bodies of five of the guides.

The bodies of the two other tourists —Dr. James Bean, an American, and Rev. George McCorkindale, a Scottish minister—and three more guides were recovered not many days after the tragedy.

Mr. Randall's widow died nineteen years ago, but Miss Edith Randall, the second child, has been twice in recent years to Switzerland to visit the slow-moving tomb of her father.

the villagers of Chamonix are waiting and watching. First an alpenstock may be recovered, or an axe. Then the thinning ice may reveal the body, which can be released by cutting through the glacier surface.

Pathetic, indeed, is the story of Mr. Randall's visit to the country where he met his death. In his diary, under date May 25, 1870, the day when he left his home in America, appears the following entry:

"To-day I begin the realization of the dream of my whole life. After many misgivings and doubts I decided a few days ago to visit Europe, said goodbye, and kissed my dear wife and babies."

It was on September 6th that Mr. Randall began the ascent of Mont Blanc from the Grand Mulets Inn with Dr. Bean, Mr. McCorkindale, and eight guides. The weather was bad and the wind frightful.

People in the Chamonix valley, recognizing the danger endeavored to watch the progress of the party through telescopes. Early in the afternoon the climbers were seen through a rift in a swirling snowstorm, throwing themselves down from time to time to prevent being swept away by the force of the gale.

With the exception of one more glimpse nothing more was seen of the summit of Mont Blanc for eight days. No one returned and the people of Chamonix knew a disaster must have overtaken the party.

On the 16th a search party of twenty-three men set out from Chamonix, and the following day the bodies of Mr. McCorkindale, and two of the guides were discovered about 750 feet from the summit. Three hundred feet higher Dr. Bean and another guide were found, sitting, the former with his head supported by one hand and the elbow on a knapsack. A thorough search was made by twenty-four additional guides, but not a trace of the rest of the party could be found.

The bodies which had been found were brought down to Chamonix, and after a service in the village church were buried in the graveyard.

A note book was found in Dr. Bean's pocket, in which appeared the following pencilled message to his wife:

My Dear Hessie.—We have been on Mont Blanc for two days in a terrible snowstorm. We have lost our way, and are in a hole scooped out of the snow at a height of 15,000 feet. I have no hope of descending. We have no food; my feet are already frozen, and I am exhausted. I have only strength to write a few words. I die in the faith of Jesus Christ, with affectionate thoughts of my family. My remembrance to all.

BASEBALL SCIENCE.

The Use of Signals and the Efficacy of Team Work.

Writing on the efficacy of team work and signals in baseball, Hugh S. Fullerton in the American Magazine says:

"Now watch this play closely. See whether or not you can discover what is going on. Pat Moran stoops behind the batter and hides his right hand back of his mitt. Ed Reulbach, pitcher, shakes his head affirmatively. Johnny Evers stoops, pats his hand in the dust, touches it to his knee and rests it upon his hip. Jimmy Sheckard trots twenty feet across left field, angling in toward the diamond. Steinfeldt creeps slowly to his left, Tinker moves toward second base, and Evers takes four or five steps back and edges toward Chance, who has backed up five feet. Reulbach pitches a fast ball high and on the out corner of the plate. Mike Mitchell hits it. The crowd yells in sudden apprehension. The ball seems a sure hit, going fast toward right field. Evers runs easily over, stops the ball, tosses it to Chance, and Mitchell is out.

"Now, this is what happened: When Moran knelt down he put the index finger of his right hand straight down, then held it horizontally on the top of his mitt. Evers saw that Moran had signaled Reulbach to pitch a fast ball high and outside the plate. He rubbed his hand in the dirt, signaling Tinker, who patted his right hand upon his glove, replying he understood. Then Evers rested his hand upon his hip, signaling Sheckard, the outfield captain, what ball was to be pitched. Sheckard crept toward the spot where Mitchell would hit that kind of a ball ninety-five out of a hundred times. While Reulbach was 'winding up,' swinging his arm to throw the ball, Evers called sharply to Chance (whose good ear is toward him), and Tinker called to Steinfeldt. While Reulbach's arm was swinging every man in the team was moving automatically toward right field, in full motion before Mitchell hit the ball. The gaps at first base, between first base and second, over second base and between third and short were closed hermetically, while the gap between Steinfeldt and the third base line was opened up twenty-two feet. The ball if hit on the ground had no place to go except into some infielder's hands unless Reulbach blundered and Mitchell 'pulled' the ball down the third base gap. Every man on the team knew if Reulbach pitched high, fast and outside Mitchell would hit toward right field. The only chance Mitchell had to hit safe was to drive the ball over the heads of the outfielders or hit it on a line over seven feet and less than fifteen feet above the ground. If Reulbach had been ordered to pitch low and over the plate or low and inside or a slow ball the team would have shifted exactly in the opposite way."

IT DIDN'T CURE HIM.

Why One Man Has a Distinct Dislike For Buttermilk.

"When I was a youngster," said a state official the other day, "I was poisoned by an ivy vine. My nose got very red and swelled up twice its natural size. The infection spread to my cheeks, and they were all covered with blotches.

"I was told to use buttermilk. I bought a gallon and drank it. I bought another gallon the next day and got outside of that. In fact, I drank so much buttermilk that the price went up about 15 cents a gallon in that community within a very few days. But the poisoning was not getting any better. It was not improving one bit, and I couldn't understand it.

"I told the people who had recommended the buttermilk that it was not helping me. 'Why, I bet I have swallowed a barrel of buttermilk within the past week,' I told them.

"'You drank it?' they shouted back at me.

"'Of course,' I replied. 'What did you expect me to do with it?'

"'Why, we meant for you to bathe your face with buttermilk, not drink it,' was the answer.

"I pretty nearly collapsed. To this day I can't look buttermilk in the face."—Kansas City Journal.

You are only eye-wise when you buy a metal bed. You see but the externals; and you cannot know if the real quality is there. We make it needless that you should see more than this "Ideal" trademark on the footrail. That makes it sure you are buying wisely. For this is the trademark forty inspections made certain the bed might fitly bear.

Forty inspections—to make certain an Ideal-trademarked bed will not rattle; will not wobble; will not fail to stand hard, long service. "Ideal" Metal Beds are made — not merely marketed. Study that idea.

Yes, they may cost a little more—a very little more. But you would not weigh that little against the satisfying knowledge that your "Ideal" Metal Bed is the best bed value you could have bought.

That is true whether you pay three dollars or much more than that. For you buy the same quality in every "Ideal" Metal Bed, whatever its price. Read "The Philosophy of Sleep" —an interesting little book we'd like to send you—free. Ask for Booklet No 109

Who Pays for the Advertising ?

Wouldn't you prefer if you had a clothing store to sell a hundred suits of clothes in a day making an average profit of $2.00 per suit, to selling ten suits in a day, with an average profit of $5.00 per suit?

Suppose that, to sell the hundred suits a day you should spend, say $20.00 per day in advertising.

Who would be "taxed" for the advertising? Your patrons? Scarcely—when they pay you $3.00 less than they would have to pay for the identical suits to the merchant who does NOT advertise.

You? Scarcely—when you make a great deal more money than you would if you "saved" your advertising appropriation.

Your non-advertising competitor—in the penalty he pays for not doing so large a volume of business as he COULD do by advertising, and taking a smaller per-sale profit?

That's it—precisely!

The ...Veiled Lady...

"I've no home now; I'm a wanderer," said Seaton bitterly, walking to the window; "that is, I travel a great deal! I can't stand Virginia, now," he added, returning.

"Well, you shall see Kentucky. I will have no denial," Gordon kindly replied. "I'll make Maxwel bring you over. I'm going to New York for a class frolic! If you go out with Maxwell I'll capture you, and treat you far better than grim old Jack Moseby did me."

In an hour the room was silent. Light-hearted Jack Gordon's pillow was haunted by Miss Nellie's dancing dark eyes long before Maxwell returned from his walk, escorting the now composed Seaton to his hotel. The noisy throng of graduates would leave at daylight. Gordon, last on duty, could not leave till noon. It suited Maxwell's mood to go direct to the modest western home where his own dear ones waited his coming. Slowly pacing back over the plain, Maxwell's mind lingered over poor Seaton's strange story. "This girl must be traced," he ruminated. "Yet Fate fights against Beverly. Three years of unbroken silence points to something far graver than a romantic girl's escapade. The very identity of his sister grows dimmer every day.

"Beverly's uncertain fate, and the pillage of Seaton Hall, all conspired to deepen this mystery. Ready money, the poor girl had not. Her father's estate was still unsettled; her half was left untouched! Poor Beverly," Maxwell mused, "the law will surely drag out this disgrace. The necessity of finally admitting her disappearance, and the ominous words of her Cassandra-like letter haunted him. She evidently was persuaded that Beverly, (if alive,) would receive the letter at Baltimore. And she did not really know his whereabouts? Was it, after all, only a romantic freak, a self-immolation; or the work of a disordered mind, due to sorrow and war's alarms? Did she seek some lover, a maddened victim; fly from a traitor at home; or avoid some stranger enemy? If I knew aught of her inner self, I might conjecture," he thought; "yet even Beverly is in the dark." Lifting his proud young head, Maxwell's gaze sought the shining stars. They answered not! "God keep my poor friend," he devoutly prayed.

Crossing the threshold of the now silent barracks, (his four years' home) Maxwell sought his pillow. Uneasy dreams haunted him. Again he lived over those weary cadet years. Camp and barracks; furlough and examinations; wild cavalry dashes on the plain; rattling artillery drills; the plunging battery horses on the dead run; the dreary winter months of toil over recondite books,—strolls by the sculptured shores of the fair Hudson; and the few bits of brightness of past days. The dim future unrolled itself before him,—strange lands,—new faces,—wild imaginings. In all these scenes, Beatrice Seaton, a shadowy veiled face, hovered near him, whispering passionate words: "I seek only vengeance."

Rattling drums and shrieking fifes awoke him to his last cadet reveille. In two hours, with shouts and frantic handshakings, the "class" was gone. Guard mount over,—Vinton Maxwell, sword in hand, saluted the cadet comrades for the last time. With the cheers of his friends ringing in his ears, he sought the ferry. Silent Beverly Seaton (now leaning on him in brotherly confidence), retook his almost hopeless quest and, together, the friends sped way on the Cincinnati train. The Gray and Blue were now sworn allies in the cause of lost Beatrice Seaton!

CHAPTER II.

Maxwell quietly watched Seaton in their Pullman drawing-room. "Before we reach Cincinnati," he mused, "I will get the broken thread of this sad history all gathered up." Flying along the grand Hudson, the happy Lieutenant enjoyed his regained personal freedom. Seaton seemed composed, even cheerful, as if one faithful friend gave him renewed courage to face the future. When well under way,—as Beverly was expectant—Maxwell calmly said:

"Now, Seaton, tell me more of your lost sister! Her appearance, habits and her development under the strain of war's excitement, and the pressure of loneliness. Describe her face, the missing picture, and your scanty home correspondence."

The lonely southerner covered his eyes, as if to call back the lost Heiress of Seaton Hall. "Her figure was of exquisite symmetry," he slowly said. "Her complexion showed the bloom of the Shenandoah roses, added to the old strain of English ancestry. Her eyes, dark and melting, were a legacy from beautiful Virginie de Launay, whom my grandfather brought home from Paris, (a dainty bride,) after his service with our Revolutionary Embassy. Mentally, Beatrice mingled, in her varying moods, the haughtiness of my father,—whose iron will bore all before him,—with the passionate love of music and the arts, the romance and witchery of our graceful ancestress; whose stolen picture, I suppose, now ornaments some northern raider's home!" He paused; with a bitter sneer in his broken voice: "She grasped knowledge with marvellous ease,—all things yielded to her audacious attack. Reared without playmates of her own sex, she shared my rides, and, even as a girl, was a daring horsewoman. Her very soul was thrilled by music. Her grace in dancing, enthralled the cavaliers of the Valley. At fifteen she presided like a queen over the banquets where Stuart and Ashby pledged the 'Stars and Bars' at Seaton Hall. At the head of the table, with a few of her mother's jewels, worn in honor of the flower of Virginia's chivalry, her golden hair and wistful dark eyes made her a rare picture as she touched lightly the wineglass to welcome,—at her father's bidding,—the bold riders of Lee's proud legions! Her voice was of matchless sweetness and power. This I learned from my delighted father's letters. She was his idol. When I left home she was only a budding child! Her frank affections were untroubled by the storms of womanhood. I only recall her as being of rarest promise; like Walter Savage Landor's lamented beauty, of whom he sang in deathless words:

"'Ah, what avails the sceptred race?
Ah, what the form divine?
What every virtue, every grace?
Rose Aylmer, all were thine.

"'Rose Aylmer, whom these wakeful eyes
May weep, but never see,
A night of memories and of sighs
I consecrate to thee.'

"An intense rebel feeling—caught from her stern father—was the only passion of her girlhood. Now, Vinton, I know nothing of social life. I left home a boy, caught in the whirl of the war. I am ignorant of the ways of women. Since this great sorrow, I have avoided the sex; I cannot judge her as a woman. I have told you all. The few letters which reached me evinced passionate moods of joy and despair, as the war varied. Little heart-commune could we have. Her last letter in '64, before my father's death, bewailed his approaching end, and gave me his parting blessing. Ah! one thing! She mentioned that our father had given her all my mother's jewels, which were rare and costly. She had hidden them; alike from Mosby's men, and the raiding Yankees. This one element of wealth was under her control, and (even in distress) would have realized some thousands of dollars.

"The meagre sketch is yours now. Here are the only letters I carried away from my last battlefield! And there, is the fatal Baltimore missive. Read them quietly. I'll go forward and leave you for a few minutes." Beverly was absent ten minutes. Maxwell, trying to solve the mystery—to find a key—some motive—some clue from the well-worn papers, scarcely lifted his head as a good-humored dusky car porter (in Pullman's blue and gold) timidly tapped at the closed compartment door.

"Well?" said the Lieutenant, hastily for the puzzling letters were claiming his every moment.

"Beg pardon, Sah! Am dat genlman in dis hyar stateroom with you from Virginia, from the Shenandoah Valley?"

"Yes! yes!" impatiently answered Maxwell. "Do you know him? He's Mr. Beverly Seaton, of Woodstock."

"Glory! I'se so glad! I was done raised on his own place. I ain't seen young master since he went off fur de wah! An' how's Miss Beatrice? Sah!" the overjoyed negro cried. "He's growed powerful old wid all dat fightin' an' wah."—

Maxwell sharply said: "What's your name?"

"Why! I'se Hannibal,—old Ma'am Aggie's boy! Yes, Sah! Hannibal Seaton. I'se done bawn in slavery, Sah! I'se one of de old Judge's bawn people! I'se gwine to see if Mr. Beverly knows me! How he have grow'd up an' changed! I'se played wid him many a long day!" The happy Atrican hastened to the smoking car.

In a few moments Beverly entered ghastly pale. "Maxwell," said he, "I wish to talk with this boy a little. Will you kindly excuse me?"

As the young soldier left them, he prayed that the seal of the mystery might now be broken. The minutes crawled away, until Hannibal sought the officer. The negro seemed dazed.

"Massa Beverly's compliments, Sah! Will you kindly come in his car?"

Maxwell eyed the porter keenly as he led the way. Crossing from car to car, Hannibal hastily said:

"Massa Maxwell! I'se got to talk to you alone to-night. Come out in the next car, when I'se got you all fixed for de night. I'm a-gwine to live with Mr. Beverly now. But I'se scared to death. I'm afeard there's been strange doings. I can't tell Massa Beverly everything."

"All right! Hannibal!" decisively said Maxwell. Keep silent, until I know all. I'll look out for you. Don't be afraid of me."

The porter was comforted. In brief words, Beverly Seaton, with hopeless eyes, and clouded brow, (when alone with Maxwell,) imparted Hannibal's simple story. His disclosure was meagre. "This boy met my poor sister on the train near Cincinnati, at the time of her sending of the letter. I cannot share with him my griefs and anxieties. I must dissemble now, even to my former slave." Seaton choked down a sob. "She was well, and quietly dressed. He insists that she looked strange to him. You know what thick heads plantation negroes have; he thinks she was searching for me in some northern prison pen, or following up some clue of my fate. His old mother, (the housekeeper) died after he left. He sneaked north to enjoy his new-found freedom. All he seems to know, is gathered from news smuggled over the lines by the 'grape vine' mail line. I'll take this boy in my employ. He maintains that he has not heard from Beatrice since. In his simple way, he offered her his assistance. My sister had money; for she gave him a handsome tip. She declined his services, and taking her baggage at Cincinnati, left in a carriage. I can see tht his curiosity was easily satisfied. My sister was probably searching for me, he thinks. I have parried all his very natural questions!—I shall watch him!—Let your mind also be centred on him!—He seems nervous. Great God! For whom did she search?"

(To be continued.)

REVOLUTION A SUCCESS.

General Estrada Drives Governmen Out of Managua.

New Orleans, Aug. 23.—Confirmation of the reported fall of Managua without resistance, following the entry of the insurgent forces yesterday, were contained in a cable received last night by the acting consul of Madriz at New Orleans. The town was surrendered without any conflict, it was stated.

Managua, Aug. 23.—The advance guard of the revolutionists is now one mile from Managua. President Madriz left the capital Sunday night for Corinto, accompanied by his chief advisers.

Wm. Pittman, the Boston engineer accused of laying mines is free at the American consulate. All the prisoners in the penitentiary have made their escape.

There was rioting Sunday night, but it was quickly quelled.

The situation is critical. Before he departed for Corinto Madriz turned the Presidency over to Jose Dolores Estrada, a brother of Gen. Juan Estrada, the leader of the revolution. Immediately afterwards Jose Estrada issued a proclamation, saying that he would give the office to his brother, and started a peace commission, composed of the foreign consuls for Granada to inform Gen. Etrada of his intention.

The commission was compelled to return to Managua, however, as the railway tracks had been torn up.

Investigate Labor Dispute.

Montreal, Aug. 23.—W. D. Lighthall, K.C., of Montreal, has been selected by the Labor Department as chairman of the board of investigation into the dispute between the shipping federation of Montreal, and the ship laborers of that port. The other members are T. Laueur, secretary of the Builders' Exchange of Montreal, and George Poliquin, secretary of the Ship Laborers' Federation.

Drowns In Three Inches of Water.

Montreal, Aug. 23.—In a tub with but three inches of water, Henrietta Lebail, 17-months-old daughter of Louis Lebail, was discovered at her father's house, 14 Market Square. While she was playing about the house she fell into the tub, and when rescued died in the arms of her mother before her father had returned with a doctor.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—London and Liverpool cables quote American cattle at 12½c to 14¼c per pound, dressed weight; refrigerator beef steady, at 10½c to 11¼c per pound.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 22.—John Rogers & Co., Liverpool, cable that prices were well maintained in the Birkenhead market, and practically everything was sold at Saturday's quotations, which were: States steers, from 13½c to 14¼c; Canadians, from 13½c to 14c, and ranchers, from 11½c to 12c per pound.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, Aug. 22.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 89 carloads, comprising 1821 cattle, 4 hogs, 456 sheep and lambs, and 28 calves.

Exporters.

E. L. Woodward bought 462 cattle for Swift & Company of Chicago: 342 cattle for London, 1275 lbs. average weight, at $6.15 average price, or a range of $5.90 to $6.50; 120 cattle for Liverpool, 1186 lbs. average weight, at $5.80 average price, or a range of $5.65 to $5.90. One bull at $5.25.

Geo. Campbell bought for Morris & Co. of Chicago 125 exporters as follows: Twenty-two cattle for London, 1250 lbs., at $6.25; 23 heifers for London, $5.50 to $6.15, or an average of $5.75; eighty Liverpool cattle, 1200 lbs. each, at $5.65 to $5.90, or an average of $5.75. Last week Mr. Campbell's average for the Liverpool market was $5.65.

Butchers.

Prime picked lots sold at $5.75 to $6 per cwt.; loads of good, $5.25 to $5.50; medium, $4.90 to $5.15; common, $4.50 to $5; cows, $3 to $5 per cwt.

We call attention to prices given in sales of feeders and stockers by the various commission firms, which goes to show that good feeders are in demand.

Milkers and Springers.

Receipts of about 20 milkers and springers, which sold at $40 to $70 each.

Veal Calves.

Receipts light, with prices firm at $3.50 to $7, and a few new milk fed at $8 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Export ewes, light, $4.25 to $4.50; heavy ewes, $2.50 to $4; rams, $3 to $3.25; lambs, $6.50 to $7.10 per cwt.

Hogs.

Packers report selects at $8.40 to drovers f.o.b. cars, and $8.75 for selects fed and watered. No doubt if deliveries of hogs are heavy these quotations will be adhered to, but should there be light receipts last week's end quotations will certainly prevail.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Aug. 22.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards, west end market, the receipts last week were 2300 cattle, 2675 sheep and lambs, 1650 hogs and 500 calves, while offerings this morning amounted to 1250 cattle, 1825 sheep and lambs, 1010 hogs and 250 calves. Altho the supply was much larger than a week ago, a fairly steady feeling prevailed. Offerings consisted largely of northwest ranchers of fair quality, and the demand from butchers was good. Some picked lots of choice steers sold at 6¼c, but the bulk sold at 6c, while good stock brought 5½c to 5¾c; fairly good, at 5c to 5¼c; fair at 4½c to 4¾c, and common at 4c to 4¼c per lb. Hog prices were under a good demand from packers and smaller supplies than were expected. Sales of selected lots were made at $9.25 to $9.50 cwt. weighed off cars. Offerings of sheep and lambs were much larger than usual, but there was an active demand for local consumption and prices show no change. Sheep sold at 3½c to 4c per lb., and lambs at $4.50 to $5.50 each. Calves also met with a ready sale at from $3 to $12 each.

At the Canadian Pacific live stock market receipts last week were 2100 cattle and 74 sheep for export account and 1345 cattle, 1150 sheep and lambs, 855 hogs and 425 calves for local consumption. The supply this morning consisted of 700 cattle, 525 sheep and lambs, 210 hogs and 150 calves.

GOLD OF THE INCAS FOUND.

Bolivia May Become Centre of the World's Supply.

If government reports may be accepted as truthful, all the gold that has been taken out of the fields of California and the Klondike of Alaska will be insignificant compared with the product of the fields of Bolivia in South America within the next few years. The source of the wealth of the ancient Incas has been found in its unexplored interior. More gold is left there than was mined by the old civilized tribe of Indians and which enabled them to offer to Pizarro as a ransom for the Incan King gold to fill a room 22 by 27 feet. The same field were the source of the metal that enabled the Indian tribe to furnish the Temple of the Sun, which Pizarro's followers reported was "literally covered with plates of gold."

The report is made by Alexander Benson, the American secretary of the legation at Bolivia. He says that Bolivia may become the centre of the world's gold supply through the development of these fields by modern machinery. Here and there a shrewd Peruvian has plowed one and been rewarded with riches. The reason why these fields have not been developed has been the immense difficulty in reaching the fields and in transporting any of the products from them. Transportation is difficult in the extreme and the cost enormous. Rough mule trails are the only means of entering this region and the transportation of heavy machinery now is well nigh impossible until passable roads are built. The building of these roads and the other preparations necessary before the gold can be taken out and marketed affords a great opportunity for American capital and enterprise.

The gold is declared to be principally in the forest-clad ravines of the eastern Cordilleras, which culminate in the important River of Kaka. The trails that lead in here and the appearance of the soil show that mining has been carried out to a great extent by old methods, but the gold that could be reached only by modern mining methods is there still. This has been done by private parties that made large fortunes within a few years of working.

In the River of Kaka it is not unusual to wash a pan of surface dirt and find gravel averaging $1 a yard on the surface, which would indicate enormously valuable deposits below. Where the river widens out below Incahuara and the canyons give way to an open country, gravel is deposited in large island and bars. These form a natural gold-saving table for all the gold-bearing flooded rivers that emerge from the richest known part of the Andean mountain chain.

On the River Kaka, where washing tests for gold have been made, there is a very large proportion of black sand, which accompanies the gold in the residues washed. This black sand is very heavy, non-magnetic, and is likely to show under analysis, in addition to a considerable quantity of gold, both tin and platinum.

The Peanut's Perfections.

The man who buys 5 cents' worth of peanuts perhaps doesn't realize that his purchase is helping to build up one of the largest farm products in this country, now worth some $15,000,000 annually. The thin covering is very like wheat bran and is excellent food for live stock when mixed with other things. The shells are burned in the factories as fuel, and the ash is used for fertilizer. The vines make fine forage. Those peanuts that are not sold on the market are ground up into butter and into meal, which is used in the manufacture of confections of various kinds. But oil is the most highly prized by-product of the peanut, of which a bushel will yield about a gallon.—Harper's Weekly.

The Limitations of Science.

Johnny was sent to study mathematics, and the teacher told him that it was a true science.

"For instance," she said, "if it takes one man twelve days to build a house, then twelve men could build it in one day."

Johnny replied: "And 288 men will build it in an hour, 17,280 in a minute, 1,036,800 men will put it up in a second. Now, I don't believe they could build even a single brick in that time. Again, if one ship can cross the Atlantic in twelve days, twelve ships should be able to cross it in one day. I don't believe that either, so I'm not going to study mathematics." And Johnny left the teacher studying it herself.

Children's Answers.

The superintendents of public schools tell many anecdotes of odd answers which have been made by children to the questions of teachers.

One teacher explained to the class in a lower room that an island was "a body entirely surrounded by water." Then she asked one of the little fellows in the class, "Now, Willie, what is an island?" "It's a person in a bathtub, teacher," said the confident Willie.

Another teacher in the physiology class asked the class in general which was the most curious bone in the human body. "Please, ma'am," was the quick reply from a little girl, "it's the wishbone."

Toronto Men In Big Fight.

Toronto furnished more supporters of Jack Johnson and less spectators for the big fight in Reno than any city of a similar size on the continent.

It is a peculiar coincidence that the managers of both principals are Toronto men, viz., Sam Berger, manager of Jeffries, and Tom Flanagan, manager of Johnson. Berger spent his boyhood and attended school in St. Matthew's Ward, while, of course, Flanagan is at present a citizen of that city, with a legion of athletic followers. Johnson's recent frequent visits to Toronto make him popular, regardless of color.

Considerate.

"Have you ever done anything to make the world happier?" asked the solemn looking person with the unbarbered hair.

"Sure," answered the jolly man with the double chin. "I was once invited to sing in public and declined."

A glass bottle may be cut off easily by tying around it a piece of string saturated in kerosene, lighting the string and allowing it to burn until the bottle is heated, then plunging the bottle into cold water.

WANDERLUST.

I hear insistent singing in a corner of my brain.
It must
Be the gust
Of the waking wanderlust.
What glimpses it is bringing of the orient—and Spain!
I scan
Quaint Japan
And bejeweled Hindustan.
I sway to rhythmic measures of a melody unknown.
"Why thrall,"
Is its call,
"To one land, O lord of all?
You, who yet are straight and strong.
Foot the highway! Life's not long!
Throw away your shriveled crust!
Waken!" sings the wanderlust.

"See where waters lap the sky,
Slave of poisoned city dust?
Far beyond is bright romance
Where the languid houris sigh.
Spurn the job and lose the chance!
Would you rot?
Would you rust?
Chained and cobwebbed would you die?
Waken!" sings the wanderlust.

"Oh, the breakers now are pounding on a Polynesian shore
To the rip
Of a ship
Throttled in the tempest's grip,
And the booming conch is sounding in the temples of Lahore,
And the lead
Bloody red
Stretches desert bandits dead.
And the slender palms are sighing by a sea of rippled gold
Where guitars
Lift the bars
Of a love song to the stars.
Out—oh, you yet are hale!
Out—to battle with the gale!
Out—to parry foeman's thrust!
Waken!" sings the wanderlust.

See where scarlet sinks the sun,
Slave of poisoned city dust?
Far beyond is where there's life,
Where the reckless deeds are done.
Stolen kiss and gleaming knife—
(Would you rot?
Would you rust?)
Ha, the glint along the gun!
"Waken!" growls the wanderlust.

Tricks For Husbands.

To tell yellow from green in matching silk. To wash the dishes without breaking more than two. To keep quiet when he's spoken to. To face the cook when she's angry. To find out what ails the gas range. To stand in line an hour for two trading stamps. To set up his wife's brother in business. To get up winter nights to investigate "robbers." To smile when his old sweethearts' pictures are burned up. To prefer halma at home to billiards at the club. To drop his old friends because they are "vulgar." To give up coffee because it disagrees with his wife.—Puck.

Frightened Off.

A Washington car conductor born in London and still a cockney has succeeded in extracting thrills from the alphabet—imparting excitement to the names of the national capital's streets. On a recent Sunday morning he was calling the streets thus:

"Haitch!"
"High!"
"Jay!"
"Kay!"
"Hell!"

At this point three prim ladies picked up their prayer books and left the car.—Lippincott's.

He Didn't Know Her.

The telephone call of a suit of apartments in a ladies' boarding house is 190.

One young lady, a recent comer, answered the call and was astonished to hear a man's voice inquire hurriedly, "Is this one nine o?"

When she could catch her breath the lady, who was a very proper young lady indeed, replied: "I think not. Were we ever introduced?"

CORN CROP.

Now the corn crop begins to tell on the farmer. Where careful and persistent cultivation was given during the dry spell one can see the results in a much thriftier crop and larger yield of cob.

Some of the many new silos will not be filled this year to the top. It will be pleasant for those who can have enough ensilage to spare some for summer feeding next year. It is splendid feed to produce milk, especially when a little bran is given by way of stimulant. We notice that those who adopt summer feeding seem to like it so well that they keep it up right along.

It just takes a certain amount of food to keep a cow living. What she gets over that amount makes either flesh or milk, or both.

How Experts Fail

LORD BRAMPTON CORNERED ONE ON HANDWRITING.

London, Aug. 19.—Sir Edward Carson is not the only distinguished member of the bar who has revelled in the task of ridiculing the pretensions of handwriting experts. The Law Journal recalls Lord Brampton's account, in his Reminiscences, of an encounter he once had with Mr. Netherclifte, Sr., the most famous of all the experts in handwriting of his time:

"When I rose to cross-examine I handed to the expert six slips of paper, each of which was written in a different kind of handwriting. Netherclifte took out his large pair of spectacles, magnifiers, which he always carried. Then he began to polish them with a great deal of care, saying, as he performed the operation: 'I see, Mr. Hawkins, what you are going to try to do. You want to put me in a hole.' 'I do, Mr. Netherclifte, and if you are ready for the hole, tell me, were these six pieces of paper written by one hand about the same time?' He examined them carefully, and after a considerable time answered 'No. They were written at different times and by different hands.' 'By different persons do you say?' 'Yes, certainly.' 'Now, Mr. Netherclifte, you are in the hole! I wrote them myself this morning at this desk.'

To challenge the infallibility of the evidence of experts in handwriting is one thing, says the Law Journal, to propose, as Sir Edward Carson does, to exclude it altogether is quite another. There are forgery and other cases in which the trained observation of the expert may be of assistance to the judge and jury, and there would be little wisdom in making it a hard and fast rule that their evidence shall not be admissible. What is required is a change in the status of these witnesses. Their statements should be regarded as advice rather than as evidence, and no judge or jury should accept their statements without exercising an independent opinion. This is already the practice of nearly all our judges and magistrates, but there have been occasions in recent years on which the practice has not been followed so closely as it might have been.

MILK AS A FOOD

Dr. Saleeby in his excellent work, "Health, Strength and Happiness," has this to say about milk:

"Milk is incomparably the best food in the world, having debased the appetite we find it hard to credit the virtues of a food which makes no appeal to the vitiated palate at all. Until we learn that hunger or appetite should be an organic demand arising primarily in the state of the blood, and not a desire for palatal irritation, we shall most of us be prejudiced against this ideal food, which nature has provided and on which she has reared mankind, but to which she has chosen in her wisdom, to add no condiments. Search the earth and sky, the inorganic and the organic worlds alike, and you will find that only once has nature set out to make a food—something which exists in order to be a food and for no other purpose."

SIM SIMPKINS.

Sim Simpkins don't believe in things;
His fancy never spreads its wings.
He says that "two an' two is four
An' so shill be forevermore."
When Morse got up the telegraph
Old Sim read of it with a laugh,
And then says he:
"Huh! Needn't tell me.
I don't believe what I can't see."

And when 'twas said electric lights
Should gleam and glimmer through th nights
Old Sim said: "Shucks! How'll you send fire
A-scootin' through a solid wire?"
He proved that it could not be done
By argument that weighed a ton
When "Humph!" said he.
"You needn't tell me.
I don't believe what I can't see."

When Bell announced the telephone
Old Sim read of it with a groan
And wiped his specs and slowly said:
"Th' feller's plainly off his head.
Th' idy! Talk an' I could hear
Ten miles away all plain an' clear!
Huh! No, sir-ree;
You needn't tell me!
I don't believe what I can't see."

The wireless telegraph made Sim
Deny its truth with language grim.
"It's nothin' but a pesky sham.
Now, who could breathe a tellygram?"
And when the Wrights got up and flew
Old Sim just took another chew,
And "Umph!" said he.
"You needn't tell me!
I don't believe what I can't see."

Don't think this shaft is aimed at Sim
And that there's only one of him.
Oh, gentle reader, you and I
Learn of some truths, but do not try
To make them true, but wisely frown,
And arguments we try to drown
With "No, sir-ree;
You needn't tell me!
I don't believe what I can't see."

—Chicago Post.

In Doubt.

"Charles, you would better walk down to papa's office and see him about our engagement."

"Clara, I can walk to your papa's office, but I may need some help to get back."

His Money.

A poor beggar received a monthly allowance of $5 from a rich man. The money used to be paid to him regularly by the bookkeeper. On one occasion when the poor man came around the bookkeeper handed him only $3. The poor man remained standing quietly until the bookkeeper asked whether there was anything else he wished.

"You must have made a mistake," he said. "I always get $5."

"Yes," replied the bookkeper; "that has now been changed."

"Changed? Why?"

"You see, the boss recently married off his eldest daughter, and he had a great deal of expense, as you may imagine—the dowry and so forth. You can easily understand"—

"Yes, yes!" grumbled the beggar. "Give your employer my best wishes and tell him that if he ever marries off another daughter he may do it with his own money, not with mine."—Maccabean.

His Error.

The young man who loved the daughter of the widow had called to get the mother's consent to lead the fair girl to the altar, but he blundered at the very outset.

"I have come, madam," he began in a voice that was agitated and beseeching, "to ask you for the blessed privilege of working for your dear daughter, taking care of her, giving her a home and"—

He got no further. The widow, with indescribable eagerness, threw herself into his arms. "I gladly give you the privilege," she cried. "You don't know how I have hoped and longed for a model man like you to be my darling daughter's father!"—Chicago News.

Why He Was Gallant.

A stout woman entered a crowded car and took hold of a strap directly in front of a man seated in the corner. As the car started she lunged against his newspaper and trod heavily on his toes. As soon as he could extricate himself he arose and offered her his seat.

"You are very kind, sir," she said, panting for breath.

"Not at all, madam," he replied. "It's not kindness; it's simply self defense." —Philadelphia Telegraph.

The Reason.

"Talking about women," observed the peach to the potato, "I can't bear these so called notable housewives with their energy in providing for their families."

"Why not? What effect do they produce on you?" asked the potato.

"They jar me," answered the peach. —Baltimore American.

A Proper Name.

"You have christened your baby Halley's Comet?"

"Yes. It's unusual, but appropriate. He's a bright spot in one existence that gets us up at all sorts of unearthly hours."—Washington Star.

The Real Job.

Him—I—I don't know how to tell you how I love you.

Her—Don't worry about that. I'll take it as it comes. What you want to get nervous about is how to tell papa about it.—Chicago Record-Herald.

SLEUTHS ON THE TRAIL.

Tactics Employed to Find a Wife Who Was Missing.

A man's voice, husky with anxiety, called up police headquarters the other night at about 2:30 a. m. It was a distraught husband begging the police to help him find his wife, who had been missing since 8 o'clock in the evening.

"What's her description," asked the official at the phone—"height, weight?"

"Er—er—about average, I guess," stammered the husband.

"Color of eyes?"

A confused burring sound came back over the wire.

"Blue or brown?" prompted the official.

"I—I don't know!"

"How was she dressed?"

"I guess she wore her coat and hat—she took the dog with her."

"What kind of a dog?"

"Brindle bull terrier, weight fourteen pounds and a half, four dark blotches on his body, shading from gray into white; a round blackish spot over the left eye; white stub of a tail, three white legs, and the right front leg nicely brindled all but the toes; a small nick in his left ear, gold filling in his upper right molar, a silver link collar with"—

"That'll do!" gasped the official. "We'll find the dog!"—Puck.

Too Late.

At luncheon at Buckingham palace one of the young sons of the Prince of Wales excitedly said to the king, "Oh, grandpapa," when the king interposed with some severity: "Little boys should be seen and not heard. Go on with your luncheon and don't talk."

The small prince collapsed. Presently the king said to him, relenting, "Now you can say what you were going to say."

The little prince, with a world of meaning, said: "Too late, grandpapa. It is too late."

The king said: "Nonsense! If it was worth saying five minutes ago it is worth saying now."

"No, grandpapa," said the little prince. "There was a big green worm in your salad, and you've eaten him."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Hunting For Trouble.

A traveler stopped at a country hotel in Arkansas. There was no water in his room when he arose in the morning, and he went downstairs and asked for some.

"What for?" the landlord asked.

"I want to wash my face."

The landlord directed him to a creek near by, and he went there for his ablutions, followed by several children, who stared at him in amazement.

The traveler washed his face and combed his hair as best he could with a pocket comb.

The children circled about him with wide open eyes. Finally the largest boy said, "Say, mister, do you all take all that trouble with yourself every day?"—Saturday Evening Post.

Shock Killed Him.

COOK OF STEAMER PORT COLBORNE MEETS DEATH.

Kingston, August 22. — About nine o'clock Friday evening, as the steamer Port Colborne was about to clear from the elevator of Cereals Limited, a very sad and unfortunate accident occurred. Frederick Barry, second cook of the vessel, had been ashore, Friday, and had been imbibing too freely. In the evening he wended his way to the boat, and while crossing the gang plank, slipped and fell into the water, striking the right side of his head on the wharf as he fell. No one saw the accident, but someone heard the splash, for as soon as he fell the cry, "Man overboard!" was raised. The unfortunate man was pulled out of the water and taken to the Hotel Dieu in Corbett's ambulance, where, upon investigation, it was found that beyond a bruise on the right side of the head, the man was all right. The shock of falling produced unconsciousness.

Barry revived long enough to tell his name, then became unconscious again. He died about midnight. The doctor, who was called to the case, said death was caused by shock, and an overdose of liquor. Dr. Kilborn, coroner, was notified and is making inquiries about the man's home, so as to know where to send the body.

A telegram was sent to Belleville to secure information from the captain of the Port Colborne, about Barry, who, it is thought, belonged to Toronto.

New Admirals.

THREE IMPORTANT CHANGES MADE IN THE FLEET.

London, Aug. 19.—Three important changes in naval commands take place today consequent on Vice-Admiral Sir A. Berkeley Milne having completed two years in command of the second division of the home fleet.

His successor, who will hoist his flag on the battleship King Edward VII., is Vice-Admiral Sir George Callaghan, who leaves the Mediterranean fleet for his new appointment.

Admiral Callaghan's successor as second in command of the Mediterranean fleet is Rear-Admiral T. H. M. Jerram, whose flag will be hoisted on the battleship Duncan at Sheerness to-day.

Since February, 1909, Admiral Jerram has been attached to the home fleet for special service with the reserve divisions. His successor in this appointment is Rear-Admiral W. L. Grant, who has only ten months seniority in his rank.

The Indomitable and Shannon, flagships of the first and second cruiser squadrons respectively, recommissioned to-day, Captain C. M. de Bartolome remaining in command of the first and Captain J. A. Ferguson in the second.

The protected cruiser Gloucester, built by Beardmore and Company of Glasgow, has finished her official trials with great success. She ran during 8 hours continuous steaming at the rate of 26.3 knots, being one and a quarter knots ahead of the contract rate. The Gloucester, which has also gained distinction in gunnery, torpedo practice, and manoeuvering, will now pass into commission. Her builders have an improved Gloucester near the lauching stage.

MILLION POUNDS A MILE.

QUARTER MILE TUBE EXTENSION IN LONDON.

London, Aug. 19.—A quarter of a mile of "tube" railway is about to be constructed from the Bank to Liverpool street station, at a cost of $1,250,000, or at the cost of $5,000,000 a mile. It is to be ready in eighteen months.

The new line will be an extension of the new Central London Railway, or "Two-penny Tube," and will bring the Great Eastern Railway terminus, with its quarter of a million passengers a day, and Broad street station also, into direct touch with the whole tube railway system of London.

It is hoped to substitute moving stairways for the lifts at the Liverpool street end of the tube. This would provide continuous descending and ascending slides, on which passengers would merely have to stand in order to be taken up or down.

The principle of moving stairways has been approved, and it is hoped to overcome one or two difficulties in detail which are at present under consideration.

Picture Forgeries.

There are three or four times as many Corots in existence as the French painter produced in his lifetime. He lived to be nearly eighty, but at Montmartre his posthumous canvases are still being turned out to meet the demands of the market. The old masters never die. They are still working overtime in the back rooms of Florence and Rome. At Cologne the manufacture of genuine mediaeval metal work and antique carving is a thriving industry. These foreign forgers may be scamps, but their tireless energy also testifies to the reverence in which posterity holds the great names of bygone periods. If they are not so highly prized, what inducements would there be for anybody to waste time, paint and muscle in creating fraudulent copies and imitations and passing them off under false pretenses? Our millionaire collectors are not constantly exposed to the risk of buying high priced forgeries where the originals have no value.—New York World.

Summer Comfort.

Is there a woman living who does not dislike an oily, shiny face, especially the nose, chin and forehead?

Those who do their own work are often annoyed by this. No matter how often they wash, it seems of no avail.

Here is a simple, harmless and effectual remedy any one may safely try: Cooling lotion for face, neck and hands.

Dissolve in a pint of camphor water quarter of an ounce of pure glycerin, an eighth of an ounce of pulverized borax, quarter of an ounce of boracic acid. Put all in a bottle, shake well and it is ready for use.

Apply whenever warm, as this is cooling and very refreshing.

Might Have Helped.

"Pity you didn't have a dentist."

"What for?"

Facts About Fruit Jars

Most Housewives will admit that the old style jar is a nuisance with its stretchy, galvanized ring.

There are a great many who put up with the nuisance simply because they do not know how to remedy it.

We have the remedy in the "Schram Automatic Fruit Jars." No glass top, galvanized ring or separate rubber to bother with.

Are these Jars expensive? NO, they cost less than the old kind.

Have they proven a success? Yes.

Step into our store and we will supply you with a list of people in the city and vicinity who used the jar for 1909 season and recommend it.

Do you have to buy new tops every year? NO! Not one dozen people out of the hundreds who bought the jars last season have had to renew the tops.

Are the tops expensive? No. We sell them complete for 10c per dozen, the price of rubber rings that are any good.

A $50.00 Dinner Set given away to bring these Jars prominently to your notice. Secure a sales coupon with each dozen you buy

STROUD'S

Because the native, two wheeled ox carts of Porto Rico are destructive to the modern stone roads, the island legislature is considering a bill to prohibit their use on main highways after 1914.

A New York company which maintains a burglar alarm system for business building now installs a garages apparatus which registers in its office the leaving and returning time of automobiles to prevent their use without their owner's consent.

To facilitate the seating of patrons of moving picture theatres where there are no reserved seats without the use of ushers, a New York man has patented a system whereby an incandescent lamp remains lighted on the back of each seat as long as it remains unoccupied.

On electric railroads speed can be produced up to about 27 miles an hour at but little more cost than at ten miles an hour, but beyond the former rate there there is a rapid increase in cost for every additional mile per hour.

Board of Education Still Has No Site For Public Schools

SPECIAL MEETING HELD LAST NIGHT — MR. LINGHAM SUBMITS COUNTER PROPOSITION TO THE BOARD — TWO RESOLUTIONS PASSED AND ANOTHER ADJOURNMENT MADE.

A special meeting of the Board of Education was held last night, these gentlemen being present: W. S. Morden, chairman; Messrs. Anderson Deacon, Hudson, Johnson, Ketcheson Mallory, Moore, Rabbitts, Smith Taylor and Wills.

The object of the meeting was to receive the report of the committee appointed to deal with the question of the desired purchase of a portion of land from Mr. F. R. Lingham the same to be used as a site for a new Public School.

It transpired that the committee had met Mr. and Mrs. Lingham on the property in question, in the afternoon. Mr. Lingham had announced his firm determination not to part with the whole of the property coveted by the Board, but had made a counter proposition, which was afterwards accepted by the Board, providing Mr. Lingham accepts seven dollars per foot for the property, or a total of $3865. The property in question is on William and Ann streets.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE.

Mr. Mallory was in the chair.

After the report of the committee had been received there was considerable discussion.

Mr. Lingham was present for a time

The committee reported that a conference had been held with Mr. and Mrs. Lingham in the afternoon, and that Mr. Lingham had offered the Board the refusal of another piece of property which might be suitable.

TWO RESOLUTIONS.

The following two resolutions, which explain themselves thoroughly, were then passed:

Moved by J. H. Anderson, seconded by S. S. Moore,—That it is hereby declared that the following land is acquired by the Board of Education of the City of Belleville for a school site viz.:—All and singular these certain parcels and tracts of land lying and being in the City of Belleville in the County of Hastings, and being composed of Lots numbered one, two, three, four, and part of five, on the west side of Ann street and the northerly part of Lot F, and lots three, four and part of lot five on the east side of William street as laid down along a plan of the City of Belleville by Evans and Bulger, duly registered, and which said parcels may be more fully described as follows: Commencing at a point 165 feet on the east side of William street, from the intersection of Dundas and William streets, thence north on the east side of William street 362 feet six inches, thence easterly parallel with the south side of Bridge street to the west side of Ann street 264 feet, thence southerly along the west side of Ann street, 362 feet 6 inches, thence westerly to the place of beginning, 264 feet more or less containing 2 acres and 19-100.—Carried unanimously.

Moved by J. F. Wills, seconded by T. E. Ketcheson,—That for the purpose of avoiding delay and expense of expropriation proceedings no action be taken in regard to the resolution just passed by the Board for one week from this date and that in the meantime the Board offer St. Agnes School Limited, seven dollars per foot making a total of $3865.00 for the site offered by Mr. Lingham, namely 200 feet on William and Ann streets and a strip 165 feet in width measured at right angles to Ann street, extending from above property to Dundas street.

Carried.

The Board, after dealing with another matter, adjourned till next Monday evening, when it is expected that a reply from Mr. Lingham will be received.

Officials Made Aware of Cholera.

FEDERAL DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC HEALTH ISSUE CIRCULAR.

Ottawa, August 22. — The Federal Department of Public Health has sent to all quarantine offices in the Dominion a circular making them aware of the existence of a virulent type of cholera in Italy. Some weeks ago a circular warning officia's of the existence of cholera in Russia was sent out. Owing to the approach of winter it is not considered that cholera is likely to make its way to Canada.

Canadian Northern Through Port Hope.

It crosses the field of John Steen, and takes the house and lot of C. Cressley on Hope street It then passes through Kerr's garden on Hope street and takes in the greater part of Wm. Pidgeon's garden Continuing, it crosses Hope street taking Jordan Keeler's house and lot, Mrs. Eliza's Waller's house and lot and Mr. James Todd's house and lot. Flower Show for The School Children

TO BE HELD ON FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 2ND, UNDER AUSPICES OF LOCAL HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

At last night's meeting of the Board of Education a request was presented by the Belleville Horticultural Society, asking that a half-holiday be granted the schools on the afternoon of Friday, September 2nd, for the purpose of holding a flower show.

The request was granted.

The show will be somewhat unique, inasmuch as each school will have its own show, and individual shows will be held in each classroom.

The flowers shown must be from seeds presented some time ago, by the Horticultural Society to the school children.

It is confidently expected that some very pretty displays will be made. The B. H. C. will give prizes.

No Inquest Held on Jonathan Ferguson

It was decided by the authorities that no inquest was necessary in the case of Jonathan Ferguson, the aged man whose body was found floating in the Bay yesterday morning, and the remains were yesterday afternoon interred in the Belleville cemetery.

One of the undertaking men sized the matter up fairly well when he shrugged his shoulders and said: "Pretty tough for an old man to go out like that."

It has been learned by the police that Ferguson left the toll house at the Bay Bridge at three o'clock last Friday morning. He was considerably intoxicated then. He walked across the bridge, and towards Belleville, his intention being to take the train back to Hastings, where he was employed. He is supposed to have fallen off the bridge roadway

The drowned man had a brother-in-law named Conklin, who lived in Prince Edward county, not far from Rossmore. He was returning from a visit to the Conklin's when the accident happened.

KINGSTON STATEMENT.

THAT ARCHBISHOP GAUTHIER WILL GO TO OTTAWA.

Kingston, Ont., Aug. 21—Archbishop Gauthier will likely have to be transferred to Ottawa, so it is stated in Catholic circles here, to fill the vacant archbishopric there. A recent regulation at Rome says the position of archbishop must be filled by either bishop or archbishop. Archbishop Gauthier is the only one eligible for the vacancy besides Archbishop Bruchesi of Montreal. It is stated that Archbishop Gauthier would not at all favor the change but prominent Catholics say he is needed at Ottawa. Should he be transferred to the Capital it is stated that Bishop MacDonnell of Alexandria would become Archbishop of Kingston.

Dominion Rifle Association Competitions Open With Big Attendance—Clement of 91st Regiment Is First In Bankers' Match—Dundas Wins Individual and Harbord, Toronto, Team Prize In Cadet Events.

Ottawa, Oug. 23.—The annual competitions of the Dominion Rifle Association opened yesterday morning on the Rockliffe ranges. Pte. J. E. Clement of the 91st Regiment, Hamilton, won the Bankers' match, and in the tyro match the team prizes were won as follows: $20, 48th Highlanders, 160, 1st; $15, 95th Regiment, 154, 2nd. Next in order, 5th R.H.C., 154; 90th, 153; 91st Highlanders, 150.

There were 253 entries in the tyro match (500 yards) which indicates the number of new shots of the 700 shooting. The entries in this match last year were 239. There was a big kick at the very start. The figure target was used. These are all supposed to be all the same color, the lower half green, blending with the grass, and the upper half grey, blending with the stop-butt. When the long row of targets appeared it looked like a checker-board. Half the targets were dark and blended so well with the grass and wood of the stop-butt that they could barely be seen. The other half of a very much lighter shade, so that they stood out against the dark colors around them. The men squadded on the light targets had a great advantage over the men on the dark ones.

A Dundas, Ont., cadet won out in the school cadets' match, 200 yards, seven rounds, at the D.R.A. yesterday afternoon, though the English competitors were "right after" him.

Winner in cadet team match, Harbord, Toronto; score, 234; prize, $25.

Cadet Thompson of Winchester, Eng., won the gold medal donated by Principal Hagarty, Toronto, for the English cadet making the highest score.

Most Disastrous Storm In Years.

Wiarton, Aug. 23.—The worst storm that has visited this section of the country in nearly a quarter of a century passed over here early yesterday, and the loss by fire from the lightning will be great.

From all directions come reports of barns being destroyed. W. G. Simmie's sawmill at Clavering was struck by lightning and destroyed, while barns on all sides within a radius of 25 miles met a similar fate.

In Wiarton the residence of David Trout was struck and the occupants had a close call, the lightning passing down the chimney, striking a side-board and going out a window. Telephone wires in various directions are out of commission.

It is quite likely that many places on the peninsula have been destroyed of which word has not yet been received here.

Twice Thought Dead.

Winnipeg, Aug. 23.—The body of an unknown man was found floating down the Assinaboine River about six miles north of this city. He had a business card of H. E. Cooper, 175 East King street, Toronto, in one of his pockets, also three keys and 90 cents. It is thought that he is one of the Ontario harvesters.

Toronto, Aug. 23.—H. E. Cooper is alive and well. He manufactures travelers' samples. Yesterday, too, enquiries came from Ottawa trying to identify him with a man who dropped dead there. The men who carry his goods as sideliners and have his cards are Harry Cohen of Toronto, who was in Port Arthur Saturday, and G. H. Brown of Peterborough.

North Bay, Aug. 23.—The body of Harvey S. Crist, 50 years old, was washed ashore in Lake Nipissing yesterday morning, near the Government wharf. Crist leaves a young wife and infant child.

Sunday the child was very ill, and after returning to the house Sunday night, after a visit to the doctor's office, Crist left the house about midnight, without saying anything to his wife, and it is supposed walked deliberately to the wharf and committed suicide, while temporarily insane. He had been exceedingly worried about the sick child. Crist came originally from Bracebridge and had resided in North Bay, Ont., two weeks.

Grain Waterway For the West.

Ottawa, Aug. 23.—The survey of the Saskatchewan River between Edmonton and La Pas to determine the feasibility of the suggested waterway for grain carriage, will be continued during the winter and finished in the spring. There are 11 parties at work.

On account of the great expense which would be involved it is not proposed to construct canals except at Grand Rapids, which such would be essential. The idea is to increase the depth by a series of wing dams and also by dredging.

FAVORS MORE LIBERTY.

Methodist Commission Says Discipline Should Not Be Too Legal.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 23.—The first session of the Methodist General Conference, since Friday was held yesterday afternoon. Considerable business was put through.

A commission on rules, appointed at the last quadrennial, presented its report yesterday. The discipline yesterday forbids buying, selling or using intoxicating liquors as a beverage, dancing, playing games of chance, encouraging lotteries, attending theatres horse racing, circuses, dancing parties, patronizing dancing schools and taking such other amusements obviously or misleading or questionable morale tendency.

The commission recommends that members of the church be allowed more independence of action, pointing out that when these rules were formed by John Wesley, he could have had no idea of their legal aspect, that they should not comprise a code to be enforced, but merely an ideal of the godly life which Methodists are supposed to lead.

It was pointed out that the matter had agitated several conferences, and was of the gravest moment to the church. Discussion will be resumed at a future date.

To Guard Against Cholera.

Ottawa, Aug. 23.—The Department of Agriculture which some weeks ago sent out warning to quarantine officers to be careful regarding immigrants from cholera-infected districts of Russia, has now issued a similar warning as regards arrivals from Italy. All such passengers will be especially watched by the quarantine officers. The best sentinel, however, will be the approaching winter. Cholera cannot live in Canada when Jack Frost is supreme.

Held-Up on Steamship.

Eureka, Cal., Aug. 23.—The Alaska Pacific Steamship Co.'s liner Buckman was held up at sea off this port by two passengers.

Capt. Ward was shot and killed by one of the men, while resisting. The companion was overpowered by the engine crew. The passenger who shot the captain, jumped overboard with a life preserver.

The Buckman was en route from Seattle to San Francisco.

Foiled Again.

London, Aug. 23.—John B. Moissant was again baffled yesterday morning in his attempt to complete the Paris-London flight with a passenger, which started so auspiciously last Tuesday evening. He ascended twice yesterday morning in his endeavor to cover the 20 miles over which a spell seems to have been cast, but could make no headway. In the second forced descent, he seriously damaged his machine.

ARTIST HAS NO LIMBS

C. J SHIRLEY SHOOTS, RIDES, AND PLAYS CRICKET.

Englishman, Now In London, Was Born Without Arms or Legs and For Thirty Years Has Been Fighting a Hard Battle to Keep Abreast of His Fellows—He Has Even Won Races as an Amateur Jockey.

Born without arms and legs. Can anyone imagine a greater handicap in life? To be pitted in the struggle for existence against millions of men who, even though sound in body and limb, find it difficult to gain a livelihood. Can anything seem more hopeless? And yet optimism is the keynote of the character of Mr. Cecil J. Shirley, a man who for thirty years has been bravely fighting the battle of life against heavy odds.

"It is true," he remarked to an interviewer, "that lately I have met with some misfortunes. They commenced in South Africa, where a man with whom I had entered into partnership on a farm played me false and left me stranded. I found it necessary to come to England again, and have since been endeavoring to sell my pictures. I must confess I have not so far met with much success in that direction, but I have great hopes of my book, which gives the story of my life."

And never was a more absorbing story unfolded. Mr. Shirley's career has been as varied as it is interesting. For several years he worked in South Africa and Australia on farms and sheep stations, gaining practical knowledge which he hopes to put to good use in the future; for it is his ambition to obtain sufficient money to purchase a small holding in England, and live the quiet, happy life of a farmer.

Many were Mr. Shirley's adventures in the backblocks of Australia and amongst the Boers of South Africa. He learnt the Dutch language, lived amongst the men who fought against us during the South African war, interviewed President Kruger, acted as clerk, overseer, storekeeper, and in other capacities on farms, rode thousands of miles alone through the bush—in a word, he followed the rough life of the thousands of Englishmen who have gone out to the colonies and earned their living by strenuous labor.

"But surely, Mr. Shirley," I remarked, as he talked of his colonial experiences, "you found the work difficult?"

"Not so much as you might imagine. In the first place, I have always endeavored, as far as possible, to avoid thinking of my physical deformities, and I have so accustomed myself to using the stumps of my arms as hands that what may seem to you almost impossible feats are really quite easy. For instance, you see I can fill my pipe,"—and Mr. Shirley picked his pouch off the table with is arms, opened it, rubbed some tobacco, and, placing the latter in a little pile on the table, filled his pipe as neatly as any other man could do. Then he took up a box of matches, pushed it open with the stem of his pipe, shook out a match, and struck it by holding the box firmly on the table with the pipe pressed on it, and gripping the match between his two arms.

It is equally amazing to see Mr. Shirley using the typewriter with the aid of a pencil, or writing a note in ordinary handwriting—or, rather, arm-writing—the legibility of which, by the way, would be a credit to a Civil Service clerk. A splendid horseman, Mr. Shirley is never so happy as when he can go for a ride, and the most mettlesome steed has no terrors for him. As a matter of fact, Mr. Shirley won several horse-races in the colonies and carried off one or two prizes for rifle-shooting. And he demonstrated to the reporter in a game of billiards that it is not always necessary to have hands in order to make runs of fifteen or twenty.

It is his pictures, however, which illustrate more forcibly than anything else the astonishing manner in which Mr. Shirley has overcome his great deformity. He paints in oils and water color, and, in addition, does a great deal of black-and-white work.

"I can hold my brush or pencil," he remarked, "as delicately between the two stumps of my arms as you can between your thumb and finger. I am a keen student of entomology and botany, and delight in painting pictures of insects, butterflies, leaves and flowers. Here are some specimens of my work," and Mr. Shirley brought out for my inspection some wonderful paintings of butterflies, insects and leaves, every vein and tiny detail of which was faithfully depicted.

"Would it not be helpful, Mr. Shirley, if you had artificial forearms?"

"I do not think so. In fact, they would probably prove cumbersome to me now. I find I can accomplish all I require to do, even to shaving, putting my collar on, and tying my tie with the stumps of my arms. Of course, it is necessary for me to have artificial legs.

"I am very fond of a long walk. Of course, I cannot run," he added, laughing; "and that reminds me of a rather amusing incident which occurred to me in Cape Town. One day I was walking in the main street, when there was a sudden shout of 'Mad dog!' and everybody scooted as fast as they could. Unfortunately I could not get out of the way quick enough, the dog gripped my leg. But he was a sadly disappointed dog, for he must have broken one or two teeth on the artificial calf, while the kick which I gave him with the other foot could not have been altogether pleasant.

"The astonishment of the people when they saw the animal run away howling was almost as amusing as that of the Cape Town policeman who rushed to my rescue when I was knocked down by a vehicle which passed over my legs. He stood gaping with astonishment when, instead of collapsing, I got up on the remains of my legs and asked him to be kind enough to help me to the nearest [illegible] establishment."

A new machine separates the whites and yolks of opened eggs by allowing the former to pass through a sieve and automatically ejects bad eggs, which will not separate, their weight tripping a tray.

For the Children

W. E. D. Stokes, Jr., the Boy Inventor.

William E. D. Stokes of New York, though only twelve years old, has made a name among wireless experts by an invention. He designed what is called a "receiving box." This contrivance not only catches dispatches sent in the ordinary code used by the Marconi and De Forest systems, but reproduces the words and sounds of wireless telephony in volume deep enough to be heard at a distance of several feet from the apparatus. Working alone on the roof of his father's hotel in New York, the youngster made his important discovery. Recently he attracted attention at Washington, where he appeared before a senate committee in opposition to a measure to prevent any but authorized companies from taking wireless messages from the air.

Fox, an Outdoor Game.

This is suitable for a boys' game and is better played out of doors.

A space is marked out for the fox's den, and the fox and the rest of the players use their handkerchiefs—knotted at the end if they prefer—in attacking each other. Fox, to show he is ready to begin, shouts out, "Twice five are ten." The others call, "Fox, fox, come out of your den." Fox comes out hopping on one foot and trying to hit any of the players on the back with his handkerchief, they hitting him if they can. If fox while hopping succeeds in striking any player the one hit becomes fox and is driven to his den by the handkerchiefs of the others. After reaching the den he may give warning and hop out as the other one did.

Should fox in his efforts to hit his enemies lose his balance and use both feet he is driven home under the blows of the handkerchiefs.

The Game of Post Town.

This is an interesting game for children of nine or ten who know something of geography and are familiar with the names of places. One is chosen postmaster. Each child takes the name of any town she prefers. If there are too many for the postmaster to remember he writes down the names and holds the list in his hand. He then calls out, "I am going to send a letter from Richmond to Boston," for instance. The children bearing the names of the towns mentioned exchange seats. If they fail to do so the one who does not respond pays a forfeit. Occasionally he exclaims, "General post!" Then every one must exchange places. If any one does not secure a seat she must pay a forfeit, and these are redeemed when the game is over. Excitement is added if long postal routes, including many cities, are named.

Forbidden Letter.

The idea of this game is to try how many sentences can be spoken without containing a certain letter which has been agreed upon. Supposing, for instance, the letter "f" is not to be introduced, the first player might ask, "Is this a new game to you?" The second player could answer: "Oh, no! I played it years ago, when quite a youngster."

He would perhaps turn to the third player and ask, "You remember it, do you not?" The third player might answer, "Yes, but we used to play it differently." This player, having used a word with an "f" in it, must pay a forfeit and remain out.

The answers must be given at once without hesitation, and the player who avoids for the greatest length of time using a word containing the forbidden letter wins the game.

A pound of jumps!

A pound of jumps!
  And she nodded her head.

But, my dear,

And peanuts,
  But never a pound of jumps.

We've walnuts and chestnuts
  And corn that pops.
Oh, oh, I forgot!
  It's a pound of hops!

FIRE FORCE MISSING

Six Hundred May Be Dead Says Report From Butte, Mont.

Nothing Has Been Heard For Four Days of Big Force That Set Out to Battle With Forest Conflagration—News of Other Fatalities Continues to Pour In and Losses Will Be Enormous.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 24.—Six hundred fire-fighters who left Thompson Falls, four days ago, are reported lost, and Forest Supervisor Bushnell of the cabinet reserve, who is at Thompson, fears all may have perished.

The wind was blowing furiously towards Thompson yesterday and it is feared the little town, which is crowded with refugees, will be swept by fire before night.

The report was brought by Julius Barney, who reached Helena yesterday from Thompson.

"The 600 men," said Barney, "had been gone four days during which nothing had been heard from them.

"When I left Thompson this morning, a wall of fire was sweeping from the west. The 700 inhabitants of Thompson were prepared to flee."

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 24.—A special from Wallace says that Forest Supervisor Weigle has received word that 200 men under Chief Ranger Kootkey perished in a camp near Falcon, at the headwaters of the St. Joe River.

The other loss of life is estimated at 100.

The fires on the Coeur D'Alene Indian Reservation are checked, as are those of the Palmons national forest.

Along the St. Joe River, which runs through the largest body of white pine timber in the United States, there is a continuous fire from Plummer to a point in Montana.

The United States is the largest loser. Next in importance are the losses of the Chicago, Milwaukee and Puget Sound Railroad, which has suffered destruction of bridges, buildings and timber lands for forty miles.

Three fires along the Northern Pacific in Northern Montana have diminished. They were largely in timber that had been burned over in former years. The Idaho fires are burning virgin forest.

The Pend D'Oreille Valley, heavily timbered, is on fire in several places and loss of life is feared. It is difficult to get news from that region.

The weather service says no rain is in prospect.

Despatches state that four colored soldiers are missing and that a number of families near Avery have been burned out and many persons are dead or missing.

Railroad employes at Avery say that all the Kitter Root mountains are burning and that the entire Coeur D'Alene national reserve forest may be destroyed.

Four families of homesteaders, reported burned to death in Kootenay County, Idaho, escaped to St. Joe wading 15 miles along the bed of the creek with fire burning down to the water's edge, forcing the refugees frequently to submerge themselves. An old man in the party was borne on a stretcher all the way. Their clothes were nearly burned off.

While 900 forest rangers are missing in Idaho and Montana, it is thought most of them will escape death.

The telephone lines through the national forests have been destroyed and the rangers might be safe, but unable to report.

Delayed by Deluge.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 24.—Train No. 92 on the Canadian Pacific, with second section following, due to arrive in Vancouver Monday night at 10.35 from Montreal, and train No. 407, from St. Paul, due to arrive at 9.25 Monday night, did not pull into the city depot until 12.45 and 1.25 respectively yesterday.

The delay was caused by a cloudburst about 20 miles west of Kamloops, where a heavy storm prevailed all Monday, washing out a large section of the track. About an hour before the arrival at the scene of the washout of the passenger trains from the east an eastbound freight was wrecked by spreading rails, caused by the large volume of water, which washed out the track. Several cars of the freight were wrecked by the deluge.

Swallowed Anything.

Cairo, Ill., Aug. 24.—Before Frank Wilson died here in a hospital he told the police he had swallowed several articles of a foreign nature, and that they had better put the X-ray at work.

According to physicians the following articles were removed: One shoe button hook, lady's hatpin, three keys, one lead pencil, one belt buckle, one tin toy pistol, three small nails, one needle, one thermometer.

Wilson had been in a depressed mental state for some time, during which he swallowed anything he could get down his throat.

TOWN HAS BIG FUTURE

Sir Wilfrid Addresses Citizens of Prince Rupert.

Premier Gets Enthusiastic Welcome at Terminus of G.T.P. and Says His Visit Is a Great Education to Him—Prophecies of Town's Greatness Are Freely Made—Fisheries Will Keep 50,000 People.

Prince Rupert, B.C., Aug. 24.—Under unrivalled weather conditions, the Prime Minister of Canada met the child of his own genius at a large open air gathering in front of the Government buildings in this city. Sir Wilfrid spoke with evident feeling, and said that the climax of the tour had been reached for him, and he would return to Ottawa with enlarged ideas and opportunities before him.

Mayor Stork presided and the school children massed together, carrying flags and sang patriotic songs.

Sir Wilfrid refrained from making any definite statements as to the Government's policy, but intimated it would not withhold its support to any legitimate demand.

"If this is a proud day for Prince Rupert," began Sir Wilfrid, "it is a much prouder day for the man who is now before you and addresses you. Five years ago Prince Rupert was as bare as the palm of my hand.

"It's existence was a result of a Government policy of which he had the honor to be the father. Those who had made their home in that city, who had become pioneers, he bid God speed. When the railway had been projected, there were croakers who claimed it would be expensive.

"It is expensive," said the Premier. "It must be expensive, but who cares for expense? Is it not a fact that you wanted to see the realization of this great enterprise? The G.T.P. has rolled back the map of Canada 1,000 miles.

"The harbor of Prince Rupert," Sir Wilfrid added, "was destined to be the last great harbor of the world, and this would be one of the great cities of the American continent, at the head of the shortest route from Europe to the Orient."

The Premier facetiously remarked that the city had not asked him for anything, but he had learned of the needs of lights on the channels and would constitute himself a special advocate of the city to secure proper marks from the Minister of Marine. The Government of Canada could afford to do this for any city, when the future was so bright.

About 200 covers were laid at the banquet to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, which occurred on the anniversary of a similar function to Earl Grey and Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson.

Mayor Stork presided and declared that faith in the north country was shown by the building of the National Transcontinental. He added that Sir Wilfrid was as big a man as the country was broad.

Sir Wilfrid was greeted with prolonged cheers. He admitted the impeachment of being an optimist, but after this trip he would be a greater optimist. The Grand Trunk Pacific was the first link of the policy of the development of the west. He hoped within three years to travel from Moncton to Prince Rupert over the G.T.P.

Senator Casgrain prophesied that in ten years Prince Rupert would equal Vancouver, while Ald. Dunn stated that the fishing industry alone would support a population of 50,000.

Swell Caused Damage.

Windsor, Ont., Aug. 23.—Canadian and American officials will likely take action as result of great damage done to the fuel lighter, Emma E. Tyson, early Monday by swells from a big passenger boat going full speed through the "narrows" at Amherstburg. Amherstburg vessel men predicted some time ago that swells from the big boats would cause serious damage. Examination of the wrecked boat yesterday showed that the cost of repairing will be about $5,000. The work will require at least three months. The investigation will doubtless follow capsizing of the Tyson.

Col. Townsend, engineer of Detroit, has signified his willingness to consider the case if brought before him.

Kiled by Car.

Toronto, Aug. 24.—Peter McKinnon, who gave the name of Peter Turner, when arrested as a drunk Monday night, was killed by a street car near Queen and Elizabeth streets at 8.30 yesterday morning. He had been taken to St. Michael's Hospital shortly after being arrested, to have stitches put into a wound in his head. He left Agnes street station at 6.30 a.m.

He was crossing the street when he was struck. A wagon passed and he stepped back in front of a car. His head, left arm and foot were crushed.

At the station he had said that he was 44 years of age, married and a Scotchman.

Attacked by Dogs.

Woodstock, Aug. 24.—The mad dog scare in the country was revived yesterday, when reports reached the city of two cases which bear a serious aspect. A child belonging to George Buchanan, at the new Lawson cheese factory, was bitten by an unmuzzled dog, and the animal's head has been sent to Toronto for examination. On the farm of Levi Gee, near Peebles, a thresher was attacked by a collie dog, and he had his hand badly lacerated.

CURRENT EVENTS.

Flat roads as opposed to those of the convex section, are recommended in the London Board of Trade traffic report as tending to minimize the splashing of pavements with mud.

An increase of $8,000,000 in the operating expenses of the Northern Pacific during the past railway year took all the increased earnings and more and left the net revenues $1,727,000 less than in the previous twelve months. The increased cost of living, or whatever is behind such a situation, is not making one railway rich.

Some Englishmen having complained that Americans showed want of reverence by addressing postal cards in Stratford-on-Avon church, an American critic retorts that if Englishmen did not sell the cards in the porch their travelling cousins would not have them to address in the edifice itself. The retort goes straight for the bullseye. There is a good deal about Stratford-on-Avon that smacks of irreverence, not alone for Shakespeare, but for the worship the church should conduct.

There is a good deal of sense in what Mr. J. H. Palmer, Canadian Passenger Agent of the Michigan Central Railway at St. Thomas, says about booming Ontario. This is part of it:

"Ontario needs booming more than the west does. Ontario is just as productive as any part of the west. It is the heart of civilization, near to your friends and in a climate that can be predicted the whole year round. You give the best of your enthusiasm and your young men to the west, and then begin to wonder why you pine away and die. Look about at this level and God-inspired country, and then go out and make a big noise that will bring folks here to turn its riches into gold and prosperity.

Three boxes of tomatoes from Prince Edward county, packed in peat and sawdust, have just been shipped to Covent Garden Market, by the Royal Edward, and it is expected that they will keep well and find a ready market. That our tomatoes would reach the British market in good condition Mr. Lockie Wilson thinks is certain as there were shipped last year, nearly a million dollars' worth of tomatoes from one of the Canary Islands. It takes seven days by steamship for their fruit to reach Liverpool, while a box of Kent county tomatoes came from London, Ont., to Liverpool last week in six and three-quarters days. He expects the Canadian product to do fully as well as the Canary Island shipments.

The German naval annual nauticus gives Great Britain's and Germany's strength measured in tonnage of battleships of over 10,000 tons, and of armored cruisers over 5000 tons, no vessels over twenty years old included as follows:

	Britain	Germany
	Tons	Tons
1900	619,[illegible]	84,390
1910	1,335,870	456,580

Increase—Britain, 116 per cent.; Germany, 541 per cent.

	Britain	Germany
1900	£30,596,00	£7,868,000
1910	41,415,000	21,702,000

Increase—Britain, 35 per cent.; Germany, 275 per cent.

From a German standpoint the figures are satisfactory as showing tremendous activity. There is, however, an element of satisfaction for the Britisher as well. Germany is still a long way off where Great Britain stood ten years ago, and Great Britain has been far from idle in the decade.

Some People Think.

THAT some of the school children may have side-whiskers before the Board of Education gets a site for that new Public School.

THAT people of all creeds and classes in this diocese will be sorry to lose Archbishop Gauthier, if he is called to Ottawa.

THAT a few loads of crushed stone would make a big improvement to some of the holes on Front street.

THAT the back-taxers must have all come across with the coin, as we haven't heard any threats against them lately.

THAT the improvement to the old Grand Junction dock cannot be started too quickly.

THAT it is a rank injustice to have a tax on dogs, and none on cats and phonographs.

THAT sport lovers in this city should have a chance to see an outside baseball team in action here before the season ends.

THAT some of the ancient crossings on Front street are enough to get the Public Works committee six months.

THAT it is time for Mr. Flint to make his will if he is going up in the airship at the Belleville fair.

THAT people who haven't got their coalbins filled yet should get busy Christmas is only four months from to-morrow. Buy 'em early.

His Phonograph Slandered.

GIRLS WHO SUED DEALER WON WHEN RECORDS WERE PLAYED IN COURT.

London, Aug. 22.—A novelty in phonograph litigation is reported from Arad, in Hungary, Mr. Schwarz, a dealer in phonographs, was sued for slander uttered by one of his instruments. The trail of the slander suit disclosing amusing circumstances.

M. Schwarz had been disturbed at night by the singing of girls employed in a dressmaker's shop across the street. He protested in vain. One noon when the girls were at their lunch they were shocked by a torrent of swearing from the funnel of a phonograph in the window of M Schwarz's shop. The girls sued M Schwarz for slander.

M. Schwarz testified that he did not know that the girls could hear the instrument and that he had only been testing some records he had bought

The practical judge had the phonograph record tested in court. Everybody recognized M. Schwarz's voice and he was found guilty and fined.

The Stolen Jewels Were Recovered.

PRISONER THOUGHT TO HAVE BEEN IMPLICATED IN PREVIOUS ROBBERY FROM LADY PARKER.

St. Moritz, Aug. 23.—The jewelry stolen from Mrs. Bacon, wife of Daniel Bacon, a member of the New York Stock Exchange, has been recovered. Suspicion centred on a young married woman whom Mrs Bacon had engaged as a servant at Vichy. The investigation led to the arrest of this woman's husband at Vichy and all the jewelry was found in his possession. He is an Italian barber of the name of Cataneo. His wife also has been arrested.

It has been learned that the value of the jewels was $58,0003 .The robbery occurred on Aug. 18 at the Kulm Hotel. Mrs. Bacon is making a tour of the Continent with her sister, Lady Gilbert Parker, and Sir Gilbert Parker The jewels stolen were a pendant which was set with two white and one yellow diamond valued at $8000, and a pearl and diamond necklace, the value of which is $50,000.

When Cattaneo was first questioned he declared that he knew nothing about the jewelry, but finally he led the police to the environs of Vichy where he dug up the stolen valuables which he had buried at the foot of a tree.

It is thought that Cattaneo was implicated in the robbery of Lady Gilbert Parker, Mrs. Bacon's sister, in January, 1906, when she lost jewelry valued at $15,000 from the Carlton Hotel in London.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

BOXING

Fitzsimmons a Marvel.

Although Bob Fitzsimmons did not win the championship belt until he was 35 years old, Jeffries at the same age was unable to "come back." Boxing experts have many adages about "youth being served," and about men having done their best work in the first half of the thirties. In fact there are no definite rules that apply to all boxers. "Fitz" held the championship undisputed for two years, and he was 39 when Jeff put him out the second time. Jeffries was 24 years old when he beat Fitzsimmons at Coney Island. He was 35 years 2 months and 19 days old when Johnson whipped him in the "battle of the century", July 4. At 35 he is an old man. At the same age Fitz was in the zenith of his great power. After the two knockouts which Jeffries imposed on him, the Cornishman went out and beat all candidates except Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, with whom he drew, until the total period of his existence totalled 43 years. What other fighter in the history of pugilism can claim such a record? None. Fitzsimmons is to be considered all the more extraordinary because of the weight handicap which he suffered after he defeated all the middleweights. Never scaling more than 170 pounds, he had all the punching force of men of 50 pounds more heft. At 29 Jeff retired from the ring and rested on his reputation. He did much hunting and fishing, but idleness was his principal occupation for six years. And when he was induced to train and knock the packing out of Johnson, his pouch bulged like a subfarine boat. He reduced to his old weight after much effort.

How to Train Pugilists.

New York, August 21.—In an article entitled "Lessons for the Athlete in the Jeffries-Johnson Battle," published by the New York Medical Journal, Dr. G. Frank Lydston, of Chicago, criticizes the training methods of handlers of pugilists, and declares that all a fighter needs in preparation for a fight is fighting. Rope-skipping, weight handling and handball waste time and energy, Dr. Lydston asserts. He says that Jeffries was whipped by his training before he stepped into the ring. He writes:

"The Jeffries' grouch," was proof enough in his precarious physical condition. And this is not a case of "hind sight," either. I predicted to a group of physicians precisely what subsequently happened at Reno. I laid particular stress upon Jeffries irritability, which was to me proof positive that his nervous system was not standing the grueling work of training. Give me every time the athlete who smiles. Jeffries' already depleted nerve force had been exhausted by his training when he entered the ring at Reno. He was a nervous bankrupt. The boxer is an athletic specialist, and should 'stick to his last.' In his training let him stick to his fighting; let him fight, fight, fight, until its time to rest up before the battle."

BEN FRANKLIN ON FRESH AIR

He Pointed Out That Methuselah Lived in the Open Air, Despite the Advice of an Angel.

The New Hampshire Branch of the American Red Cross has published an interesting wall card, containing in large type a brief quotation from Benjamin Franklin's Art of Securing Dreams, written in 1798, which forms a telling indorsement of the modern open air crusade:

"Another means of preserving health to be attended to is the having a constant supply of fresh air in your bedchamber. It has been a great mistake the sleeping in rooms exactly closed and the beds surrounded by curtains. No outward air that may come to you is so unwholesome as the unchanged air, often breathed of a close chamber. As boiling water does not grow hotter by long boiling if the particles that receive greater heat can escape, so living bodies do not putrefy, if the particles, so fast as they become putrid, can be thrown off, but in a close room we receive them again and again though they become more and more corrupt. A number of persons crowded into a small room thus spoil the air in a few minutes, and even render it mortal as the Black Hole of Calcutta. A single person is said to spoil only a gallon of air per minute, and therefore requires a longer time to spoil a chamberful; but it is done, however, in proportion, and many putrid disorders hence have their origin. It is recorded of Methusaleh, who, being the longest liver, may be supposed to have best preserved his health, that he slept always in the open air; for when he had lived 500 years an angel said to him, 'Arise, Methusaleh, and build thee an house, for thou shalt live yet 500 years longer.' And Methusaleh answered and said: 'If I am to live but 500 years longer, it is not worth while to build me an house; I will sleep in the air as I have been used to do.' Physicians, after having for ages contended that sick shouldn't be indulged with fresh air, have at length discovered that it may do them good. It is therefore to be hoped that they may in time discover likewise that it is not hurtful to those that are in health, and that we may then be cured of the aerophobia that at present distresses weak minds, and makes them choose to be stifled and poisoned rather than leave open the window of a bed-chamber or put down the glass of a coach. Confined air, when saturated with perspirable matter will not receive more, and that matter must remain in our bodies and occasion diseases."

TAFT EXPLAINS.

HAD NO PART IN DEFEAT OF ROOSEVELT.

New York, Aug. 22.—President Taft not only had no part in any plot to defeat Theodore Roosevelt for temporary chairman of the Republican state convention at Saratoga—if there was such a plot—but he did not even know that Vice-President Sherman was to be named or considered for the place.

The president made this clear in a very explicit letter which he sent today to Lloyd C. Griscom, president of the new York County Republican convention, in response to a telegram from Mr. Griscom, which told the president bluntly that "the absence of any authoritative information as to your attitude is seriously misleading many Republicans".

President Taft in his letter of reply declares that so far from desiring to disregard Roosevelt's wishes he explicitly urged that the former president's wishes be learnd and consulted, and when he first learned from the vice-president of a plan to oppose Roosevelt he "declined to be drawn into a fight with Mr. Roosevelt and again renewed my urgent advice that there be a personal conference with him."

There is disclosed in the president's letter a copy of a telegram from the president to the vice-president, hitherto withheld, but which has, nevertheless, been mentioned in print. This telegram asks the vice-president to "please say to Ward and Woodruff that I have had a long conference with Griscom. He confirms my judgment, already expressed to you, that the whole situation in New York may be saved without humiliation to anyone and with the victory for the party by a full conference with Mr. Roosevelt and reasonable concessions with reference to platform and candidates."

Mr. Roosevelt when shown the letter today said that he was pleased with it.

SOLDIER OF FORTUNE.

THE ADVENTUROUS CAREER OF AVIATOR MOISSANT.

Washington, August 23.—State department officials recognize in John B. Moissant, who made the aeroplane flight from Paris to England, a soldier of fortune from Central America. Mr. Moissant recently was engaged with General Estrada in his effort to overthrow the Madriz regime in Nicaraugua and proposed that an airship could be used to great advantage in the campaign.

Accordingly, he went, with an unlimited expense account, to Europe to negotiate for the purchase of aerial craft. No news of his movements had reached here until his flight.

In Nicaragua and the various other republics of Central America, John B. Moissant, who suddenly crossed the English channel, bears a reputation which is nothing short of legerdemain.

The Moissant brothers, George, Alfred and John, and two sisters, for many years had interests valued at several hundred thousand dollars in Salvador. John was actively implicated in the movement against President Figuera. When the revolutionists were repulsed by government troops at Acajutla, John Moissant fled to Nicaragua.

His brothers later were released but their property was attached by the government as a bond to prevent their escape from the country.

Two years later John Moissant headed a large filibustering expedition against Salvador from Nicaragua, but it was nipped in the bud by the prompt action of Commander William S. Benson, U. S. N., commanding the cruiser Albany.

After a long series of tests German scientists seem to have disproved an old theory that resin is a beneficial ingredient in soaps, their decision being that the washing power of a soap decreases as the resin content increases.

COUNTRY CORRESPONDENCE

SIDNEY CROSSING

The Aiken's Auxilary of the W. M. S. entertained the ladies of the Centenary and Wallbridge auxiliaries at their church on Wednesday afternoon. The meeting was opened by the President, Mrs. Abel Finkle, after which Mrs. P. Casey, President of the Centenary, ably filled the chair. Mrs. Phillips, of Wallbridge, gave an interesting report of the branch meeting at Peterboro, which was appreciated. Mrs. Manley Farley also gave an excellent paper on Systematic Giving. Lunch was served to about thirty ladies. Much interest is manifested in the W. M. S. here, and prospects are bright for a good year.

Mr. Will Bonisteel took in the excursion to Rochester on Saturday.

Mrs. Thomas White is confined to the house by illness.

Mrs. Kingston, of Trenton, is visiting at the home of her brother, Mr. Randall Moran.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Treverton, Mr. and Mrs. H. Hubbel went to Peterboro on the Holloway Street S. S. excursion on Wednesday.

Miss Watson, of Toronto, is the guest of her cousin, Mrs. W. R. Vandervoort.

Miss Jane Hegle is visiting her sister, Mrs. Ed. Deacon, of Belleville.

Mrs. Wm. Zevick, of Rochester, N. Y., are guests at the home of Mr. Angus Lawrence.

Mr. David MacGowan, who is on the sick list, is spending a few days with his daughter, Mrs. Ted Burnett, Belleville.

Mrs. Arthur Bolyea and daughter Bertie, have returned to their home in Detroit, after a month's visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Priory.

Mr. Robert Ledster and two sisters took in the Peterboro excursion on Wednesday.

Mr. Dan. Hyde had a lucky escape on Sunday night. His horse broke away from a post to which it was tied and started to run away. Fortunately it was caught before any serious damage was done.

Mrs. C. Lawrence was the proud recipient on the 82nd birthday of two handsomely bound and valuable books from Mrs. Wm. H. Thaw, of Pittsburg, N. Y. These books were written by Mrs. Thaw's father, the late Josiah Copely, and are entitled "Gatherings from Beulah" and "Gathered Sheaves." Mr. Copley was for many years editor of the Pittsburg Gazette, and his works are widely read, being found in almost every Theological School and Christian home in the United States. He died at the ripe age of 82 years, on March 2nd, 1885.

Mrs. B. Hunt, one of our oldest living and most highly respected residents is very ill. She is 97 years of age and is still in full possession of all her faculties. She resides with her son, Mr. John Hunt on the old homestead, Bayside.

The Wesley and White's Auxiliary of the W. M. S., Bayside circuit, held a joint meeting at the Wesley church on Sunday afternoon, Mrs. L. Hall, President, in the chair. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. N. Gilbert after which two splendid addresses were given by Mrs. Levi Massey, of Wallbridge, a veteran in the W. M. S. work, and her son, Mr. Norman Massey, of Moosejaw. The latter gave an interesting talk on mission work in the West.

The many friends of Mr. Will Treverton will be sorry to learn that he is very low with typhoid fever, with very little hopes of his recovery.

Rev. Mr. Dafoe, pastor of the Bayside circuit, with his family, went to the Thousand Islands on the Saturday excursion.

Daily Intelligencer.

Laurier and Low Tariff

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's incessant assertions in the West that his government really loves free trade, would grant free trade if it could, is moving towards free trade, and ultimately will give free trade, call for comparison with the acts.

First under "Free trade as it is in England" the average rate of duty is about 5 1-2 per cent. on the total imports; Great Britain levies import duties on liquors, wines, tobacco, sugar, tea, coffee and certain groceries. Thus we may set down a customs revenue of 5 or 6 per cent. of the total imports as the free trader's ideal.

Secondly, under the Mackenzie government the average rate of customs duties averaged less than 12 1-2 per cent on the total imports and about 10 3-4 per cent on the dutiable imports. This was the tariff before the National Policy was introduced, in other words, before Canada took up a directly protectionist policy.

Thirdly, in the last five year period before the Conservatives were driven from office the duties collected amounted to 18 1-2 per cent. of the total imports and 30 1-2 per cent. of the dutiable imports. In five years 1896 to 1900, the first five years of Liberal rule, the duties collected amounted to:

On all imports, 17 3-4 per cent.

On all dutiable imports, 29 1-3 per cent.

In the second five year period of Liberal rule, 1901 to 1905, the figures were:

On all imports, 16 1-2 per cent.

On dutiable imports, 27 1-3 per cent.

For the years since then the figures are:—

	On all imports	On dutiable imports
1906..	16.36 per cent.	26.83 per cent
1907..	16.03 per cent.	26.33 per cent
1908..	16.48 per cent.	26.58 per cent
1909..	16.58 per cent.	27.31 per cent

Thus we observe two things:

1. If Sir Wilfrid Laurier had cut down the tariff, not to the free trade basis, but to the level of the Mackenzie and Cartwright tariff, he would have made the following reductions:

From 18 1-2 per cent. on all imports; or by one third.

From 30 1-2 to 20 per cent. dutiable imports; or by one third.

2. Instead he has taken fifteen years to reduce it as follows:

From 18 1-2 to 16 1-2 on all imports; or by one-ninth.

From 30 1-2 to 27 per cent. on dutiable imports; or by one-tenth.

3. In fourteen years the duties have dropped 2 per cent. on all imports and 3 per cent. on dutiable imports.

4. Of late years the tendency has been naturally rather higher.

Thus the Liberals who desire low tariff may set themselves the following sum in arithmetic; if it takes fourteen years to cut the tariff down from 30 to 27 per cent., how long will it take to get it down to 20 per cent.

HAVE YOU A BAD SORE?

If so, remember these facts—Zam-Buk is now the most widely used balm in Canada, yet four years ago it was unknown here! Why has it become so popular? Because it heals sores, cures skin diseases, and does what is claimed for it. Why not let it heal your sore?

Remember that Zam-Buk is altogether different to the ordinary ointments. Most of these consist of animal fats. Zam-Buk contains no trace of any animal fat, or any mineral matter. It is absolutely herbal.

Remember that Zam-Buk is at the same time healing, soothing and antiseptic. Kills poison instantly, and all harmful germs. It is suitable alike for recent injuries and diseases, and chronic sores, ulcers, etc. Test how different and superior Zam-Buk really is. All druggists and stores at 50 cents a box. You are warned against harmful substitutes and imitations.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION.

THE COMMISSION TAKES EVIDENCE AT FREDERICKTON.

Frederickton, N. B., August 22.—The Technical Education Commission began its sessions here to-day, and will finish to-morrow. The witnesses were the Chief Superintendent of Education, the Principal of the Normal School, and the Chancellor of the University of New Brunswick. The Superintendent of Education advocated commercial and agricultural courses in the public schools, with illustration gardens and farms where possible, and also the consolidation of country schools.

Dr. Robertson, Chairman of the Commission, will leave at the end of this week to spend several weeks in Newfoundland. The trip is being taken for the purpose of advising with the Premier of Newfoundland relative to the agricultural policy of the colony. During the absence of Dr. Robertson it is likely that the Hon. J. N. Armstrong of North Sydney, N. S., will act as Chairman, being the second person named in the proclamation appointing the commission.

Leaves Pulpit For the Stage.

CHICAGO PASTOR WILL HEREAFTER SING TO ACCOMPANIMENT OF CHORUS GIRLS.

Chicago, August 23.—Instead of facing a congregation in Woodlawn the Rev. Dudley C. Fosher, for three years pastor of the Ryder Memorial Universalist church, at Sixty-fourth street and Kimbark avenue, will appear in a theatre at Racine, Wis., as an actor in a touring company, playing a musical comedy. He submitted his resignation to his church to take effect August 1.

The clergyman gave no reasons for resigning, except that his salary of $1,200 was too low. Many of his flock do not know that he has gone on the stage

When Mr. Fosher appears on the Racine stage he will act the role of a college professor and will sing to the dancing accompaniment of rows of chorus girls. It was his vocal abilities that obtained the position.

Accompanying Mr. Fosher into the theatrical business is his wife, who is described as young and pretty, and who does not object to appearing in tights if necessary. Mrs. Fosher possesses a good voice and hopes to make as great a "hit" as her husband.

Countess Dances Barefoot.

REMARKABLE ENTERTAINMENT GIVEN FOR SOCIETY AT NEWPORT.

Newport, R. I., August 23.—Countess Thamara de Swisky danced barefoot Thursday night before Newport society at the most remarkable private entertainment of the season. When the company before which she appeared had endorsed by rapturous applause the verdict of Arturo Toscanini, that the countess has the most beautifully musical body in the world, she made her acknowledgments by performing on the piano Rochmanhoff's famous prelude as only a virtuoso can do, to the further amazement and delight of her select audience.

Mrs. James B. Haggin gave society this opportunity to enjoy the gifts of the Russian titled visitor. There were 400 invitations and all the principal cottagers attended. Mrs. Haggin built a ballroom for the occasion, overlooked by the galleries of the second floor of her cottage. The decorations were of oak branches, studded with American beauty roses and lilies. The countess bounded in upon this scene and thrilled the spectators with her whole-hearted abandon. Her dress was scanty and diaphanous.

Weird New York Accident.

UNDERTAKER'S HORSE RAN INTO RIVER — COFFIN FLOATED DOWN STREAM.

New York, August 23.—A sleepy old horse which had drawn a West Side undertaker's wagon for years at an approved funeral pace, imagined some vain thing to-day and ran away causing a weird accident.

After a flight of several blocks the horse and wagon plunged in to the Hudson river. The doors of the waggon flew open and the casket containing the body floated down stream The night watchman of a pier swam out and towed the casket ashore. The horse and wagon were finally lifted to a dock by a derrick.

MAN, STUDY YOUR HAIR!

Then Before You Comb It Study the Architecture of Your Face.

Just as surely as hair is woman's crowning glory it is man's glorious crowning—that is, to those that have it. Those whose heads have pushed up through their hair usually use a huckaback towel for the delicate process of parting the hair, but unless one has the peculiar requirements it is not worth while to cultivate them.

Men with low, squatting foreheads should not pull their hair down over their brows, and men whose foreheads are beginning to work back should invite their locks down. If your hair has quietly slipped down toward your ears on each side, leave it there. If you bring it up in strings and wisps it will merely look like climbing vines and will never really have the free and easy homelike appearance that ought to be the part of all natural hair.

Do not part your hair any earlier than you can help. Hair is in a hurry these days, anyway. Usually it doesn't stay more than long enough to make sure that the baby is going to be a boy before it hastens off. It will part of itself soon enough the best you can do.

Before combing your hair you should get acquainted with the architecture of your face. If your face is of the harvest moon variety do not inlay your hair. Puff it up as much as possible. It's better to look like a feather duster on a Monday morning than a scratched billiard ball on a Saturday night.

But if your face is of a long, galloping ensemble do not encourage your hair to fluff. Instead keep it down close to headquarters. If your head inclines to run up to a cone do not spread your hair around in imitation of a palm tree thatch. Rather fluff it up and windrow it for fear some unbred person will begin to talk about spring radish tops.—Homer Croy in Delineator.

UNCLE SAM'S DOCTORS.

Rank and Pay of Physicians In the Government Service.

Uncle Sam employs more than 1,000 physicians.

These doctors are pretty evenly divided between the medical corps of the army, the medical corps of the navy, the marine hospital and the public health service. The complete army medical corps includes 444 medical officers in addition to the medical reserve corps, the hospital corps, the nurse corps and the dental corps. The medical corps embraces "a surgeon general with the rank of brigadier general, 14 colonels, 105 majors and 300 captains or first lieutenants, with the rank, pay and allowances of officers of corresponding grades in the cavalry arm of the service."

The pay of doctors is interesting. The lowest rank held by medical officers is that of first lieutenant. The medical lieutenant gets $2,000 per annum, or $166.66 monthly. At the end of three years he is promoted to captain and receives $2,400 a year. In two years he receives an increase of 10 per cent, or five years' service, making $2,640, or $220 per month. After ten years' service the pay would be $2,880, or $240 per month. The pay attached to the rank of major is $3,000 per year, which, with 10 per cent added for each five years' service, becomes $3,600 after ten years' service, $3,900 after fifteen years' service and $4,000 after twenty years' service. The monthly pay of lieutenant colonel, colonel and brigadier general is $375, $416.66 and $500 respectively.

In addition to their salaries, officers are furnished with comfortable quarters and the keep of two horses free, and groceries, fuel, etc., at wholesale prices.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Bald Eagle's Nest.

Among birds the home of the bald eagle is perhaps the most striking, possibly because of the majesty of the bird itself. It appeals to the imagination. Built of huge sticks loosely interwoven and situated on some lofty and inaccessible ledge, with the bones of the eagle's victims scattered round about it, it gives a proper setting to the stern and savage character of its builder. Here the eagle reigns supreme, and here year after year he and his mate rear their young. This is the aerie from which he can scan the whole countryside and, like the robber barons of old, levy toll on all who pass his door.

Her Lost Jewels.

Backlotz—What's this I hear about Mrs. Swellman being robbed of her jewels? Subbubs—Fact. They're gone, and Mrs. Kraft is the guilty party. Backlotz—What! You don't mean to say she stole— Subbubs—What else can you call it? She offered the cook 15 shillings a week and the chambermaid 10 shillings, and now she's got 'em.—London Tit-Bits.

A Substitute.

"Pardon me, gentlemen," said the individual who had just moved into the little town as he entered the grocery store, "but is there a chicken raiser here?"

"Why don't you take an ax?" asked the village Talleyrand. "A razor will lose its edge if you use it on a chicken."

Who Pays for the Advertising?

Wou'dn't you prefer if you had a clothing store to sell a hundred suits of clothes in a day making an average profit of $2.00 per suit, to selling ten suits in a day, with an average profit of $5.00 per suit?

Suppose that, to sell the hundred suits a day you should spend, say $20.00 per day in advertising.

Who would be "taxed" for the advertising? Your patrons? Scarcely—when they pay you $3.00 less than they would have to pay for the identical suits to the merchant who does NOT advertise.

You? Scarcely—when you make a great deal more money than you would if you "saved" your advertising appropriation.

Your non-advertising competitor—in the penalty he pays for not doing so large a volume of business as he COULD do by advertising, and taking a smaller per-sale profit?

That's it—precisely!

The ...Veiled Lady...

Seaton sprang up, his hands clenched in despair. Vinton Maxwell, quieting him, discussed every point of the situation. "Beverly! you must control yourself. Let your mind alone act in the quest. Alas! for your poor heart." Maxwell finally said: "This black man must be hoodwinked. I gain but one important light from him. The war was still in progress; it was late in '63 when Hannibal saw her. How did she get within the Union lines? She must have had official help. Judge Seaton's orphaned daughter was a well-known rebel. You gained no news of her going openly, in your researches. She was surely aided by Union influences. For none of your people, bond or free, were made her confidants. Why did she turn to strangers; to a hostile influence? There lies the unsolved riddle."

"She never turned away from the South. The Seatons are no traitors, that is, to their own cause and race!" Beverly hotly interrupted.

"Be patient! Brother!" Maxwell kindly said. "Beverly! your high-spirited sister evinced no fear in the battle whirl of the Valley. She knew that your lands and estates were her dowry, as well as your fortune. What led her away in strange paths; what made her seal her past, so you alone would know her motive; what overmastering passion tore her from her parents' graves! from your love; from her home?" Maxwell paused,—his voice sounded solemnly.

"It was Hate! a thirst for Vengeance!" Seaton almost screamed, in reply. "Mine, alone, was the hand to have struck that blow!" the suffering Virginian cried, his face convulsed with deadly rage.

"Ah! Beverly," murmured Maxwell, "Was it Love? or Hate? Love turned to Hate, or worse yet, Hate that might turn again to Love? Reflect! She knew not if you lived. If you escaped, she knew you would meet Mrs. Goodenough. Her stern message laid the charge on you of holding the estate,—guarding the family name, and keeping an unbroken silence!"——

"Her purpose?" Seaton demanded.

"To effect her revenge alone; or to forego it at will. You have sketched no ordinary character. To be mistress of her own actions; to know of your future career from afar; to leave your heart unbroken. Think of the family pride; her passionate French blood; a nature rapidly developed by the changing drama of the war. You will never find her. She will watch you; shun you, and perhaps—" his voice trembled—"spare you. Let me think alone to-night. Try and sleep. Above all, patience. You must not frighten this negro. He will be a valuable ally. Show him no solicitude; and above all, never disclose this secret to any southern man! Keep away from Virginia, —from all your old friends. The future may bring you tidings. It will be by her free will, I think,—not by your search. Beverly!" Maxwell continued, "there is a great love and a great hatred linked in this disappearance. For her sake; for mine; for your own, you must calm yourself. Never breathe a word to Gordon. Jack knows the whole Shenandoah! Now sleep. Try to! And never show these letters to human being, useless forced to by new conditions. Her trust is in your silence!—You may be sure that she lives,—that she now knows you have her letter. Your sister (if still living) has watched all your movements at home. Be guided by me. Rest a year in some western city. Give up travel. It will bring her nearer to you. The woman who crossed the lines of two armies alone, and has buried every trace of her remarkable personality for three years, will choose her own time to speak.

"And when will she speak?" Seaton demanded; grasping his friend's hands with feverish clutch.

"When Love and Hate have fought their battle out!" Maxwell slowly said.

"Your meaning," Seaton almost demanded!

"Wait! Trust to the future! Let me think! This battle is neither won nor lost," Maxwell resolutely answered as he forced his friend to rest.

Under pretence of enjoying a cigar Vinton Maxwell sought the other car, where Hannibal eagerly awaited him. In a closed compartment, the porter hastened to relieve his mind: "I'se shu'ah you'se a true friend of Mr. Beverly, Capt'in," he began, "if my master's gwine to stay at you'se home. I kin tell you all, as you'se a military Capt'in from West Point. You'se got my life in you'ah hands when I'm done.

"Now, you see, when Marse Beverly he went to Lexington, Miss Beatrice was jess half growed up. I was house boy, and when de old Jedge done died, dar wus nobody but my ole Mammy to take keer of Miss Beatrice. Our people wus all gone off wid de officers; or runned away. Only some ole field hands wus left an' some women an' pickaninnies at de ole Hall. De ole Jedge he done died, when General Sheridan whipped Massa Early. It wus awful! We wus between de lines,—one week Yankee cavalry, and de next week Mosby's men. All a riding an' robbing an' shooten, and hackin'. I staid close to the house, an' my ole Mammy. They wus all rough on darkies. I done wait on Miss Beatrice, an' I used to go on to Woodstock, an' do all the errands. My ole Mammy she nursed our young Missus, and she's a died for her. Lord! what a beauty Miss Beatrice wus. She took on awful fur de ole Jedge; an' one day we got the news Massa Beverly wus killed, or took, on the Peninsula in the big fight. It wus a sad ole home. We hid all the plate and stuff. Miss Beatrice she do'an trust no one but Mammy Aggie an' me. An' we wait for de war to wind up. It wuz all cavin', in down thar. One moonlight night, I wuz a spyin' out I always laid out 'aroun' watchin' the place. Two or three times every week they come and clean us out. Fust one side, den the other.

"It wuz after the big battle at Winchester. I seed a man a runnin', and a sneakin' in the timber, and there wuz five or six of Mosby's men a-huntin' him on their horses, wid guns and pistols. He dropped down in some bushes. They beat all aroun' and wuz most nigh mad enough to kill me! I swore I never seed no one. Dey all knowed I wuz Jedge Seaton's man. I got to my ole Mammy an' got him some bread an' meat an' whisky. We had hid away some of the ole stuff of de Jedge's from de good days!——

"Den I got skeered, and tole Mammy Aggie I wuz afeared they would come back an' kill me. My ole Mammy wuz soft-hearted, an' by an' by I stepped out and find the pore hunted man in de bushes. Dat wuz de unlucky night fur us all. He tole me he wuz a Yankee colonel. He wuz wounded an' half starved, an' lost his way. He wuz all covered wid dirt, an' in a field hand's rig. He told me the guerillas would hang us all if he wuz cotched on our place, an' he wuz feared they would come back in daylight an' hang him too. I run back an' tole my Mammy an' she talked a long time with Miss Beatrice. Young Missus wuz broke down an' soft-hearted wid losing ole Massa, an'—as we thought—Massa Beverly, too. They made me sneak him in to hide him.

"We didn't dare to hide him in the negro quarters. Those guerilla devils would burn the whole place an' kill all the colored people. We don't dare to trust them field hands no more." Hannibal groaned, as he went on. His war experiences were too much for him. "Laws! what a sight the Yankee Colonel wuz. He wuz a young man an' nice lookin' enough when he wuz rigged up. We got him a little fixed up an' wuz goin' to hide him good. Befo—he was safe, more'n two dozen of them Mosby devils come back an' wuz poundin' at de door. I had to go down an' talk. Mammy Aggie wuz lookin' at him, her eyes runnin' wid tears. 'Give me a pistol,' he said; 'I'll kill myself, an' save your house.'"

"I never forgot Miss Beatrice a-standin' in de moonlight. We had all de lights out upstairs fer a blind. 'Come,' sez she, 'I wouldn't turn a dog out to die! I had a brother once; a soldier.' Fo' God! she done push him in her bedroom, an' hid him under the bed. 'Go down, Hannibal,' sez she, quiet-like, 'an' open de door.' I wuz froze stiff! When I open de door, a big Capt'in commence to choke me. When he got done, he sez: 'You black devil I want that damned Yankee. Where's your mistress?' When I got done chokin', I seed Miss Beatrice's standin' at de head of de stairs, with a silver candlestick in one han', and a loose gown on, as if she wuz dressin'.

"In a minute, dey run all over de house. When dey come to her room I wuz close by. She wuz standin' be-fo' the door. The big Capt'in had a six-shooter in his han'. Miss Beatrice had her door open. De lights wuz lit up in her room. 'That's my bed room,' she says, kin' o' proud-like. 'My name is Beatrice Seaton. Go in and find your Yankee!' The Capt'in's han' drop as if he's shot. They all cleared out bimeby. I watch 'em, and see they put four or five devils to watch de Hall. I come up stairs, and Miss Beatrice wuz laying in her chair, in the moonlight, an' ole Mammy rubbin' her head. She done swooned, an' de Yankee Colonel wuz kissin' her hands, an' cryin' like a dog."

Hannibal paused, his fear and excitement mastering him. "Go on! Tell me all!" harshly cried Maxwell.

"Now, what I'se feared to tell Mars' Beverly," the negro half whispered. "We don' dare sneak him out. De days run away in fear and trouble. De lan' wuz full of guerillas, an' we'd a' bin all murdered. Ole Mammy an' Miss Beatrice kep' him hid away, an' he wuz sick awful bad. I wuz on de watch two or three times—when the raiders come back. We had an ole wine cellar under de ole library, and when I giv' warnin', he got in there, an' young Missus set an' play the piano for signals. I tried to get some letters run out to the Yankee army. We don't dare trust no one. They wuz too fer off. He hadn't no sojer uniform, an' wuz afraid of bein' hung su'ah. So de days go on. An' now de worst." The negro shook his woolly head sadly.

"Ole Mammy Aggie call me one night, all alone, an' sez, 'Hannibal! I'se gone mad to see what's goin' on. Miss Beatrice done fallin' in love wid that Yankee Colonel. I mus' git him away somehow. An' I begin to watch an' spy. They wuz always together an' talkin' an' readin', and she singin' an' goin' on. He wuz all chipper now, an' all right. Ole Mammy Aggie wuz a bawn doctor, she patch him up. I hate him fer a'll dis trouble fer de family, but I can't give him up to the rebs. I wuz feared for all. I watch 'em close, an' I see old Mammy's right. De winter wuz on us, an' de robbers scattered. Ole Mammy don't tell me much. Miss Beatrice keep me on de look out. When January come we had awful bad news from Mars' Bob Lee's army, an' de Yankees down at Winchester wuz fixin' to move by thousan's down the Valley. Dey had done licked Mars' Early awful.

"Miss Beatrice aint got eyes or ears no mo'ah, only fer de Yankee. Ole Mammy waked me up one night, an' sez, 'Get up quick, Hannibal! There's some Yankee people pushin' down the Valley, an' you'se got to take this man out by the woods to get to his people. Miss Beatrice done break her heart for dis Yankee trash. I wish to God we'd never seed him. I jess hate him now.' I got up. I didn't see him say no good-bye! Missus wuz cryin' like mad, up stairs all fixed up! After moonrise, we stole out, an'

FRIENDS WANT INQUIRY

Relatives of Laushway Think Things Look Suspicious.

Stories Are Going the Rounds at South Mountain That Foul Play Enters Into the Death of Farmer—Detective Reburn Pooh-Poohs the Idea and Says the Case is Plainly One of Suicide.

Ottawa, Aug. 24.—A despatch to The Evening Citizen from South Mountain says:

"There is a general feeling here that the Attorney-General's Department should re-open the inquest into the cause of the death of James Laushway, who was found shot in the head at his home here, on the night of June 1, 1907. Stories recently circulated seem to incriminate two men, who lately left the district. The recent finding of the bloodstained coat in a berry field, a short distance from the scene of the tragedy, relatives think, should be enquired into. The coat had evidently been concealed where found in the corner of a fence for a long time, but stains are quite evident on the front lapels.

Peter Laushway, nephew of the late James Laushway, has possession of the coat.

Another theory in connection with the murder is that Laushway was murdered in the barn, and his body then carried into the house and laid on the bed.

Very little blood was found on the pillow, while he saw a great deal in the barn. It is reported here that Detective Rogers, who investigated the affair at the time, thought death was caused by suicide. Against this local constables point out that trunks were smashed open on the night of the tragedy and the house ransacked. They also state that deceased was a right-handed man, and that it would be practically impossible for him to shoot himself behind the left ear, where the wound, which caused his death was found.

Provincial Detective Henry Reburn said last night that the theory of murder was absurd. He had absolutely satisfied himself at the time that it was a case of suicide. The body was found lying in bed in night attire, with a revolver, recognized as belonging to the deceased, lying beside him. One chamber of the weapon was empty, and the bullet extricated from the dead man's head, behind the left ear, fitted the revolver. It would have been quite easy for a right-handed man to inflict such a wound, despite contrary reports.

The detective said that while a coroner's jury brought in a verdict of murder, additional facts uncovered, caused jurymen to change their opinions. Money was thought to be missing, but it was later found in the house.

Any discovery of blood stains in the barn or on a coat found outside the house were not significant, said Mr. Reburn, considering the fact that the shooting manifestly occurred in the bedroom. At the time, he had found no blood marks save on the bed. Moreover, the man had told a number of people that he thought of killing himself.

Broke Up the Wedding.

Windsor, Ont., Aug. 24.—Wedding arrangements of a white man, 28 years old, and a colored deaf mute, were interrupted when a man claiming to be the husband of the woman burst into the home of Rev. Mr. Jackson, pastor of the Colored Methodist Church, while the ceremony was in progress Monday night. Instead of being married, the groom spent the night at Windsor police headquarters.

Found Dead In Rig.

St. Thomas, Aug. 24.—William Minor, a farmer, aged 55, living on the third concession of Yarmouth, was found dead sitting in his buggy at the side of the road yesterday morning. The horse was unhitched and tied to the fence. Deceased leaves a widow.

Chauffeur's Reward.

New York, Aug. 24.—John Deans, the chauffeur, who speeded in pursuit of Edward T. Rosenheimer's automobile after it had killed Miss Grace Hough, will receive a reward of $1,000 from the father of the girl.

GATLIN INSTITUTE OF ONTARIO LIMITED DRINK HABIT CURED IN THREE DAYS

THREE DAYS AT THE GATLIN INSTITUTE is the price of freedom from the most enslaving habit that ever demanded salvation.

Story of the Gatlin Treatment

TEN YEARS ago it was announced, for the first time, that drunkenness WAS NOT a disease; that a harmless, simple method of treatment had been discovered that would cure the most seemingly hopeless case of drunkenness in THREE DAYS; that the heroic treatment, covering a period of from 28 to 42 days, with painful hypodermic injections, was a thing of the past as far as necessity for such existed; that craving, desire and physical demand for and inclination to drink intoxicating liquors were but EFFECTS of stored-up alcoholic poison in the system that with the removal of that poison, the CAUSE of continued drinking and drunkenness was done away with; that all craving and desire at once disappeared, leaving the drinker in the same mental and physical condition as the day he was born as regards liquor, and with no more inclination to drink it than the day he foolishly took his first drink. The announcement further stated that the Gatlin treatment was the only one in the world which would accomplish this—that all methods of treating drunkenness other than the Gatlin were based on a FALSE DIAGNOSIS of "alcoholism."

This announcement met with skepticism; but daily, stronger and stronger claims for the Gatlin treatment were made. Legal contracts were offered that any drunkard in any stage of the drink habit could take the Gatlin treatment, and if there was a failure to cure—failure to effect a cure more than satisfactory to the drinker himself and to his family—that if he was dissatisfied in any manner with either the cure, the treatment, the Gatlin Institute, or with any person or anything connected with the Gatlin Institute, all that was necessary was a simple expression of dissatisfaction and the full fee paid would be refunded when he was leaving the institute, and treatment should cost nothing.

That same proposition is still made, and has been constantly and continuously made for TEN YEARS.

The Gatlin treatment CURES—and it cures in THREE DAYS—there is not the slightest possibility of failure.

The Gatlin Institutes began to grow—patients flocked to them by scores—then the cures effected ran into the hundreds—then into the thousands. These cures were of the LASTING KIND which made the Gatlin treatment famous. The Gatlin Institutes couldn't possibly accommodate all those who desired the treatment—other institutions became necessary, and others are opening throughout the continent.

Gatlin Institutes are now in operation at 340 So. Highland ave., East End, Pittsburg, Pa.; 1919 Prairie ave., Chicago, Ill.; 403 Seventh st., So., Minneapolis, Minn.; 1333 Jefferson st., Kansas City, Mo.; 1414 Seventh st., Parkersburg, W. Va.; 1323 High st., Des Moines, Iowa; 27 So. C st., Tacoma, Wash.; 434 Queen Anne ave., Seattle, Wash., and London, Eng., now being opened, with the GATLIN INSTITUTE OF ONTARIO NOW OPEN AND DOING BUSINESS AT 428 JARVIS STREET, TORONTO, ONT.

A Private Sanitarium Successfully Treating ALCOHOLISM

REPRESENTATIVE ONTARIO CITIZENS CONTROL THE GATLIN INSTITUTE

A GATLIN INSTITUTE was needed in Canada—a treatment that would cure quickly and perfectly without the disagreeable features of hypodermic injections, strong drugs, SUBSTITUTE STIMULANTS, and a loss of from 28 to 42 days of time—a treatment with merit enough to convince the public that EIGHTY PER CENT. of its patients did not RELAPSE—had become a public necessity.

A company composed of representative citizens, physicians and business men of Ontario—men of means, of reputation and of extensive interests here—was formed, and the exclusive right to use the Gatlin treatment in Ontario was secured. The cost of this right was not at all small, neither was the opening and fitting up of the splendid Gatlin Institute at No. 8 Howard street done at small cost. Inside of one year these quarters were outgrown by the rapidly increasing business, and it became necessary to seek a larger building for the Institute. The present location, No. 428 Jarvis street, gives ample room, and affords the best-equipped institution in Ontario for the successful treatment of alcoholism. We KNOW what the Gatlin treatment will do—we KNOW that there does not exist a case of drunkenness on earth that it will fail to cure—we KNOW what the demand for the Gatlin treatment will be when we have succeeded in convincing you that there is now a REAL CURE for the liquor habit—an easy, safe, harmless cure, which you can take in the comfortable quarters of our homelike institution or in the privacy of your own home, requiring a period of but THREE DAYS.

If it proves difficult to convince YOU that the Gatlin treatment is all and more than it is claimed to be just think how difficult it must have been to convince US that the Gatlin treatment had merit enough to warrant us in investing many, many thousands of dollars in the Gatlin Institute of Ontario. We know of many quacks who had prostituted their profession for a few paltry dollars; we knew that other liquor habit treatments, in a sense, were failures; we were so well acquainted with the "world" and with the fact that it is easy to make claims and statements, that it took ten times as much proof and argument to reason us into investing OUR money in the Gatlin Institute of Ontario as we will have to use to get YOU to take the Gatlin treatment and STOP DRINKING.

Anyone interested is respectfully invited to call at the Institute, 428 Jarvis street, corner Maitland, Toronto, Ont., or write for books of particulars and copies of contracts to cure. Long distance and local telephone, North 4538. A. Hargrave, Manager.

ALCOHOL IS AN UNNATURAL, SYSTEM-POISONING, brain-wrecking, will-breaking drink, and all powers of resistance fall under its attack.

Liquor Drinking Men of Business

BUSINESS MEN—which includes lawyers, doctors, managers of corporations and higher salaried men, merchants, bankers, brokers—who drink liquor FAIL sooner or later. Each one of them will charge his failure to HARD LUCK. But that charge is false. The loss of executive ability, WEAKENED MENTALITY, impaired judgment, gross neglect—to WHISKEY DOING THE THINKING—are direct EFFECTS of charging the system with the cumulative poison of alcohol, and the CAUSE of their business troubles.

The Gatlin treatment will, in THREE DAYS, remove every trace of alcoholic poison from your system, without any inconvenience whatever to yourself; in THREE DAYS it will take you right back to the condition you were in the first day you ever took a drink of liquor, with no more craving for or desire to drink it than you had on that day. What liquor drinker, who has a vestige of his normal brain left, is there in this world who would not eagerly return to that day? What one, with the experience he has had in liquor drinking, would take that FIRST DRINK if he could but go back to that FIRST DAY?

Come to the Gatlin Institute—take the Gatlin treatment, or send for the Gatlin Home treatment. It will make a new man of you; will return to you your old-time normal brain—your old-time personality that was carrying you along the road to SUCCESS rapidly until you ran up against liquor; it will chase HARD LUCK from your business by driving the accumulated poison from your system and thereby do away with the CAUSE of your appetite and craving for liquor.

You, or your employe, or your friend, will be accepted for treatment at the Gatlin Institute under a plainly-worded, legally executed contract that a CURE shall be effected in THREE DAYS—a cure that will be entirely satisfactory to yourself and to your family—that every claim made for the Gatlin treatment and what it will accomplish in THREE DAYS shall be verified in your case, or at the end of the third day the full fee you pay for treatment shall be refunded and treatment shall cost NOTHING. Any expression of dissatisfaction with either the cure in your case, with the treatment, with the Gatlin Institute, or with its management, when you are leaving the Institute, will mean that the fee paid shall at once be refunded. Remember, the money you pay the Gatlin Institute for a CURE has not changed ownership until you are satisfied that you are cured and that the Gatlin Institute has earned its fee.

Institute located at 428 Jarvis street, corner Maitland. Take Church street car; ask for Maitland street stop. Institute two short blocks east. Call or write for books of particulars, copies of contracts and other information. Book and full particulars mailed, sealed, in plain envelope. Long distance and local telephone. North 4538.

Consider Your Value To Your Family

No, Madam, man was not made for work.
Nor woman for that matter.
Work, mind you, was made for man to secure certain desirable and necessary returns.
So that the homemaker who works unnecessarily long and hard to secure the returns she requires, thereby robs herself and her family, don't you see.
Don't do it, Madam. Conserve your abilities, your resources as much as possible.
Don't sacrifice needlessly your energy and your health over mixing bowl or oven.

* * * *

It's because FIVE ROSES flour husbands your time, and temper, and money; because FIVE ROSES responds immediately to your hopes.
It's because it works so easily in dough and batter.
It's because it saves so much disappointment, Madam, that we ask you to try it once, just once.
If you have special skill, special training, special fitness for making good things to eat, these should especially advantage yourself and your family.
And FIVE ROSES gives you dollar for dollar, satisfying results, wonderful baking consequences for least labor and cost.

* * * *

You simply can't be a doubter, Madam, when thousands of happy housewives raise aloft their rolling pins and cry: "All this has FIVE ROSES done for me." Try to get them to go back to the ranks of mediocrity after they have once known FIVE ROSES. Get them to cheapen voluntarily their cooking reputation, to forego their pride and value as housewives.
'Tis hard sometimes to win one from cheap flour, but FIVE ROSES makes it impossible to go back.
Make yourself more valuable, Madam.
Can YOU afford to be without FIVE ROSES another single day?

Camel Carriages.

Camel carriages are not common conveyances in most parts of India, but on the great trunk road leading to Delhi they are frequently to be seen. They are large, double story wagons, drawn sometimes by one, sometimes by two or even three camels, according to their size. Iron bars which give them a cagelike appearance were originally intended as a defense against robbers, and the carts were probably also used for the conveyance of prisoners.

The tipping habit is bad enough nowadays, but in the eighteenth century it was a greater evil than it is at the present time. A writer in the Cornhill Magazine tells some stories to illustrate the old condition of things.

In Edinburgh in 1760 tipping became such an evil that the Society of Clerks enacted that all servants should be forbidden to take tips and members be forbidden to give them. This example was followed by other clubs and societies. Today there is a rule in most clubs against feeing the servants.

An eccentric Irish gentleman, Lord Taaffe, used to attend his guests to the door, and if they offered any money to the servants who were lined up with the guests' baggage the host would say, "If you give, give it me, for it was I that did buy the dinner."

A well known colonel while sitting at dinner inquired the names of the host's servants. "For," said he, "I cannot pay them for such a good dinner, but I should like to remember them in my will."

Another eccentric gentleman after patiently redeeming his hat, sword, cane and cloak to the very bottom of his purse turned to the two remaining servants who were waiting obsequiously, each with a glove, and said affably: "Keep those. I will not trouble to buy them back. They are old and not worth a shilling."

SPEARING THE CACTUS.

Customs of the Natives of the Mexican State of Sinaloa.

Sinaloa is a long state, comparable almost with Chile, as it lies along the west coast of Mexico, just as Chile lies along the Pacific shore of South America.

Like most new countries, the most interesting part of this fertile state is its inhabitants, possibly because the country is so fertile. Game is abundant and easily caught, and the fruit of the great pithaya cactus is ripe almost from season to season. Every native, whether mounted or afoot—and most natives ride—carries a slender stick ten feet long, sharpened at one end and the point hardened with fire.

One supposes these sticks to be rather primitive lances until one sees the Indian spear a cactus fruit from a branch seven or eight feet above his head. These pithayas contain many seeds and a little blood red pulp, all of which, except the spines, is food for the Indian.

All day long these Indian men wander through the jungle, a wall of green broken only here and there by the old trails of half wild cattle, gathering the cactus fruit. It would seem that some would be dried or at least taken to the brush jacal, which represents home to the Indian. But, no; he sits down and eats what he gathers immediately. If his wife wants any of the fruit she goes and gets it herself. She also gathers the food for the babies.—Forest and Stream.

Making a Schedule.

"You have moved farther out into the country."

"Yes," replied the commuter. "I think I have timed the trip about right now. It got to be a nuisance to always find myself at the station before our rubber of whist was finished."—Washington Star.

Why It Shrieked.

"Did you hear the shriek that engine gave as it flew by?" asked the first man as they approached a railroad crossing.

"Yes. What caused it?" rejoined his companion.

"I presume the engineer had it by the throttle."—Smart Set.

We have the remedy in the "Schram Automatic Fruit Jars." No glass top, galvanized ring or separate rubber to bother with.

Are these Jars expensive? NO, they cost less than the old kind.

Have they proven a success? Yes.

Step into our store and we will supply you with a list of people in the city and vicinity who used the jar for 1909 season and recommend it.

Popular Hockey Player is Dead.

WALTER H. REEVES PASSED AWAY LAST NIGHT AT THE RESIDENCE OF HIS PARENTS AFTER LONG ILLNESS.

Many expressions of regret were heard on the streets this morning when it became known that Walter Hope Reeves, for several seasons a popular hockey player, had died last night.

The deceased had had a long and lingering illness, and the cause of death is said to have been abscess of the liver, caused, it is alleged by injuries received in a hockey match between Trenton and Belleville on the 18th of January last. The injured lad took to his bed on the 12th of February, and stayed there till death ended his sufferings last night.

He was a bright, clever and popular young man, and many sincere friends will mourn his untimely end. He was in his 22nd year, was born in Belleville, and leaves, besides his parents, four brothers and one sister to grieve. The brothers are Bert, William, John and Cecil, and the sister is Miss Pearl.

Drnnk Arrested Had Bottie ot Poison.

The police yesterday arrested a stranger who gave his name as Robert Mackie. People who saw him say he was "seeing things," and was nearly in the "blues," as the result of excessive drinking. In the man's possession was a large flask about half full of colorless liquid. The bottle was marked poison. It smelt like sulphuric acid. With this the man it was alleged, was polishing up cents so that, at night, they might easily be taken for silver coins. After the man was arrested the police telephoned a doctor, who said the liquid in the bottle was a strong acid, and ordered that it be taken from the prisoner. The doctor also prescribed some food and other things for the man who, this morning, was in much better shape.

This morning Mackie was fined $5 or eight days for drunkenness. He is now a guest of the Hotel de Ketcheson. His bottle was returned him.

Roller Rolled Back.

Yesterday Fred Arnott and Frank Meagher, who are engaged in sidewalk construction, reported that a roller, their property, had been taken from Peter Milne's barn, where it was stated it was stored. This morning it was said the roller had been returned.

Police Notes.

The guardians of the peace yesterda and last night gathered in five men, all of whom had been hitting the juice of the forbidden fruit. They were mostly strangers.

The police were called to the station at 6.30 last evening to look after a drunk, who felt so strong and elated that he thought he could almost push a freight car off the track. A relative had whispered wisdom in the man's ear and removed him before the cops hove in sight.

A drunk on Mill street was warbling "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly," and somebody sent in an alarm. The police couldn't see Kelly or anybody else when they arrived.

An Auto Ran Away.

BUT WAS CLEVERLY STOPPED BY CYCLIST.

Kingston, August 23 — But for the prompt action of Jas. Brickwood, an employee of Moore's garage, an auto belonging to Mr. Robinson, dry goods merchant of Napanee, would have undoubtedly come to grief yesterday afternoon. The car had been left in front of the British American, while the occupants went into the hotel To the great surprise of some spectators, the car, which had been left in gear with the power still on, started off with no person to guide its uncertain way. The more fearful of the onlookers foresaw a smash up as the guideless car began going down the decline on Clarence street toward Ontario street. But just when they were preparing themselves for the worst Mr. Brickman dashed by on his wheel, he sprang into the auto and in less time than it takes to tell it he had brought the machine to a stop, winning much admiration from the spectators for his promptness and presence of mind.

Mr. Robinson ran out of the hotel expecting to find that his car had come to grief, but was immensely relieved to see it standing still unharmed. He was profuse in his thanks to Mr. Brickwood for saving his car from doing damage either to himself or some person or property.

Inquest on Dead Indian Was Begun.

EVIDENCE OF THOSE WHO WITNESSED THE ACCIDENT — ADJOURNED TILL FRIDAY.

The Coroner's inquest in the case of young Allan Brant, the Indian who was killed at the Lehigh Portland Cement works on Friday night last, was continued yesterday at Point Ann.

Coroner D. Yeomans presided.

The following parties, who had either witnessed the accident or knew of it, gave evidence.

Joseph Jackson
Arthur Burtt
T. A. McGinnis
Elmer French
Lewis Reid
Harry A. Black
George James
Bert Perry
Isaac Maracle
Cora Sager

It was shown in the evidence that the deceased had worked all Friday, the day of the accident, and then went to work again at night. He had worked 14 hours that day, but entirely, the foreman said, of his own will

After hearing the evidence of the parties at Point Ann, the inquest was adjourned till Friday next, when the medical evidence will be submitted.

Wild Pigeons in Prince Edward Co.

A flock of wild pigeons, twenty-two in number, came to Jackson Bongard's farm, Point Traverse Prince Edward County, about two weeks ago, and are still remaining there very content. From where they came is a mystery. A short time ago a New Yorker offered $2000 for a nest of wild pigeons and it is believed that this specie of bird has become totally extinct. Mr. Bongard is watching them very carefully with the hope that they will remain permanently and breed. Hunters should be careful not to molest them.

THE SEPTEMBER BRIDE.

Peterboro Review.

The September bride will soon be with us, and the Belleville Intelligencer says that it is high time the groom got a notice. Quite so.

The bride looked charming; the bride was attended; the bride carried a bouquet; the bride wore orange blossoms; the bride entered the church leaning on the arm of her father; the bride was bewitching. And never a word about the groom. He, poor devil, who has to pay the expenses very, very often. Why not say the groom's massive brow, the groom's splendid moustache, the groom's broad shoulders, the groom's eyes his nose, his raven hair, the groom's nerves, the groom was strictly sober

This will add variety to the old chestnut about the charming bride bewitchingly attired.

Five Dollar Day.

This was five dollar day in the police court. Peter Connors, of Point Ann, a drunk, was fined $5 or eight days. He was given till September 8 to raise the money, and was let go.

Henry Dickinson, a stranger, got the same dose, but he went up on the hill.

Another drunk was also assessed $5. His case is recorded elsewhere.

Was Taggart, the Insane Murderer, Seen in Belleville?

SOME PEOPLE SAY HE WAS — RECOGNIZED HIM BY PICTURE IN PAPERS.

Was Robert Taggart, the insane murderer who escaped from the Hamilton Asylum with "Soldier" Moir seen in this city?

Thereby hangs a tale.

A few nights ago a man called at the residence of Mr. J. G. Davison Ann st., and asked for something to eat. The family had just finished tea, and Miss Davison told the man to sit down in the kitchen, and got him some food. The young lady, it seems, had read of the Asylum escape, and had seen the pictures of Moir and Taggart in the papers. She was at once struck by the resemblance of the man in the kitchen to Taggart, and when he turned his head and she got a side view, her conviction grew stronger. The young lady left the man in the kitchen and went in the diningroom, where there was a paper which contained the story of the escape and the escaped men's pictures. Peeping out through the crack between the door and jamb she compared the picture with the man at the table, and was firmly convinced that he was Taggart.

The young lady then ran and told her suspicions to a neighbor. He smiled at the idea. Taggart, he said had just been seen in Beamsville It could not possibly be him. Anyhow, he had no time to do anything

When the suspected man had finished his supper he quietly withdrew and was seen no more.

Is This the Man.

Shortly after noon to-day a telephone message was received by the police stating that E. S. Wait, farmer of the Second Concession of Sidney reported a strange-looking man wandering about through his fields. The man was apparently about 5 feet 10 inches high, weighed about 175, was dressed in trampish-looking clothes and was apparently about 60 years old.

County Constable Duffin and Police Sergeant Naphin got ready in a hurry and drove to Mr. Wait's farm.

A False Alarm.

Sergt. Naphin and Constable Duffin got back about 2.30. They found the suspicious character all right. It was an old Indian, who was hunting ginseng. He was a hard looking citizen, but perfectly harmless.

The British navy recently built a light draft gunboat in ten sections, each of which will float separately, for shipment on a larger vessel to a colonial possession.

EXIT MR. MADRIZ.

A Few Parting Shots Speed Him on His Flight.

Washington, Aug. 24.—The final word telling of the passing into history of the Madriz Government at Managua, was received at the State Department yesterday in an official despatch from U. S. Consul Olivarez, stationed at Managua.

The message was dated 11 p.m. Saturday. It told of the disorder that preceded the downfall of Madriz and Managua, the escape of the defeated President from the city as shots were fired at his train and the assumption that the Presidency and the command of the local troops by the brother of the revolutionary leader, Gen. Juan Estrada.

Officials of the penitentiary at Managua, where 700 prisoners were confined, called at the U. S. consulate on Friday night and voluntarily made affidavits to the effect that the commandant of the prison had hatched a plot to blow up the institution and its inmates in the event of the downfall of the Madriz faction. Prisoners from foreign nations were among those behind the bars.

The American and foreign consuls at Managua promptly laid the matter before Madriz, who undertook to look into the charges. On Saturday morning Madriz dismissed the commandant of the prison. Before Madriz had abandoned his office that afternoon the prison, left without guards, had emptied its inmates into the streets. About 600 of the prisoners had been arrested for political reasons. Many of them obtained rifles and roamed the streets, in some cases firing upon troops of the Madriz faction.

Auto Under Construction Train.

New York, Aug. 24.—Two persons were killed and nine, including the train conductor, were hurt yesterday afternoon when an automobile crushed into the side of a construction train on the Long Island Railroad, at the Merrick road crossing at Springfield, Queensborough. Four others were less seriously injured.

The automobile, which belonged to Adolph Hirsch of Far Rockaway, encountered closed gates at the crossing, which had been lowered by the gateman because of a passing freight train. On the other side of the freight train was the construction train, unseen by the gateman or the automobile party. So when he raised the gates, just as the freight went by, the automobile shot forward and jammed itself under the flat car of the construction train.

Pinned in this fashion and with the flat car careened on its trucks, the automobile was dragged more than 200 feet, finally rolling down the embankment with one of the flat cars.

Set Door on Fire.

St. Thomas, Aug. 24.—George Fox, a lad living at the home of Matt Doyle of the 7th concession of Yarmouth, awakened by illness at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, discovered that some burning material was attached to the door knob of the room in which Misses Margaret and Josephine Doyle were sleeping.

Investigation showed that the house had been entered by a bedroom window. The city police were able to track the intruder some distance. About a month ago the house was entered and Miss Margaret Doyle was attacked by a man.

It is said suspicion points to a man who imagines he has a grievance against the Doyles, but that his actions are intended to frighten and intimidate rather than to cause actual harm.

Fomenting Big Marine Strike.

Copenhagen, Aug. 24.—An international congress of sailors and marine firemen opened here yesterday, attended by about 100 delegates, including representatives from North and South America and from the British and Danish Sailors' and Firemen's Unions.

The meeting has been arranged by those desiring to bring about a general international strike of firemen and sailors, to support the demand for better wages and conditions of work for seamen and stokers, but only the representatives of the British union and a few Americans are in favor of it.

Tornado In Michigan.

Ludington, Mich., Aug. 24.—Damage estimated at a million dollars was done by a tornado here Monday night, and the small steamer Golden Age, carrying Mrs. J. Boyd and son, said to be of Grand Rapids, Mich., is thought to be lost in Lake Michigan.

Fruit trees suffered enormous damage and many buildings were unroofed.

The storm swept all through western Michigan.

At Boyne City two launch parties are reported missing on Pine Lake.

Twelve Stitches In His Heart.

New York, Aug. 24.—With twelve stitches in his heart, Samuel Harmon, a waiter, is sleeping peacefully today in a hospital here. He was stabbed by a customer who objected to the quality of the soup he served.

The operations, which physicians say is the seventh of its kind in the history of all surgery, was technically successful, and it seems more than possible that Harmon will live.

Compulsory Military Service.

London, Aug. 24.—The British militarist campaign in favor of compulsory training is taking shape rapidly. It is being pushed by the Tory press generally, but more especially by the ultra-Conservatives London Express. The proposition is to allow exemption only upon payment of a tax.

Five Years and the Lash.

Woodstock, Aug. 24.—Judge Finkle yesterday sentenced Lloyd Forbes, 28 years of age, a young farmhand from Dakota, to five years in the penitentiary with 15 lashes, for criminal assault on a child of 14. It was shown that the offence had continued for three years previous.

Held Up Street Cars.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Aug. 24.—In true wild west fashion two masked highwaymen held up two cars of the Wilkes-Barre Traction Co. shortly before midnight and robbed and terrorized passengers and employes.

Designed to withstand earthquakes, the foundations of Mexico's $6,000,000 national theatre, building at Mexico City, have shown themselves proof against several severe shocks.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Two special trains, containing 3,000 harvesters, left Montreal by the C.P.R yesterday for the West to harvest the wheat crop.

A move is on foot to buy a new area at Rockliffe Park, Ottawa, for a new Government House, and an appropriation is likely to be asked for the purpose.

At St. John, N.B., Judge Forbes sentenced four men to Dorchester Penitentiary. David Hennessy, for striking a man on the head with a paving block, got five years.

The water in the St. Lawrence River ship channel is already 5 1-2 inches below the proper mark, and fears are expressed that the big ocean liners will soon be unable to reach Montreal.

Clifford, the two-year-old son of A. McDonald, living on the outskirts of Woodstock, in the absence of his mother, endeavored to chew up a poisonous fly pad. The youngster was found on the floor in a very serious condition.

Chief Commissioner Mabee and Dr. Mills will represent the Railway Commission at the western sittings which will commence at Fort William next week, and be resumed at Victoria and Vancouver, with sittings later on at Nelson, Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, Winnipeg and other points.

Taft Promises More Revision.

Beverley, Mass., Aug. 24.—President Taft's keynote for the coming Congressional campaign became known here last night. He will favor a further revision of the tariff. While he is still convinced that the Payne-Aldrich tariff law is the best tariff the country has ever had, he has at last concluded that there is room for improvement.

Mr. Taft does not propose that business shall be upset by another wholesale revision, but he will recommend to Congress that individual schedules be taken up separately and disposed of on a scientific basis. The new revision is to be based upon the findings of the tariff commission as to the cost of production at home and abroad. Only a fair profit is to be allowed the American producer.

"Extortionate and unreasonable profits," the President declares, "are to be tolerated no longer."

The President has outlined his position in detail in the letter he has sent to Representative McKinley for publication in the Republican Congressional campaign text-book. The letter was mailed from Beverley yesterday afternoon. The time of making it public has been left to the judgment of the committee.

Two Superintendents.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 24.—By a vote of 212 to 92 the General Conference yesterday afternoon decided to elect two general superintendents instead of one, after a warm debate. The elections will be held to-day. The recommendation of the committee was that three superintendents be appointed one to reside west of Ontario and another east of Ontario.

This was strongly supported by J. A. M. Aikins, Winnipeg, who urged the election of three, and said that in the past the general superintendent had not done all he had been expected to do, not because of lack of energy, but it was impossible for any human being to cover the ground of the whole Dominion. He wished specially to advocate the claims of western Canada, where there was a nation in formation. One reason why the Presbyterian Church had been so successful in the West was because of the wonderful work of Dr. Robertson, missionary superintendent. The Methodist Church needs such a man for the western conferences. This part of the denomination should be well supervised and kept in touch with other sections of the Church.

Doctors Wouldn't Attend.

Toronto, Aug. 24.—Lying on the floor of his room at 17 Agnes street, the body of Robert Spencer Fox, aged 30, was found by his sister when she went to call him yesterday morning. He had previously been talking to some workmen from his window. Fox lived with his sister, Mrs. John Irvine, whose little boy was drowned a week ago. Coroner Pickering will enquire.

Mrs. Jane Keeley, a widow, aged 60 died in her room at 143 West Adelaide street early yesterday after five unsuccessful efforts had been made by those in the house to secure medical attendance for her. The doctors called refused to attend. The body was taken to the morgue, but an inquest is unlikely.

Give Thanks for Courtesies.

Ottawa, Aug. 24.—Archbishop Bruchesi of Montreal and Monsigneur Tampiere, private secretary to Cardinal Merry del Val, called on Hon. Charles Murphy, Secretary of State, yesterday, and formally expressed their thanks for the courtesies that will be extended by members of the Government to visiting cardinals and prelates attending the approaching eucharistic congress at Montreal. They also approved the arrangements for a public reception, at which Sir Wilfrid Laurier and other Cabinet Ministers will attend.

Are These Englishmen Spies?

Emden, Germany, Aug. 24.—A second Englishman, in addition to one captured Monday at Borkum, was arrested yesterday at Borkum on suspicion that he also is a spy. He offered violent resistance to arrest.

It was reported that photographs had been taken of the fortifications at Borkum and of the new defence works on the Island of Wangeroog.

Taggart Near Brantford.

Brantford, Aug. 24.—Local authorities have received reports that Taggart, the escaped murderer from the Hamilton Asylum, has been seen in the vicinity of Jerseyville.

A man answering Taggart's description also camped along Fairchild's Creek.

Cocaine Seller Caught.

Montreal, Aug. 24.—After months of work the police have trapped a druggist in the open sale of cocaine. They arrested on Sunday two boys who had cocaine on them. They gave the name of the druggist.

Though the earth is adding 100 tons of extraneous matter, such as meteoric particles and cosmic dust, a day, it will take 1,000,000,000 years for it to accumulate a layer an inch thick all over.

Cost of New Welland Canal.

Ottawa, Aug. 24.—A report is expected to be ready for the forthcoming session on the cost of the projected new route of the Welland Canal.

A rough estimate places the cost at $50,000,000. This would provide a 21-foot waterway. It is pointed out, however, that would be only the beginning. In connection with the scheme it would also be necessary to deepen the St. Lawrence canals.

Canucks' Low Tender.

Albany, N.Y., Aug. 24.—Bids were received yesterday for one of the most important contracts on the barge canal, involving the reconstruction of the locks at Lockport, N.Y. The lowest bidder was Larkin & Sangster of St. Catharines, Ont. The bid was $1,149,402, as against the state engineer's estimate for the work of $1,290,880. There were four other bidders.

Milady's Mirror

To prevent stringiness and the showing of ugly cords in the neck massage the throat every night with a cream made from two gills of spermaceti, two ounces of white wax, ten ounces of almond oil, forty grains of borax powdered and ten drops each of oil essences of bergamot and rosemary. A pinch of powdered camphor should be put with the cream while it is melting, or half a teaspoonful of tincture of benzoin may be added.

Before this or any other cream is applied the throat must be carefully washed at night and the cream rubbed from chin to chest with a rotary motion. This work should last for five minutes at least. At the expiration of that time the cream may be lightly wiped off and a lotion made from a pint of high proof alcohol to an ounce of tincture of benzoin applied.

Following this, the head is to be bent back as far as it will go, which should be enough to stretch the throat cords, and alternating with the backward tilt the head must droop forward until the chin rests upon the chest. Afterward the head must be twisted first to one side and then to the other, the object of these movements being to keep cords and muscles strong and elastic and prevent their sagging and so destroying the throat contour.

The cream described above may also be rubbed into hollows of the chest to fill them out.

A woman who carries her head well —that is, the chin up—is less apt to lose the beauty of her throat than one who permits her head to droop forward. As a matter of fact, the head held up, the chin in place, is a beauty not common, but adds enormously to the effect of presence and distinction. A mistake not unusual to those trying to cultivate the habit is to thrust out the chin.

The Feet and Success.

The condition of the feet has a direct influence over one's success in life. Pain and discomfort make one irritable, and people are apt to attribute the irritability to a naturally bad temper. Moreover, pain and discomfort distract one's attention from business, be this social or commercial. On every account it is of great importance to have the feet as easy as possible. These remarks are merely passing touches of a subject whose full treatment would fill a volume. And in regard to considering ways and means you must be equally concise. One rule is to have the feet sufficiently warm and pleasantly cool. Another is to keep the feet dry, not merely on account of possible chills, but because moisture tends to make soft corns and to so soften the skin that friction may cause tenderness. Footgear, including socks and their substitutes, should be neither tight nor loose, but should fit easily. Tight boots cause pain by pressure. Loose boots occasion blisters and corns by friction. The uppers must be soft and pliable to accommodate themselves to the altered shape of the feet when standing, sitting, etc. The soles should be pliable. When they are stiff the feet are either lifted off the ground without the foot soles being bent, which is tiring and makes the walk hideous, or the feet are wearied by the effort at each step to bend the boot soles.

What's What In Hairdressing.

The matter of hairdressing this summer, says an authority, as regards the big shade hat or the motor hat resolves itself into the simple proposition of trimming the face. The woman who is able to trim her face with best results will have achieved the greatest triumph in hairdressing. As for the top of the head, it doesn't show much, and a simple bun surrounded with an appropriate design in puffs or coils or braids will do.

Hairdressing for the hat is divided into three parts—the utility part, when the hair is fastened where it ought to be so that there is something to build upon; the artistic part, which is after the hat is put on and the hair is draped to meet the knot at the back of the head and secured firmly, and the gay or picturesque part, when the little pin curls are tucked in and the final fancy pins are fixed in place.

Hairdressing as it should be done takes time. You do it slowly and you take infinite pains with it, but when once it is done it is done for all day. You don't have to keep repairing it.

To Prevent Tartar.

Tartar being an enemy to sound teeth and healthy gums, care should be taken to prevent tartar from forming. Use frequently a solution of tincture of myrrh, enough in a glassful to make it milky in color. The mouth should be carefully rinsed with an antiseptic wash immediately upon arising and before going to sleep. A good wash is made by adding one or two teaspoonfuls of listerine to a glassful of tepid water, but this must not be used too constantly. Another good mouth wash is thymol, seven and a half grains; borax, fifteen grains; distilled water, one pint.

A refrigerating dish for dining tables invented by an Ohioan has a hollow lid, sufficiently large to hold two handfuls of broken ice.

3,000 YEARS AGO THE EGYPTIANS CURED DISEASE WITH FRUIT

To-day, Canadians Are Doing It With "Fruit-a-tives"

—The Famous Fruit Medicine

We are apt to consider the age we live in as the most wonderful age that the world has ever known. It is, in many respects. Yet the ancients surpassed us in some things. Engineers of our 40-story sky-scrapers still marvel at the massive pyramids and the sphinx. So, too, the Egyptian physicians of 3,000 years ago, used fruit juices as a medicine for treating blood trouble, liver and kidney disease, and stomach weakness. Their method of mixing fruit juice as a medicine, is also one of the lost arts. A well known Canadian physician, however, perfected a method of utilizing fruit juices, which is one of the greatest discoveries of modern medical research.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the natural cure for Chronic Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, Torpid Liver, Kidney Disease, Pain in the Back, Bad Complexion, Rheumatism, Nervousness, Headache and Neuralgia.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. At all dealers, or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

TO-DAY'S SPECIALS.

Horrible Accident on Grand Trunk Railway in Michigan This Morning-19 Passengers Burned to Death.

(Intelligencer Special.)

Durand, Mich., August 25 — Nineteen persons, mostly Pullman passengers, in the Chicago and Montreal Grand Trunk express, were killed and incinerated four miles east of here early to-day when Grand Trunk passenger train No. 4 crashed into the rear end of the express, cutting the Pullman in half and trapping all its twenty passengers.

The wreckage caught fire, and at dawn was burning fiercely.

Portions of the bodies not taken out were visibly dropping down into the embers.

Later Details.

Durand, Mich., August 25 — The Montreal express from Chicago, consisting of nine coaches and running as train 14, stopped at Duffield, four miles east, to make some slight repairs to the locomotive. Engineer George Mitchell was under his engine when the crash came and was seriously injured.

His fireman, George Nelson, has been brought here this morning, fatally scalded.

Brakeman G. N. Graham, of Detroit, had been sent to the rear of No. 14 to post danger signals. He says he did so, but will not commit himself as to the rear lights of the train. He has been brought here, pending an investigation of the wreck.

Engineer Charles Spencer, of passenger train No. 4, was running fast to make up a few lost minutes. He declares he put on the brakes and reversed as soon as he heard the torpedo, placed on the tracks to warn him, but that it was too late. He says No. 14 had no tail lights.

Passengers Had No Chance For Lives

His fireman is missing, and it is thought he is dead.

No. 4 ploughed through the rear of the Pullman like a stick through sand.

The passengers had no chance for their lives.

It is said here that both crews, excepting the engine crews, were strike breakers, held over by the Grand Trunk.

One survivor here is Clinton A Davis, 226 Stanley street, Montreal. He was en route from Fargo, N. D with his mother, who was an invalid and a trained nurse. Davis states that both of these were burned to death in the fire, and their bodies could not be recovered. He is burned about the face and cut in several places, but the physicians think he will recover.

J. H. Studymire, colored, porter on the Pullman coach "Nebrask," which was the one that was hit, says he is not sure how many were in his coach. He was in the forward part of the train when the crash came, and was uninjured.

R. W. Lewis, a newspaper man from Paducah, Ky., with four other men, was in the front coach of the wrecked train when the collision came. They were all thrown into a heap. As soon as they were able to get out they started back to the rear of the train and assisted in removing the injured and those bodies that could be recovered.

Fiercely fighting the flames that were quickly making it impossible to ever know the complete cost of the wreck in human lives, the rescuers blistered their whole bodies taking out the headless body of a man. It was badly burned but it is thought it can be identified. Also they got out the body of a woman burned to a crisp. It is thought she never can be identified. Those bodies still in the blazing furnace are thought to have been persons sleeping in the upper berths, and whose escape was badly cut off. As all killed except the trainmen were asleep in their berths, their identification is extremely difficult on account of the absence of clothing. It will be days before their identification is fully established, as relatives probably will have to come from far points to make identifications.

Says 23 Are Dead.

(Intelligencer Special)

London, Ont., August 25 — The crew of No. 4, passing through from the Duffield wreck, say that the dead will total 23, many of whom are burned beyond recognition.

IS IN THE FIGHT.

Roosevelt Will Go to the State Convention Loaded for Bear.

Herkimer, N.Y., Aug. 25.—"Fight! All right, I like a fight."

That was the reply made by Col. Roosevelt yesterday when his attention was called to the statement made in New York Tuesday night by William Barnes, jr., leader of the "old guard" in the state, that he and his associates would welcome a fight at the state convention.

"So long as it is a fight that they expect," continued Roosevelt, "they'll have all the fight they want.

"I am only going to the New York State Convention because I feel that the public interest and the interest of the people of New York demand that the Republican party should be given a chance to stand squarely and uncompromisingly for clean, decent and honorable politics.

"I'm going to that convention to make a speech exactly as I originally planned it, and while I hope that there will be enough good honest men in attendance as delegates to prevent the overthrow of the principles for which I shall stand, yet, if a certain element does oppose them, then it is their own affair, and so far as I am concerned the issue shall be absolutely clear-cut."

Oil Engines on Warships.

London, Aug. 25.—The report that the Admiralty is contemplating experiments with warships fitted with internal combustion engines has excited great interest in the naval world.

No official confirmation of the report is obtainable, however, and all experts in naval construction who have been consulted agree that the development of such engines has not yet reached a stage that would justify their use for battleships, though both the British and German Governments are known to have been for a long time experimenting with the application of Diesel oil engines to small vessels, and the Hamburg-American Steamship Co. is having Blohm & Voss build a 9,000-ton cargo boat fitted with Diesel engines.

In the best informed quarters in Portsmouth it is stated that the Admiralty is trying to evolve an internal combustion engine of 10,000 horse-power, which, if successful, will be first tried on an unarmored cruiser.

Engine Collides With Freight.

Orangeville, Aug. 25.—An Owen Sound freight train collided with a yard engine and two cars in the yards here about four o'clock yesterday morning. The yard engine was standing just about a switch from which she had come into the main track. The down freight got a little beyond the control of her crew, owing to the steep grade at this point, and could not be brought to a stop, although her speed was very much decreased. The engines telescoped, but the crews escaped injury by jumping. Three cars were completely derailed and one partially. The West Toronto auxiliary arrived about six o'clock.

Will Take Care of Themselves.

Montreal, Aug. 25.—The six orphans left without friends when their father John O'Keefe, killed their mother and then put a bullet into his own head a week ago, have started the battle of life alone.

The offer of Archbishop Bruchesi to take charge of them was refused, as Winnifred, 15 years of age, the eldest had made arrangements for the care of her brothers and sisters before the offer came. She is going to work and will support the youngest herself. Three others were taken in by neighbors, who will give them a home, and one has gone to a Quebec farm.

Big Hats Again.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—According to the National Association of Retail Milliners, which is holding its annual convention here, big hats are to be bigger and small hats smaller than ever before. There are to be no medium sized hats. Also, the more brilliant the coloring the more nearly to the ideal effect will the new hat conform.

New shades will include magnolia, a shade of orange; daualk, a coral red; pompeiian, a dead rose; herue, a light mahogany, and a cajou, a raisin color.

Calling Off Long Strike.

COL. HUGHES REPLIES

Hits Back at His Critics Regarding D.R.A.'s Usefulness.

He Answers an Editorial Which Declared That Range Work Was Not Practical and Far-Reaching Enough —Sir Frederick Borden Admits That Government Grant Is Small—Grenadiers of Toronto Win Walker Cup.

Ottawa, Aug. 25.—At the luncheon given by Col. Sam Hughes, president of the Dominion Rifle Association, yesterday, several speakers devoted considerable time to criticisms of a recent editorial article published here, which had contended "that the training at the ranges, while good in many ways, is not as practical and does not reach as many as it should."

Col. Hughes presided. At his right sat Hon. Col. Gibson, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario and Lord Lanesborough, representing His Excellency the Governor-General; and to the left were Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia, and Hon. Charles Murphy, Secretary of State. Among the sixty present were: Mayor Hopewell, Gen. McDonald, Col. Rutherford, Col. Brown, Col. Labelle, Col. Wilson, Col. McKay and many others.

Col. Hughes referring to the editorial hinted that, according to that article, the association had ceased to be useful. He emphatically denied this. As to an allegation there had been as to there being fads in connection with some rifle shooting matters, there had been fads in other directions. The war office had fads; everyone knew that it had always been addicted to fads. (Laughter.) Col. Hughes also hinted that perhaps the artillery branch of the service also had some.

Sir Frederick Borden also directed his guns on the writer of "the editorial in question," and devoted a quarter of an hour to him.

"It has been my desire to try and do something for the militia of Canada," Said Sir Frederick, "and much of any success that may have been attached has been due to my friend the president, and other men who have refused to let the bane of party politics enter into our militia system."

Sir Frederick said that, while the Governments spends annually around $150,000 for artillery practice, its annual vote for rifle practice for the D.R.A. is only $15,000, and $5,000 of that is used for sending the Canadian team to Bisley. He did not consider that extravagance.

The events yesterday at the Rockliffe ranges were the Walker and Dominion matches, in both of which there were over 500 entries, and competitions for several team cups. The first six in the Walker match are tied. They will shoot off probably to-day. This is a very unusual occurrence and indicates the closeness of this year's shooting at the D.R.A. The team cup contests resulted:

CURRENT EVENTS.

The finger mark method of identification had a peculiar triumph the other day in Montclair, N. J. There had been a series of burglaries in residences and in the cellar of one of the houses, the intruder had left his finger prints on the recently white-washed walls. When, some time later, a suspect was arrested his finger prints were compared with those on the whitewashed walls and they were declared to have been made by the same fingers. The accused man subsequently confessed.

The Department of Agriculture has sent out an estimate that Canada's population on March 31 last was 7,489,781, an increase of 305,000 over the calculation on March 31 of last year. This indicates a growth at the rate of some 40 per cent. in ten years, which is big indeed. Other big calculations have been made, however which the actual count showed to have been too hopeful. Estimate makers are prone to forget that there is a steady outflow as well as an inflow of population and become too optimistic. There is interest, however in the calculation and there will be much satisfaction if it is justified by next year's census.

What with an estimated reduced yield of wheat in both Canada and the United States, the outlook for lower prices for flour does not appear promising. U. S. crop reports indicate a total wheat crop of 657,000,000 bushels or 80,000,000 bushels less than last year's record production, but equal to ten year's average production. Corn promises a yield of 3,000,000,000 bushels, or 225,000,000 bushels above the previous season and 25 per cent over a ten year's average crop. The oat yield will exceed last year's excellent production with a total of 1,071,000,000 bushels, two hundred million bushels over the ten year average. Barley will equal last year's crop of 128,000,000 bushels, and rye will exceed the previous season, being 31,500,000 bushels comparing with 30,000,000 bushels. The total production of these grains as reported, is 4,908,000 bushels.

The British budget of last year has had remarkable effects in reducing drunkenness. A Blue Book just issued by the Home Office gives detailed statistics of the administration of the liquor laws. The year 1909 is marked by a great decrease in convictions for drunkenness, and for other offences combined with drunkenness. The convictions for 1908 were 187,803, and for 1909 they were 169,518, a notable reduction of 18,285, or 9.74 per cent. This decrease, the Blue Book says, is spread over nearly all parts of the country, including London, where, following decreases in previous years there was a further decrease between 1908 and 1909 of nearly five per cent The decline of convictions began almost immediately after the Chancellor's Budget speech, and continued throughout the year, and it is clearly shown that in fact it is impossible not to associate this decrease with the increased duty and the moral effect of it.

G. T. R. YARDMEN QUIT.

REFUSED TO WORK BECAUSE STRIKE-BREAKER WAS PUT ON AN ENGINE TO TAKE PLACE OF MAN WHO WAS ILL.

Toronto, August 24 — Every day brings forth some new source of dissatisfaction between the Grand Trunk and their employes, and only the good will of one official to-day prevented trouble that might have resulted in another strike.

It seems that in Toronto yards one of the old employes who was on strike and reinstated, had been ill for several days, and one of the strike breakers was taken on to fill the vacancy.

The other yardmen, who are members of the Brotherhood of Trainmen objected to this and refused to work until the matter was arranged.

The matter was finally settled by the strike-breaker being transferred to another department. The men claim it was another attempt to break faith with them. The agreement made with the company was to take all the old men back and not to take on any of the strike-breakers.

One more of the striking passenger conductors has been re-instated and given his old run between Toronto and Belleville.

Griffin's Newest Attraction.

A STAGE ON A STAGE

The ingenuity of man will be seen at its best, the last three days of this week at Griffin's Opera House, with the presentation of Kesselly's Marionettes.

Giving as they do an exact reproduction of some of the leading plays including actors and actresses, stage settings, scenes, audience giving full vent to their enthusiasm by applauding, etc. It seems hardly creditable that it is Manikins, and not hmuman beings that are enacting their roles.

Handsome inducements were advanced by the Griffin Amusement Co., before Mr. Kesselly would consent to appear in Canada, and then only with the assurance of playing the larger houses controlled by this enterprising company. Belleville is the first of the smaller cities to be favored with this attraction.

The Selig reel "The Way of the Red Man." is a drama showing the lives and customs of the fast disappearing aborigine of the far West.

Horse Followed His Beloved Master.

A strangely touching incident is told in connection with the death of the late Walter H. Reeves, whose sad demise was recorded yesterday. It seems that the late Mr. Reeves' father owned a horse, which the dead lad had been in the habit of driving, and which was supposed to be much attached to him. This morning "Jack" Reeves, a brother of the dead lad, hitched up the horse and drove it for a time, stopping in front of his fathers house where the dead body of his brother lay. The horse looked round, whinnied a few times, and then fell to the ground. When an examination was made the poor animal was found to be dead.

GOAL OF MILITARY BANDMEN.

All Striving for Coveted Post of Conductor of Grenadier Guards Band

King's Favorite Musical Organization to Visit Canadian National Exhibition.

The post of conductor of the Grenadier Guards Band is the most honorable military position in the British Empire. It is the chair which is the goal of every lad who is trained in the splendid military band schools of the British War Office, the chief of which is at Chatham, England. Just as every ambitious American lad cherishes the hope that he will some day be President, so every British band student hopes one day to be conductor of the Grenadier Guards Band, the crack organization of the Household Brigade, that is to say, of the regiments in personal attendance on His Majesty, the King. This post was held for a number of years by members of the famous Godfrey family of brass band musical fame. When the late Lieut. Dan Godfrey, whose name was at one time a household word, retired on account of old age, the choice of a successor fell upon Lieut Albert Williams, then a comparatively young man, who had made a name for himself as conductor of the band of the Royal Marine Artillery. Although the latter organization was not, until Williams took hold of it, regarded as a topnotch organization, he made it so, and when Godfrey retired he was the natural successor in the premier position of the Household Brigade. His splendid musicianship is widely recognized, and when he appears with his organization at the Canadian National Exhibition, in a few weeks' time, it will be an event of first importance. That the Band of the Grenadier Guards is coming at all is a mark of favor on the part of King George V., who is honorary colonel of the regiment and wishes to show his good will toward Canada by sending the favorite musical organization of his late revered father to Canada.

KILLED ON THE SPOT.

MOTORIST WAS IMPALED ON SHAFT OF CART.

Geneva, August 24.—A terrible accident befell M. Alleman, a well-known Swiss watch manufacturer, as he was motoring at night in the Bernese Oberland.

When passing through a village a schoolboy ran from a garden right in front of the car and was run over before there was the least chance of stopping it. Mr. Alleman took the boy in his car and at once went off to the nearest hospital, where the lad was found to be severely injured.

In going along a narrow lane he did not see a cart coming toward him, and the car dashed into it at a sharp pace There was a dreadful crash, in which the horse was badly cut and the cart smashed to atoms.

When help arrived it was found that M. Alleman's body had been pierced by the splintered end of one of the shafts of the cart and he was killed on the spot.

MASQERADED AS MAN.

BECAUSE SHE WAS ANNOYED BY NEW YORK MEN.

New York, August 24.—Certainly there was no suggestion in the appearance of little Flora Landen in the Florence Crittenden Mission today, as she tearfully told of her experiences of the last two months in masquerading as a man in New York, that would lead anyone to believe she could be successful in the deception for a minute. Yet she had held several positions posing as a man. She was a waiter, an amateur detective, and grocery's delivery boy, and no one had directly accused her of the imposture.

She was taken to the Night Court by Detective Robert Geary, to whom she had appealed for aid. When asked by Magistrate House why she preferred boy's attire to that of her own sex, this is the story she told:

"No girl who has a pretty face or a bit of a figure can work independently for a living in New York and escape being annoyed to desperation by the men, unless she happens to be without feelings or is used to it from her childhood. American men, especially those who have no home and have to dine at restaurants, are terrible. They worry a girl nearly to death. They are not like that in England. I think it is the lack of home life in New York that is to blame for this.

"It is because I was insulted and worried so by men until I could stand it no longer that I have had all this trouble. All I wanted was to be let alone so that I could earn my living in peace, but I found the independence of the working woman in America of which I had heard so much at home, was a fairy tale. So I decided that the only way I could get the protection I wanted was to dress as a man. Now all I want is to get back to England. I will never leave England again.

"I have a good home in London," Miss Landon said, "and as soon as I am clear of this trouble I shall return immediately to my parents there."

Four Cremated In Burning Auto.

MOTHER AND THREE DAUGHTERS PERISH — TERRIBLE ACCIDENT DUE TO EXPLOSION — FATHER AND SON MAY DIE ALSO.

Pittsburg, Pa., August 24.—A mother and her three daughters were cremated Sunday when an automobile driven by the father was blown to fragments by the explosion of a 20-gallon tank of gasoline on the rear of the machine. The father, William Faith, a retired oil operator and a wealthy resident of Masontown, Pa., and his son, William Faith, Jr., were seriously burned and may die. The dead: Mrs. Ellen Faith, 58 years old; Catherine Faith, 23 years old; Annie Faith, 20 years old; Ella Faith, 16 years old.

The party had left their country home for a day's tour in the big car and had proceeded several miles, when the accident occurred. What caused the explosion no one knows. The injured are in such a condition that they cannot talk. The car is entirely wrecked and what damage was not done by the force of the explosion resulted from the flames. The father and son were thrown some distance from the machine, while the mother and daughters were hemmed in the tonneau. They could not escape and their bodies burned while they were unconscious from the shock of the explosion.

The noise of the explosion was heard by farmers who hurried to the scene. The flames at the moment were so hot that no one could get near the burning machine. It was not until the fire was almost out that the would-be rescuers saw the burned forms of the mother and her three daughters lying in the road where they had fallen when automobile collapsed. The scene of the tragedy is midway between Masontown and Uniontown and in a section of the country far removed from the regular route of travel. This has made it difficult to get full particulars.

FARMERS' CLUBS

While it may be true of the farmers in general that they are not quick to adopt new ideas, new fads, new methods, there is no going back once they organize themselves into a Farmers' Club with the right man at the helm. Those who have never attended the meeting of such a club little realize either the necessity of such an organization or the great benefits that can be derived therefrom towards the uplifting, not only of the individual member but of the whole community. It is the Farmers night school. He thrashes out here the knotty problems of the daily toil. He fulfills his social duties to his neighbors as his forefathers did when they attended the chopping bees, the logging bees, the stumping bees, the building bees, and all the bees. Man is essentially a social creature and it is quite noticeable that in those districts where a strong spirit of hearty cooperation exists, the farmers are not only prosperous, but contented in their homes. They get the telephones installed, they equip their homes with all the modern conveniences of the city. Then they become the envy of their city friends who eventually decide to buy up a small farm and move out into the fresh air and blessed sunshine and the blue sky.

Some Farmers' Clubs meet in public halls, school houses, etc. Others meet in the homes of the more influential citizens of the neighborhood who as a rule, have greater conveniences for such meetings.

Farmers' Clubs usually hold their meetings monthly and in the fall and winter months. Afternoon meetings are not uncommon though the evening meetings seem to be the more popular.

The proceedings are likewise of any regular business meeting with some one or two persons as speakers of the evening. Discussion often follows the addresses and much valuable information is gleaned by all present. In some clubs a Bulletin Board is posted up giving the names and description of such animals or grains or other produce as members of the club may have for sale. In this way valuable exchanges often take place to the benefit of the neighborhood. In some cases the Farmers' Clubs have organized and put up whole rural telephone lines between outlying points not reached by the Bell Company. In other cases the clubs get up day classes in stock-judging, calling upon the Department of Agriculture at Toronto for competent speakers to conduct the classes. Some are instrumental in organizing egg circles. All of them encourage the art of public speaking, so much needed today by the men who are commonly known as the "Backbone of the Country."

In not a few cases experiments are conducted with different varieties of corn, potatoes, fertilizers, etc., so that whatever is best suited to that particular neighborhood's conditions can be procured to their mutual advantage. Sometimes noxious weeds and insect pests are brought to the meetings and identified. An excellent report published by the Farmers' Institute Branch at Toronto, giving many practical hints and valuable suggestions can be secured free by dropping a card to A. D. McIntosh of the Branch Department at Stirling, or direct to G. A. Putnam, Supt., of Farmers' Institutes, Toronto.

Any assistance which can be given by the District Representative at Stirling will be freely and cheerfully rendered either for organization or regular meetings. Correspondence is solicited.

Laurier and the Japanese

Sir Wilfrid Laurier apparently is learning that British Columbia objects to Oriental immigration. The occasion is opportune to recall an incident of the past.

It was in 1906 that the Canadian-Japanese convention was concluded which gave the Japanese free ingress into Canada. In moving to ratify this convention Sir Wilfrid Laurier laid the papers connected with the subject on the table in so studiously unostentatious a manner that nobody in the House noticed them. When they had been carried off to the custody of the officials of the House a Liberal member took care to borrow them and kept them out of sight. Thus the House passed the legislation without detecting, and without the Government informing it as to, the real effect of the arrangement. In due time there came an influx of Japanese and there was trouble. Then the papers came to light. The story they told was singular.

The Canadian-Japanese Convention of 1906 was simply an arrangement whereby the Anglo-Japanese Treaty of the early nineties was made to apply to Canada as well as to Great Britain. It turned out that when the treaty was concluded the British Government had provided that it should not apply to Canada, Australia, and other portions of the overseas dominions without their special consent; and that it did it largely because of the immigration difficulty. In writing to the Canadian Government on the subject the Colonial office advised it to pass legislation similar to the Natal Act, and so to guard its shores against an influx of Oriental labor. The Conservative Government prior to 1896 showed anxiety to guard this point, but went out of office before the matter came to a head. The Colonial office repeatedly pressed the Laurier Government to take action along the lines of the Natal Act, but it did nothing and finally negotiated the convention with Japan, (1) doing nothing to safeguard labor from Oriental competition. (2) Omitting to let the House know that any such suggestion had been made to it. Finally when the British Columbia Government took to passing the Natal Act, the Laurier Government steadily disallowed it, asserting that its action was prompted by Imperial considerations. Then the Vancouver riots occurred, and the Laurier Government, which had allowed the situation to drift, had to send an envoy to Japan, and to invoke the help of the Imperial Government.

STILL BIGGER HATS.

UMBRELLA-SIZED MILLINERY WILL PREVAIL SAY THE NATIONAL RETAIL MILLINERS.

Chicago, August 24.—There is no relief in sight for women who have accepted the dictates of fashion and struggled under the unwieldiness of hats of the size of an umbrella. That is the edict of the National Association of Retail Milliners, which is holding its annual convention here.

Big hats are to be bigger and small hats smaller than ever before. There are to be no medium-sized hats.

The desire for extremes extends even to the coloring according to Mme. Marie president of the association. The more brilliant the coloring the more nearly to the ideal effect will the new hat conform.

New shades will include magnolia, a shade of orange; dauålk, a coral red; pompeiian, a dead rose; berue, a light mahogany, and a cajou, a raisin color.

THE FIRST ICE CREAM.

BEAUTIFUL DOLLY MADISON FIRST SERVED DELICACY.

To Dolly Madison, wife of the fourth president of the United States, and one of the most charming and popular mistresses the White House has ever known, is attributed the invention of ice cream. Gifted with beauty, grace and diplomacy, it was yet as a hostess she won her most lasting fame. It is recorded that even the most bitter enemies met amicably at her board rather than forego the pleasure of her entertainments. That she should be the first to serve this now universal delicacy should entitle her to a place in the international memory. If, as someone has suggested, every hot and thirsty mortal who finds refreshment in a sundae, an ice cream soda or any of the kindred concoctions, were to contribute a penny for the erection of a monument to the inventress of this culinary delight, they might build a tower so high that all other memorials of a similar kind would appear as mere gate posts.

MYSTERIOUS CONVENT

SISTERHOOD OF THE HOLY FACE IS NOW A MEMORY.

Order of Devoted Women In Montreal Who Lived and Practiced Their Holy Exercises In Heart of Business Section Have Disappeared—Tradition Says They Slept In Coffins With a Crucifix Before Them.

The evening of Good Friday is the time set apart in the great Church of Notre Dame, Montreal, for the Adoration of the Holy Face.

"La Sainte Face," a ceremony which consists chiefly of visiting the Stations of the Cross, with a period for meditation at each spot, hallowed in the imagination by the sufferings endured by the Saviour in the course of his agonized journey.

And when, the ceremony finished year after year, the faithful have wended their way thoughtfully homeward, they have asked one another, quietly and solemnly, "And what has become of the Convent of that other Holy Face, and what of the little nuns that inhabited it?"

For, not more than a decade ago, there was such a convent right in the heart of the city, inhabited by little nuns, who lived as austere a life as the Trappists at Oka, and, like so many other brave and noble religieuses prayed for those in the great world who did not pray for themselves.

It used to be known as the Mysterious Convent and was situated on the west side of Amherst street, just below St. Catherine.

The block containing the building with its big gateway, like a Porte Cochere, in the centre, is there still, but its appearance is changed, and one might almost say, like in so many similar cases in the West End where churches have been turned into stores and theatres, the money-changers have entered the temple.

Stores and business places are occupying the lower part of the block now, but the gilded mortar which was there when the convent existed, the sign of the old-fashioned physician, is still to be seen in front, and in the rear there are the ruins of the once-beautiful convent garden, with here and there in corners the battered holy statues that adorned it.

That little garden was the only place of recreation the little nuns had; and there they walked and meditated. This exercise and their walk to early Mass at St. James Church, on the corner of St. Denis and St. Catherine streets, were their only outings.

As a rule, they wore a black habit, with a small white frill projecting from that part which framed the face; on feasts days it was quite a treat to see them walk to and from the church in their special habit with the crimson front, upon which the face of the Saviour was painted.

Tradition has it that they slept in coffins, which were mounted on trestles, and contained a pillow and a blanket, and that the only other furniture of their rooms or cells consisted of a little table with a crucifix and a death's head.

At least one such cell existed, furnished in exactly that manner, but whether they actually slept in the coffin is a matter of uncertainty in view of statements made, by those who should know, at the present day. Suffice it that ten years ago some of the little nuns told the numerous faithful who were visitors to the strange convent that they did.

The rigor of their devotions is not however, to be doubted even at the present time.

They spent seven and a half hours at prayer each day. They retired to sleep at half-past eight, and arose at midnight. Then, like the Trappists, who, however, do not sleep again, they devoted an hour and a half, when all the busy world was asleep, to more religious exercises, after which they retired once more, to rise again for the spiritual and mundane tasks of the day, at five o'clock.

On Fridays they scourged one another with the same knotted scourges of many lashes which the Trappists use in their devotional system.

And, in reading this, remember that when the order was, so, to speak, at the height of its prosperity, the Sister Superior was apparently not much more than twenty-five years old, and the little nuns ranged in age all the way down from twenty to fifteen.

All this may seem strange to those who pride themselves on being worldly wise, the scoffers, and cynics; but careful investigations made at that time showed that the matter was tragically real to those little women.

They believed themselves called to the work they were doing; they believed that they were serving the Lord in a fashion he could not fail to approve of, and many are the faithful to be found to-day who will tell you that not one, but several miraculous cures, were effected through their piety and good works.

For some years they quietly and peacefully went their devotional way, and then the fame of their piety, and the reported cures which had been wrought through their prayers, brought unpleasant notoriety.

They were never officially recognized as a religious order by the heads of the Church. As the then Sister Superior said:

"We are only verbally recognized, but God is good and we must have patience. We have only been founded a few years, and the little sisters of St. Joseph were founded forty-six years before they were recognized."

For a while after that the newspapers throughout Canada and the United States published sensational accounts of the Little Convent and the Little Sisters.

Then suddenly it was stated that some of them had gone to form a branch convent at Bideford, Maine; still later, that the others had gone up North to establish a convent like the Trappist Monastery, and after that came oblivion, as it were.

During its actual existence the convent was called the Mysterious Convent.

Most Useful Tree.

EVERY PORTION OF A COCOANUT PALM OF VALUE.

Probably the most useful tree in the world is the cocoanut palm, every portion of which is put to good use. The trunk is used for building houses, for making furniture and farm implements and countless other articles; hollowed out it makes a canoe. Its leaves are used for thatching, the leaf stalks for paddles and fishing lines. The blossom in bud makes preserves and pickles besides serving as a staple vegetable. From the pith of the trunk is derived a kind of sago and from the flowers sugar, vinegar and toddy, which after fermentation becomes arrack. The ripe cocoanut is a valuable article of diet. The white kernel produces a delicious cream, a good substitute for milk, while the oil is used as a lubricant for soap and candle making. It is also applied to counteract the stings of scorpions.

The refuse of the oil, or oil cake, is valuable as food for animals and poultry and as a fertilizer for the soil. From the shell drinking cups, spoons, lamps, bottles, firewood and even tooth powder are obtained. The husks supplies fibre for mattresses and cushions, brushes and mats, ropes, cables, nets and even the harness for bullocks. The web sustaining the footstalks is made into strainers and torches. The tree acts as a conductor in protecting houses from lightning

Another useful tree is the breadfruit of Ceylon, a remarkable tree. The fruit is baked and eaten by the natives as we eat bread, and is equally good and nutritious. In Barbatu, South America, is a tree which by piercing the trunk produces milk, with which the inhabitants feed their children. In the interior of Africa is a tree which produces excellent butter. It is said to resemble the American oak, and its fruit, from which the butter is prepared, is not unlike the olive. Park, the great traveller, declared that the butter made surpassed that made in England from cow's milk.

Sierra Leone has a tree which produces cream fruit, which is agreeable to the taste. At Table Bay, near the Cape of Good Hope, is a small tree, the berries of which make useful candies. It is also found in the Azores. The vegetable tallow tree also grows in Sumatra. In the Island of Chusan large quantities of oil and tallow are extracted from its fruit, which is gathered in November or December, when the tree has lost its leaves.

The weeping tree of the Canary Islands is a kind of aboreal freak. This tree in the driest weather will rain down showers from its leaves and the natives gather up the water from the pool formed at the foot of the trunk and find it pure and fresh. The tree exudes the water from innumerable pores situated at base of the leaves.—Chicago Tribune.

Who Pays for the Advertising?

Wouldn't you prefer if you had a clothing store to sell a hundred suits of clothes in a day making an average profit of $2.00 per suit, to selling ten suits in a day, with an average profit of $5.00 per suit?

Suppose that, to sell the hundred suits a day you should spend, say $20.00 per day in advertising.

Who would be "taxed" for the advertising? Your patrons? Scarcely—when they pay you $3.00 less than they would have to pay for the identical suits to the merchant who does NOT advertise.

You? Scarcely—when you make a great deal more money than you would if you "saved" your advertising appropriation.

Your non-advertising competitor—in the penalty he pays for not doing so large a volume of business as he COULD do by advertising, and taking a smaller per-sale profit?

That's it—precisely!

The porter sighed, and continued: 'Bimeby, he sent fer me, an' take me in a tent alone. 'Hannibal,' sez he, an' he pull out a big pocketbook, and give me ten, ten-dollar greenbacks. 'You git home,' he sez, 'quick as you can, an' give this letter to Miss Beatrice, an' keep you'ah black mouf shut. Ef de raiders cotch you, dey done kill you. Hide de letter. The stars wuz shinin'.

"'Get up, Hannibal,' sez he. 'Now I'll take you outside de lines. When I come along wid some hossmen, you jess follow on foot, an' cut loose when we strike the lines. Don 'speak no more till I talk to you. Fix up your nack now!' I got all my things together, an' I done find a pocketbook layin' at my feet. Fo'ah God! Mars' Maxwell! I jess done shove it in my boot-leg and hold my mouf. In a half hour I wuz out of de Yankee lines. We stop on the brow of a hill, by a picket post. The Colonel he calls me: 'Hannibal,' sez he, 'there's your way. Tell you'ah young Missus I'll never forget her.'

"He give me a canteen of good whisky, an' a bundle of segahs. He gave me a big six shootah, an' says, 'You're a good boy, Hannibal! Now's youah show.' He doant speak no mo' 'bout book. He called off his sojahs, an' I look back, an' I sneak down de worm fence to de bush. I turn 'roun'. He was sittin' on his hoss on the hill, an' look mighty grand in de moonlight, an' one big stah hangin' ovah his head. When I struck de bush, I made tracks till I wuz fah inside our lines. I travelled all night, an' at daybreak I wuz in Uncle Pomp's cabin at Vine Creek!—I slep' like a hoss, an' lay low. In de afternoon, I look at de pocketbook. It wuz full of new Yankee money, an' foah or five letters an' cards. When I got home next mawnin', I hide de money an' my own hundred dollars too, an' put away de pocketbook. I give de Cunnel's letter to Miss Beatrice, and tole her the Cunnel wuz safe. She wuz singin' like a bird aroun' de ole Hall. She ask me a thousan' questions."

"And you kept the pocketbook, Hannibal!" Maxwell cried, impatiently.

"Now, dat's what done all de trouble! I got feared, an' give de pocketbook to Mammy Aggie. She doant read no moah'ne me. On' de ole black fool take it straight to Miss Beatrice!—I wuz feared it de Yankee come I'd get licked foah dat job!—Mammy Aggie doan' know about de stolen money, you see." The negro hung his head, and mumbled in repentent agitation.

"Soon I heah de gals a-runnin' up stairs, an' a big trouble!—In ha'f an hou'ah, ole Mammy come to me in de kitchen, 'Clear out to de bush, you young devil,' she says, 'you'se done kill Miss Beatrice. Ef you'se heah when she wakes up, she'll skin you alive. Git to the big Sycamore, an' stay dere. I'll send something to eat and tole you what to do.' You see, Cap'n!" the porter explained. "We darkies all had a hidin' place in slavery times. I got all de money, an' my pack, an' my six-shootah, an' my blankets. That night ole Mammy Aggie come herself, with a boy, an' fin' me. I know'd her signal. 'Hannibal,' sez she, 'I know de whole business now!—My poor young gal Missus she tole me the Cunnel was a liar an' a scoundrel. —I wish foah God, you let Mosby hang him. We'se all come to bad times. Get out o' heah, an' doan' come back again. De ole fam'lies is all gwine down. You kin go off wid de Yankees, an', by an' by, sneak back quiet an' see you' ole mudder.' An' she cry, an' go on awful! I wuz skeered, an' give her de bones' hundred dollars I got. I kiss ole Mammy an' skin out. When I got to de Yankee lines, dey wuz movin' all off Richmond way. I know'd Miss Beatrice would treat me awful if I staid, an' I tole ole Mammy to tell her I done find' the pocketbook in de room de Yankee wuz in when I come back.

"I got wid a sick Yankee offisah, (foh de ahmy doan' go our way,) an' come north nursin' him!—When he got well, he get me dis yere place. I'se got hosses' money laid by now, an' I try to fotch my ole Mammy out. De railroad boys fin' out she's done died and buried. She nevah tole no single thing, an' Miss Beatrice done leave home all alone. Now I'se feared to tell Mars' Beverly!—He'd kill me."

"But did not Miss Beatrice ask you about the book, when she met you on the train?" Maxwell eagerly said.

"Shu'ah!" said the trembling negro. "She speak might' quick, an' I'se got to stick to dat lie. She wuz kind o' sharp, an' I played coon on dat. Foah God! Cap'n, de 'Debbil wuz in dat book. I don' follow her at Cincinnati, 'cause I'se feared of her. Dey'se a powerful high temper, all dese Seaton people!" The porter gazed entreatingly at Maxwell. "What kin I do, Cap'n?" the black queried.

"You're told me all?" Maxwell sternly said.

"All de rest is in my poor Mammy's grave," the whimpering porter groaned.

"And you don't know this man's name?" Maxwell sternly said.

"Foah God! no," the trembling negro replied. "I don' read none."

"Keep your mouth shut, and never speak till I tell you," the officer cried.

"An' you'll look out foh me?" Hannibal pleaded.

"Always! Now, leave me!—Don't ever let Mr. Beverly know we two have any secret. If you do, I'll kill you, and no mistake!" calmly said Maxwell.

"All right, Sah!" replied the negro, almost cheerful in his unbosoming. His responsibility was over!

"I must think this over! what madness! what folly!" the soldier mused. The stars were low in the west when Maxwell,—(for appearances,) sought his couch!—The red fire of his cigar had lit up the darkened smoking-room for hours, as the train rushed onward. Both headache and heartache, he carried to his slumbers! All was dark; and darker than the night was the mystery of lost Beatrice. "Poor Bev.! That fatal secret lies buried in Mammy Aggie's grave; and burns in the passionate heart of proud, wayward, missing Beatrice Seaton?—Does some living man share her burden of shame and sorrow?" the honest Ohio boy thought. He fell asleep murmuring her ominous sentence: "I seek only vengeance."

CHAPTER III.

"Cor Unum, Via Diversæ." — In Apache Land—Gordon Hears "Garry Owen" on the Washita — On Leave—A St. Louis Enigma—Jack's Letter.

All the next day Maxwell studied Seaton. The home-coming was nigh. Hannibal's chatter occupied the Virginian. In silence Maxwell revolved the black's strange story. With affected indifference, the officer noted the easy bearing of the ex-slave, whose mind was now freed of the burden of years. His elastic conscience was satisfied with safety.

"I am now the only bar between Seaton and these ominous facts, unknown to him," Maxwell thought. "Shall I speak? Must I guard this secret so strangely thrust upon me?" He hailed with joy the bustle of their arrival; for Hannibal was [illegible], and the sly dissimulation of his race carried the porter past the scrutiny of his master's keen eye.

"The boy knows no more," Seaton quietly told his friend.

"Thank Heaven! Beverly thinks he has sounded the depths of this negro's nature. He must never know from me what lies buried in old Nurse Aggie's grave." The Lieutenant thus decided. "If this missing girl would die, he might be spared future sorrow. It were well she drifted into oblivion. Time heals all wounds."

So into the happy circle of Maxwell's boyhood home, the pale young Virginian went, soothed by his wistful friend. Maxwell avoided all further colloquy with the black. Seaton guarded his secret well. A month of homely merry-making, and the genial surroundings of a happy family, lightened the cloud on the Southerner's brow. It was only in his night vigils with Maxwell that the now well-worn story was rehearsed. No ray of light appeared to lighten the gloom. Even the sheaves of letters and reports sent to Beverly by his many correspondents gave no new traces. Alone, under the whispering trees of the Ohio Valley, by the peaceful, winding streams—far afield with gun or rod, and in his wild night gallops, Seaton carried his own sorrows locked in a loving brother's breast. Daily communion with Maxwell alone buoyed him up. Strong in his nature, Seaton gave no visible sign of his burning impatience to be on the trail; yet he chafed inwardly.

"I must leave you soon, Vinton," Seaton pleaded often. "You have your golden future,—I my quest. I must go on,—on to the end."

"Wait till I get my assignment to duty," was the young officer's reply. "We may go together. I hope to be sent West. Go over with me. You have not yet worked the West out." And Seaton tarried; for (in truth) he often thought of far-off California and all the strange histories buried in the Golden West!—New scenes,—new names,—new surroundings veil many wild romances of lost youth, hidden heart tragedies, and early mishaps. Those, drifted under the quickly running sands of Time!—By the far Pacific, many forgoten world wanderers find their Mecca. They drink the Nepenthe of the flashing streams whose sands are gold. The grave Virginian with formal courtesy, and retained boyish chivalry, was already dear to the home circle at "Fair Oaks," and many a bright-eyed beauty dreamed that his sober stateliness would melt into tenderness when the Fairy Queen of Love might cast her spell on him.

Maxwell's leave was half expired when he tossed Seaton gayly two letters, on returning from a gallop to the town. He was glowing with triumph. "There you are, Beverly! I'm assigned to the Corps of Engineers, and ordered to headquarters at Prescott, Arizona, as Department Engineer Officer; I report at San Francisco for instructions. Read that letter from Jack. He actually orders us to come to Belvoir. Jack should be a General."

The friends discussed Gordon's pressing invitation for their promised visit. "I write you both," Jack dashed off characteristically. "I'm all right now. I'm assigned to the Seventh Cavalry. I will send a squad of Kentuckians over and capture you, if you don't come now. My regiment is at Fort Dodge, Kansas, and takes the field on October 1st. I have to go to St. Louis to close up some business there—then
